PREFACE.

THE NINTH VOLUME of the Freemason is completed, and offered to kind friends and readers wherever the English language is spoken; in fact, in all parts of the world. It is truly a cosmopolitan work, as it records the events which take place, week by week, in every portion of civilized nationalities, and its completed volume will therefore have much interest for all who like to keep before them an authoritative record of Masonic "sayings and doings" during each successive twelve months. It may perhaps be said without any egotism or bravado, that few journals have so much claim on the Craft generally as the Freemason. It offers in the first instance, a great desideratum in all legitimate trade, a very good article, at a very reasonable price. Indeed, it is not too much even to add that we know of no publication anywhere which affords so much to its readers at so little cost. Its zealous and Masonic Publisher has from the first most manfully laboured to give it not only a status in this country and in all countries, but also to put before his large circle of subscribers, and the reading public, as week follows week, a simple Masonic Paper of literary merit and of careful compilation which might command the attention of all ranks in our Order, and fitly serve as trustworthy chronicle of the "notabilia," and the "bene notanda," of our great Masonic fraternity at home and abroad. And who can venture to deny that to him has been vouchsafed the prestige both of mercantile success and personal approval? The Freemason is read, as we know just now, in every known portion of the world, and its circulation is weekly increasing. When we remember the history of Masonic literary labour in this country, we see at once how exceptional and how triumphant has been the onward progress of the Freemason. Its Publisher has never been daunted by difficulties or doubts. He has offered in the open market of Freemasonry an honest ware, (warranted not to shrink), at a very reasonable price, and he has left the matter as it can only be left, to the good sense, fair judgment, manly criticism, and kindly sympathies of his brethren. He has not been [disappointed; since never in the history of Freemasonry has so much Masonic support been ever received before in Great Britain, by any Masonic Paper. But still, being alike energetic and persevering in business, as well as in Freemasonry, our Publisher naturally wishes to enlarge still more his circle of readers, so as to render the support he receives from the body generally, commensurate as far as may be, with the numerical and social importance of the Craft. One fact he wishes to impress on the minds and memories of his readers is that a large proportion of Freemasons read no Masonic Journal at all, and the margin between those who can take in a Masonic Paper and those who do not, for some reason or other, is very wide indeed. He trusts therefore that in 1877, much of the past apathy may be remedied—more of this present ignorance of the Freemason may be dispelled. He will spare no pains in the present or future, as in the past, to make the Freemason worthy of the Order. During the last 12 months, he has very frequently increased the 16-paged paper to 20 or 24 pages, in order not to lag behind with the "copy," so kindly forwarded from all parts; he has improved the quality of the paper in striking measure, and he will be always willing to make any sacrifice in the interests of the Freemason, which passing news may require, or the exigencies of superabundant correspondence may demand.

He thanks again one and all who have read, or circulated, or subscribed to, or written for the Freemason in 1876, most heartily and sincerely for all their truly fraternal efforts, and he trusts that the same kind support will be tendered to him in 1877.

The Editor also begs to join with the Publisher in offering his heartfelt acknowledgments to all, whether readers or writers, who have cheered his humble labours in 1876, and he is inclined to hope that 1877 will witness no deterioration in the quality of the Freemason in any respect, but will manifest to all who look over it, or carefully con over its interesting pages, that as good Freemasons, those who manage it are zealously striving week by week, and year by year, to add to its own intrinsic worth as a true, sound, creditable, fair Masonic Journal, and to claim the confidence and maintain the patronage of old and new friends.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

MOUNT LEBANON LODGE (No. 73).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 21st ult., at Bro. Spencer's, the Bridge House Hotel. The W.M., Bro. L. J. Hooper Wilkins, as is customary with him, took the chair punctually at half-past five, the time named in the summons, supported by his officers, viz., Bros. Charles Rayden, S.W.; Knott, J.W.; Keeble, S.D.; Iretton, J.D.; Cooper, I.G.; Harris, P.M., Treasurer; Free, P.M., Secretary; Ebsworth, P.M., D.C.; and Rose, P.M., W.S. Notwithstanding that it was election night, the general attendance was below the average. The close proximity of Christmas may have had something to do with this, as many brethren would probably be so much engaged in other matters that they could not attend "without detriment to themselves or connexions." It may be, too, that the election was considered as a foregone conclusion, as no one would vote against the Senior Warden, so popular is he among those over whom he is so soon to rule. There being no work on the agenda, the election of W.M. for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and the result, as we have already anticipated, was unanimously in favour of Bro. Rayden. The ballot for Treasurer was next taken, which was unanimously in favour of Bro. Edward Harris, P.M., who has now filled that office for, we believe, 38 years, during the whole of which time he has only been absent from the lodge on three occasions, and then only through illness. Bro. Harris is not only the oldest P.M. but is the oldest member of the lodge; hence he may lay a double claim to the title of father of the lodge, and a very good father he is, for he is at all times ready and willing to give advice and instruction to his younger brethren. Bro. Laing was re-elected Tyler. Bro. Harris next proposed the usual sum from the lodge funds to purchase a Past Master's jewel to be presented to Bro. Wilkins on his vacating the chair, and in the course of his remarks he paid a very high compliment to the W.M. for the skill and ability with which he had governed the lodge during the past year. Were he to propose, he said, double the amount he had named he was certain it would be cheerfully given; but with Bro. Wilkins that was not necessary. The jewel, whatever it was, would be valued not for its intrinsic worth but as being a souvenir of his year of office. It is needless to say that the motion was unanimously passed.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 16th ult., at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville Road. The W.M., Bro. J. J. Michael, presided and performed the work of the lodge, assisted by his officers, Bros. Thos. Williams, S.W.; B. Kingham, J.W.; Rose, Treas.; G. Tims, Sec.; John Douglas, S.D.; C. J. Scales, J.D.; W. M. Stiles, D.C. Geo. Colls, W.S.; W. Side, I.G.; Jas. Willing, I.F.M. Visitors: Bros. J. Gardner, 1563; Fenner, 1227; S. Mills, P.M. 157; Geo. Jones, One and All; H. Masse, P.M. 619 ("Freemason"); and 34 lay brethren of the lodge. The work consisted of raising Bros. H. Stiles, J. Gilbert, jun., Swaagman, and Solomon; passing Bro. Cave, Van Camp, and Lowgrove; and initiating Messrs. F. Baddeley, George Edwards, and Henry Scales. The brethren were engaged in these ceremonies for over three hours, and at its termination they adjourned to an excellent repast, provided by Bro. George Cox, the manager of the Metropolitan Club. The toasts followed the banquet, and the Prince of Wales's health, together with success to his journey in the far East, was most heartily drunk. The Prov. and Deputy Grand Masters' health was as drunk, and the W.M. in proposing it drew attention to the great ability of both these rulers in the Craft. O. Willing proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who came into the lodge 15 months ago an obscure country brot. He had, however, so applied himself to Masonic studies that since his connection with the lodge he had blossomed and borne magnificent fruit. He meant to go on as he had begun. His working in lodge had been excellent, his gentlemen had come up for initiation, and the W. had consequently had no easy time of it. Other des were also required of him, and in this lodge the W. was expected to collect a large amount of money for the charities; to keep the brethren well supplied with all they wanted; and also to leave a large balance in the Treasurer's hands when the chair was passed to the next M. That evening they had had a very agreeable meeting, and the W.M. had done his best to make it so. He had, in fact, proved himself in all respects fitted to occupy the chair. (Applause.) The W.M., after some allusions to the endeavour which had been made in the lodge to render all the brethren comfortable, and at the banquet table not to stint them of good cheer, expressed his pleasure in ministering, even though sometimes in a small degree, to the extension of Freemasonry. Freemasonry did not consist in eating and drinking. This lodge was now becoming very powerful, and it was the lodges that were powerful which exerted the greatest influence in the Order. This lodge therefore should set the example to other lodges. What they could afford they should spend, but at the same time they should remember that they should leave something to be applied to the cause of charity. The Metropolitan Lodge would never forget this, and it was one of the greatest objects of its promoters that the cause of benevolence and charity should ever be its distinguishing feature. The lodge had freed itself from all engagements, and it could now devote itself to the objects it had in view. This was a very proud position for so young a lodge to attain to; and it was also a proud position for a brother to occupy its chair when it had so far fulfilled its mission. He was much obliged to the brethren for having drunk his health so heartily, and he trusted that on all occasions they would support him as loyally and heartily as they had hitherto done. If they did he should when his year of office expired retire into the ranks of the Past Masters with his best wishes to them all. (Cheers.) Bro. Michael then gave "The P.M.," and, quoting Barham's "Jackdaw of Rheims," said his "words were too faint his merits to paint, and so they agreed to make him a saint." (Laughter.) Fortunately they did not want reminding of the P.M.'s many good qualities, and if they did there was that in the lodge room to bring him to their memory (referring to the oil painting which was presented on the occasion of Bro. Willing becoming I.P.M.). The promotion of the lodge was due to Bro. Willing, through whose indefatigable exertions night and day they had obtained their warrant. When they considered the amount of pleasure he had been instrumental in affording all of them, they could not but feel what an immense debt they owed him. Freemasonry, to his (the W.M.'s) mind, afforded pleasure to all its members. It was one of the greatest pleasures of life; and if for nothing else the establishment of this lodge had endeared Bro. Willing to all of them. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Willing replied. He had always experienced kind feelings from the members of the lodge. If it was difficult for him to speak now, what would it be a few years hence, when as one of the many Past Masters he should have the pleasure of meeting many happy faces sitting alongside him as Past Masters. He felt deeply the good feelings of the brethren, and anything that appertained to Freemasonry, he could assure them, was ever of interest to him. Any one who took the same interest in the well-being of the Craft naturally became a close friend of his directly. Certainly he was the founder and father of the lodge; but it must be remembered its success depended on the hearty support it received from others. The brethren who assisted him in its formation had no idea when they established it that they would be able to make it more than 30 strong at the end of the year. But such success had attended it, that the difficulty now was not to bring members in, but to keep them out. There was the great question of want of accommodation looming in the future. But then, where were they to go? Anderton's Hotel, one of the best places of meeting in the whole of the metropolis, the London Tavern, Cannon-street Hotel, Freemasons' Tavern, all had the objection of not being so easily accessible for the brethren, who by the circumstance of their residential localities were conveniently situated for the Metropolitan Club. It behoved Freemasons to build halls of their own. In many parts of the country, Freemasons were better accommodated than in London; and it must be known to the brethren that it was essential to the proper performance, of the ceremonies that there should be every accommodation. More especially was this the case for the ceremony of initiation, for it was on a brother's primary introduction to the Order that the greatest impression was made on him. Proper Masonic halls erected in different localities would provide this requisite. He would now speak of the Charities, which up to the present time the brethren had liberally supported. He then appealed to the brethren to assist him in making up a good list for the Benevolent Institution's Festival, of the 9th February. (This was responded to by the contribution of some £30.) The W.M. afterwards gave "The Visitors," for which compliment Bro. Mills, P.M. 157, and several other brethren responded. The W.M. next proposed "The Initiates," and exhorted them to join the Lodge of Instruction, and obtain a further insight into Masonic mysteries than they had obtained that evening, crossing as it were the threshold of Freemasonry. The Initiates having responded, the toast of "The Officers" followed, and these brethren having replied, the evening, which had been enlivened by some very nice singing, was brought to a close.

HULL.—Humber Lodge (No. 57).—An unusually large number of members of this old and important lodge assembled on the evening of Tuesday, the 21st ult., for a purpose at all times of great Masonic interest, viz., the election of W.M. for the ensuing year. During the last year the office has been fulfilled by Bro. Jonathan West, and we are merely relating a fact in stating that his year of office has been as pleasant and as prosperous as a year as can be recollected by the oldest members of the lodge. Bro. West is, in himself, a striking instance that genuine Masonic worth, such as kindness and courtesy, adherence to Masonic principles, and attention to Masonic duties are certain to be recognised and rewarded amongst us. In addition to these qualifications, Bro. West has the advantage of possessing many genial and attractive social attributes, which always make their influence felt in a large lodge, and tend to promote that harmony and good feeling so essentially necessary to "mother comforts." Bro. West, we are assured, leaves the chair with the best and most fraternal wishes of his brethren, who, in appreciation of his many brotherly qualities, intend making him the recipient of some tangible mark of their approbation through the medium of a Masonic presentation. The W.M. elect is Bro. A. W. Ansell, who will, no doubt, have the example of his predecessor constantly before him, and who, we believe, will zealously strive to maintain the happiness and prosperity of the lodge. There is one thing to which, as we are now referring to this lodge, we may, with propriety, allude, and that is, the somewhat indiscriminate admission of members. Many of the brethren appear to think that the success of a lodge relies more upon quantity than quality, and, therefore, instead of adding to Masonry those capable of shewing to advantage its principles and teachings, and taking an active part in its promulgation, they get those who, after becoming full fledged M.M.'s, degenerate into thinking that the essence and spirit of Freemasonry consist in the Knife and Fork Degree. The Humber Lodge is one of the largest in the kingdom, as well as one of the richest. At present the list of members number nearly 300, and as the lodge is worth some thousands of pounds, the rapid increase of members cannot be on account of money wanted. There seems to be a desire on the part of the W.M.'s to initiate as many candidates as possible, so that such W.M. may say he has done more to increase the lodge than his predecessor. During Bro. West's Mastership somewhere about thirty candidates have been initiated into Freemasonry. What will ultimately become of the lodge if the manufacturing goes on at this rate we cannot tell. It is hoped that those to whom the future prosperity of the Old Humber is dear will take this subject into consideration, and that Bro. Ansell during his year of office will set an example which has long been wanted. A report of the installation will duly appear.

BURY.—Prince Edwin Lodge (No. 128).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge was held on Wednesday, the 15th ult. Amongst a number of other visiting brethren present we observed Bros. Tunnah, Provincial Grand Secretary for East Lancashire, and Newton, of Bolton. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, the lodge proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year. The presiding W.M., Bro. Warwick Wood, recommended as Master Bro. W. S. Barlow, the S.W. of the lodge. The election was by ballot in the form prescribed by the Book of Constitutions. The W.M. declared Bro. Barlow to be unanimously elected, and congratulated him thereon. Bro. Barlow briefly thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him. The lodge then proceeded to the appointment of the rest of the officers: Bros. Thomas Hood being Treasurer; Wright Greenhalgh, Tyler; and S. Holt and S. Horrocks, the Auditors. Bro. Tunnah concurred in the manner in which the election had been conducted, and congratulated the lodge on the result. The W.M. then, in a highly eulogistic speech, presented to Bro. Ramsbottom, Secretary, a massive silver cup and a Past Master's jewel, subscribed by the brethren of the lodge. The cup was chastely engraved, and underneath a suitable Masonic emblem. On the side of same was the following inscription: "Presented by the Officers and Members of Prince Edwin Lodge to Bro. Thomas Ramsbottom, who for upwards of 40 years has served the lodge with zeal and fidelity." Bro. Tunnah, at the request of the W.M., then proceeded to invest Bro. Ramsbottom with the Past Master's jewel, and in doing so alluded, in very eloquent and earnest terms, to Bro. Ramsbottom's long and valued services to the lodge, which he stated had extended over nearly half-a-century, and notwithstanding that their honoured Secretary was verging upon fourscore years, he found him still in harness, and to all appearance able to serve the lodge for many years to come with pleasure to himself and profit to the lodge. He (Bro. Tunnah) was glad to have the opportunity of making this investiture. He thought there was a peculiar fitness in that ceremony having fallen into his hands, for he believed that, as Bro. Ramsbottom was the oldest lodge Secretary in the province, he (Bro. Tunnah) was the oldest Provincial Secretary in Lancashire. They had held their respective offices for a longer period than any of their predecessors, and he was quite sure they both had no higher ambition than "to die with harness on their backs." He concluded by requesting the W.M. to adjourn the lodge from labour to refreshment, that he might have the satisfaction of filling the very handsome cup just presented, and pledging Bro. Ramsbottom therein. The W.M. consented, when "the loving cup," filled and re-filled several times by Bro. Tunnah, was passed round the lodge until every member had quaffed therefrom to the aged veteran's health and happiness.

SHEERNESS.—Adams Lodge (No. 158).—The regular meeting of this highly prosperous and excellent lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, which is fairly entitled to rank as one of the best worked and most harmonious lodges in the extensive Province of Kent, met on Tuesday, the 7th ult., for the first time, in their new rooms, at the Victoria Hall Buildings, Trinity Road, Sheerness-on-Sea, which has been decorated in a most beautiful way, and is now considered equal to any in the province. These rooms were originally designed for a Masonic Lodge by Bro. C. B. Shrubsole, P.M. of this lodge and P.P.G.S.D. of Kent, and great credit is due to him for the judgment he displayed. Bro. T. J. Firminger, W.M., presided, assisted by the following officers:—viz., Bros. A. Spears, P.M., Treas., P.P.G.O., acting I.P.M.; W. T. Carpenter, P.M., acting S.W.; J. H. Brett, J.W.; J. Bagshaw, P.M., Sec.; J. P. Watts, S.D.; J. F. Nunn, J.D.; C. Perkins, I.G.; A. Donavan, Steward; and J. Akhurst, acting Tyler, and the following brethren:—Bros. R. Derry, C. Moore, J. H. McLachlan, R. Coleman, J. Brown, A.

Thompson, G. Wager, H. E. Hammond, F. C. Paul, A. Steadman, T. F. Brown, J. Davidson, E. J. Penney, G. Ayton, E. Goldborough, and J. Taylor. Among the visitors we noticed Bros. T. M. Rigg, P.M. of 1089 and P.P.G.R. of Kent; R. Warlow, J.W. of 378 and P.P.S.B. of South Wales; J. Nixon, E. Garrett, M. W. West, P.M.; and H. A. Johnson, of 1089; J. Harper, 521; R. Pyke, 175; A. Bean, 336; S. Reeves, 358; and F. Blaas, 184. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer. When the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed the ballot was taken for Mr. C. W. Bradley and Mr. Arthur W. Bird, who were elected unanimously. The W.M. then called upon Bro. A. Spears, P.M. and P.P.G. Org., to address the brethren on this occasion; when Bro. Spears first complimented the brethren on their first meeting in the new lodge room, then taking the subject of the groundwork of Masonry being holy, he illustrated it by giving the history of the three grand offerings, which made it holy, as we find recorded in the volume of the Sacred Law, and characterized them as three distinct offerings to complete one great purpose, the first being an offering of faith, the second an offering for disobedience, the third an offering of thanksgiving and worship, and alluded to the great number of years that elapsed between the first offering and the third, and the complete fulfilment of the promises that God had made to Abraham when he called him to go and offer up his only son on Mount Moriah. He then exhorted the brethren to practise the grand principles of Masonry—brotherly love, relief and truth, and in their daily walk and conversation, to display to the world the happy effects of our honourable Order, and to practise not only that charity which supplies the wants of the needy, but act to our neighbour as we would our neighbour to act to us, concluding with a prayer for the prosperity of the lodge and Craft in general wherever dispersed. After this address the brethren sang the following ode:—

Genius of Masonry, descend,
And with thee bring thy spotless train;
Constant our sacred rites attend,
While we adore thy peaceful reign.

The above was much appreciated by all present. The business of the lodge was then proceeded with, which was as follows:—Bro. E. Goldborough, F.C., who had previously been found qualified, was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., and Bro. Thos. F. Brown and Bro. G. Ayton, E.A., who had also been found qualified, were passed to the Second Degree of F.C.; the ceremony of passing and raising were worked by the W.M. in a very creditable manner. The business of the lodge being ended the lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer. The brethren then adjourned to the Britannia Inn for refreshment, and after spending a short time in song and sentiment, they separated, happy to meet again.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—A meeting was held at 4 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 13th, the most important one in the year, being that at which the officers are changed. Bro. J. S. Bartrum, W.M., opened the lodge, assisted by Bros. G. H. Cook, S.W.; H. Gore, J.W.; C. S. Barter, Treas.; H. Culliford Hopkins, Sec.; W. C. Dickenson, S.D.; J. M. R. Leir, I.G.; Gazzard, Tyler; R. Cook, P.M.; E. E. Phillips, I.P.M.; C. A. Bush; H. G. Bush. As visitors there were present Bros. Capt. Phayre, 53; C. Milson, P.M. 53; Simmons, I.P.M. 53; Wilton, P.M. 41; Trevor, 944; Gen. Doherty, P.M. 53; W. Hunt, 41; J. F. Draper, P.M. 243; Dr. H. Hopkins, 41, P.P.G.S.W., and P.M. 43 and 958; J. L. Stothert, P.M. 53; Colonel Ford, P.M. 53; Else, D.P.G.M. for Somerset. Bro. Phillips, P.M., gave the charge to Bro. Bush, which was omitted at his initiation at the previous meeting. He then took the chair and examined and entrusted the candidate. The latter retired for preparation, and the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. On his return he was duly passed as a F.C. by the I.P.M. The working tools were explained by Bro. Dickenson, who during the ceremony had acted as J.D., Dr. Hopkins taking the duties of S.D., and also giving the charge. Bro. Else then took the chair, he having kindly undertaken the duties of Installing Master. The preliminary proceedings being concluded, the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, the brethren below the chair retired, and in their absence Bro. Cook was regularly inducted into the chair of K.S., the ceremony thus far and afterwards being ably conducted by the D.P.G.M. On the return of the brethren the usual processions, salutations, and addresses took place, the lodge being resumed at the proper time in the Second and afterwards in the First Degree. The following appointments were made, and the brethren named were duly invested: J. S. Bartrum, I.P.M.; H. Gore, S.W.; H. C. Hopkins, J.W.; C. S. Barter, Treas.; Dickenson, Sec.; H. N. Smythe, S.D.; Leir, J.D.; C. E. Little, I.G.; C. Bush, D.C.; Gazzard, Tyler. The W.M. briefly addressed the brethren on his installation. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the retiring W.M., and also to the late Secretary, who had most efficiently filled the office for two years. A similar compliment was paid to the D.P.G.M., who had travelled far to perform the ceremony of installation, and had performed the duty efficiently and gracefully. Several other matters of lodge business were transacted, and the proceedings were brought to a close at 6.30. About twenty brethren afterwards partook of a banquet at the Castle Hotel.

ROCK FERRY.—Rock Lodge (No. 1289).—The installation of W.M. of this lodge took place on Friday evening, the 10th ult., at the lodge-room, Bedford House, Rock Ferry, Cheshire. The brethren assembled at 5.30 p.m., when the retiring W.M., Bro. Lilley Ellis, passed Bro. Fergusson to the Fellow Craft Degree, the ceremony, in the perfectness of its working, being illustrative of the able manner in which the work of the year had been performed by him. There was a large number of visitors present, including several P.P. Grand Officers and W. Masters of neighbouring lodges. The W.M. elect was Bro. Francis

L. Bolton, and the chair of Installing Master was filled by Bro. Edward Friend, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.D., himself the first W.M. of the Rock Lodge, and by whom all the succeeding Masters have been installed. The Wardens' chairs were taken by Bros. J. and T. Platt, P. Prov. G.J.W. and P. Prov. G.J.D. respectively, and the installation ceremony was performed in such an impressive and skilful manner by the Installing Master as to elicit the warm approbation of all the brethren present, who, later in the evening, expressed their cordial thanks for his untiring interest in the welfare of the lodge, and their appreciation of the mode in which he had performed the whole of the ceremony. The newly-elected W.M., having been saluted according to custom, appointed the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Dr. J. Wilson Paton, S.W.; W. S. Stanton, J.W.; F. K. Stevenson, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B., Treas.; P. J. Pearson, Sec.; Archd. Wallace, S.D.; Richard Townsend, J.D.; J. Phillips, I.G.; J. R. Ross and E. Overbeck, Stewards. A Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. L. Ellis, I.P.M., by Bro. Stevenson, P.M., as a mark of the appreciation of the Master's able and courteous manner in which he had presided over the lodge during his year of office, and was by him feelingly and suitably acknowledged. The brethren afterwards dined together, and Bro. J. Platt reported that the result of the three entertainments given by Bro. Chas. Du Val on behalf of the Cheshire Masonic Institution had been a substantial addition to the funds of the charity.

ECCLES.—Victoria Lodge (No. 1345).—The last meeting of this young and well-worked lodge was held at the Cross Keys Hotel, on Wednesday last. The members present were Bro. Wright, W.M.; Bros. Rudman, S. W.; Ballard, J.W.; Shaw, S.D.; Holt, J.D.; Pearson, I.G.; J. Brooks and T. Buxton, P.M.'s, and others. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, Bro. Wilson was passed to the Second Degree by Bro. Brooks, P.M. Bros. Rev. J. Harper, J. C. Mather, and W. Pendlebury were raised to the Sublime Degree by Bros. Wright, W.M.; Gillman, P.M.; and Buxton, P.M., the work throughout being performed in a most solemn and impressive manner. Bro. Buxton, P.M., Treasurer, having announced his intention to attend as Steward at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, the sum of £20 was unanimously voted to be placed on his list. Bro. Mountain proposed a brother as a joining member. Hearty good wishes were expressed from several visiting brethren. All business being ended, the lodge was closed in ancient form. The brethren afterwards partook of refreshments, the W.M. receiving the congratulations of those present on the prosperous state of the lodge, having, during his year of office, been enabled to pay off all outstanding debts, and given several donations to various charities, including one of thirty guineas to the Boys' School, in addition to the amount voted that evening.

CHATHAM.—Brownrigg Lodge (No. 1424).—The installation of W.M. of this lodge took place in the Assembly Rooms, Brompton, Kent, on Friday, the 17th ult., when one of the most brilliant gatherings of the brethren ever seen in this locality assembled to do honour to this excellent lodge. The W.M., Bro. Jervis, took the chair at 2.45 p.m., with Bro. Wood, W.M. 20, as S.W., and Bro. Watson, P.M., P.G.R., as J.W. The D.P.G.M. for Kent, supported by several other distinguished brethren, having taken his seat on the dais, with Bro. Jervis, the Director of Ceremonies called upon the brethren to salute the D.P.G.M. according to ancient custom. The following lodges were represented by brethren:—Bros. Wood' W.M. 20; May, W.M. 212; Santi, W.M. 706; Nicholls, W.M. 1050; White, 1174; Pownall, W.M. 1536; Kappay, P.M. 20; Watson, P.M. 1050; Wyles, P.M. 1050; Coles, P.M. 20; Bates, P.M. 1424; Warne, P.M. 20; and brethren from Nos. 1174, 20, 1536, 1050, 158, 733, 184, 1257, 87, 1393, 1321, 1331, 407, 706, 262, 1536, 212, 77, 503, and 13. Bro. William Simmons was presented by Bro. Bates, P.M., to the W.M. to receive at his hands the benefit of installation as W.M. of this lodge. The installation ceremony was one of the most magnificent ever held in the province; the sacred music by the organ and string instruments of the choir harmonised most beautifully with the impressive delivery of this grand ceremony by Bro. Jervis, and the general effect of so solemn a rite will not be easily forgotten by those who were so fortunate as to be present on this occasion. The W.M. invested the following brethren as his officers for the year, the full explanation of the Masonic meaning of their respective jewels and their duties in the lodge being given by Bro. Jervis, the Installing Officer:—Bros. H. L. Fowler, S.W.; W. Cottrell, J.W.; Thomson, Treas.; Magee, Sec.; Ramsden, S.D.; Johnstone, J.D.; Piker, I.G.; Crane, D.C.; Crisp and Stammers, Stewards; Snape, Organist; Drago, Tyler. Bro. Jervis, the I.P.M., had the honour of receiving from the hands of the D.P.G.M. a handsome P.M. jewel in recognition of his services to the lodge as W.M. for the past year, the D.P.G.M. remarking that from what he had seen and heard of Brother Jervis never was a jewel more worthily bestowed, and he took occasion to point out to the brethren what a high degree of skill and knowledge in the Craft diligence and careful attention to every detail would give, them as exemplified by the working of Bro. Jervis. The I.P.M., in thanking the brethren for the mark of approbation they had been pleased to bestow upon him, pointed out the advantage of attending good Lodges of Instruction, as he owed his present knowledge of the Craft to the excellent teaching of the Past Masters of his mother lodge (1050) and other Lodges of Instruction to which he belonged. Bro. Watson, P.M., P.G.R., proposed and the W.M. seconded a vote of thanks to Bro. Jervis, for the admirable manner in which he had performed the installation ceremony. Carried unanimously. The I.P.M. having replied, Bro. Cottrell, J.W., proposed a gentleman for initiation and a joining member. The I.P.M. then proposed the W.M. as representative of the Brownrigg Lodge at the Provincial Charity Committee. Carried unanimously. The I.P.M. having also nominated an Audit Committee for the ensuing year, the W.M. closed the lodge in due form. The brethren then adjourned to the banquetting-room, at the Mitre Hotel, Chatham. About seventy-three sat down to the banquet. The whole arrangement was magnificent, the room being tastefully decorated with beautifully designed Masonic emblems, flags, exotics, &c. A novelty in bills of fare was placed near every brother's plate—it was an elegant folding card in white and gold, containing the menu, and photographs of the W.M., I.P.M., S.W., J.W., and Treasurer of Brownrigg Lodge. The W.M. took his seat, with the D. Prov. G.M., S.G.W., Prov. G. Registrar, and other Grand Officers on his right, the I.P.M., with Bros. Major Santi, W.M. 706; Captain Coles, P.M.; May, W.M. 212; Pownall, W.M. 1536; Warne, P.M.; and several other Past Masters on his left. The W.M. was, however, unfortunately taken ill at the commencement of the banquet, and reluctantly obliged to retire, so that Bro. Jervis, I.P.M., took the chair. The usual Masonic toasts were then proceeded with. When the I.P.M. gave the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master," a pair of crimson curtains behind his chair were drawn aside by invisible hands, and a recess disclosed, in which was a large transparency of H.R.H. the Grand Master, in full Masonic costume as he appeared on the occasion of his installation last April; this was illuminated by a strong light from behind; and the other parts of the recess were filled with plants, flowers, ferns, &c., presenting a pleasing effect, which was heartily greeted by the brethren present. Bro. Fowler, S.W., sung "God bless the Prince of Wales." The D.P.G.M., in replying to the toast of "The Provincial Grand Master and Grand Officers," pointed out to the brethren the great progress Masonry had made latterly in the kingdom, and stated that forty-one lodges had been added to the roll of the Grand Lodge of England during the past year, and exactly 150 since the formation of the Brownrigg three years ago. He expressed his desire to visit all the lodges in Kent, in order to make himself acquainted with the brethren of his province, and spoke in the highest terms of approval of the Brownrigg Lodge, and of the fine installation ceremony performed by Bro. Jervis that day, which he stated had given him an amount of pleasure he could scarcely express, and he trusted other lodges would strive to attain a similar degree of excellence. The D.P.G.M. also explained the objects and benefits of the provincial charities, and earnestly requested the attention of the lodges of Kent to their support. Bro. Cottrell then sang a capital song, suitable to the occasion, composed and arranged by himself. The toast of "The Visitors" was suitably responded to by Bro. May, W.M., and Bro. Pownall, W.M. 1536, both these brethren speaking enthusiastically of the admirable manner in which the duties had been performed by the officers of the Brownrigg Lodge. The D.P.G.M. proposed "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge," which toast was replied to by Bros. Jervis, Bates, and Watson. "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge" having been drunk, Bros. Fowler, S.W., and Cottrell, J.W., responded. The latter, in his reply, called the attention of the brethren to the debt of gratitude they owed Bro. Burfield, P.M., and Bro. Gamon, J.W. 20, for the beautiful decoration of their banquetting-room. Bro. Wood, P.G.S.W., in proposing "The Masonic Charities," made a most earnest appeal on their behalf, and forcibly exhorted the brethren to support that great principle of Masonry in its fullest sense, an appeal which we hope and believe will not be neglected by those who heard it. A most pleasant evening was passed, the excellent singing of Bros. Giffin, Edwards, Percy, Cottrell, Gaus, and Walker, and the recitations of Bros. Bates and Gamon, being thoroughly enjoyed by the brethren, the Tyle's toast bringing the whole to a close. We may conclude by drawing attention to an excellent system which has been carried out by the Brownrigg Lodge since its formation, and which may be adopted with advantage by other lodges—that is, the publication of an annual balance sheet, which shows the whole receipts and expenditure of the lodge for the past year. This is forwarded to every member of the lodge, and enables him to be quite cognisant of its financial proceedings and position.

BIRMINGHAM.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1474).—An event, somewhat unusual in Masonic customs, was celebrated in Birmingham in connection with the Lodge of Israel last Monday. Bro. Michael Davis, W.M., was entertained by the brethren to a complimentary banquet, in recognition of his valuable services to the lodge from its foundation to the present time. This lodge, which was established some twenty-four months ago, has prospered eminently, and its prosperity is to a great extent due to the zeal of its first W.M., Bro. Michael Davis, who at the termination of his first year of office was unanimously re-elected. It was resolved to give some slight recognition of his valuable services by certifying him and Mrs. Davis at a banquet, which was held last Monday at the Midland Hotel. Bro. Rev. G. J. Empuel, B.A., Chaplain, occupied the chair, the vice-chair being filled by Bros. Barnett Lazarus and Philip W. Newmann, J.D. The rev. Chairman, in proposing "The Health of Mr. and Mrs. Davis," spoke of them in terms of his eulogium, and animatedly urged upon the merits of Bro. Davis as a W.M. Bro. Davis feelingly and appropriately replied. Bro. Muggleton proposed "Prosperity to the Lodge of Israel," which was responded to by Bro. S. Lyons, W. "The Chairman" was proposed by Bro. Lazarus, and suitably acknowledged. "The Visitors" received due honour from W. Bro. Joseph Myers, "The Ladies," of whom a goodly number were present, being toasted by W. Bro. Geo. Baker, P.M., and answered for by Bro. Newmann, D., singing, recitations, and dancing followed, and the company, about 105, separated at 2 a.m.

Royal Arch.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—The anniversary meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, December 21st. The chapter was opened at 4.30 by Exs. Companions Jelley, M.E.Z.; Jas. Parfitt, H.; Thompson, J.; in the presence of Comps. Moutrie, P.Z. and Treas.; Mann, P.Z.; Keene, P.Z.; Mitchell, P.Z.; G. Parfitt, P.Z.; Reeves, P.Z.; Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, 710; General Doherty, P.Z. 53. On the admission of Comps. Hill, N.; Hearn, P. Soj.; Brown, A. Soj.; Faulkner, Williamson, Davis, and Gazzard, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The Treasurer gave the details of his accounts, which were very favourable, showing a balance in hand of nearly £50, and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to him for his successful efforts in that office during 15 years. Propositions were made, to be considered at the next meeting, for a grant of £5 5s. to the widow of the late Tyler, and of £10 10s. to the Girls' School. Other business of only private interest was discussed and settled. A ballot was taken for a brother to be exalted at their meeting in January, which was unanimous in his favour. The following officers, previously proposed, were elected by ballot:—Jas. Parfitt, M.E.Z.; Thompson, H.; Carey, J.; Hill, E.; Hearn, N.; Brown, P. Soj.; the latter appointed Comps. Young and Faulkner as his assistants. Comp. Bigwood was appointed Janitor. The companions below the chair then left the chapter, a Board of Installed Principals was constituted, and the three newly-elected Principals were installed in their several chairs by E. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. The board was closed, and the companions were re-admitted. A vote of thanks was passed to the Installing Principal for the effective manner in which he had performed the duty. The proceedings were brought to a close at about 7 o'clock, and the brethren adjourned to partake of banquet at the Castle Hotel, breaking up, after a very enjoyable evening, soon after half-past 10.

BARNSTAPLE.—Chapter of Loyalty and Virtue (No. 251) held its 54th annual meeting on Monday last, at the Masonic Hall, Queen Anne's Walk under the Mastership of Comp. Willshire. A large number of companions attended. Two brethren of Lodge No. 251 were exalted, and the officers of the chapter for the year ensuing appointed as follows:—Comps. W. H. Brewer, Z.; W. Britton, H.; J. T. Shapland, J.; Oliver, Scribe E.; Forse, Scribe N.; W. J. List, Treas.; J. Brewer, P.S.; W. Baze, A.S.; T. Hancock, A.S.; and Alfred Bates and H. J. Hancock, Janitors. An excellent dinner was afterwards partaken of by the companions at the Royal and Fortescue Hotel, and a very pleasant evening spent.

Mark Masonry.

IPSWICH.—Albert Victor Mark Lodge (No. 70).—The quarterly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday, the 10th ult., when the following were present:—Bros. Geo. Cresswell, W.M.; Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.M.M., P.G. Chap.; C. T. Townsend, P.M.M., P.P.G. Sec.; Emra Holmes, P.M.M., P.G.I. of W.; W. T. Westgate, P.M.M.; W. Clarke, J.W.; J. H. Townsend, and others. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed, and the ballot was taken for Bro. Wm. Watson, of the Prince of Wales Lodge, who was a candidate for advancement to the honourable degree of Mark Master. The brother was unanimously accepted, but was prevented by business engagements from attending. This being the meeting for the installation of W.M., Bro. Sanderson was presented for that purpose. All brethren not installed Masters having retired, and Bro. Cresswell having resigned the gavel into the hands of Bro. Townsend, P.G.D., the worthy and expert Secretary duly obligated and inducted our reverend brother into the Chair of Adoniram. The brethren being re-admitted, saluted the new W.M. in ancient form, and Bro. Sanderson proceeded to invest his officers as follows, addressing a few suitable words to each:—Geo. Cresswell, I.P.M.; W. Clarke, S.W.; D. F. Ranking, J.W.; F. Bennett, M.O.; B. M. Ranking, S.O.; J. Calthorpe, J.O.; W. T. Westgate, S.D. and M.C.; J. Parsons, J.D.; D. Slemmeck, I.G. Bro. C. T. Townsend was re-appointed Secretary; Bro. Rev. J. B. Tweed, Chaplain; and Bro. J. H. Townsend, Reg. of Marks. The current business being disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren retired for refreshment. "The Queen," and "The Earl of Limerick, Grand Mark Master Mason," were the only toasts drunk, but the brethren enjoyed a no less pleasant evening because there was a lack of the speechifying now so common at all Masonic gatherings. We ought not to omit to mention that Bro. Westgate, P.M.M., proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Cresswell for his conduct in the chair during the past year, which was cordially seconded by Bro. Emra Holmes, carried unanimously, and directed to be recorded in the minutes. The Albert Victor has always been a very prosperous Mark lodge, but under the gavel of so excellent and erudite a Mason as the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, who now presides for the second time over this lodge, there is little doubt but this year will be one of more than ordinary prosperity, for there are no Freemasons in the whole of Suffolk more widely esteemed and respected than our clerical brother, and no one who holds so distinguished a position in the high degrees as Bro. Sanderson. We hope to see the day when the first Mason in Suffolk is honoured with an office in the Grand Lodge of England, which, if he does not desire, he most certainly deserves.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

Victoria Chapter Rose Croix.—The annual meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday, the 13th ult. Present: Ill. Bros. Emra Holmes, 31, M.W.S.; W. T. SUPREME GRAND ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER OF SCOTLAND.

The quarterly communication took place on the evening of the 15th ult., in the Grand Chapter Rooms, Grand Lodge of Scotland. Although no business of great importance was before the Grand Chapter the meeting was a large one. Among those present were Major W. H. Ramsay, of Garion H. 40, and Second G. Soj. Acting First G.P.Z.; Geo. W. Wheeler, Z. 72, Acting Second G. Principal H.; Alex. Mitchell, P.Z. 99, Acting Third G. Principal J.; Lindsay Mackersy, W.S., Grand Scribe E.; James Duthie, Z. 69, Acting First G. Soj.; W.S. Carmichael, M.D., P.Z. 100, acting Second G. Soj.; I. Shiells, J. 73, acting Third G. Soj.; R. S. Brown, Z. 83; Jas. Berry, Z. 6; W. M. Bryce, Z. 12; W. I. C. Abbot, P. J. 53; Geo. Murray, C.A. P.Z. 77; C. G. C. Christie, P.C. 110; David Knight, P.H., 126, and others. The business commenced by the reading of the minutes of the last quarterly communication; also the minute of Grand Committee, which were confirmed. Presents from the Grand Chapter of New Jersey and Colorado, U.S., consisting of the published proceedings of these Grand Chapters were received, and the thanks of the Supreme Grand Chapter were voted therefore. Petitions for new Chapters, St. Blane, Rothsay, and St. David, Dundee, were granted. The following motion by Comp. W. M. Bryce, P.Z. 12, seconded by Comp. W. S. Carmichael, P.Z. 100, viz., "That in future the quarterly communications of the Supreme Grand Chapter be held at six o'clock, p.m., was, after some discussion and altering the hour to five o'clock, agreed to by a large majority. This alteration of the hour of meeting will give great satisfaction throughout the provinces. The present hour of meeting—eight o'clock—often compelled those from the provinces to remain in Edinburgh all night. The hour now fixed—five o'clock—will, no doubt, increase the number of members attending the quarterly communication, and allow the members to return home that night. There was no other business before the meeting, and Grand Chapter was closed in due and ancient form.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF ARGYLL AND THE ISLES.

This lodge was re-opened on Friday, 17th ult., after having been obsolete for a number of years, by Bro. Charles Dalrymple, M.P., of Rothsay Saint John's, No. 292, being installed Provincial Grand Master. The Grand Lodge of Scotland issued a commission in his favour, and appointed Bro. Alexander Smollett of Bonhill, Provincial Grand Master of Dumbartonshire, to conduct the proceedings for the Grand Lodge. Accordingly on Friday night, Bro. Smollett and the office-bearers of Prov. Grand Lodge of Dumbarton opened the Grand Lodge in the Bull Hotel, Rothsay, and installed Bro. Dalrymple with all the honours and ceremony. There were also deputations present from all the lodges in the province, with the exception of Commercial, Oban, 180, viz.:—St. John, Inverary, 50; St. John, Campbeltown, 141; St. John, Rothsay, 292; Argyll, Dunoon, 355; Kelburne, Cumbrae, 459; St. Munn, Ardenadam, 426; Kildalton, Port Ellen, Islay, 552. The Grand Lodge was opened, passed, and raised to the Sublime Degree by Bro. Smollett, and was reduced and closed after installation by Bro. Dalrymple. The hon. brother thereafter opened the Provincial Grand Lodge of Argyll and the Isles, when he installed the following office-bearers nominated by him:—Provincial Grand Substitute-Master, Quinten Montgomery Wright, Inverary; Senior Warden, Peter McNeil, Campbeltown; Junior Warden, Robert Stirling, Dunoon; Chaplain, Ker H. H. Richardson, Millport; Secretary, Archibald Morrison, Rothsay. Bro. Smollett addressed the newly-appointed office-bearers and other brethren in an eloquent speech, detailing the benefits of Masonry, and concluding with the hope that they would all so act as to hand down Masonry pure and unsullied. Bro. Dalrymple replied, and thanked the brethren for their attendance, especially the Provincial Grand Master for coming at his advanced age, at this season of the year, and the brethren from the distant parts of the province. Thereafter the 10th Psalm was sung, and the Rev. H. H. Richardson invoked the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe on their proceedings. The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed, and received all the honours. Occasion was taken to compliment the re-opening of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the great impetus it would give to Freemasonry, and the zeal displayed by the attendance of brethren from such distances as must have been inconvenient. In replying to

"The Provincial Grand Master of Argyll and the Isles," Bro. Dalrymple stated that answers of the most cordial kind had been received from all the lodges in the province expressing satisfaction at the re-opening of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and expressing the kindest sentiments to himself personally. It must be regretted that no representative had arrived from Lodge Commercial, Oban, as arranged, but this was not to be wondered at considering the difficulties of travelling at this time of the year. He assured the brethren that the interests of Freemasonry would be promoted by him as far as he could, and he hoped to be able to visit all the lodges in the province in person within a month or two. Among the other toasts that followed was that of "The Oldest Mason in Scotland," Bro. George Grant, Chaplain of Rothsay St. John's, who has been a Freemason for 65 years, to which the venerable Chaplain replied. Song, toast, and sentiment were the order of the evening, which was spent with the happiest of Masonic harmony and goodwill.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Mungo (No. 27).

The regular meeting of this lodge took place in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Thursday, the 16th ult. Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., presided, supported by Bro. Dr. McInnes, S.W.; William McCall, acting as J.W.; and the other office-bearers. On the lodge being opened, Bro. William Niven, Secretary, read the minutes, which were adopted. Messrs. James Dickie and John Goldfinch were unanimously accepted, obligated, and initiated as E.A. Freemasons, the ceremony being performed by Bro. John Scott, P.M. Bros. A. Monteith, J. Kidd, Robert Spiers, and Thomas Bell were duly passed to the F.C. Degree, James Gilles, P.M., officiating. There was no further business, and the lodge was closed. Among the visitors present were Bros. A. Bain, P.M. Union and Crown, 103; Robert Jack, R.W.M. Shettleston, 128; Robert Brodie, D.M. 360; W. H. Bickerton ("Freemason"), &c.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Mark (No. 102).

The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 13th ult. In the temporary absence of the R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, P.M., took the chair, and was ably supported by all the office-bearers, and a large number of brethren and visitors. Among those present we observed Bros. Thos. Halket, P.M.; Captain Lindsay Gray, D.M.; Thomas Kerr, S.M.; J. Burton, S.W.; J. Thomson, J.W.; A. T. Patrick, Treas.; H. McMillan, S.D.; J. Singleton, I.G., &c. Among the visitors were Bros. W. Bell, R.W.M. 34; McMillan, P.M. 34; D. M. Nelson, D.M. 34; A. Sage, P.M. 360; R. Aikman, R.W.M. 570; W. B. Paterson; J. Stewart, 360, &c. The meeting of office-bearers was held previous to the hour of the lodge meeting, in a side room. When the lodge was opened, the minutes read and confirmed, the First Degree was given to Mr. John E. Hays by Bro. J. F. Mitchell, I.P.M., in his usual painstaking manner. Bro. J. Oswald Smith, the R.W.M., now being present, Bro. Halket, P.M., proceeded to install him in his office, this being omitted at the regular night of installation on account of his illness. Bro. Aikman, R.W.M. 570, received the Installed Master degree, along with Bro. Oswald Smith. Bro. Halket pointed out the numerous and difficult duties a Master of a lodge had to perform, and the great responsibility that was attached to him. The R.W.M. on taking the chair thanked the brethren for the high position they had placed him into, and if at first he appeared to be a little rusty, it would be his earnest endeavour to wipe that away, and he trusted that in this he could calculate upon the support, not only of his own office-bearers, but also of the past office-bearers and members of the lodge. He then moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Halket, for the able manner he had gone through the ceremony of installation. Bro. Halket feelingly returned thanks. Bro. Aikman, R.W.M. 570, returned thanks for the brotherly act of kindness shown him that night, in conferring the installed Master degree upon him, and said he would be delighted if some of St. Mark's brethren would pay him a visit to his own lodge at Springburn. After a little more business of a routine character, the lodge was called to refreshment for a short time. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, Bro. J. F. Mitchell, P.M., proposed "The Health of the R.W.M.," remarking that he had seldom met a brother, in all his experience, so capable to fill the chair of that lodge. Bro. Oswald Smith returned thanks, remarking that he was no speaker, but in all his course he had tried to act the part of a true Mason, so far as he understood it, and now that he was placed in a position he would have scope to practise it; he would make it his duty to do so. Bro. Bell, P.M. 34, proposed "The Health of the P.M. of St. Mark's Lodge," which Bro. Mitchell gracefully replied to. The next toast was "The Visiting Brethren," replied to by Bro. McMillan, P.M. 34, and Bro. Sage, P.M. 360. This brought the proceedings to a close.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union and Crown (No. 103).

On Friday evening, 10th ult., Bro. David Murray, W.M., met in a social capacity with about some five-and-twenty brethren, on the occasion of his election to the chair of this old and respected lodge. The meeting took place in the County Buildings' Restaurant, Wilson-street (Bro. Wileman's). Bro. Murray presided, Bro. William Thomas officiating as Croupier. Among those present were Bros. James Gilles, P.M., and P.G.S.D.; A. Bain, P.M., and P.G.B.B.; Robert Munro, D.M.; William Forsyth, J.W.; Major J. S. McCaul, Third L.R.V.; and others. The chairman proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly honoured, and in proposing "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," said as far as Masonry went, the Western Province was probably the most important in Scotland, and the amount of business brought before the Provincial Grand Lodge was very great, and in regard to the Benevolent Fund alone, it was very hard work, and they deserved the heartiest thanks of all the brethren for the time and labour they expended in the performance of their gratuitous duties. They had among them to-night those who were office-bearers in the Provincial Grand Lodge, and who for years had given their kindest and best consideration to the duties thereof, and he begged to couple with the toast the name of Bro. James Gillies, P.G.S.D. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. Gillies had to endorse the statement of the chairman to the effect that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow was second to none on the roll of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. It was doing an amount of duty which the world did not know of. They had the widow and the orphan coming almost daily before them, and they never scrupled to launch out for their relief, while on the other hand, it behooved them to be careful about doubtful cases. To such applicants they applied the work test, and if they declined that, they had nothing to do with them. He was glad to state that at present they had £300 to their credit, at 5 per cent., besides a floating capital to help needy and deserving brethren in their distress. The toast of "Past Masters and Office-Bearers of Lodge 103" was proposed by Bro. A. Bain, P.M. He could assure them that the Past Masters of Union and Crown had done the best they could to make the lodge respected in the province and to bring it to a point of moral excellence, which it would be the duty of the new Master and his office-bearers to keep it up to. The toast was coupled with the name of the chairman, who, in replying, observed that Bro. Bain had shown what Lodge Union and Crown had been and what they must keep it to, and, if possible, surpass. As he (the chairman) had mentioned in open lodge after the election, he saw the weakness of his own position to maintain the lodge in its present state of excellence, unless with the full concurrence and full co-operation of every office-bearer and every member. He wanted therefore their thorough assistance and hearty support, and nothing should be wanting on his part to maintain the dignity, honour, and respectability of Lodge Union and Crown. In proposing the toast of "Lodge Union and Crown," Bro. Gillies gave some interesting reminiscences of its history during a period of over twenty years that he had been connected with it. It had its changes, and at one time he even left it for a while unsatisfied. He had now, however, lived to see it in a position to vie with any lodge in the province in respect to their good order and harmony generally; not a jarring word could be heard at their largest meetings. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. George Muir, and by him acknowledged. An unusually pleasant evening was brought to a close at a timely hour by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." It may be mentioned that mine host (Bro. M. Wileman) served a most substantial supper in his usual fine style.

PARTICK.—Lodge St. Mary (No. 117).—The meeting of this lodge on the 15th ult. was largely attended by the members, who displayed a lively interest in all that took place. Among the many present were Bros. W. Wylie, R.W.M.; R. Granger, P.M.; Brunton, P.M.; Alex. Campbell, P.M.; D. Peacock, S.W.; A. Agnew, J.W.; J. M. Wylie, Treas.; Albert Lawrence, Sec.; J. Bain, S.M., &c. Bro. Wylie, R.W.M., took his place, and opened the lodge. The Secretary was called upon to read the minutes of last regular meeting. The minutes embraced an abstract of the annual balance, which was very favourable. Minutes relating to several emergency meetings were also read, all of which were agreed to and passed. A long and animated conversation took place in reference to the consecration of their new hall, which was now ready. It appeared that the P.G. Secretary had been requested to get arrangements made and fix a day for that purpose, but owing to the P. G. Master, W. M. Neilson, being out of town, and the D.P.G.M. having resigned, no conclusion could be come to, but Bro. McFaggart, P.G. Secretary, had explained that after Bro. Neilson, P.G.M., had been communicated with, and should he not be able to come himself, Bro. J. Baird, P.G.S.W., would no doubt consent to perform the ceremony, and notice accordingly would be sent to the R.W.M. of the lodge. It was unanimously resolved that, as the new hall was all ready to walk into, the next regular meeting in January would take place there. It was also agreed that a supper should take place in the new hall to celebrate St. John's day, on the 27th ult. The initiation of Mr. Allan McKay was then proceeded with, Bro. Brunton, P.M., performing the ceremony. A vote of thanks was then proposed to Bro. Latto for his ready and uniform kindness and attention to them since they became his tenants, the same to be recorded on the minutes, and a copy transmitted to Bro. Latto, which was agreed to. There being no more business before the lodge, and the night being "young," it was agreed to go into harmony for a while, which was carried out under the watchful care of the J.W. The usual toasts being rapidly gone through, great merriment was caused by an amusing recitation, by Bro. Bain. After several other toasts and songs, the toast of "The Press" was given from the chair, coupled with the name of Bro. G. B. Adams ("Freemason"), who very briefly replied, but pointed out very forcibly that it was very pleasant to hear them all admiring the "Freemason," "Masonic Magazine," and other works, but exceedingly disheartening to reflect on the meagre support they afforded it, but he trusted this would not long be the case. The lodge was then recalled to labour, and closed in due form.

PAISLEY.—Lodge St. Mirren (No. 129).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, 20th ult., in their hall, No. 5, Moss-street, Paisley. The business included the election of office-bearers for the ensuing year. Bro. H. S. Edmonds, R.W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Gemmell, S.W.; and Fisher, J.W. The following brethren were duly elected as follows:—Bros. H. S. Edmonds, R.W.M.; T. Bustard, D.M.; W. Gemmell, S.W.; George Fisher, J.W.; Peter Blair, Treasurer;

Alexander Macpherson, Secretary; Rev. W. Fowler Mills, Chaplain; Robert McLeod, jun., S.D.; H. Hutton, J.D.; Robert Sharp, Architect; William Scott, Jeweller; J. Barnett, S.S.B.; A. Moffat, J.S.B.; Alexander Morrison, S.S.; W. Hodgart, J.S.; James Spence, Dir. of Music; J. Gould, Clothier; W. Craig, I.G.; and W. Alexander, Tyler. From the annual financial statement it appeared that the income had been £92 1s. 5d., and the expenditure £92 12s. 7d. The income had been chiefly derived from membership subscriptions, and the expenditure had this year been increased by some extraordinary items. On the motion of Bro. Wallace, it was agreed that, on and after December 27th, the fees for initiation be advanced from £2 6s. 6d. to £3 3s. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. George Glen, R.W.M. Prince of Wales, Renfrew, 426; and William Sim, P.M. 426. After going through a good deal of other business, the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Star (No. 219).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 12, Tron-gate, on Monday, the 13th ult., Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. James Horn, S.W., and David Mearns, J.W. There were also present Bros. Jasper Martin, D.M.; B. Black, Treas.; F. Dow, Sec.; and others. Among the visitors present there were Bros. D. Reid, R.W.M. Lodge St. Andrew, 465; Robert Jack, R.W.M. Shettleston, 128; J. Fraser, P.M. Lodge Thistle, 87; G. McLeod, P.M. Lodge Shettleston, 128; Wm. H. Bickerton ("Freemason"); and, as usual, a large attendance of members and visitors. The lodge having been duly opened by Bro. Morgan and the minutes confirmed, the following gentlemen, who were unanimously accepted, were obligated and initiated as E.A. Freemasons, viz.:—Messrs. Martin McLymont; John McMurray, S. McFarland, the ceremony being performed by the R.W.M., Bro. John Morgan. The lodge being opened in the Second Degree, Bros. G. Forest and G. Westcott were passed to this degree, also two members of Lodge St. Andrew, 465, Bro. Morgan, R.W.M., again officiating. During the evening, balance sheets showing the receipts and expenditure of the lodge for the past year were laid upon the table for the inspection of the brethren present, every one expressing themselves highly pleased with the present prosperous condition of the lodge, and we are glad to be able to say, under the careful management of Bro. Morgan, there is no doubt of Lodge Star still prospering. Bro. G. McLeod, P.M. Lodge 128; and Bro. W. H. Bickerton ("Freemason"), were honorarily affiliated into Lodge Star by Bro. Morgan.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Caledonian Railway (No. 354).—This lodge met in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on Wednesday, the 15th ult., being their regular meeting, Bro. James Shaw, R.W.M., presiding, supported by Bros. A. B. Ferguson, S.W.; John Harley, J.W.; and the other office-bearers. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes confirmed, Mr. Julius Weyer-gang, was unanimously accepted, obligated, and initiated as an E.A. Freemason, the ceremony being performed by the R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Commercial (No. 360).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in their hall, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 17th ult. Present: Bros. John Monro, R.W.M., presiding; J. M. Olliver, S.W.; T. Graham, J.W.; John Smith, Secretary; G. Scott, Treasurer; William Finlay, S.M.; William Keiller S.D.; R. Reid, J.D.; Hugh Jamieson, I.G.; James McCosh, D.C.; R. Brodie, Director of Music; A. Sloane, B.B.; James Minnoch, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. James Shaw, R.W.M. Lodge 354; James Booth, R.W.M. Lodge 87; Dr. Humphreys, M.E.Z. 69. On the lodge being opened the minutes were read and adopted. Messrs. William Mann, Andrew Harvey, and David Jones, who were unanimously accepted by the lodge, were then obligated and initiated as E.A. Freemasons, Br. J. M. Olliver and Bro. James Shaw performing the ceremony most impressively and carefully. Bros. the Rev. D. McCorquodale and Julius Weyer-gang were passed to the Degree of F.C., Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., officiating in his usual efficient and impressive manner. The lodge met on Monday, the 27th ult., to celebrate the Festival of St. John.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Clyde (No. 408).—held their bi-monthly meeting on the 17th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. Harper, presided, supported by Bros. Bisland, S.W.; Williamson, J.W.; J. W. McInnes, S.M.; Anderson, Treas.; J. Stewart Duncan Downie, P.M.; R. Prout, R.W.M. No. 4, &c. The meeting was well attended by the members of the lodge. A request was read from the R.W.M. of No. 4, asking the favour of conferring the First Degree upon two candidates for them, their names being Messrs. Thos. Beal (ship steward) and John Douglas (ship steward). This was agreed to, and the R.W.M. conferred the E.A. Degree upon them. A similar request was made by the R.W.M. of St. Mark's, No. 102, for the F.C. Degree, which was also complied with. The lodge being passed to the Square Degree, Bros. J. E. Hays and A. McKenzie Cameron (for St. Mark's), and Bro. Baxter (for the Clyde), were admitted to this, Bro. Wheeler officiating. The lodge was then raised to the Sublime Degree, and Bro. Baxter was made a M.M., Bro. Wheeler again officiating.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Athole (No. 413).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 14th ult., Bro. John Wallace, R.W.M., presiding, supported by the Wardens and the other office-bearers. The lodge was opened and the minutes confirmed. The ballot was then taken on behalf of Mr. John McLachland, and having been unanimously approved of, this gentleman was duly and impressively initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by Bro. Wallace, R.W.M. The business of the evening was then proceeded with—the election of office-bearers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the brethren being elected that were nominated at the previous meeting. The office of S.D. being contested, Bro. G. Robertson was duly elected to that office. Bro. John Miller, P.M., then installed the brethren into their offices in a most efficient manner. On Bro. James Louttit, the newly-installed Master of the lodge, taking his seat on the dais, the lodge was called to refreshment.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Glasgow (No. 441) met in their hall, 21, Struthers-street, on the 14th ult. Bro. Hugh Tulloch, R.W.M., took the chair, supported by nearly all his office-bearers, and a very large number of members of the lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Two gentlemen having been proposed at last meeting for initiation, viz., Messrs. William Alexander and Robert Paton, they were prepared and received the First Degree from the R.W.M. The election of office-bearers for the ensuing year was proceeded with. There being only two offices contested, the election was got through rapidly and quietly. The following comprises the list:—R.W.M., Bro. Woods; D.M., Jackson; S.M., Sloan; S.W., McInney; T.W., Neagle; Secretary, Goldie; Treasurer, Martin; S.D., Seiwright; Chaplain, Caldwell; B.B., Cunningham; Std. GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Andrew (No. 465).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, Gargad-road, on the 16th ult., at 7.30. The meeting was an exceedingly large one, all the office-bearers being present with the exception of the S.D. A considerable number of visiting brethren were also present, including Bros. J. The annual report was then taken up and discussed, Bro. Annand went over the balance sheet, which was in the hands of the brethren, criticising at considerable length various items, with a view to have them further explained, after which he moved the adoption of the report. Bro. Clark seconded this, and it was agreed to. The acting R.W.M. then resigned the chair to Bro. Morgan, R.W.M. 219, who installed the office-bearers while the R.W.M. was receiving the Installed Master's Degree in another room. Clelland, S.S.; J. Morrison, J.S.; P. Douglas, I.G.; Peter Johnston, Tyler. Bro. Morgan, though suffering from a severe cold, went fully into the details of the installation ceremony, after which he delivered a most excellent address to the installed brethren, explaining in a clear manner the nature of the duties they had undertaken in support of their R.W.M. and Masonry in general. The R.W.M. then entered the lodge, along with the Installing Masters. Bro. Morgan invested him with the jewel and clothing belonging to his office, and placed him in the chair, and also invested Bro. Reid, I.P.M., with the jewel of his office. The office-bearers and brethren were formally introduced to their new R.W.M. A vote of thanks to Bro. Morgan and the Past Masters present for their services that night brought the business to a close, and the lodge was called to harmony. After toast, song, and sentiment had passed round, the toast of "The Masonic Press" was given, coupled with Bros. Wheeler and G. B. Adams ("Freemason"). Bro. Wheeler replied at some length, Bro. Adams briefly acknowledging the compliment. He urged upon them to give greater support to the Masonic press.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual Christmas and New Year's entertainment to the aged inmates of the Asylum at Croydon will be given on Wednesday next. The usual Christmas fare will be provided, and the company will sit down to dinner about two o'clock. In the evening, after tea, there will be several amusements provided, among which, it is hoped, will be some prestidigitatorial wonders of an eminent professor. Every year these entertainments have been very successful, and it is a pleasing reflection to those who inaugurated them that they are highly prized by those annuitants who are provided with a comfortable home in the Asylum. By the earnest advocacy of Bro. James Terry, the Secretary of the Institution, and several brethren, members of the Committee, who take a deep interest in the welfare and progress of the Institution, numerous lodges, chapters, and individuals have contributed to a list which has been opened to defray the expenses of the evening. We shall give a full account of the proceedings in our next issue.

COMPLIMENTARY MASONIC BANQUET TO SAMUEL HOMFRAY, ESQ.

To use the vernacular of sporting circles, this interesting event "came off," at the Royal Albert Hall, Newport, on Tuesday, the 7th ult., on which occasion above two hundred brethren assembled together to do honour to their invited guest, Samuel Homfray Esq., J.P., on his having attained to the advanced age of eighty. Additional interest was also imparted to this great Masonic gathering from the fact that the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province, Bro. S. G. Homfray, also attained to his forty-fifth year. From the moment the assembled brethren first caught sight of the venerable form of their respected guest on his entrance to the balcony of the hall, until he reached his allotted seat, escorted by a goodly array of Provincial Grand Officers, their greeting was continuous and hearty. The scene which was presented to the observer at the moment when Mr. Homfray bowed his acknowledgments to the vast assemblage before him for the wealth of welcome tendered him, was one of an imposing character. The hall had been tastefully decorated with various Masonic banners, by skilful and willing hands, and these emblems, combined with the glittering jewels and varied colours of Masonic clothing, profusely displayed by the brethren, produced a coup d'œil not often witnessed. The general effect of the scene was also greatly enhanced so soon as the masterly touch of Mr. Riseley was applied to the noble organ, at which he presided, drawing forth from its inner depths a concord of sweet sounds both inspiring and elevating in the extreme.

By virtue of Masonic etiquette in that respect, Bro. Colonel C. Lyne occupied the chair in his capacity of Provincial Grand Master of the province. On his right the chairman was supported by the guest of the evening, S. Homfray, Esq., and by Bros. H. P. Bo't (the Mayor), L. A. Homfray, P.M. 683, P. Prov. G.J.W., and Admiral H. R. Foote. On the left of Bro. Col. Lyne were placed Bros. S. G. Homfray, D.P.G.M. of Monmouthshire, A.G.D.C. of England, Capt. Perkins, P.G.J.W. Somerset, — Bradford, P.M., Swansea, and W. H. Watkins, W.M. 683. It is impossible within the space at our command to enumerate all the brethren present, but we saw the old familiar faces of the following brethren, viz, C. H. Oliver, R. J. Chambers, J. W. Gratte, W. West, W. Pickford, Charles Rowe, R. B. Evans, C. R. Lyne, B. Lawrence, J. Middleton, Dr. G. A. Brown, R. Bond, J. Lewis, — Swandenbrend, W. West, jun., Walter West, L. Hermessen, H. Heller, W. Whitehall, J. Piggford, E. Wells, J. S. Stone, W. Needham, G. Hoskens, W. H. Watkins, J. Horner, J. L. Lloyd, W. J. Lloyd, S. Cradock, Noble, Kerslake, Davies, J. Griffiths, Dr. W. W. Morgan, S. Goss, H. Appleby, E. J. Grice, James Thomas, Martin, Gibbs, Bopitt, Billingham, Hobbs, Matthews, Richards, Rennie, Saunders, Jacob, Hibbard, Villiers, Brook, Fornacon, Thomas Bailey, Berlia, Huxtable, Wheeler, C. Phillips, Pratt, Davies, Nathan, Woolf, McBean, Pearman, Stevens, and others. The Chairman in proposing "The Queen and the Craft," spoke in eulogistic terms of the many high qualities possessed by Her Majesty, and referred in graceful terms to her close identity with the Craft, in the persons of her three sons, one of whom was now in India, using his power and influence to bring the two countries into closer bonds of unity. The toast of "The M.W. the Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," was given with equal felicity by the Chairman, who then proceeded to propose "The M.W. the Pro Grand Master of England, the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Officers of Grand Lodge," which he gave with true Masonic fervour. This toast was responded to by Bro. S. G. Homfray, as one of the officers of the Grand Lodge, in a speech of an impressive character, comprehending an allusion to the honour which had been conferred upon him by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in appointing him to the office of A.G.D.C. of England, as well as to other circumstances of interest connected with the present meeting. The toast of "The R.W. the P.G.M., Colonel C. Lyne," was entrusted to Bro. L. A. Homfray, who acquitted himself in a manner to elicit considerable applause. We need hardly say that Colonel Lyne responded to the toast in a style peculiarly fitting to the occasion. Bro. Captain Perkins proposed the toast of "The W. the D.P.G.M., Bro. S. G. Homfray," in a speech marked, not only by consummate taste, but also by evidences of considerable culture. The felicitous manner in which he described the apparent powers of ubiquity possessed by Bro. S. G. Homfray was enjoyable in the extreme. Bro. Homfray responded to the toast in his accustomed hearty manner, and expressed his personal gratification at the steady development of Masonic strength throughout the province. The toasts we have particularised now brought us to the principal toast, viz., "The Guest of the evening, S. Homfray, Esq., with the hearty congratulations of the Freemasons of the Province on his attaining the advanced age of 80, and wishing him many happy returns of the day." This toast raised a cheer of the unmistakable volume which only the throats of Britons can pour forth as a manifestation of their inward spirit. The ordeal which both the chairman and the guest had to go through was a crucial one. On the one hand, the proposer of the toast had to embody the feelings, wishes, and desires of those by whom he had been deputed to convey them. On the other hand, the respected guest, sitting before an animated assembly, at the ripe age of 80, listening to a record of his public usefulness and private worth, with three sons within his reach, all high in the Craft who were doing him honour, conjointly with the rest present, these are materials potent enough to shake the stoicism of any man, and we cannot help thinking they must necessarily have had an effect upon the venerable guest. Nevertheless, both were equal to the occasion. Colonel Lyne proved fully alive to the trust confided to him.

The estimate he drew of the character of the guest of the evening, and the manner he painted, as it were, the gradational steps by which Mr. S. Homfray had attained to such general respect, was neither overcoloured in fact, or fulsome in phraseology. The concluding portion of the Chairman's speech, more especially at that part where he presented the birthday present of a silver vase, subscribed for by a few Masonic friends, was gracefully and chastely performed. Well, the response. When Mr. Homfray rose to respond, he must have felt conscious by the hearty cheer accorded him, he had ears and hearts open and willing to receive every utterance. His speech was characteristic of the man, warm-hearted, truthful, and full of aspirations for the general weal. The contrast he drew between the past and the present of the district, not only with reference to its general prosperity and extended area, but also in its great strides towards the more efficient conduct of rapidly increasing local traffic, combined with increased facilities of locomotion, was the history of a life of experience, observation, and active work. The occasion we are commemorating was something to be remembered, but we are admonished that our labours must cease. Personal inclination would lead us to dwell upon the other toasts in the programme, were we not restricted to certain limits. We would fain pay a passing tribute to the ladies who graced the balcony in charming force on this occasion, but we must rest content by simply noting the fact of their presence, and their evident identity with the spirit of the scene. We believe, taking the banquet in the main, many a pleasant memory will survive from the commemoration of Mr. Samuel Homfray's eightieth birthday.

"CHARITY AND THE POOR LAWS." By Francis Peek, member of the School Board for London for City of London.—Day, Savoy-street, Strand. The name of Peek is not unknown in connection with distinguished services to our charities, and Mr. Francis Peek, one of the members of the London School Board, who has shown more than an earnest desire to inculcate a knowledge of the Volume of the Sacred Law, for he has endowed his purpose of encouraging the knowledge among the poor children of London at a cost to himself of £500 a year, has now come forward with a small volume, under the title of "Our Laws and our Poor," in which he advocates that system of discriminate charity carried out by our brotherhood, and indicates a statesmanlike knowledge of the Poor Laws, of the defects of details, of the results of maladministration, and of the evils to the community at large resulting from the ignorance displayed by the mere politicians who fill the high places. Mr. Peek's book is opportune, for changes must come into our Poor Law, and in pity to the poor to whom relief is administered, and on behalf of the poor, some of whose hard earnings go in rates, it is to be hoped that Mr. Peek's earnest expressions will bring to him helpers in his work. In his own words, he hopes to accomplish two things—"to induce some benevolent men and women, now hesitating as to their vocation in life, to cast in their lot with the many workers, who, while differing in forms of faith and much beside, are yet united in one great desire to resist the progress of those mighty powers of evil which day by day are degrading, crushing into misery, and destroying so many of our fellow-creatures, strewn our paths with human wrecks on which it is difficult to look without pain and humiliation, if we contrast what they are with what, but for bad social customs, bad laws, and selfish neglect, they might have been." The second purpose Mr. Peek desires to accomplish is explained in language which deserves to be studied by that large class of charity givers who, generally acting upon impulse, and to save themselves from importunity, may be said to give alms, but to bestow no charity. Mr. Peek says that he hopes by these essays to "enable many of those who, from warm-hearted benevolence, have thrown themselves into the struggle, to realise that in this, as in every other good work, there is necessity for self-restraint, wise forethought, and much earnest thought, if they would avoid justifying, in some measure at least, the bitter sarcasm of a late cynical writer—"that a great part of the work of the wise is to correct the evil effects resulting from the efforts of the good." There is too good reason for these remarks, and Mr. Peek, in the first of his essays, draws attention "to certain aspects of the present social condition of England," pointing out that the fact of large masses of our people living in a state of vice and degradation is "at once a disgrace and danger to the commonwealth," and that in some circumstances "there is a great cause for anxiety and regret" in the relations of employer and employed, the separation of classes, and the widening gulf between extreme luxury and extreme poverty. In regard to our Poor Laws, Mr. Peek says, "The want of proper discrimination in the management of our poor-law relief is one of the worst defects of the present system—it begins in the workhouse nurseries and schoolrooms, where the orphan children of the deserving poor are herded with the children of the refuse of society; it is continued among the able-bodied, where the virtuous widow is sent to pick oakum among the most degraded of her sex; it extends even to the death-bed, where the poor invalid, who, to save herself from such a fate, has worked till she could work no longer, and starved till she could starve no longer, is carried from her wretched home to linger out life's last hours on a bed, on each side of which may lie depraved wretches, whose every word is foulness or blasphemy." Though much good has been done to abolish the possibility of such things in London by the Act of 1867, which, to the honour of our legislature, was carried by the benevolent combination of both political parties, yet it is to be feared that the Poor Law administration requires a constant glare of public sight upon it to prevent abuses of its easily deranged machinery, and Mr. Peek could have done his fellow creatures no greater good than by turning sharp attention to defects in our laws, as well as to defects in the actions of the so-called charitable. The appeals he makes on behalf of the helpless orphans committed to the Poor Laws, and the points he urges on their behalf, show that he has not overlooked any one operation of these laws, and we cannot help wishing that time and circumstances will bring Mr. Peek into a position where he may have a vocation in directing an improved administration of laws, which now, as he shows, in too many respects afflict the weak, and encourage the idle and worthless. "THE HISTORY OF INDIA."—Cassell and Co.

This first part of an illustrated History of India promises very well. It is accompanied by a welcome portrait of the Prince of Wales; and, we think, will be likely to be much appreciated by the reading public just now. For India has so much interest for all of us at home, so many dear interests and precious memories are indissolubly bound up for us with that strange and distant land that to us the History of India is almost a matter of the deepest and most abiding personal interest. We shall watch the progress of this work with interest, and doubt not that it will prove to be a valuable addition to our contemporary literature. W. F. A.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

A drawing-room entertainment of a very attractive description was given on the 23rd ult. in the hall of the Oriental Buildings, New Bridge-street, Blackfriars, for the benefit of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The site was gratuitously placed at the disposal of the entertainers by Bro. Major Wieland, who had the gratification of seeing the hall crowded to the doors by both ladies and gentlemen. Among other brethren who were present we observed Bros. Major Wieland, F. T. Isitt, a member of the firm of Messrs. J. and C. Boyd and Co., of Friday-street; Bro. W. Hammond, P.G.J.D. Midx.; Pawson Hooton, W.M. 1572; James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts Secretary of the Masonic Benevolent Institution; J. A. Farnfield, and T. W. Ockenden. Vocal and instrumental music and the performance of two farces were on the programme, the whole of which was admirably carried out. Amongst the most noticeable productions was a pianoforte solo by Miss Hammond, who also superbly rendered Gabriel's song, "Would you be a Sailor's Wife?" which was most heartily applauded. She also sang, in company with her sister, Miss J. Hammond, Smart's duet, "When the Wind Blows in from the Sea," a performance which likewise produced rapturous approval. Not the less well received was Hatton's trio, "The Woodthrush," in which the Misses Lawrence acquitted themselves so admirably that their perfectly artistic skill was at once apparent. Owing to the length of the programme encores could not always be complied with, but on several occasions during the evening the satisfaction of the audience expressed itself by demands for a repetition of the songs, which, in some cases, were given. This was the case with Mr. Tregenza, who sang "Poor Chinee," "Hearts of Oak," was given by Mr. Metherell, and "The Spanish Champion" by Mr. Tarn; and the recitation of "Ben and the Butler," by Mr. Binfield, was so humorously delivered as to convulse the house.

Messrs. Ratcliffe, Tew, and Woomansee sang the always pleasing trio, "Mynheer van Dunck," much to the enjoyment of the audience; and this was followed by Maltby's farce, "Two Flats and a Sharp," in which Messrs. Gully, Lane, and Satchell acquitted themselves very well.

Mr. Sturgeon sang Adams's "Warrior Bold," and Mr. H. Warren Edwards sang the comic song of "The Tragedy," which being encored, he sang the music hall ditty, "I am so Volatile," Mr. Wilkinson having very successfully fulfilled his part by singing Maynard's "Old Soldiers." Mr. Ockenden followed by reciting "One Niche the Highest," in which he was greatly applauded. Mr. Tew sang Rockstro's "Reefer," and Martin Beecher's farce, "In Possession," concluded the entertainment. In this Messrs. Marvin, Binfield, Tregenza, Dunn, and Lane took the characters, and filled the different parts not only with spirit, but with taste and judgment. At the conclusion of the entertainment Bro. Ockenden proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Major Wieland for his kindness in granting the use of the hall. To this vote Bro. Wieland said he was unable to reply in a speech, but he would give a song, which he did, and was applauded to the echo. Bro. James Terry moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Ockenden, and the ladies and gentlemen who had assisted in getting up the entertainment, which had produced large pecuniary results in favour of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; and after this had been duly responded to the company separated, acknowledging that the evening had been eminently agreeable and successful.

The usual Twelfth-night entertainment will be given to the pupils of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls at St. John's Hill, on Thursday next.

The annual Christmas entertainment to the children at the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, at Wood Green, will be given next week. It is expected to surpass all former entertainments, although last year it was far above the average, when Mr. Bridgman Smith added some novelties which produced a great sensation.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JAN. 1, 1876.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

Our Royal Grand Master has reached Calcutta, where his reception has been most enthusiastic. There have been several State Ceremonies, and a grand assembly of Indian Princes, to which we shall recur in our next. Our Royal Grand Master is quite well, and has won all hearts. We shall treat the subject more fully in our next.

THE NEW YEAR.

The flight of time has ever exercised, so to say, much and deeply the poet and preacher, the thoughtful and the sage. The stern and often unpalatable truth to man—of Time's rapid decay, "its effacing fingers," and its inevitable and often premature ending, have appealed to the feelings and conscious perception of all mortal generations. Time is like a flowing river which we think will run parallel to our course or road, and yet a sudden bend hides it from our view; and we go on our way and behold it no more! For whatever may be our actual views of life per se, whether pleasant or mournful, whether philosophical or paradoxical, we cannot deny this in controvertible truth, that Time is often of very short duration for us and ours, that it often ceases for us at a moment when we least expect its departure, and even when all is summed up, when we have seen the best of it, when we have enjoyed its fleeting hours to the full, it bids us farewell, and seems to us, whether in its longest retrospect or in its often hasty flight, simply like a "tale that is told." How short after all do the hours of our little, if even longish life, appear to us to-day. It seems but yesterday that we were beginning the journey of time. Blithe comrades were at our sides, we were marching on, a goodly and a stalwart band, the way was pleasant and refreshing, we were traversing flowery meads and the "woodland green;" no clouds were on our path, all was full of hope and of contentment! Life has run on, years have sped away, and we hardly can realize that here we are to-day, moving on with halting steps to our journey's close, weak and weary, footsore and dispirited! We hardly can believe actually the lapse of years and the flight of time! Why it was only yesterday, we feel disposed to say, that this and that happened to us here and there, that ours was the pleasant friendship, ours was the endearing re-union, that for us this world was full of happiness, and life had many charms. And yet here has January whitened into December, and the wintry sky has covered the scene with its dimmer and its duller rays. How quickly old time has passed, how rapidly its days, and seasons, and scenes have vanished away, leaving us only the illusion of memory, or the dream of fond regrets, those ghosts and shadows of olden hours, which serve only to remind us of what once has been, but never, never can be more for us poor sojourners for a little season here below. Youth and hope, and health and happiness, and pleasant association, and tender trust, all are in our "far away;" like many others in this wilderness of life, we have outlived even the warmth of affection, the reality of friendship, and the sympathy of fellow feeling. How many a poor mortal has thus to complain, as it were, to himself, as the hours roll on, and life grows old, and the hurrying years bring with them their inevitable changes, and time leaves us standing, perhaps downcast and depressed, on that great and sombre shore, which hems in the "silent sea." But then, the philosopher, while he admits this normal state of being, this inevitable condition of time, will not therefore really take either a dreary or doubting view of things. So it is, so it ever has been, so it ever will be, in the good Providence of God. This very shortness of time is actually the best thing for us all, though we may not à priori like to think so, and offers to us ever the best of reminders, and the truest and soundest of teaching. For after all, who would really wish time to be more enduring than it is? We may say so, or affect to think so, but we doubt if any one really does so say or think truly, except in the gross ignorance of materialistic unbelief. None of us ever pretend to assert or to believe, that this life is satisfying, that time is our best portion. Take life and time at their very best, their very, very best, what do they ever demonstrate to every thoughtful mind amongst us, but that they are alike imperfect, and transitory, and deceiving? Under the mask of human follies are many heartaches; under the pomp and glitter of terrestrial wealth are ceaseless worries, and sordid cares; health often gives way utterly, and leaves us helpless creatures to-day, a "wreck of the past," a touching instance of shattered strength. When gaiety and merriment are at the highest, there are many who laugh, simply, as Figaro did, to prevent him from crying; and as the lights die out, as the music ceases, as the viands grow cold, as the flowers crumble into dust, we often only look back on those white-robed phantoms, which tell us of baneful pleasures, or whisper to us in sadder tones of golden moments, whose waste we never can repair, of pleasant faces we only recall with the sigh of remorse! Such has ever been the great and unvarying condition of time, that it is disappointing, disheartening, and departing! It is here to-day, and gone to-morrow. It never allows us hardly even to finish our plans, or complete our happiest schemes. If it does so, perchance, it often leaves us in the hour of fruition, and like the fairy palace of old, the building we have created with so much care, after so many long years' work, has crumbled away, and disappeared in the night. Now we all know this, and we all admit this, the preacher and the congregation, the teacher and the pupil, the lecturer and his audience. Hence we venture to believe, despite some few rash assertions of either the worldly wise, or the coldly cynical, or the sceptical epicurean, that none of us really wish time to endure for ever, that none of us honestly desire that we ourselves might "live always." No! there comes over us all, sooner or later, the clear conviction that it is far better for us all, that things are as they are in this respect! We could not bear a too lengthened continuance of time, we could none of us desire to live life over again. As year follows year, as the new year succeeds the old, as generations give place to generations in their onward march, as the cycle of time keeps ever filling up, and completing its course to us all alike, ours must be the thought and the admission, that not only "sic fata voluere," but that it is idle to complain of the flight of time, and that all things are for the best, and that we must all grow old. If any of us are even tempted to say "ah mihi præteritos si referet Jupiter annos," it is an unreal wish, it is a hurtful aspiration; as, after all, the Great Architect of the Universe has given us all our proper times and seasons, in which to do our work for him, and to help our brother man. Let, then, the departure of 1875, and the advent of 1876, tell us in a clear and thrilling voice of our own mission and our own responsibilities. Let us not, because all things do not go with us as we wish, or want, become sad or sighing, cross-grained or ungenial! We have still something to do, however humble, for our great Grand Master and for our brethren here; let us labour on to the close, so to say, with "harness on our backs" to the last, humbly seeking to do our duty, where God has been pleased in His omniscient wisdom to place us; and then time will leave us without vain regrets, because time is to us but a symbol of that great eternity, into which we all are wending, as the years hasten from us, and our sands are running out.

REPORTS OF LODGE MEETINGS.

With the New Year, and our first issue of the "Freemason" for 1876, we wish to impress upon many of our excellent correspondents, the need and advisability of somewhat condensing the normal reports of the proceedings of the lodges, alike at work, and above all at refreshment. We are quite aware, that one of the "specialités" of the "Freemason" consists in the full and verbatim records it invariably offers to the Craft of lodge proceedings, and Masonic speeches. But of late there has been somewhat of a tendency to be a little too prolix, and a little too diffuse. Much has been sent to us and has appeared in print that in our humble opinion might as well have been kept back and omitted without detriment to the report itself, and without any disrespect to the sender, or the lodge. For instance, we would earnestly call the attention of our many correspondents to the advisability of eschewing for the future all references to the work done in lodge, all ritual arrangements, as we shall assuredly, in justice to our ourselves, to economize our own space, and please our readers and the Order generally, as we know; have otherwise to forbear printing such passages in our weekly correspondence. We also, would respectfully urge a little more condensation as to the reports themselves, and the non-introduction of any thing but what is absolutely necessary or purely Masonic. And lastly, as regards the "after dinner speeches," and the records of "the feast of reason and the flow of soul," we venture to ask, from all our friendly and communicative correspondents, a little alike of curtailment and reserve. We cannot afford, owing to our limited columns, to print the stereotyped phrases, such as "the banquet gave the greatest satisfaction to all who partook of it, and was a credit to the caterer." Neither can we announce week after week that "Bro. Juggins supplied a most admirable entertainment, and the viands and wines were of the first quality." We think that many speeches might be left out, and more might be shortened; and we trust that our brethren who give us, "currente calamio," such elaborate accounts of addresses, which all sound pretty much the same, will pardon us when we say, that while we always hail eloquence or originality, or the sound advice, or the telling point, we, and our brethren equally, are not improved or edified by hearing that "Bro. Thompson returned thanks and said that it was the proudest day of his life, and that he loved Masonry and had worked hard for it, &c., &c., &c." It is all perfectly true, no doubt, and the greatest credit is due to Bro. P.M. Thompson, but Masonry is not benefitted by this repetitive self-laudation, and the intellectual character of the "Freemason" is materially affected. So we hope that all will take in good part what we have thought well to say to-day, and will assist us in our endeavour to raise as far as we can the staple character of the lodge reports and after dinner speeches. We are quite sensible of the need and advantage of having good and full reports of lodge meetings, and even of Masonic speeches, pace Mr. Heckethorne; but we think there is a via media in all things, and even in this. We quite agree, that some reports may be too terse and condensed, such as that which announces that "Lodge 2044 met on the 22nd inst. Present Bros. Jones, Brown, Robinson, &c., &c. Mr. Johnson was balloted for, and being unanimously accepted, was introduced and admitted into our ancient and honourable fraternity. The lodge being duly closed, the brethren then partook of an excellent banquet, &c." Between the too diffuse and turgid report, and the report too condensed and technical (with nothing but the dry bones of Freemasonry, so to say), there is clearly a possibility of a judicious and spirited lodge report, which will give every information to the Order, and yet not weary the reader with needless repetitions, and stereotyped phrases. So we hope to find and to take the golden mean between these two extremes, and if our brethren will only aid us in the somewhat difficult effort, we doubt not, but that the "Freemason" will still continue to supply full and satisfactory and readable lodge reports, and that gradually the character of Masonic speeches generally will be raised, not only in the opinion of "outsiders," but in that of many an intellectual brother of our good old Craft.

THE COMPARATIVE COST OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We don't think that much has come of this controversy, or that any good can be gained by continuing it, and so we close it in our columns to-day. The matter is confessedly a difficult one, and requires much careful handling, serious consideration, and impartial statements. It is idle for any one to jump up and say "The Boys' School costs so much. I know of a school where the boys are maintained and educated and clothed for £30 less than the Boys' School, and it is therefore £20 in excess of this school, or that school." Be it so, even, what then? Before we can form any opinion on the merits of the case we must ascertain several things. 1st. The class of boys educated. and. The system of education pursued. 3rd. The rate of allowed expenditure per head; and, 4th. What are the special circumstances of the case? For the education of boys, orphan boys like the sons of Freemasons, is in itself a somewhat difficult problem, and requires to be carefully and cautiously dealt with. It is hopeless to attempt to deal with it as an eleemosynary institution only, or as a pauper school, or to suppose that our point can be gained by giving a "minimum" instead of a "maximum" of education, or of anything else. Just now all such institutions are in danger of being gravely affected by quacks and charlatans, by those who have never made scholastic work their study, or by those who take a hard and fast line on the subject, and treating the boys like a set of machines, say "giving a certain amount of money, the strictly necessary expenses ought only to be so much per head." Such a line of reasoning may have done in years ago; it can avail no longer. The general advance of education is so great, and will be greater, that it is positively childish for any one to attempt to lay down one rigid level of expense, and maintenance, and instruction. In some orphan institutions, indeed, where the class is special, and the inmates are many, it is possible, perhaps, by strict sumptuary arrangements, to reduce the expenses, but then in those cases we always find that much depends on the dietary prescribed. Some institutions do not give meat to the children more than three or four days a week, it is said, some not even so often. Therefore each institution must be judged by its own merits, and its own work and condition, and it is most absurd to suppose that any one in the world can fix an arbitrary amount, and say that figure represents moderation and economy—beyond, waste and extravagance; and that all schools in excess of such amount ought to be reduced to the expenditure per head of the schools where the average is of the amount specified. The Freemasons' Boys' School, owing to its contrasted classes of orphans, renders every such suggestion utterly inadvisable and impossible, and we have every reason to believe that the dietary of the school has been formed in a liberal spirit, and we know with the best results to the health of the inmates. Bro. C. Pegler, of Leeds, who has entered the lists on the hobby-horse of economy, in his last letter, we fear, will have not strengthened his position in the eyes of the metropolitan brethren or the Craft at large, because it must be patent to all, that his entire argument rests on two great fallacies. First he takes certain institutions, and says their average is so and so, the average of the Boys' School is much higher, and if the amount of the Boys' School expenditure be reduced to this lower average, nearly double the number of boys can be educated. But the fallacies are these. He assumes that all the schools are on a similar level in everything, whereas, as we said before, not only must every institution be considered on its own merits and character, but the Freemasons' Boys' School has a special character of its own, which requires a special treatment. And he (Bro. Pegler) goes on to say, what must have made many brethren smile, for he gravely contends that living is cheaper in London than in the provinces, and thirdly, that the schools can be provided from wholesale houses, in grocery, butchers' meat, and flour. If Bro. Pegler really thinks it is cheaper to live in London than in the provinces, we recommend him to come and live in London for twelve months, and we will undertake to say from personal experience, that at the end of that period his house expenses in London will exceed 35 per cent. those in Leeds. But in most cases, as a rule, contracts cannot be made by institutions like the Boys' School with wholesale houses. Contracts can be made with retail houses, and are made, but we have never heard of the former arrangement, and do not believe it exists, or could practically be worked. The matter here rests, and must rest where it is. Bro. Binckes has conclusively shown that the argument of the West Yorkshire Charity Committee of 1868 still holds good, and that the averages they gave then fairly represent the averages of 1875, and that on the whole the Boys' School does not suffer by the comparison. We give Bro. Pegler credit for being wishful to make our means go as far as they can, but we venture, in all respect to him, to express our humble opinion that his argument is fallacious, and his complaints are groundless. We believe that every economy is practised in the management of the Boys' School, consistent with the objects of the institution, namely, the health of the pupils, good education, and comfortable clothing and maintenance.

MASONIC FORBEARANCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reference to a letter in your paper of to-day, headed "Masonic Forbearance," I am much grieved, on reading it, to find that I am accused of having bullied (a very harsh expression, and quite foreign to my character) a brother, as it states, for taking my apron, &c., home, instead of giving it up, on finding it, to the proper authorities. On my attending my lodge on the following Thursday, after losing it, I had a letter handed to me by the Secretary, stating that on applying in Cheapside I could obtain my property. On calling there, I can most positively assert that I thanked the finder two or three times, at the same time telling him that he had laid himself open to be prosecuted for taking it away, and that I had been put to a great deal of trouble, and had been in communication with the general manager at King's Cross, and for saying this I am accused of gross incivility. On recovering what I had lost I immediately wrote to the railway to that effect, stating how I obtained it. If they took further steps, owing to his kindness, I am very sorry that he should have been further troubled. I was not aware until to-day that he was a brother, for I did not recognise him, nor he me, though I must have travelled with him from Wood Green, being one of the five, and also a member of 1185, and the question was asked at my lodge if the writer was a Mason, and the Secretary stated, from the wording he should say not. I am sure, on reflection, he will remember that I only treated him as one gentleman would another, and that our next meeting will be in a friendly spirit.

I enclose my card.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

JUSTICE.

CAN A TYLER VOTE?

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A question was asked by Bro. S.C.H. in your number of the 25th December, 1875, in reference to the right of the Tyler to vote for a member of the lodge when proposed as Master, or for any other purpose; and Bro. S.C.H. does me the honour to quote a passage from my article "Ballot" in the Royal Masonic Cyclopaedia, p. 65, in which occurs the following expression:—"The Tyler (who is not necessarily a member of the lodge, and in the case of payment for his services, has no vote)." In almost every lodge the Tyler is a paid officer, and attends professionally as such upon many lodges, making a legitimate source of profit of his Masonic abilities, hence it would seem clear that he is not necessarily a member of the lodge he attends, and the money payment makes this still more clear.

It may so happen in the lodge to which Bro. S.C.H. belongs that the Tyler prefers to subscribe, and I honour the feeling which actuates him to do so, in which case, like any other subscribing member he would have the right of voting, but in exercise it would become necessary for him to delegate his duties to some other brother, and hence cease, while recording his vote, to be Tyler, and become a simple subscribing member.

I consulted the Grand Secretary on points in connection with this, and he bears out the view I have ventured to print. The Grand Tyler, he informs me, is scarcely considered a Grand Officer, and from his situation and duties whether as Grand Tyler or Tyler of a private lodge, it is impossible for him to take part in discussions, and, if he cannot do this, his vote, even if it were conceded to him as such, would not be of much avail.

Wishing you a happy new year, I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours very fraternally,

KENNETH, R. H. MACKENZIE, (Cryptonymus),
Editor of the Royal Masonic Cyclopaedia.

Chiswick-sq., W. 28th Dec. 1875.

[We adhere to our opinion, notwithstanding the great authority of our excellent Grand Secretary, quoted by Bro. Mackenzie. A Tyler who is a subscribing member of a lodge, (not having been initiated in it as a serving brother), is entitled by the provisions of the Book of Constitutions to vote, and nothing can take away his right. How he is to vote is simply a matter of detail. The case of the Grand Tyler is not analogous.—Ed.]

THE VATICAN AND PHYSICS.

We take this striking proof of Ultramontane intolerance from the "Times" of the 18th ult. :—

Sir,—A learned French friend has favoured me with a copy of a letter recently published in France, and bearing the following title:—"Letter of Monsignor the Bishop of Montpellier to the Deans and Professors of the Faculties of Montpellier." Its date is the 8th of the month of December, 1875. One or two extracts from it may not be without their value to the people of England and of America, on whom, in our day, has fallen the problem of education in relation to the claims of Rome.

The Bishop writes to the Deans and Professors as follows :—

"Now, gentlemen, the holy Church holds herself to be invested with the absolute right to teach mankind; she holds herself to be the depositary of the truth—not a fragmentary truth, incomplete, a mixture of certainty and hesitation, but the total truth, complete, from a religious point of view. Much more, she is so sure of the infallibility conferred upon her by her Divine founder, as the magnificent dowry of their indissoluble alliance, that even in the natural order of things, scientific or philosophical, moral or political, she will not admit that a system can be adopted and sustained by Christians, if it contradict definite dogmas. She considers that the voluntary and obstinate denial of a single point of her doctrine involves the crime of heresy, and she holds that all formal heresy, if it be not courageously rejected prior to appearing before God, carries with it the certain loss of grace and of eternity.

"As defined by Pope Leo X. at the Sixth Council of the Lateran, 'Truth cannot contradict itself; consequently, every assertion contrary to a revealed verity of faith is necessarily and absolutely false.' It follows from this, without entering into the examination of this or that question of physiology, but solely by the certitude of our dogmas, we are able to pronounce judgment on any hypothesis which is an anti-Christian engin. 'war rather than a serious conquest over the secrets and mysteries of human nature.'

Liberty is a fine word, tyranny a hateful one, and both have been eloquently employed of late in reference to the dealings of the secular arm with the pretensions of the Vatican. But "liberty" has two mutually exclusive meanings—the liberty of Rome to teach mankind, and the liberty of the human race. Neither reconciliation nor compromise is possible here. One liberty or the other must go down. This, in our day, is the "conflict" so impressively described by Draper, in which every thoughtful man must take a part. There is no dimness in the eyes of Rome as regards her own aims; she sees with a clearness unapproached by others that the school will be either her stay or her ruin. Hence the supreme effort she is now making to obtain the control of education; hence the assertion by the Bishop of Montpellier of her "absolute right to teach mankind." She has, moreover, already tasted the fruits of this control in Bavaria, where the very liberality of an enlightened King led to the fatal mistake of confiding the schools of the kingdom to the "Doctors of Rome."

Your obedient servant,
Athenæum, Dec. 16.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW CHAPTER IN LIVERPOOL.

The increase in Royal Arch Chapters has been as marked in the province of West Lancashire as amongst Craft Lodges, and the number of those already in existence within the division was swelled on Wednesday, the 22nd of December, when the De Grey and Ripon Chapter, No. 1356, was solemnly and duly consecrated at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The chapter stands attached to a highly influential lodge, and those identified with the principal offices and organisation of the newly-consecrated chapter are justly recognised as leaders in the Masonic Order. Its birth has taken place apparently under a "lucky star," and there is little doubt that the new chapter will soon grow up to a fine manhood, under the fostering care of those who have the government in their hands. The ceremony of consecration was fixed to begin at three o'clock, and shortly after that hour the interesting proceedings were commenced, the following being amongst those present:—Comps. H. S. Alpass, Prov. G.S.E.; R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.D.C., M.E.Z. 292; B. B. Marson, Z. designate of the new chapter; Joseph Bell, H. designate; Richard Brown, J. designate; J. A. Edginton, S.E. designate; E. Kyle, 220; J. Arcellano Hall, P. Prov. G.S.N., P.Z. 32; J. Holland, Z. 823; J. McKune, P.Z. 216, P. Prov. P. Soj.; H. Nelson, P.Z. 673, P.G.D.C.; W. Fletcher, 292; J. Hilton, 203; M. Corless, 673; A. Woolrich, 203; J. Beesley, Z. 216; H. Ashmore, 823; W. Doyle, P.G. 3rd Principal; J. P. McArthur, Z. 1086; J. Lunt, P.Z. 1086 and Z. 241; T. Clark, P.Z. and Z. 673; J. Thornton, P.Z. 673; G. Peet, 241; J. Skeaf, 216; W. Shortis, Z. 1094; T. Evans, J. 203; R. Roberts, 203; J. W. Baker, 241; J. Archdeacon, 249; J. Winsor, 241; P. M. Larsen, J. Keet, 203; J. Bailey, 680; H. Burrows, 673; J. W. Williams, J. Williams, 220; J. Wood, Treas. 249 (Freemason); J. T. Callow, P.Z. 673; R. Webster, 203; W. Morris; E. Jones, 220; J. E. Jackson, P. R. Thorn, A. Samuels, H. 477; A. Winkup, T. Chesworth, P.Z. 1086; J. R. Johnson, P.Z. &c.; and R. Pearson, Z. 20.

Comp. H. S. Alpass took the chair as Z.; Comp. J. McKune being H.; Doyle, J.; Hall, P.S.; Goepel, First A.S.; J. Lunt, Second A.S.; J. W. Baker, S.E.; Beesley, S.N.

The chapter was opened according to ancient custom, and then Comp. H. S. Alpass proceeded to consecrate in a masterly style, assisted by Com. R. Wylie. Comp. J. W. Baker, acting S.E., read the warrant constituting the De Grey and Ripon Chapter, No. 1356, and the consecrating prayer was offered by Comp. Alpass. The corn, wine, oil, and salt were carried by Comps. Amons, Callow, Clark, Shortis, and Baker, and the chapter was declared duly consecrated by Comp. R. Wylie. The Principals invested were Comps. B. B. Marson, Z.; Joseph Bell, H.; R. Brown, J.; with Comps. J. A. Edginton, S.E.; Keet, S.N.; and P. M. Larsen, Janitor. After about twenty propositions for exaltation, the chapter was closed in accordance with ancient custom.

The majority of those present subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet, provided liberally and efficiently by Comp. W. Vines, of the Canton Hotel. Comp. B. B. Marson, M.E.Z., presided, supported by the other Principals and officers of the new chapter. About 50 special invitations had been issued, and the majority of these were accepted.

The M.E.Z. said:—

I have the honour of proposing "The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen," and I well know this, the first toast upon our list, will be received and honoured with that enthusiasm which every feeling of love towards her person can prompt us to bestow. In this country it is the happy privilege of Freemasonry to be intimately associated with the throne, for whilst we gladly recognize the Prince of Wales as our supreme head, we are equally proud to mention the Queen as a liberal patroness of our Masonic Charities, and endeared as she is to all classes of her subjects, I am proud to know, in hoping she might long be spared, and blessed with health and strength, that my words will only express the wishes of all true and loyal hearts.

M.E. Comp. Marson, in giving "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Supreme Grand Principal, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," said—

Provincial Grand Officers, Chiefs, and Companions,—I have the honour and privilege of proposing "The Health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," and I am quite certain this toast will be honoured with every demonstration of loyalty, for whether we regard His Royal Highness as our future King, or in that closer bond of union towards ourselves, as the Supreme Grand Principal of England, he is every way worthy our esteem. Sojourning now in that mighty Empire, where British valour has often times been sorely tried, and as often amply proved, I know he has our best wishes for his health, and our prayers for his safe return to his native home.

"The Health of the Provincial Grand Superintendent of West Lancashire, with the Provincial Grand Officers," was proposed in a most happy and excellent manner by Comp. R. Browne, the M.E.Z. of the new chapter. The name of M.E. P. Grand Scribe, Comp. Alpass, was coupled with his toast, and it was received with the greatest warmth.

Comp. Alpass, in replying on behalf of Lord Skelmersdale and the Provincial Grand Officers, thanked the companions present for the hearty manner with which the last toast had been received, and, introducing the subject of charity in a most elaborate speech, impressed on all present the necessity of supporting Lord Skelmersdale as Chairman of the Benevolent Institution in London in a manner worthy of the Province of West Lancashire, speaking in the warmest terms of the officers appointed to govern the De Grey and Ripon Chapter, and his belief that it would be ruled in a most able and exemplary way under their supervision. He then proposed "The Health of its Chiefs and Officers," the toast being received with the greatest enthusiasm.

Comp. B. B. Marson, Z., in returning thanks, said the founders of the De Grey and Ripon, remembering that happy Christmas time just drawing upon them, when every heart grew larger and every generous impulse was increased, thought that some good deed on their part would convey better than any words they could utter how highly they estimated the good opinions of the companions present; and he was proud and happy as their First Principal to place in the hands of the P.G. Scribe the sum of £10 to represent the De Grey and Ripon Chapter, remarking that he was very glad to state that the founders of the chapter had given him that sum more than a week ago; and he trusted the example set by the latest addition to the Province of West Lancashire would stimulate every chapter and lodge under Lord Skelmersdale's rule to support him at the Benevolent Institution, London, in such a manner that his lordship might justly be proud of his province.

Comps. Joshua Bell, H., and Richard Brown, J., each in a very able speech, supported the remarks of the Z. and the thanks he had given for the hearty reception accorded to their healths.

Comp. B. B. Marson, Z., proposed "The Consecrating and Installing Officers," thanking them very warmly for their services, and the splendid manner in which those ceremonies had been performed.

M.E. Comp. R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.D. of C., returned thanks, and assured the companions how gratified he was to have done anything to forward the interests of the De Grey and Ripon Chapter. The remaining toasts were "The Chiefs of other Chapters," coupled with the name of Comp. Hall, of Chapter 32; "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Comp. A. Winkup, and "The Provincial Grand Organist, Comp. Skeaf," and remembering the last toast the Companions withdrew at 9 o'clock, after spending a most enjoyable evening, which was greatly enhanced by the musical efforts of Comps. Brown, Woolrich, Winkup, Edginton, and Skeaf.

PRESENTATION TO A WORTHY LIVERPOOL BROTHER.

On Tuesday afternoon, the 21st December, a number of gentlemen waited upon Bro. R. C. Yelland, W.M. 1094, Superintendent of the Liverpool Salvage Brigade, at Hatton-garden, Liverpool, for the purpose of making a presentation in recognition of his services for the last nine years. The testimonial, subscribed for by Masonic and private friends, consisted of a splendid English gold keyless chronometer, with 18-carat gold guard and seal, and a 21-day black marble dining-room timepiece inlaid with malachite and gold scrolls. The watch and timepiece both bore the inscription:—"Presented to R. C. Yelland, Esq., Superintendent of the Liverpool Salvage Brigade, by a number of friends and admirers, for services rendered to the town and as a token of esteem." The handsome testimonial was entirely subscribed for by friends of Bro. Yelland; and although a large number of warehouse owners desired to subscribe, the committee thought it better to decline, so as to raise the presentation above suspicion. Bro. Alderman Taylor, P.M. 823, who presided at the presentation, said that while it was incumbent upon every man to discharge his duties without hope of reward beyond that of a good conscience, there were certain circumstances which deserved recognition in this way. When a man like Bro. Yelland risked life to save the lives and property of others, it was felt that those services were worthy of notice. The subscribers to this testimonial were therefore anxious to recognise the nine years' faithful service of Bro. Yelland as the head of the salvage brigade, and more especially his services at the Lancelots-hire fire, where by his brave efforts he saved much valuable property. The chairman referred to the good feeling which existed between the salvage corps and the police fire brigade, and concluded by expressing a desire for Bro. Yelland's long life and prosperity. Bro. Yelland, in acknowledging the presentation, said it had always given him pleasure to render assistance to every one in a time of need, and he hoped that feeling would always actuate him in the performance of his duties. He had now been for nine years chief of the salvage brigade, and during that time they had worked harmoniously with the police, with a desire to do good service to the best of their ability. Bro. Dr. Kisch moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was seconded by Bro. J. Clegg, and carried by acclamation. Bro. R. R. Martin moved, Bro. D. W. Winstanley seconded, and Bro. P. Macmurdow supported, a vote of thanks to Bro. J. Clegg as chairman of the committee; and after this had been carried the proceedings terminated.

CENTENARY FESTIVAL OF ST. THOMAS'S LODGE, No. 142.

This very interesting event took place on St. Thomas's day, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, the ordinary place of meeting of the lodge, under the presidency of Bro. G. A. Rooks, the W.M.; F. T. Dubois, P.M., as S.W.; and J. Lewis Thomas, P.M., as J.W. A lodge of emergency was called for the purpose, and the official document from Grand Lodge, acknowledging the continuous existence of the lodge for 100 years, and granting permission to wear the centenary jewel, was read by the Secretary, Bro. H. C. Levander, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. Letters were read from Lord Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, Lord Hartington, Colonel Francis Burdett, Sir Albert Wood, and Dr. Woodman, Grand Sword Bearer, expressing their regret at being unable to attend. Bro. Battye, P.M. and Treasurer, proposed that the event should be commemorated by voting the sum of £20 to be placed on the list of Bro. Thomas, who was nominated to represent the lodge as Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons; this was seconded and carried unanimously, as was also the proposition to present an extraordinary Past Master's jewel to the W.M., to mark the approbation of the brethren of his having so ably filled the chair for two consecutive years. There being no other business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall, being honoured by the presence of about 45 guests distinguished in the Craft. Amongst the number we noticed Bros. John Hervey, G.S.; J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.; Rev. Dr. Brette, Francis Robinson, O. Hansard, Rev. P.M. Holden, Colonel Peters, Major Shadwell Clarke, Hyde Pullen, R. Wentworth Little, P.G.S.W. Midx; J. Shervill, G.S.; John Boyd, P.G.P.; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; John Oliver, W.M., Granite; E. Letchworth, J. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; F. Hogard, H. G. Buss, P.G.T. Middlesex; Magnus Ohren, and others. The lodge being limited by its rules to 25 members, was well represented by Bro. Rooks, W.M.; Cockcroft, P.M.; Battye, P.M.; Thistleton, P.M.; Huguenin, P.M.; and representative from the Grand Lodge of Switzerland; F. T. Dubois, P.M.; J. Lewis Thomas, P.M.; Scarth, I.P.M.; Levander, P.M. and Secretary; Beattie, S.D.; Macaulay, J.D.; Powell, P.M. and I.G.; Lea, Hannan, H. A. Dubois, Giles, Le Pays, and Bailey. Illness prevented the attendance of the popular and esteemed W.M. elect, Bro. William Dyott Burnaby. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. G. Carter, assisted by Bros. Montem Smith, Lester, and Lawler, which gave great delight and satisfaction.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given in very appropriate terms by the W.M., who dilated upon the immense impetus given to Masonry by the advent of H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and alluded to his present tour in India as likely to have a most beneficial and enduring influence on the Craft. Bro. Hervey responded in his usual well chosen terms for the "Grand Officers." Bro. J. C. Parkinson proposed the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to St. Thomas's Lodge." He regretted that he was not better able to do justice to the toast, but acknowledged the pride he felt in being called upon to do honour to so distinguished a lodge, whose birthday they were then celebrating. He traced its history, as ascertained from its old minute books, by which, as an old Athol Lodge, it was proved to be in existence long before the date of its present charter in 1775. He mentioned many names amongst its members not unknown to fame. Conspicuously foremost was that of Dr. Johnson, and, coming down to our own day, the lamented Shirley Brooks and Albert Smith. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm.

The other toasts, in their order, were "The Visitors," proposed by the Master, and responded to by Bro. Major Shadwell Clarke and Hyde Pullen; "The Charities," proposed by Bro. James Lewis Thomas, P.M., and responded to by Bro. Terry; "The Master," proposed by Bro. John Hervey, G.S., and responded to by the W.M.; "The Past Masters," proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Battye, P.M. and Treasurer.

The spirit of the meeting was well sustained by each of the speakers, and it is not too much to say, that the speeches, which were not only strictly practical and suggestive, especially noticeable in the pathos which seemed to inspire the advocate of the charities, but at times attained and maintained the elevation of the highest eloquence.

The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. Tea and coffee were served in the drawing-room, and the W.M., Wardens, and brethren of St. Thomas's Lodge were congratulated on the success of their centenary meeting. The Masonic body are not unreasonably proud of the prestige and increasing importance of this lodge, which has held on its undeviating path for more than a century, and to the outer world we can only echo the time-honoured motto of the lodge "Noli esse incredulus sed fidelis."

THE MASONIC AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.—We have received the seventh annual report of this company, and note with pleasure the progress which it has been the duty of the Directors to communicate to the members. The business is not so large as should be done by an office appealing to so influential a class as the Masonic body. The office is well conducted, and what is more, the assets are proportionate to the liabilities. From what has recently come to our knowledge, it appears that the business is rapidly extending, in fact, there is every reason to believe that the forthcoming year will be a most prosperous one. We, therefore, confidently call the attention of our readers, (most especially those who are about assuring their lives) to the special advantages afforded by the Masonic Life Office. The papers forwarded to applicants are worthy of the most careful perusal and consideration, hence we would recommend that application be made to the Managing Director of the Company for any required information, which we feel sure he will most cheerfully supply.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Each quarter of the year tests the constitution, and discovers its weakest link. By the variable temperatures of the present season, the human system is severely tried; chest complaints, disordered digestion, and biliousness are generally more or less frequent. The winter will save both pain and hazard by the early use of these infallible remedies. Holloway's Ointment, well rubbed upon the skin nearest the seat of disease, exerts most wonderfully purifying powers, never fails in expelling all noxious matters and removing all temporary obstructions, thus restoring healthy action to the organs. While the Ointment gently re-arranges disordered action, Holloway's Pills should be taken to remove all contaminations from the blood.

FREEMASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

GRAND LODGE OF ILLINOIS.—At the annual communication of the M.W. Grand Lodge of Illinois, held at Chicago, on 5th, 6th, and 7th of October, the following Grand Officers were elected and installed to serve for the ensuing Masonic year:—G. E. Loonsbury, M.W.G.M.; J. Robbins, R.W.D.G.M.; W. J. A. De Lancey, R.W.S.G.W.; Henry E. Hamilton, R.W.J.G.W.; Harrison Dills, R.W.G. Treasurer; John F. Burill, R.W.G. Secretary. The communication was a harmonious one, and showed the condition of Masonry throughout the Grand Jurisdiction to be very prosperous.

GRAND LODGE OF MONTANA.—At the annual communication, held at Radersburgh, October, 5th, 6th, and 7th, the following officers were duly elected and installed, to serve for the ensuing Masonic year:—Bros. Harry R. Conly, Helena, M.W.G.M.; J. M. Knight, Virginia City, R.W.D.G.M.; J. S. Mendenhall, Bozeman, R.W.S.G.W.; R. T. Kennon, Deer Lodge, R.W.J.G.W.; Henry M. Parthen, Helena, R.W.G. Treas.; Cornelius Hedges, Helena, R.W.G. Sec.

GRAND LODGE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—On the 1st ult. the following brethren were elected Grand Officers for the ensuing Masonic year, beginning on St. John's Day next:—Robert Clark, of Philadelphia, R.W. Grand Master; James Madison Porter, of Easton, R.W. Deputy Grand Master; Michael Nisbet, of Philadelphia, R.W. Senior Grand Warden; Samuel B. Dick, of Meadville, R.W. Junior Grand Warden; Thomas R. Patton, of Philadelphia, R.W. Grand Treasurer; John Thomson, R.W. Grand Secretary.

BENEVOLENT LODGE—THREE SCORE AND TEN.—This old and distinguished lodge observed the ceremonial of the annual election and installation of officers. The occasion was marked by circumstances of more than ordinary interest. That harmony which has always characterized its history was universal, and the very large attendance of membership evinced a devotion and zeal which has ever been a prominent feature in this time-honoured organisation. A most pleasing episode preceded the installation ceremonies in the formal reception by the Grand Master of New York, who presided, of R.W. Wm. H. Davis, Past Master of this lodge, as representative near the Grand Lodge of New York, of the M.W. Grand Lodge of Indiana. Grand Master Thorne took occasion to say that he considered the election of R.W. Bro. Davis not only as a compliment to the Grand Lodge of New York, and reflecting credit upon Benevolent Lodge in the person of one of its oldest Past Masters, but alike justifying the good sense, appreciation, and intelligence of the appointing power which had conferred this distinguished honour. The Grand Master's address was exceedingly felicitous, and most cordially received. R.W. Bro. Davis, in reply, remarked that since he had become a member of the fraternity he had adopted the axiom that it was un-Masonic to seek or decline office; that the high compliment which he had received, and to which Grand Master Thorne had referred in such kindly words, came to him unsolicited; and while he felt that some one more worthy might have been named to fill the place, yet he had accepted it with a full determination to do justice, so far as his humble abilities might permit, to the honourable trust confided to his keeping, to the end and purpose that the Grand Lodges of New York and Indiana might neither regret their diplomatic association. The installation ceremonies having been concluded, the goodly company adjourned, by invitation of the representative of Indiana, to the Ashland House, where mine host Brockway did the agreeable in his most recherche style; and at a late hour the company retired in good order and condition.

A Grand Templar parade is announced to take place at Philadelphia during the Centennial celebration, to which each State is expected to contribute at least one Commandery. There is no reason why such a project should not prove a success.

The corner-stone of the old Masonic Hall at Halifax, which was laid by Queen Victoria's father, in 1800, has been exhumed, with the inscription in a fair state of preservation. It will be built into the wall of the new Temple, whose corner-stone was laid on the 31st of October.

Illinois contains over 39,956 affiliated Master Masons. There were 2700 initiations last year, and nearly 1000 applicants were refused admission into the fraternity. This state of affairs in the only State which can support an anti-Masonic journal speaks volumes for the popularity of the Craft.

Bro. Foster Pratt has resigned the editorial chair of the "Michigan Freemason," and has been succeeded in that capacity by Bro. W. J. Chaplin.

TIDINGS FROM DISTANT LANDS.—Through the kindness of Worshipful Bro. Wm. Fowler, Master of Metropolitan, 273, of New York, we were able to lay before our readers an evidence of the universality of Freemasonry, in the form of a notice of the election of lodge officers in a thriving lodge in South Africa, but under what jurisdiction it received its authority we cannot say. This will prove of interest from the fact that we have here, abbreviated, some titles of officers entirely new to us. The Lodge Aurora, East of Pretoria, S. A. Republic, list of officers for the ensuing Masonic year:—Bros. P. A. J. Kirsten, S.P.R.W. Master; J. R. Lys, S.P.R. Dep. Master; J. W. Henshall, M.M. Senior Warden; J. F. De Beer, M.M.

Senior Warden; J. C. Preller, S.P.R. Orator; J. C. Krogh, Sec.; F. C. Rex, M.M. Treas.; C. Moll, Senior M.M. Amb.; W. R. Meintjes, M.M. of C.; T. W. Beckett, M.M. Alm.; S. J. Meintjes, M.M. Prep.; F. C. Rex, M.M. of M.; J. P. Sleightholm M.M., In. G.; Vetalis Von Musa, O.G. and T.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The last meeting of the General Committee for the year 1875 was held on Thursday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. J. A. Rucker presided. The Committee was very fully attended. There were also present Bros. Thomas W. White, H. Browne, W. Paas, John Symonds, H. W. Hemsworth, Benjamin Head, John Boyd, H. A. Dubois, Thomas Massa, A. H. Diaper, George King, jun., H. Massey ("Freemason"), H. M. Levy, Walter Wellman, Thomas Bartlett, George Sinclair, Robert B. Webster, Edward Clark, J. J. Wilson, F. G. Baker, Griffiths Smith, F. Binckes, W. H. Main, R. Sanford, E. H. Thellay, and R. Wentworth Little, (Secretary).

On the motion of Bro. Benj. Head, seconded by Bro. J. Symonds, a recommendation was made to the next Quarterly General Court, that twenty guineas be presented to Miss Moss, the third governess of this Institution, on her leaving, she having been elected head governess of the British Orphan Asylum.

Authority was then given to the Chairman to sign cheques for salaries.

The petitions of candidates for election were afterwards taken into consideration, and they were numerous. Several were put on the list for next election, but several others were deferred, the candidates showing lamentable deficiency in power to read, although above eight years of age. Some, however, though much younger, exhibited a marvellous facility in reading.

The Secretary reported that there would be eleven vacancies in the school for next period of election.

A vote of thanks was then passed to the Chairman, and the brethren separated.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

On the evening of the 17th ult., after the meeting of the House Committee, the members repaired to the dining hall, where the whole of the pupils were assembled, with the head and assistant masters and matron, and presented a vote of thanks, beautifully inscribed on vellum, appropriately illuminated, and bearing the autograph signatures of the pupils forming the leading members of the various cricketing "elevens," to Bro. Edward J. Page, who for many years has carefully supervised and kept in order the bats, balls, wickets, &c.

The testimonial originated entirely spontaneously with the boys themselves, and on that account was especially gratifying to the recipient, who expressed himself in warmly appreciative terms of the unexpected recognition of what he had done in providing to a small extent the means of recreation of the pupils of an institution in which he felt so deep an interest.

The inscription on the testimonial was as follows:—

"Presented by the Pupils of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys to W. Brother Edward J. Page, P.G. Std., P.M. No. 23, 1381, &c., in testimony of their gratitude for his kindness in providing them, for several years, with the means of outdoor recreation, especially those required for football and cricket."

There were present, in addition to those mentioned above, Bros. W. C. Moutrie (Chairman of the day), B. Head, W. Paas, H. Browne, W. Roebuck, J. Wordsworth, S. Rosenthal, R. W. Stewart, George Plucknett (Treasurer), with F. Binckes (Secretary).

Bro. James Terry, Sec. R.M.B.I., was also present, and received a vote of thanks for having given effect to the wishes of the subscribers by the production of so beautiful a specimen of writing; the frame by which it was surmounted being at the same time much admired.

The ringing cheers from young lungs which accompanied the presentation must have afforded Bro. Page the best evidence of the hearty and genial thankfulness with which his generosity was acknowledged.

FREEMASONRY IN AUSTRALIA.

Krakowski, W.M. King Solomon Lodge; D. A. McNicoll, W.M. Australasia Lodge; and several P.M.'s were present. After the ordinary business of the lodge had been concluded, the W.M., Bro. J. Whiteman, vacated his chair, and Bro. H. W. Lowry, P.D.G.S.W., proceeded to instal Bro. A. Hart as Worshipful Master of the Yarra Yarra Lodge for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Harding, I.G.; and Levey, Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony the brethren adjourned to the Mechanics' Institute, where the annual banquet was prepared under the direction of Bro. Gibson. Nearly one hundred sat down. The room was decorated with flags and evergreens and the tables with flowers and other ornaments. One particular feature was a group of new and handsome silk flags showing the crest of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as head of the Masonic fraternity, exhibited for the first time by Bro. Gibson, they having only recently arrived in the colony. The chair was occupied by the W.M., and vice-chairs by the S.W. and J.W. respectively. The following are a list of the toasts:—"The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England," "District and Provincial G.M.'s and their officers," responded to by Bro. L. H. Hart, P.M., on behalf of the English Constitution, and Bro. P.M. J. Cahill for the Scotch. "The Installing Master, Bro. Lowry," acknowledged on his behalf by Bro. Whiteman (his delicate health precluding him from staying to participate in the banquet). Bro. Whiteman then proposed "The Worshipful Master, Bro. A. Hart." In a few succinct remarks the W.M. responded. He then gave "The P.M.'s of the Yarra Yarra Lodge," which was acknowledged by Bros. Whiteman, Cahill, Foote and Exon. Bro. P.M. Cantor responded to "The Visitors," and to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge," they individually responded. "Our Musical Brethren" was then proposed by the W.M. and acknowledged by Bro. Braim. The proceedings were enlivened by several quartettes and part songs rendered by members of the Combermere Lodge choir (Bros. Braim, Kaye, Trowell, Lamble, Straker, D. Madden and Hornidge), assisted by Bros. Exon and T. Ford.

A very successful meeting of the "Lodge of Emerald Hill, Melbourne," under the Grand Lodge of Scotland, was held at the George Hotel. We regret to learn that Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Leigh, Lord-Lieutenant of Warwickshire, Provincial Grand Master, while out with the North Warwickshire hounds, has been thrown from his horse while clearing a fence, and seriously shaken. The accident was caused by the horse's foot getting entangled in a wire. His lordship fell heavily on the embankment, and was picked up partially unconscious. After resting for some time in a cottage, his lordship was sufficiently recovered to be sent home to Stoneleigh Abbey in a conveyance.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—The brethren of this lodge met at Anderson's Hotel on the 30th November last. In the absence of Bro. Waygood, the W.M., Bro. Kennett, the I.P.M., presided, assisted by Bros. D. Davis, acting S.W.; Mallet, J.W.; Scott, S.D.; Darcy, J.D.; Rumbold, acting I.G.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; Hopwood, P.M., W.M. 1512. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Kennett passed Bros. Elverstone and Ormiston, and having an engagement, which necessitated his leaving the lodge, vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Themans, P.M., who initiated Messrs. Colin, Gintz, Robinson, Smithers, and Goldsmith, and raised Bro. Martin. The brethren partook of a slight refreshment. There were no toasts, but the evening was agreeably devoted to conviviality, in which Bros. Themans, Hirsiger, Martin, D. Davis, Walls, and others assisted. Amongst the visitors who attended the lodge were Bros. Dr. Hirsiger de Berne, P.M. Philadelphia, Paris; Fortune, 240; Teamans, 501; Tolmie, Finsbury. The next meeting of this lodge will be held on the last Tuesday in January.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—The Audit and Removal Committees appointed by this lodge met on the 31st ult., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. The W.M. of the lodge, Bro. George Everett, presided, and was supported by Bros. Treadwell, S.W., and W.M. elect; James Willing, J.W.; Palmer, S.D.; Buscall, J.D.; Clarke, I.G.; Tims, Walford, Kent, Foulger, Joseph Smith, P.G.P., Treas.; E. W. Kent, Spiller, Sergeant, Montague, Foxcraft, Richards, Potter, and Plummer. There were also two visitors present, Bros. H. M. Levy, P.M. 188, and Stiles, Assistant Secretary 1507. The accounts were thoroughly examined, and it was found that after paying over £80 to Grand Lodge and the Masonic institutions, a balance remained in hand of over £50, besides the sum of £90 due to the lodge. This was considered eminently satisfactory. The committee appointed to enquire into the subject of the removal of the lodge to larger premises, on account of the greatly increasing number of the members, having witnessed the great alterations made in the lodge-room by Bro. Clemow, and satisfied themselves that Bro. Clemow had done as much as the existing building allowed, adjourned without fixing a day for another meeting. During the meeting of the two committees, Bro. Treadwell announced his intention of promoting every officer, and also of appointing Bro. McLean, an old member of the lodge, his junior officer.

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188) met on Monday evening at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, for the purpose of installing the new W.M. An emergency meeting was held last week to ease the lodge of the initiations, and there only remained the raisings and installation to be performed. Bro. S. L. Hickman, W.M., presided, and there were present 154 brethren. Among these were Past Masters O. Roberts, L. Alexander, H. Berkowitz, H. M. Levy, M. Alexander, J. Phillips, E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; and L. Auerhann. Among the visitors were Bros. Samuel May, P.G.S.; W. Buckland, W.M. 205; S. Lazarus, J. Horth Ross, W.M. 185; A. Lynes, 205; Lawrence, 1228; G. Lilley, 720; E. Coombs, 1046; W. Vine, P.M. 1046; W. Myers, 185 ("Jewish Chronicle"); H. Massey, P.M. 619 ("Freemason"), and a very long list of visitors. The W.M. raised Bros. Creamer, Dewsnap, and Hellier, and afterwards installed with great fluency and impressiveness Bro. Alfred George Dodson as W.M. of the lodge. The Board of installed Masters consisted of 24 brethren. The brethren appointed as his officers by the W.M. were Bros. L. Lazarus, S.W.; Miller, J.W.; A. Auerhann, S.D.; M. Spiegel, J.D.; Berkowitz, Chaplain; L. M. Auerhann, Treas.; E. P. Albert, A.G.P., Sec.; H. Hymans, I.G.; Camplon, D.C.; Baker and H. Isaacs, Stewards; P. E. Van Noorden, Org.; and T. Woodstock, Tyler. Bro. Cohen, 205, was elected a joining member. Bro. Berkowitz, on his appointment as Chaplain, acknowledged the compliment, and said it was very gratifying to him to have heard the W.M. state his intention during his year of office strictly to adhere to the principles of the Lodge of Joppa with reference to the ceremonies—that he would have the Hebrew Bible before him; and he trusted that the Hebrew brethren of the lodge would also notice that the W.M. had expressed his intention of having the Hebrew grace said at refreshment. He hoped it would not be too long for the Christian brethren; it would not be too long for the Hebrew brethren. We could not thank the Almighty Giver too much for what we received, neither could we ask too much of Him. The lodge was then called off, and the brethren repaired to the banquet hall, where a sumptuous repast was provided by Bro. W. G. Jennings. At the conclusion of the banquet grace was said by Bro. Berkowitz, and the dessert was then provided. The toasts were given with excellent point and brevity by Bro. Dodson, and Bro. Albert, A.G.P., who was received with deafening cheers, responded for the Grand Officers. "The Benevolent Fund," of the Lodge of Joppa, was the next toast, and Bro. L. Alexander, P.M., was called upon for a reply, after Bro. Albert had read the balance sheet. This showed that there was now £1229 ros. 2d. invested and in hand, and Bro. Albert informed the brethren of the relief which the committee of the fund had been able to bestow during the past year. The brethren heartily applauded the announcement of this result, and additional voluntary contributions by brethren and ladies were thereupon made to the fund, amounting to the sum of £17 17s. Bro. L. Alexander then replied to the toast, and said there was not a member of the committee but was most heartily thankful for the cordial reception given to the toast. The fund had been largely subscribed to by the brethren. Having been a member of the board for something like 21 years, and a Vice-President for 17, he (Bro. L. Alexander) felt a great interest in the fund. He was happy to say, that each time he had the honour of addressing the brethren on the subject the subscriptions were enhanced, and the fund increased in amount, notwithstanding the calls which were made upon it. Established in 1849 by a now deceased brother, who was President for some years, it had gone on increasing till, as stated, it now amounted to £1229, a large sum of money truly. He might state for the information of the new brethren that the committee had relieved brethren frequently with separate sums of £100. Sometimes there were circumstances which warranted them in giving so much as that. The last time that this occurred the brother receiving the sum expressed himself more than satisfied, and the brethren would be glad to know that it was ample for him to release himself from his difficulties, and give him a start in life again. He was not aware of any one case where the brother relieved was not satisfied. Bro. Hickman proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who he had no hesitation in saying would discharge the duties of his high and important office to the entire satisfaction of the brethren, with honour to the lodge, and credit to himself. The W.M., in reply, acknowledged the enthusiastic way in which the complimentary remarks of Bro. Hickman had been received, but asked for the forbearance of the brethren if they witnessed any shortcomings on his part. No doubt he would require assistance, and he asked the brethren to afford it to him. The W.M. then presented Bro. Hickman with a massive Past Master's jewel, and trusted that the Almighty Architect would give him health, strength, and long life to wear it for many years to come. Bro. Hickman responded, thanking the brethren, not only for their gift, and for the enthusiastic way in which they had received his name, but also for the many tokens of their approval that they had been good enough to evince towards him on many occasions. He was happy to see that his endeavours to please the brethren had not been wholly unsuccessful; and it was a source of gratification to him to know that his year of office had been financially a success. The Lodge of Joppa was in a most prosperous and flourishing condition. He had not been ignorant of the intention of the brethren to present him with a mark of their approval, but he had not been prepared to receive such a magnificent and valuable jewel as had just been presented to him, or for the very flattering remarks of the W.M., which had been echoed with such enthusiasm by the brethren. Being totally unprepared, he could not find words sufficient to express his feelings on that occasion. It was a great thing to secure the esteem and goodwill of every brother of such an ancient, numerous and influential lodge as the Lodge of Joppa. However much his efforts had been directed to make his year of office a success, he had to thank the brethren for their kind forbearance. They had rewarded him even more than he thought he was entitled. (No, no.) He trusted he might long meet the brethren, one and all in the lodge, and that the friendships which, thank God, he had been so fortunate as to foster might be cemented and become more and more lasting. They might rely upon it that he would always be ready to serve the Lodge of Joppa with all the power at his command. He concluded by wishing all the brethren a happy and prosperous new year. Bro. J. Horth Ross, W.M. 185, responded for "The Visitors." Referring to the hospitality of the lodge, he said its magnitude was not second to that of any lodge; it had rather eclipsed it. With regard to the ceremony of installation, it was most admirably performed. The Lodge of Tranquillity, of which he was Master, prided itself both on its hospitality and on its good working; but the Lodge of Joppa, he thought, had distanced them. Bro. S. V. Abrahams, 1017, also acknowledged the toast, and said it was something like twenty years that very evening that he was brought in that lodge and that room to be initiated. The lodge would consequently always have his warm affection. It was an honour to itself; and it was respected throughout the Craft. He complimented the lodge on the magnificence of its entertainment, and also on the good effected by its benevolent fund. The brethren shortly afterwards separated. During the evening a splendid musical entertainment was given, under the direction of Bro. Van Noorden, by Bros. Donald King, Prentiss, Mori, and Heind Hugo, and Mdle. Denham Mori.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Club House, on the 7th ult. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. S. Gardner, the duties of presiding over the lodge were carried out by Bro. Stuart, P.M., Sec., assisted by Bros. Everett, W.M. Domatic; Page, P.M., Treas.; Higgins, acting J.W.; Webb, acting S.D.; Walls, acting J.D.; Hayward, acting I.G. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the acting W.M. raised Bro. Brooke, passed Bros. Saunders and Muller, and initiated Messrs. Andrews and Collins. The whole of the ceremonies were most ably and effectively performed by that veteran in the Craft, Bro. Stuart. A letter from the widow of the late J.W., Bro. Harry Painter, acknowledging the letter of condolence from the lodge on her heavy affliction, having been read, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned until the first Tuesday in the present month.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).

—An emergency meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 29th ult. Among the brethren present were Bros. W. H. Lee, W.M.; T. C. Chapman, S.W., W.M. elect.; B. Meyer, Treas.; J. B. Shackleton, S.D.; Philp, Brand, H. Meyer, Alford, and Dallas. Visitors: Bros. Gibson, P.M. 901; Lambert Payne, 757; and Marx Gross, 1278. Bro. John Varney was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason; Bros. Moon and Payne (757), passed; and Mr. Woodward Smyth initiated, the whole of the ceremonies being given by the W.M. in his accustomed excellent manner. After the closing of the lodge two hours of social intercourse were spent, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

CHAUCER LODGE (No. 1540) held its regular meeting on Wednesday, 22nd ult., at the Bridge House Hotel. Present: Bros. T. J. Sabine, P. Prov. G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M. 73, W.M.; J. C. Mason, S.W.; E. S. Stidolph, J.W.; W. Hudson, Treas.; W. J. Kemp, S.D.; C. Hudson, J.D.; H. Faija, I.G.; A. J. Hawkes, D.C.; A. P. Stedman, W. Steward; W. J. Laing, P.M. 45; Tyler, P.M. Bro. T. J. H. Wilkins, who acted as Past Master; and also Bros. G. H. Mason, J. H. Spencer, W. Wetherley, R. H. Willats, W. J. Walsham, C. Graham, and others. The visitors were Bros. E. Clark, P. Prov. G.S.W. Mid., P.M. 1194, 1326, &c.; E. Howard, S.D. 181; R. Griggs, S.W. 228; G. W. Frodsham, 256; J. Newson, 315, &c. The lodge was opened at four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. T. J. Sabine. The minutes of the meeting held on Wednesday, October 27th, were read, unanimously confirmed, and signed by the W.M. Bros. E. Emanuel, J. Emanuel, J. Worster, P. W. Crosbie, and R. H. Willats were raised to the Third Degree, the ceremony being beautifully rendered by the W.M., Bro. T. J. Sabine. Several candidates were proposed for initiation. The Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution representing the lodge made an eloquent appeal on behalf of that charity, which no doubt will feel a benefit from his untiring exertions. After lodge was closed, the banquet and dessert followed.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge

(No. 78).—On Thursday, 23rd ult., at the Ashteton Arms, the installation of Bro. Reid as W.M. took place, followed by the Festival of St. John. The brethren assembled at 2.30 p.m. In the goodly number we noticed the following visitors: Bros. Cox, 625, P.G.S.D. Derbyshire; Hind, P.M. 204; Dickson, P.M. 325; Timperley, P.M. 993; Austin, P.M. 1009; Andrews, I.P.M. 1219; Studd, P.M. 1375; Harwood, 204; Proctor, 277; Barlow, 462; Horne, 462; Crompton, 992; Murray, 1055; Milling, 1134; Davies, 1387; Dec, 1387. The lodge having been opened by Bro. W. H. Kershaw, W.M., he then vacated the chair of K.S. in favour of Bro. John Wood, P.M., D.C., Installing Master, and presented to him Bro. David Reid, W.M. elect, who, having assented to the "Ancient Laws and Regulations," was duly installed W.M. in such an impressive and correct manner that gave to the ceremony the solemnity due to it, also showing that the Installing Master was truly a man of Masonic mind. After the usual salutations had been paid to the newly-installed Master, he appointed the following brethren as officers whom he then invested:—Bros. Geo. Bradbury, S.W.; W. Percival, J.W.; Harvey Heywood, Treas.; F. Fothergill, Sec.; S. Lawton, S.D.; J. Millhouse, J.D.; J. Wood, P.M., D.C.; J. Hatton, I.G.; John Kent; Tyler; Clark, E. Hatton, P. Lawton, and Newton, Stewards. Four candidates were then proposed for initiation at the next meeting. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired to celebrate the Festival of St. John. The first toast of the evening, that of "The Queen," was proposed by the W.M., Bro. David Reid, who having accorded to her the eulogium she so well merits, sat down. The brethren then sang "The National Anthem" with fervour, showing their allegiance to the Sovereign of their native land. The W.M. in giving the next toast, "H.R.H. Bro. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," said Masons were all proud of their Royal Chief. He was a great ornament to the Craft; although abroad in foreign lands, he was persuaded that everybody present had a kindly thought for him and wished him God speed. The W.M. reminded the brethren of that grand spectacle, in which some of them took part, in the Albert Hall in April last, and of those grand watchwords, Loyalty and Charity, which rang through that vast assembly and cheered and warmed each heart. In memory of that day, and of him who was the centre of all our affections, the brethren of the lodge who were present at the installation of His Royal Highness were desirous to commemorate that great occasion by presenting to the Imperial George Lodge a portrait of the Illustrious Leader of the Craft. Having partially carried out that desire, they would now complete it. He therefore requested the Secretary, Bro. F. Fothergill, to unveil the same. This surprise was an agreeable one, few being aware that the portrait already graced their lodge room. The W.M. hoped that the Great Architect of the Universe would direct and guide His Royal Highness throughout his eventful journey, and restore him safely to his home, which is adorned by that "Lady of England" his consort, "The Princess of Wales," whose health, with that of their Grand Master, and the rest of the Royal Family, they must one and all drink heartily. "God bless the Prince of Wales" was then sung. The next toast was inroduced by Bro. W. H. Kershaw, I.P.M., "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M." He observed that next in Masonic rank to our G.M. stood the noble earl; the fact that men holding such high position in the social scale were also connected with our Craft showed that something more than outward appearances was vested in the Order of Freemasonry. He asked all to drink to the health of one who was able and willing to occupy the exalted position of Pro G.M. Bro. Wood, P.M., D.C., proposed "The Health of the R.W.D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers." He stated that when he was present at the installation of our G.M., Lord Skelmersdale reminded him of that "pillar of beauty" of Masonic origin; he also was doubly one of ourselves, being a Lancashire man, a county man of whom all should be proud. The toast was received with acclamatory feeling. The brethren had next to toast "Lieut Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W.P.G.M.E.L." Bro. Garlick, P.M., said powers of eloquence in him were indeed low; he could not do justice to the colonel in a speech. He stood something like A 1 in Masonry; although not at their head, he was at the head of those in East Lancashire, one of his greatest Masonic ornaments was that of charity, like his Masonic brother, Lord Skelmersdale, he was of northern origin, being a descendant of one of those true sons of England who in time gone by was one of the back bones of our country and our Craft. "The Health of W. R. Callender, Esq., M.P., V.W.D.P.G.M.E.L., and the rest of the P.G. Officers," was proposed by the W.M.; he said that of all brethren whose health he received or proposed in a toast, that of Bro. Callender, "brother of Hearts" was one of the most pleasing to him. He is one who occupies a noble position in Masonry in this province, and who has more than once cheered our lodge with his smiles, and guided us by the wisdom of his counsel. He regretted that he could not speak of his health in glowing words, he having been laid upon a bed of sickness by the Great Architect; but it is improving, and he hopes ere long to take an active part in those duties he so much enjoys. He then asked all to drink with subdued pleasure to his better health, and that he might soon be restored to us. The toast was received with a suitable and sensitive feeling. The toast of the evening now followed, that of "The Worshipful Master," those merits were dilated upon by the Installing Master, Bro. Wood, P.M., D.C., in a masterly manner, although he intimated that he wished it was in better hands. He had long proved the qualities of their newly Installed Master, and knew him to be a good man and true, and one to whom the distressed could always prefer their suit; his hand was always extended to the needy. He knew that the toast would be supported with the prestige it deserved. Here Bro. Crompton effectively rendered that appropriate melody, "We'll drink his Health in a Song," the brethren all joining in the chorus, which added to the impressiveness of the toast. The W.M., in reply, said that Bro. Wood was his "Masonic father," he had sown in him good seeds when he initiated him into Freemasonry, he had cared for and guided him until maturity, and had now installed him in that position in which he hoped to bring forth good fruit. This he trusted to be able to accomplish by the aid of that wisdom from above, the wise counsel of "the fathers" of the lodge, and the cordial co-operation of the rest of the brethren; and hoped that his work would prove that he had not sought the position they had honoured him with for vanity or ambition, but with a higher and purer motive. Bro. Harvey Heywood, P.M. and Treas., in proposing "The Masonic Charities," drew attention to the engravings before the brethren, which represented two noble institutions, supported by the Masonic body. He was sorry to say that the Imperial George Lodge had done but little for those charities. He hoped that all would remember the advice they received on initiation into Freemasonry, with respect to those who, in our ranks, were reduced to poverty. Having a W.M. whose excellence had not been too much extolled that evening, he would suggest that he signalized his year of office by doing something for the Masonic charities. The brethren acknowledged the toast with feeling. The W.M., in proposing "The I.P.M. and P.M.'s of the Lodge," asked "What should we have done without our parents?" They had taught us how to do our duty, and some with Masonically grey hairs were present around him. As being a toast of a double nature, he wished to say that Bro. Kershaw, the I.P.M., had set a good example in the working of the lodge. It was the duty of all to accord to him their most heartfelt thanks. They would do so, and would carry out their words by deeds. He therefore, on behalf of the lodge, would present and invest him with a Past Master's jewel. The decoration that he placed upon his breast he worthily deserved. He hoped that it would pass down for many years to his posterity, and that they would look upon it as a reward for virtue and services rendered. The I.P.M., in reply, exhibited signs of emotion, and thanked the brethren for their good wishes in a neat and concise speech. P.M.'s Dyson, Garlick, Heywood, and Wood also replied. The latter, as Installing Master, said his ideas that evening were that "speech is silver, silence is golden." He had performed that evening for the first time the ceremony of installation. He hoped that it was an earnest that he would not shirk. He did not agree with the idea held by many P.M.'s that it was not necessary to attend the lodge so regularly after they had passed the chair of K.S. The W.M. then gave the toast of "The Visiting Brethren" in appropriate remarks, and thanked them in the name of the lodge for the honour they had conferred by their presence, and begged them soon to repeat the favour. Bro. Cox, P.G.S.D. Derbyshire, in replying, spoke of the united, earnest, and hearty feeling that appeared to prevail in the lodge, and of the excellent way the duties of the evening had been performed. Each visitor responded, but the space will not permit a digest of all; we however must mention that Bro. Harwood referred to the telling remarks made by Bro. Heywood, P.M., with regard to "the Masonic Charities," and asked to be permitted at that meeting, as a visiting brother, to contribute to the said fund; and in his usual practical manner closed his speech, by presenting a donation on behalf of the "Imperial George Charity Fund." Bro. Dyson, P.M., proposed "The Newly-Invested Officers," to which Bro. Bradbury, S.W., replied in a brief speech, time being on the wing. The last but not least on the list of toasts was the Tyler's, "To all Poor and Distressed Masons." Bro. John Kent, O.G., gave this in his customary style, and which was heartily acknowledged. "Auld Lang Syne" was then sung by all the brethren. 10 p.m. had arrived, the brethren separated, all gratified and pleased with their "red letter day," anniversary; a day which had been honoured more than once since its nativity in 1752. We must record the fact that the musical arrangements were very successful; Bros. Compton, Dee, Dixon, and Fothergill enlivened the evening by a nice selection of glees, &c. Bro. Garlick, P.M., also sung that grand old Lancashire lyric "Jone o' Grenfelt," a song full of wit and humour.

RICHMOND (Yorkshire).—Lennox Lodge (No. 123).—The members of this lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John the Evangelist on Monday, 27th ult. The installation of the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, of Wensley Hall, Bedale (brother-in-law of the Earl of Zetland, P.G.M. of the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire), as W.M., took place at the Masonic Hall, the pleasing ceremony being performed in the presence of a large muster of the brethren. The newly-installed W.M. then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. C. Norman, S.W.; J. W. Smith, J.W.; Rev. Dr. Pollock, Chaplain; T. Thompson, Treas.; R. H. Belkows, Sec.; W. R. Walpole, S.D.; W. Todd, J.D.; R. Spence, I.G.; J. H. Rooks, Org.; Newton, Tyler; Heslop, Steward. Subsequently a sumptuous banquet was provided at the King's Head Hotel. On removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured, and a very enjoyable evening was passed.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—On Thursday, Dec. 30th, Bro. W. J. Hickman was installed W.M. of the Royal Gloucester Lodge of Freemasons by the Rt. W. Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. W. B. Bezch, M.P.). The ceremony took place at the Masonic Hall, Bugle-street, when the P.G.M., accompanied by his Deputy (Bro. W. Hickman), and several past and present provincial officers, was received with the customary honours. The installing board comprised no less than twenty-two Past Masters; and there was a large attendance of brethren at the installation ceremony, which the P.G.M. most impressively performed. The newly installed W.M. of the Royal Gloucester had filled the office of S.W. during the past year, and succeeds in the chair Bro. Morris Miles, whose Mastership had done credit to himself and honour to the lodge, and has been attended by a gratifying measure of progress and prosperity. After the W.M. had been inducted and proclaimed, he proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. R. Sharpe, S.W.; C. W. A. Jellicoe, J.W.; M. Miles, I.P.M.; the Rev. E. Y. Nepean, P.P.G.C., Chaplain; J. E. Le Feuvre, Treas.; J. R. Weston, Sec.; Jas. Coles, S.D.; Jennings, J.D.; S. Myer, I.G.; H. M. Pike, Org.; Robertson and Obree, Stewards; Biggs, Tyler. At the conclusion of the proceedings a cordial vote of thanks, proposed by the W.M. and seconded by the I.P.M., was tendered to the P.G.M. for his kindness in specially attending to perform the ceremony of installation. The P.G.M., in responding, expressed the pleasure it always afforded him to visit the Royal Gloucester Lodge; and then presented to D.P.G.M. Hickman the patent of his appointment as Deputy Grand Master of the province, which had been beautifully written in illuminated text. He bore personal testimony to the value of Bro. Hickman's services in the high office which he filled, and said that his Masonic labours both in this province and in London were cordially recognised and approved throughout the Craft. The D.P.G.M., in accepting the same, conveyed his sense of the high honour conferred upon him by the P.G.M. in appointing him as his deputy, and said the pleasure and satisfaction had been greatly enhanced by the cordial manner in which all the lodges he had visited in the province had, by their reception of him, endorsed that appointment. It would ever be his endeavour to promote the true interests of Freemasonry, and to render every possible assistance to the P.G.M. in discharging the important and responsible duties associated with the government of the province. The W.M. then proposed, and Bro. T. P. Payne, P.M., seconded, a vote of thanks to Bro. Morris Miles for the efficient and assiduous manner in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. during the past year, and that he be presented with a Past Master's jewel in recognition of the same. This was cordially supported by the P.G.M., who spoke very highly of Bro. Miles's Masonic services; and the vote having been unanimously agreed to, it was suitably and gracefully acknowledged. Another gratifying incident followed in the presentation to Bro. P.M. Booth, who has recently undergone a long and painful illness, of a testimonial, consisting of a purse and an illuminated address, recording the value of the services rendered by him in the various offices he has filled during a lengthened Masonic career, and especially his readiness at all times to aid and instruct individual members of the Order. The testimonial was raised chiefly in the Gloucester Lodge, but several brethren connected with other lodges contributed to it in order to manifest their esteem towards Bro. Booth. The P.G.M. referred in terms of commendation to Bro. Booth's services, and spoke approvingly of the course which the lodge had adopted in giving this practical expression of its regard to one who so well deserved it. In some kindly and well-chosen words he asked Bro. Booth's acceptance of the testimonial and the latter in returning thanks, said that nothing had so much cheered him during his recent illness as the knowledge that his brethren of the Royal Gloucester Lodge were intending to make him this presentation. There were but three present who were members of the lodge when he joined it—Past Masters G. Dunlop, H. Abraham, and T. P. Payne. Time made great changes among them; but he hoped that he might still be spared to render further service to Masonry, and especially to the Royal Gloucester Lodge—his mother lodge—to which he was deeply attached. D.P.G.M. Hickman then proposed, and Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, P.M., seconded, that the thanks of the lodge be tendered to Past Master H. Abraham, and hereafter recorded in a more permanent and substantial form, for the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of Treasurer during a period of twenty-two years, to the great advantage of the lodge, whose finances, mainly owing to his exertions, were in a most flourishing condition—as shown by the fact that there was a good balance in hand and also an accumulated fund. The proposition was passed with great cordiality, and P.M. Abraham, in responding, expressed the satisfaction it had afforded him to render the service which he had been enabled to do as Treasurer of the lodge. He was pleased to say that he had handed over to his successor a balance of more than £90 which showed that the finances were in a very different position to what they were when he first took office. He had not, moreover, waited till old age and incapacity came upon him before resigning his position; but in the prime of life and the pride of health, he had surrendered it to their worthy Bro. Le Feuvre, and was glad to be able to advise him to do as he himself had done. The I.P.M., Bro. Miles, then asked the lodge to accept a handsomely framed and glazed tablet, recording the names of the Masters and Wardens of the Royal Gloucester Lodge from its commencement, which he had collated from the minute books. This the brethren very cordially did, with an expression of thanks to Bro. Miles for his handsome present. The lodge duties were shortly afterwards brought to a close; and at seven o'clock a large party sat down, under the presidency of the W.M., to an admirable banquet, provided by Dr. Dartnall in his very best style, at the conclusion of which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the healths of the newly-installed Master, the P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., and many others were drank with great heartiness. Bro. Sir F. Perkins, P.M. and M.P., was present at the banquet. The proceedings throughout were of a truly fraternal character; and the Royal Gloucester, under its new Master, enters upon another year amid the most favourable and encouraging auspices.

WARRINGTON.—Lodge of Lights (No. 148)

—The annual installation meeting of the members of this old and flourishing lodge took place on Monday last, at the Masonic Rooms, Sankey-street. Those who have had the privilege of witnessing many installations must have been frequently struck by the unusually lively and animated appearance of the whole scene. The brethren begin to assemble shortly before the time specified for the commencement of business, and at once proceed with their robing. Fresh arrivals are now frequent, and the friendly and fraternal "grip" is as frequently given and reciprocated. Each countenance is radiant with pleasing anticipations, and each heart seems to go out to his brother. Friendly converse and sometimes "chaff" is the order now, and rarely, if ever, is perfect harmony disturbed. The W.M. elect—proud man—is the centre of attraction, and receives—as he well deserves—an unusual share of friendly greetings. The retiring Master is usually a very popular man with the brethren of his lodge, and a brother of great importance in the lodge. To him falls the duty of installing his successor, and a high honour he considers it, but few retiring Masters attempt this part of their prerogative, perhaps for one reason, because of its difficulty, and, for another reason, it requires great tact and judgment, and like Christmas it comes but once a year. The brethren are in full dress Masonic clothing, and very nice they appear,—every one looks nice in evening dress. Surely there must be something good in Freemasonry, and those who witnessed the beautiful ceremonies so admirably rendered by our worthy Bro. Bowes, on Monday, must have experienced a real treat. Bro. William Robinson, S.W.; a very worthy brother who had been elected to fill the chair at a previous meeting by the unanimous voice of his brethren was in his place and ready to receive further "light." Bro. Bowes, P.M., &c., the very deservedly popular W.M. of the lodge took his place in the evening precisely as the old Trinity clock struck three, and at once opened the proceedings. The following, among other brethren, were present:—Bros. Stringer, P.M.; Harding, P.M.; Finney, P.M.; Pointer, P.M.; Richardson, P.M.; Sharp, P.M.; Pollitt, P.M.; Hepherd, P.M.; and others. The sound of the G. in the E., and the call to order, brought the brethren to their feet, and the business of the lodge began. Bro. Robinson, S.W., and W.M. elect, was presented for the benefit of installation by Bro. Harding, P.M., and, having made the preliminary declaration, awaited further advancement. Another phase of the lodge was now presented, and a Board of Installed Masters was formed, Bro. Bowes taking his place in the E. as Installing Master, and being assisted by Bro. Finney, P.M., as S.W., and Bro. Pointer, P.M., as J.W. In this position of the lodge Bro. Robinson was placed in the chair of K.S. with all our ancient ceremonies, and amid the salutations of the brethren of this advanced degree. The Board of Installed Masters having been closed in form, the brethren of the other degrees were admitted, and offered their greetings in the usual way. The new W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—Bros. Tunstall, S.W.; Pickethall, J.W.; Bowes, Sec.; Armstrong, Treas.; Hannah, I.G. At the close of the proceedings Bro. Bowes received a well-merited and unanimous vote of thanks for "the admirable, able, and impressive manner in which he had performed all the duties of Installing Master this day."

That worthy and distinguished brother having acknowledged the compliment, the lodge was closed in due form, and with the usual solemnities. The brethren, in goodly numbers, now adjourned to the Patten Arms Hotel for the banquet. The W.M. took the chair, and was honoured with the presence of an unusually large number of distinguished Masons. Of the banquet we must say that it was sumptuous in the extreme, and reflected the highest credit upon Bro. and Mrs. Hughes, the worthy host and hostess. The wines were of the choicest vintage. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and we regret that our space does not admit of our giving them in extenso. We must, however, say, in conclusion, that the most perfect harmony and good fellowship prevailed throughout the entire proceedings, and we desire to offer our congratulations to Bro. Robinson on his attaining so high an honour—the highest honour it is in the power of any lodge to confer upon any one of its members.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The members of this lodge assembled at their hall, the Athenaeum, on the 29th ult. for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, and also to celebrate the anniversary of St. John the Evangelist. Bro. Edward Airey, I.P.M., occupied the Master's chair, and there was a numerous attendance of brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, when Bro. Longman, S.W. 1051, was unanimously elected as a joining brother, and Mr. Aldous, professor of music, was initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. An abstract of the balance sheet was afterwards read, which showed the lodge to be financially in a very prosperous condition. The next business was the installation of Bro. Thomas Atkinson, S.W., as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the installation ceremony being very ably performed by Bro. Dr. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England, as Installing Officer. On the conclusion of the ceremony the Master received the congratulations of the brethren in the usual manner. He then appointed and invested his office-bearers for the ensuing year, as follows:—Bros. R. Taylor, S.W.; J. Jowitt, J.W.; James Hatch, Treas.; John Hatch, Sec., (re-elected); E. Cardwell, S.D.; J. McRaith, J.D.; W. Warbrick, I.G.; J. J. Crookell, S.S.; John Atkinson, J.S.; and John Watson, Tyler (re-elected). The officers were inducted to their several offices by the Installing Officer. On its conclusion, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Dr. Moore for the able and efficient manner in which he had conducted the installation. After the transaction of some formal business, the lodge closed in peace and harmony. The brethren then adjourned to the house of Bro. Sly, the King's Arms Hotel, when about forty sat down to an excellent banquet, prepared by the worthy host of the establishment. The chair was occupied by the newly-elected W.M., and on the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given from the chair, and responded to in the usual manner. The toasts of "The M.W.G.M., Pro G.M., and D.G.M. of England, and other Grand Lodge Officers" followed, the latter being coupled with the name of Bro. Dr. Moore, who responded. Bro. Dr. Moore then gave "The Health of the Worshipful Master," and in highly complimentary terms spoke of the manner in which he had filled the lower offices in the lodge. He also impressed upon the Past Masters a more regular attendance at the lodge meetings, contending that nothing could exert a greater sway over the minds of young Masons than the fact that a number of Past Masters, who, themselves had passed through the office, were in their places obeying the lawful commands of the Master. That fact of itself was a very great and important matter, and conducted very materially to the success of a large lodge. The toast was enthusiastically received, and the W.M. responded, and in a few well chosen sentences expressed himself conscious of the high honour which had been conferred upon him, and also thanked those Past Masters, and there were many of them, who had kindly offered their assistance during his year of office, if he should require it. Nothing should be wanting on his part to fulfil the duties of the office satisfactorily to the lodge, and also creditably to himself. Bro. Simpson proposed "The Health of the Immediate Past Master," and expressed regret that he had been obliged to remove to the south of England. Bro. Airey gave "The Health of the S.W. and J.W.," who duly responded. Bro. Kelland proposed "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary" in highly commendatory terms; the Chairman, "The Health of the W.M.'s" of the other Masonic lodges in the town; Bro. King, "The Health of the other Officers;" the Chairman, "The Health of the Newly Initiate;" Bro. Hall, that of "The Press," and Bro. Simpson, the Tyler's toast, all of which were severally responded to. The brethren separated at an early hour, after having spent a most enjoyable evening. In the course of the evening the piece of plate bequeathed to the lodge by a deceased brother, circulated pretty freely amongst the brethren.

TORQUAY.—St. John's Lodge (No. 328).—The annual festival was held at the Masonic Hall, on St. John's-day, Dec. 27th, for the purpose of installing Bro. J. Piggott as W.M. for the ensuing year, when a large number of brethren assembled, including several P.M.'s from lodges in the surrounding district. Among them were Bros. Warren, W.M. of the Torbay Lodge; Johnson, W.M. of the Jordan Lodge; Goodridge, P.M.; Murray, P.M.; Oliver, P.M.; Law, P.M., and P.P.G.D. for Herts and Surrey; Rev. R. Bowden, P.M. and Chaplain 328; D. Watson, P.M., who acted as the Installing Master, and performed the entire ceremony, including the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, in a most effective and impressive manner. After the lodge had been closed the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, where the annual banquet was served. The W.M. had as his right hand guest Bro. Sir Lawrence Palk, Bart., M.P., lord of the manor; and as this was the first occasion on which the worthy and honourable baronet had attended a Masonic gathering in Torquay he was warmly and fraternally greeted. In responding to the toast of his health, Bro. Sir L. Palk alluded to the vast antiquity of Freemasonry, records of which are found in every part of the world, adding that an institution which inculcates universal charity and good feeling, and tends to bring men together, is worthy of all encouragement and support, especially in Torquay. The usual routine of toasts having been duly honoured, and the harmony of the evening promoted by the vocal exertions of several who were present, the brethren separated, looking forward to a successful year under the rule of the new W.M.

BODMIN.—One and All Lodge (No. 330).—This influential lodge in the Province of Cornwall held its annual meeting on the 29th of December, to install the W. Master for the ensuing year. Bro. Capt. Colvill, P.M., P.P.S.G. Warden of Cornwall, presided as Installing Master. Fifty brethren, including seventeen Past Masters, who formed the Board of Installed Masters, were present on the occasion. Bro. Crauz, Mayor of Bodmin was duly installed. The W. Master then invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. Colvill, P.M., as I.P.M. and Treas.; Rowe, S.W.; Hon. C. Agar Robartes, J.W.; Reek, P.M., Sec.; Dr. Adams, S.D.; Sercoe, J.D.; Vincent, D.C.; Jacobs, Org.; Jones and Treverton, Stewards; O'Neil, I.G.; and Carrol, Tyler. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Colvill by acclamation for the admirable manner in which the ceremony of installation had been performed, also for his able services as acting W. Master during the past year. Prior to the time appointed for the installation of the W. Master elect a lodge of emergency was held, under the emergency clause, to ballot for and initiate Mr. George Hext, second son of Bro. Hext, P.M. of One and All, 330, P.P.J.G. Warden of Cornwall. The candidate being a Lewis under age, a dispensation was obtained from the Provincial Grand Master. The eldest son of Bro. Hext was initiated on his coming of age in March last. The pleasing circumstance of having two only sons of so distinguished a brother enrolled with the father as members of the lodge is unique in the history of the lodge, and highly gratifying to the brethren. The lodge was called off from labour, the brethren repaired to Bro. Past Master Sandoe's, Royal Hotel, for refreshment, at 5 pm., when a sumptuous banquet in celebration of the festival, of St. John the Evangelist awaited them, of which about sixty brethren partook. Visitors from neighbouring lodges were welcomed as guests in a true Masonic spirit. The usual Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and ably responded to by the respective brethren to whom the duties were assigned. The proceedings were greatly enlivened by the singing of Bros. Rowe and Hawken, Past and Present Junior Wardens, and other brethren, accompanied by Bro. Jacobs, the talented Organist of the lodge, also of St. Petroc's Church, Bodmin. A memorable day in the annals of One and All Lodge was brought to a close in "order, harmony, and brotherly love."

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on the second Tuesday in December last. The chapter was opened at six o'clock by Comps. Smith, M.E.Z.; Hammond, H.; Elsam, J.; Davidge, S.E.; Wagner, N.; Robinson, P.S.; Manders, acting 1st S.; Horfield, (Treasurer); Holbrook, P.Z.; Loewenstark, P.Z.; Whitley, Walls. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed the M.E.Z. Comp. Smith, exalted Bro. Abraham Stewart, Southern Star. The very arduous, and difficult ritual was completely and most excellently rendered in its beautiful and impressive entirety by the M.E., who had the able assistance of Comps. Hammond and Elsam, who discharged their duties as Second and Third Principals in a manner that left nothing to be desired. The junior officers were also well up in their work, and the whole ceremony may be pronounced a success. Comp. Chandler, P.Z. and P.P.G.J. of Wiltshire, visited the chapter, and expressed himself highly pleased at the manner in which the ceremony of exaltation had been conducted. The companions then adjourned to an excellent banquet. The M.E. gave the usual loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. Holbrook having been entrusted with the gavel proposed "The Health of the M.E." in well set terms, in which he stated that the companions of the Jerusalem ought to be proud of so earnest and indefatigable a worker as Comp. Smith, who never allowed an opportunity to slip of being present at their convocations, although he had sometimes to travel several hundred miles in order to be at his post to discharge the onerous duties of his position. This toast having been warmly received, the M.E. responded. In the course of his brief reply Comp. Smith stated that he had the prosperity and the credit of the chapter very much at heart, and he was sorry that he had not more opportunities of personally mixing with the companions of his mother chapter, but being a resident in the provinces and his business frequently calling him to the most remote parts of the kingdom, he could only find time to run up to London on the chapter days, and he was very proud to think that his endeavours to further the interests and working of the chapter were so highly appreciated by the companions. "The Health of the P.Z.'s of the Chapter" was then given and severally replied to by Comps. Holbrook, Horfield, Loewenstark, and Davidge. In proposing "The Health of the new-exalted Comp. Stewart," the M.E. hoped that he would never regret having entered the Supreme Degree; and having heard that he was a good worker in Craft Masonry, he trusted that in due time, by attention and perseverance to the mysteries of the R.A., Comp. Stewart would fill the chair of First Principal in his mother chapter. Comp. Stewart having acknowledged the toast, the M.E.Z. proposed "The Healths of the Second and Third Principals." In his speech he paid them a very high compliment by stating that the Jerusalem Chapter should be proud of having two so distinguished members of the R.A. and Craft Degrees as Comps. Hammond and Elsam fulfilling the duties of H. and J. They had both held Provincial Grand rank in the Craft, and the former had but recently been appointed to a high office in the Middlesex G.C.; and in conclusion the M.E. stated that it augured well for the future prosperity of the chapter when the reins of government were to be successively held by those energetic and worthy companions. The toast having been honoured, Comps. Hammond and Elsam briefly replied by thanking the companions, and stating that should they have the good fortune of being elected in turn by the chapter to the position of M.E.Z., they would endeavour to merit the encomiums that had been passed upon them by the M.E. that evening. The healths of the Treasurer, S.E., and junior officers then followed, and were responded to by Comps. Horfield, Davidge, Wagner, Robinson, & Manders. In the intervals Comps. Robinson, Manders, and Walls vocally and dramatically amused the companions, who separated at a late hour. The next convocation will be held on the second Tuesday in February.

CHESTER.—Grosvenor Chapter (No. 721).—Some time ago, at a meeting of the members of this chapter, it was resolved, on the motion of Comp. Gerrard, P.Z., seconded and supported by Comp. Dennis and Comp. H. Lloyd, P.S.G.W. Cheshire, that a testimonial should be presented to Comp. R. W. Worrall, P.Z., P. Prov. G.S.B., P.M., in recognition of his distinguished services while principal officer of the chapter. At a chapter held on Tuesday evening, the 28th Dec., Comp. J. McEvoy, Z., presiding, Comp. Worrall was presented with a handsome and valuable gold watch and chain, as a testimonial from the chapter and the Lodge of Independence. At the banquet which followed he was further presented with a gold locket for Mrs. Worrall. The Worshipful Masters elect for Chester Masonic lodges are Bro. G. M'Hattie for the Cestrian Lodge, and Bro. J. Cunnah for the Lodge of Independence.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—The January meeting of the above lodge was held on Tuesday last at Bro. Goslen's Masons' Hall, Basinghall-street. Present: Bros. Dr. Greatrex, as W.M.; Charles Horsley, S.W.; Shepherd, J.W.; P.M. Holden, W. E. Newton, Hall, Wilkinson, R. Wentworth Little, Sec.; H. C. Levander, Treas.; Thos. Cubitt, P.M.; Rev. W. B. Church, P.M.; George Kenning, P.M.; H. A. Dubois, Wm. Stephens, P.M. Visitors: Bros. Greatrex and Smith. Bros. Howe and Simmons were received as joining members. The usual business of the lodge being over, the brethren dined together. Much regret was occasioned by the absence of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Dr. Brette, D.D., through indisposition.

Scotland.

KILWINNING.—The Mother Lodge Kilwinning (No. 9).—The members of this lodge met on Tuesday, the 21st ult., in their hall, for the purpose of proceeding with the annual election of office-bearers. In the absence of the Grand Master (Colonel Mure, of Caldwell, M.P.), the Substitute Master (Bro. J. G. Halkett, J.P.) presided. There was a large attendance of the brethren. The following office-bearers were elected for the ensuing year:—P.G.M., Col. Mure, of Caldwell; Deputy Master, R.W. Cochran Patrick, of Woodside; Proxy Master, R. Montgomerie, M.P.; Proxy Senior Warden, J. A. Ferguson; Proxy Junior Warden, J. Tweed; J. Johnston, S.W.; J. Gibson, J.W.; Revs. W. Lee Ker, J. Syme, and A. Inglis, Chaplains; R. Wylie, Sec.; J. Whinton, Treas.; R. Aird, S.D.; G. Jack, J.D.; A. H. Rodgers, S.S.; W. Paterson, J.S.; C. Aitken, I.G.; J. Melvin, Tyler. In the evening the brethren assembled in the Eglinton Arms Hall to celebrate the festival of St. Thomas, and the lodge was visited by large deputations from the following lodges in the province:—St. John Kilwinning, Kilmarnock, 22; Navigation, Troon, 86; St. Andrew, Irvine, 149; St. John, Beith, 157; Thistle and Rose, Stevenston; Blair, Dalry, 290; St. Matthew Kilwinning, Dreghorn, 549. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and after spending a very happy night, at the usual hour of twelve the lodge was called to labour, and closed in due and ancient form by the S.G.M.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. John (No. 34).—The largest meeting of this lodge ever known to have been held was that of Tuesday evening, the 21st inst., within their hall at No. 226, Buchanan-street. The occasion was the election of office-bearers, and the special event of the evening the contest for the chair, for which there were three duly nominated candidates, viz., Bros. D.J.M. Nelson, D.M.; Dalziel, Treas.; and David Horne, J.W. So great was the interest taken in the matter, that brethren were qualified to vote were present from distant parts, whilst others turned up who had not been within the lodge for years, and there must have been very close upon 200 present. The lodge having been duly opened by the R.W.M., Bro. W. Bell, and the minutes of last regular and one emergency meeting read and passed, the chairman called upon the Secretary (Bro. J. Dick) to read the following note, which he (the Chairman) had received from a well-known brother:—"City Chambers, Glasgow, 17th Dec., 1875. Wm. Bell, Esq. Dear sir,—The position in which my brethren proposed to place me I considered a high mark of honour, and I intended carefully to consider if I could accept it with justice to myself and the lodge. My late serious illness, however, incapacitates me, and compels me to decline the proffered honour. I wish success to Masonry in general, and to our lodge in particular. I enclose a cheque for £10, to be spent in such manner as the R.W.M. and the office-bearers of the lodge may deem most useful.—Yours faithfully, J. Balin." When the Secretary had read the note Bro. J. Baird, P.M., said he might explain what had brought it forth. In view of the chair becoming vacant by the retirement of Bro. Bell, a few of those among them who had held office in the lodge, took upon themselves to call upon the Lord Provost and ask him if he would take it, thinking that if he would do so it might be of benefit to the lodge. He asked a few days for reflection, and this was the result. Of course his late illness would scarcely have permitted him taking the office at present; but, from the terms of the note they had just heard read, everyone could see that he was a brother well qualified for the position. He moved the receipt of the note be printed in the books, and the thanks of the lodge sent to Brother Bain for the handsome donation accompanying it. Bro. J. McMillan, P.M., seconded the motion. The Chairman said he was sure they could do nothing less than heartily endorse what had been said in the moving and seconding of this motion. He might at the same time just mention to them that in all probability Bros. Bain and Lord Glasgow would shortly take a very prominent part in connection with the Order in the West of Scotland. Bro. Dalziel, Treasurer, submitted the financial statement for the past year, from which it appeared that the income of the lodge from all sources had been £361 3s. 9d., and the total disbursements £343 14s. 4d.—upwards of £50 of the latter being in the cause of charity. The membership of the lodge had been increased by seventy-seven; and fifteen shares of the St. John's Lodge Association redeemed from the shareholders on behalf of the lodge. The Chairman said they would now proceed to the election of office-bearers, which was accordingly done in the case of the chief officer, that of chairman, by means of calling over the roll, and each member as he was called naming for whom he voted, and in that of the others by a show of hands. In the contest for the chair the struggle lay between Bros. Nelson and Dalziel, and for a short time the running was exceedingly close. At the close, however, it was found that Bro. Nelson, was the successful candidate, by a majority of about twenty votes. On the candidates being called in, and this result announced, Bro. Nelson said that in the fulness of his heart he would only at present ask them to accept one word of thanks, and to consider that he shook hands mentally with every brother present, whether they had voted for or against him. The election of the other contested offices was then proceeded with, and concluded; the list for 1876 accordingly being as follows:—Bros. D. M. Nelson, R.W.M.; Wm. Bell, I.P.M.; J. D. Young, D.M.; Thomas B. Bell, S.M.; J. Sellars, S.W.; P. Brownlie, J.W.; J. Dunn, Treas.; J. Dick, Sec.; A. Cameron, S.D.; D. Paton, J.D.; D. Lindsay, Chap.; R. Craig, B.B.; J. Ritchie, Archt.; T. A. Tennant, Jeweller; A. Carriek, D. of M.; J. Wilson, G. Marshal; R. D. Samuels, R.S.; and J. Wright, Tyler.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle (No. 87).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 21st ult. Present: Bros. J. Booth, R.W.M.; Robert Barr, S.W.; Walton Stewart, J.W.; J. G. Ritchie, S.M.; J. Louttit, R.W.M. 413; J. McLaren, S.D.; J. Miller, S.S.; Samuel McPhee, P.G.S., and others. The meeting was largely attended. An apology from the Secretary for non-attendance through illness was read. Bro. Annand read the minutes, which were confirmed. A letter read from a member of this lodge, now in Canada, who had lost his diploma at sea, and could not gain admittance to any lodge in Canada. The Secretary was ordered to send him a letter of clearance and demit in the mean time, he showing clear on the books. A letter from the Secretary of 360 was read, granting the Thistle, 87, liberty to place a harmonium in the lodge for their use on their meeting nights. The lodge was then passed to F.C., when three brothers received that degree in a very able manner at the hands of Bro. Booth, R.W.M. The names of the brethren are Angus McLaughlan, John Ritchie, and Geo. Blace. The brethren were then called to harmony. After the usual toasts had been run through, "The Health of the last squared Brethren" was proposed from the chair in very graceful and complimentary terms. Bro. McLaughlan briefly replied. The R.W.M. then gave the toast of "The Masonic Press," coupled with Bro. Adams ("Freemason.") He said the Masonic Press was a great auxiliary, and the careful manner all reports of meetings were guarded, and the great quantity of valuable information contained, was a great boon, and he wished it every success. Bro. Adams replied, carefully finishing by saying that the way to continue it as a success was to rally round it, and give it their individual support. The next toast was "The Visitors," coupled with Bro. Louttit, 413. Bro. Louttit briefly returned thanks, "Success to Masonry" from the S.W. chair.

KILBARCHAN.—Lodge St. Barchan's (No. 156).—On the evening of the 27th ult. the brethren of this lodge met in their hall, Kilbarchan, to celebrate the Festival of St. John. Bro. Cunningham, I.P.M., occupied the chair, and was supported by Bro. Andrew Buchanan, D.M.; D. Scrymgeour, S.M.; Andrew Grant, Sec.; and others. After the lodge had been opened by the P.M. the brethren formed a torchlight procession, accompanied by a brass band, and, according to use and wont, went to bring home their recently-elected R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Lewis, M.D. Having met the carriage of Bro. Dr. Lewis, they perambulated the various streets of the village, and returned to the lodge, when the R.W.M. took the chair, and called the brethren from labour to refreshment. Thereafter a pleasant evening was spent with song, toast, and sentiment, combining to make everything agreeable.

WIGTON.—St. John's Lodge (No. 327).—On Monday, 27th ult., the brethren of this lodge held an emergency meeting for the purpose of installing Bro. W. H. Hoodless, S.W., as W.M. for the ensuing twelve months.

The lodge was called for "high twelve," but it was somewhat after that time before the brethren assembled. It was opened by Bro. McMechan, then went through a portion of the installation ceremony, the remainder being given by Bro. Porter, P.G.S.W., in very full and finished style. Bro. Hoodless (now W.M.) then took the Master's chair, and proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. McMechan, I.P.M.; Lazonby, S.W.; J. Robinson, J.W.; Rev. C. H. Gem, Chap.; Porter, P.G. Org. Treas.; W. J. Carrick, Sec.; R. Twentymann, S.D.; J. Johnston, J.D.; R. Dugdale, I.G.; and T. Richardson, Tyler; Bro. P. F. Freeman, P.G.O. presided at one of Alexandre's cabinet organs during the ceremony. Later on in the day a banquet was provided at the Lion and Lamb inn. About twenty sat down, the chair being taken by Bro. Hoodless, and the vice-chair by Bro. Lazonby. The chairman was supported by Bros. McMechan, I.P.M., P.G.S.; Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W.; Gate, P.M., P.P.G. Reg.; Freeman, P.G. Org. Kewick; Armstrong, P.G.D.C. Maryport; J. C. Mason, J.W. Bective Lodge, Carlisle; Banks, S.D. Maryport. Supporting the vice-chairman were Bro. J. G. Twentymann, Liverpool, and Bro. Jos. Johnston. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. T. Richardson, P.M.; J. Pearson, P.M.; Bewes, P.M.; P. H. Taylor, P.M.; W. J. Carrick, Robinson, J. Harris, J. Jefferson, and Forester. Agreeable music was supplied during the dinner by a powerfully-toned musical box with drum and bell accompaniments, belonging to the Chairman. At the head of the table was hung a copy of the large and excellent portrait of Bro. Lemon, P.M., P.G. Treasurer, recently published by Bro. McMechan, one of which has been coloured and emblazoned in gold for the lodge by Bro. W. H. Hoodless. We may here remark that much regret was expressed by the brethren at Bro. Lemon's unfortunate absence through illness, and during the proceedings a telegram was sent off by the W.M. to Bro. Lemon, in the name of himself and the brethren, sending their fraternal regards, expressing their regret at his absence, and pleasure at hearing of his improvement. We believe we are not wrong in saying that this will be about the first St. John's anniversary Bro. Lemon has missed attending at Wigton for over forty years. On the removal of the cloth the chairman gave the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, which were loyally and heartily responded to.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332).—On Monday, 13th ult., the regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. The meeting was large and business important, viz., installation of office-bearers. Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., took the chair and opened the lodge. Bros. McKirdy, S.W.; Murray, J.W.; J. Laird, Treas.; J. McInnes, Sec.; J. Balfour, P.M.; Wm. Morrison, R.W.M. 215; A. Sage, P.M. 360; J. Louttit, R.W.M. 413; J. McInnes, S.M. 408; P. Brownlee, 33; D. McIntyre, 34; and others. The Secretary was called upon to read the minutes, which were passed. A minute was read in reference to the Mark Degree, from which it appeared that a Mark Lodge was constituted in connection with the Union Lodge; it is called the Union Lodge of Mark Masters, and the office-bearers are all appointed, and the lodge in working order. At a later part of the evening Bro. Macnair explained a little more fully the nature of the Mark Lodge, and intimated that those brethren wishing to become members could do so at the next meeting for a fee of 2s. 6d., after which the fee would be 5s. The balance sheet of the annual expenditure of the lodge, after a little discussion was favourably received. Installation was then commenced by the R.W.M. stepping forward, and P.M. Macnair delivering a short but amiable address. All having retired, except Installed Masters, the new Master was entrusted with that degree. The members having re-entered the lodge in the usual form, M.M., F.C., and E.A., respectively, Bro. Macnair called upon the brethren to pass round the lodge and salute the new Master, after which he placed him in the chair, and put into his hand the emblem of his office. The remaining office-bearers were then installed into their respective offices by Bro. Macnair, a few words of earnest counsel being given by Bro. Macnair to each, after which "three times three" was heartily given for the new Master. It was intimated that the annual festival of the lodge would take place on the 7th January, and the tickets were in the hands of the Secretary and Festival Committee, to whom those wishing to attend should apply at once; the members of the lodge would be supplied with tickets first, as they were limited, those left over would be placed at the disposal of members of other lodges who might wish to be present. Messrs. Frederick Jinkinson, stone mason; Wm. Findlay, merchant; and David Proven, manufacturer, who were waiting for initiation, were prepared, and received the First Degree, the R.W.M. officiating.

ARDROSSAN.—Neptune Kilwinning Lodge (No. 442).—At the annual meeting of this lodge held on Monday the 20th ult., R.W.M., Bro. Francis Goodwin, presiding, the following office-bearers were elected for the ensuing year:—Bro. Goodwin, R.W.M.; J. Robertson, P.M.; J. Robertson, D.M.; C. Adair, S.M.; W. Reid, S.W.; A. Bell, J.W.; W. Wyllie, Chaplain; W. Ross, Treas.; T. McNidder, Sec.; W. Robertson, S.D.; T. Pateon, J.D.; D. Gemmel, S.S.; A. Kelso, J.S.; C. Anderson, D. of C.; D. Fullarton, D. of M.; J. Vance, I.G.; and H. Barr, Tyler. The ceremony of installation, according to the ancient Scottish ritual, was performed by Bro. J. Robertson, P.M., in a very impressive manner. The Auditors' report showed the lodge to be in an excellent financial position, £30 having been added to the funds during the year.

KILDALTON.—Kildalton Lodge (No. 552).—This lodge celebrated the anniversary of St. John on the evening of the 29th ult. The brethren met at five o'clock in the evening, and proceeded to elect the office-bearers for the ensuing year, the following being the return, viz.:—

A. Johnstone Hodge, R.W.M.; Donald Campbell, S.W.; Robert Peffers, J.W.; John McMillan, S.D.; Duncan McArthur, J.D.; Francis Kean, I.G.; Peter McDougall, Tyler; Dugald Johnston, Treas.; and the Secretary's office remaining for the time unfilled. After dispatching the business of the evening and closing the lodge, the brethren marched in procession through the village by torch-light, and, the night being favourable, the effect was excellent. The people turned out in hundreds, old and young, and accompanied the march, and many of the houses were illuminated. At seven o'clock the office-bearers, and a number of the brethren, accompanied by their lady friends, sat down to a sumptuous dinner provided by Bro. Lachlan McCraig, the tables being laid in a granary, tastefully decorated with evergreens and flags. Ample justice was done to Bro. McCraig's catering, and when the tables were cleared, the usual loyal toasts followed from the chair and vice-chair, occupied by Bro. Hodge and Bro. McCraig, "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," by Bro. Colin Hay, was responded to by Capt. McCraig, of the 7th A.A.V. Bro. Hodge, from the chair, then proposed "The Craft," and in doing so the following observations fell from him, after reminding the company of his endeavour at the last year's anniversary dinner to enlighten them a little as to the great fundamental principles of Masonry:—"Referring to the year that is past, I cannot say it has been of such a stirring description as its predecessor, at least so far as the Kildalton Lodge is concerned. That is to say, in the way of initiations. We have not had so many candidates for admission but this was only to be looked for. It could not be expected that in an island like ours, the same rapid accession of strength could go on for any great length of time. On the contrary it was only to be expected that when the rush of those gentlemen who were anxious to join us had passed, and the lodge had been well formed, an occasional candidate only would come forward, and such has in point of fact proved to be the case. I believe however, I am justified in saying that the Kildalton Lodge is now in the full vigour of life, and the same feelings of brotherhood and affection exist amongst us in undiminished strength. But, if the past year has been of an uneventful character to the Kildalton Lodge, it has been the very opposite to the Craft generally. Indeed, Masonry has experienced a very marked revival during the past year. While it was still young, the Heir Apparent to the throne of these realms was installed Grand Master Mason of England, and his brother Prince Leopold, the scholar of the Royal Family, has at its close accepted the Mastership of the Apollo Lodge, at Oxford. Such patronage as this has shed a lustre on Freemasonry, which has been reflected on every lodge throughout the length and breadth of the land. The consequence has been the arousing of an amount of enthusiasm truly surprising. Masonry has stepped forward like the early spring in beauty and fresh life, and vindicated her undoubted rights to be considered a power for the amelioration of human suffering. Lodges have sprung up in all directions, halls have been built, charity funds organised, and gentlemen of influence have taken their places in the front of the movement, and as a result of all this the field of Masonic labour has been very much extended. Here we are to a great extent shut out from these stirring events, but it is cheering to know that our noble Order is undergoing a process of purification, reform, and re-invigoration, and it is surely a satisfaction to know that we are associated by such close ties with the only institution the world has ever known that provides a platform on which the warrior, politician, theologian, and men of every country, and of every shade of opinion, can lay aside all their differences and meet on the level, and part on the square of friendship. Knowing these things then, our duty is perfectly clear. We must discountenance everything calculated to bring disrepute upon our Order, and cherish and encourage every step that leads in the direction of the true Masonic platform of brotherly love, relief, and truth. The toast was then drank amidst cheers. Bro. D. Johnston then proposed "The Civil Service," responded to by Bro. James Allen. Then followed "The Clergy," by Bro. D. McArthur; "The G.M.M. of Scotland," by Bro. Kean; "The G.M.M. of Ireland," by Bro. Peffers; "The G.M.M. of England," by Bro. McDougall; "The Ladies," by Bro. D. Campbell, responded to by Bro. R. A. Chatworthy; "The Kildalton Lodge," by Bro. Hay, responded to by Bro. A. J. Hodge, who before sitting down gave "All Poor and Distressed Masons, wherever dispersed, speedy relief, and a safe return to their country if desired." Bro. Campbell proposed "The Health of the Tyler," acknowledged by Bro. P. McDougall. The tables were then removed, and dancing became the order of the night. The music, supplied by native talent, was everything that could be desired, and square, circle, figure dance, reel, and jig succeeded each other rapidly, with songs at intervals, until early morning brought to a close a night of perfect enjoyment, the company leaving the room "sorry to part and happy to meet again."

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Christmas entertainment to the aged inmates of the Asylum at Croydon, was given on Wednesday last. The former events, which were tried as an experiment, having proved entirely successful, have given all those engaged in getting them up the encouragement to adopt them as a periodical institution, and the brethren and widows who occupy the almshouses may look forward to occasional treats to enliven their stay at the institution, and a visit from the ladies and brethren, who always take an interest in their welfare. No pains had been spared to make them comfortable and happy, and the building had been adorned under the direction of Bro. Terry with illustrated reminders of the festive season in the enjoyment of which all of us have lately been participating. The hall, which stands over the principal entrance to the building, was neatly decorated with wishes for a merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, shields or "lozenges" with arms painted on them, and several reproductions of the Prince of Wales's plume, which were acquired by the institution when His Royal Highness was Chairman of its festival. "Welcome" was also profuse on the walls and at the entrance, and an air of cordiality and friendship was plentifully infused into the whole structure. Bro. Terry, Mrs. Terry, Miss Terry, and Mr. J. E. Terry were present acting the part of host and hostess, and with their accustomed geniality most hospitably received the aged people, and those ladies and gentlemen friends of the institution, who had come down with the intention of adding their quota to the general amusement. The hospitable reception they met with at once made them a family party, every individual of whom at once threw themselves with the spirit of the gathering. Among those who were present were Bros. Charles G. Hill and James Terry, Mr. J. E. Terry, Mrs. Terry, Miss Terry, Bros. W. Lane, and James Linzell, Mrs. Linzell, Bro. John G. Stevens, and Mrs. Stevens, Bros. Geo. Knill, and A. H. Tattershall, Mrs. Tattershall, Bros. H. J. Green, and Richard Pearcey, Mrs. Pearcey, Bros. W. J. Crutch, and R. H. Halford, Mrs. Halford, Bros. Geo. F. Cook, and Richard Fowler, Mrs. and Miss Fowler, Bros. H. W. Alford, Mrs. Gogerty, Mrs. Hill, Bro. H. Massey ("Freemason") and Mrs. Massey, Bro. John Constable and Mrs. Constable, Bro. George Ford, Bro. W. W. Morgan and Miss Morgan, Dr. Strong, Mrs. Strong, Bro. John Horth Ross and Mrs. Ross, Mr. Gannon, Miss Haines, Mrs. Baber and Mrs. Dubois. The pensioners were first entertained with an excellent dinner, at which Dr. Strong presided, and the other brethren, and visitors, rendered all their assistance to see to the wants of the party. Every inmate was afterwards presented with a goodly portion of tea and tobacco for consumption in their residences and tea was provided under the direction of Mrs. and Miss Terry, and the "Matron" of the institution, Miss Morris. In the evening feasts of legendariness were exhibited by Professor Lane, and wine and cake and bonbons were supplied at numerous intervals to the whole party of inmates and visitors. Bro. John G. Stevens gave a happy illustration of a vestry meeting, which won for him rapturous applause and convulsive laughter. Bro. W. W. Morgan admirably recited "The Wreck of the Hesperus," and Miss Terry, Mrs. Baber, Mrs. Dubois, the Misses Strong, Miss Haines and Miss Morgan filled up several intervals in the evening with some charming singing and clever execution of pianoforte music. The amusements lasted till nearly ten o'clock, when votes of thanks were proposed, first on the part of the inmates by one of the brethren of the asylum, Bro. Morris, and then by Bro. Terry to those ladies and brethren who had assisted. Bro. Terry acknowledged the vote, which was proposed on behalf of the inmates, and told the brethren that all those who were connected with the institution had their interest at heart, and always endeavoured to make them happy. It was as much pleasure to the subscribers to the Institution to see their friends at Croydon enjoying themselves as it was to the inmates themselves, and he trusted that for many years to come they would have similar happy meetings to this one. In proposing a vote of thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who had taken part in the amusements of the evening, he acknowledged the great kindness which had been shown by them, and the readiness with which they were at all times ready to assist in a good cause. To Dr. Strong, he moved a special vote of thanks for his earnest desire to promote the happiness of the old people, and for his unremitting attention to them in all their little ailments. The different votes of thanks were unanimously carried, and the London brethren and ladies, who were the last to leave the building, returned to town after enjoying one of the most pleasant days on record.

UNPARALLELED MASONIC MUNIFICENCE.

COMMUNIQUE.

I have just heard from my dear friend and Bro. Charles E. Meyer, of Philadelphia, of the handsome gift by W. Bro. Henry C. Fox, which, so far as I know, is greatly in advance of any contribution heretofore of its kind, and deserves some special recognition not only by the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, U.S.A., but general and particular acknowledgment in the columns of every Masonic journal in the world, as well as heartfelt appreciation by the Craft universal. The particulars communicated to me are as follows. At the stated meeting of the Covenant Lodge No. 456, held in the Grand Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, on the 14th ult., the Worshipful Master, Henry C. Fox, presented to the permanent fund of the lodge the sum of 5000 dols. (£1000) as a "slight tribute of the affection he felt towards the members thereof, and his reverence for the pure principles of Freemasonry." The presentation was a great surprise to the brethren, the secret having been entrusted only to the Trustees of the lodge, and I can quite fancy—though I should fail to depict—the feelings of his hearers as the words fell from the lips of their Worshipful Master. I have never heard of such a munificent gift being made to any lodge in this country, or indeed under any Grand Lodge, and save the solitary exception of the splendid contribution by the lamented R.W. Bro. Stephen Blair to the "Royal Masonic Institution for Boys," I believe that such an amount has never before been given to any Masonic institution whatever by an individual brother. As one of the Stewards for 1876, on behalf of the "Royal Masonic Institution for Boys," how much I should enjoy having even a tenth of such an amount on my list from a brother, and yet such hitherto unequalled Masonic munificence ought not to be beyond the capabilities or generous impulses of our wealthy brethren. Indeed I doubt much if the annual contributions to our three great Masonic Charities—great as they are—amount to a sum at all commensurate with the wealth and social position of the English Craft, and I do most heartily pray that the gift of our American brother may lead to similar results in this country, and that not only may the permanent fund be thus increased, but may we be able to alleviate all the distress and misfortune which it behoves us to do, and succeed in finding a home for every destitute orphan, the legacies of our unfortunate brethren to the English Craft.

Bro. Fox's munificent gift did not, I am glad to say, prevent the inauguration of another unparalleled Masonic event, viz., that the donor of the £1000 invited the members and certain privileged guests to a banquet, prior to his retiring from the chair, and so on Wednesday evening, the 15th December last, some 400 brethren assembled in honour of the occasion in the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple, the whole arrangements, according to the circular before me, being evidently most thoroughly Masonic. The toasts embraced "The Right Worshipful the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania," "The Fraternity," "Our Visiting Brethren," "Woman," "The Centennial," "The Press," and, though not noted, doubtless "the toast of the evening" was "The Health and Prosperity of the Host," Bro. Henry C. Fox. I understand that an account of the banquet and speeches will appear in the racy "Keystone," and in all probability it will have been issued ere this short notice sees the light.

I must not forget to mention that a marked feature of the banquet was the total absence of all spirituous and malt liquors, a fact certainly to the credit of all concerned.

The brethren separated after a most pleasing evening, after singing "Auld Lang Syne."

I await with much interest the next unique fact in the annals of Freemasonry in the "Keystone" State. It has the honour, according to present evidence, of introducing the Masonic Craft in new England, the first lodge being held in Philadelphia, in which city the first Masonic Hall was erected, and now contains the largest and finest Masonic Temple in the world. According to our esteemed Bro. McCalla, the first of almost everything that is good had its origin in the City of Philadelphia, and so we must all proceed there to witness its reception of the Centennial exhibitors and visitors, and if I am able to go I hope to grasp the hand of Bro. Fox, the donor of £1000 to his lodge, as well as the hands of many dear friends.—W. J. HUGHAN.

Obituary.

BRO. ALEXANDER GORDON, 871.

Bro. Alexander Gordon, Royal Oak Lodge, 871, died on the 18th December somewhat suddenly. He was initiated in 871 in August, 28th, 1873, and continued a full subscribing member up to his death. He declined to take any office in the lodge on account of the many other duties he had to attend to. He was proprietor of the New Cross Tavern (Glass House), and was well respected by all who knew him. At his funeral there was a large assemblage of highly respectable persons, together with a goodly number of the brethren, which showed how well he was respected by all who knew him. He has left a daughter to deplore his loss.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Prince of Wales on Saturday last witnessed some tent-pegging, and subsequently visited the principal hospitals. In the afternoon, at Government House, His Royal Highness received a Masonic deputation, who presented an address, enclosed in an elaborate casket.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught has sent a cheque for ten guineas to Mr. Pashley, the founder of the United Soldiers' and Civilians' New Home, North Camp, Aldershot. The Duke of Connaught is expected to perform the formal opening ceremony of this institution next March.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught paid a visit to Ceuta on the 19th ult. in his yacht Vega, and was received with the greatest courtesy by the Military Governor of Ceuta, General Satorius, and the officers of his staff. After luncheon at the General's house, His Royal Highness rode through the town and visited some of the barracks occupied by the Spanish troops, some of whom were paraded for the Prince's inspection. On Christmas-day the Duke of Connaught visited the inmates of the Naval and Military Hospital. Surgeon-General Balfour conducted His Royal Highness round the wards. The Duke made many inquiries, and conversed with the sick.

Bro. Lord Henry Thynne, who has accepted office as Treasurer of Her Majesty's Household, has been re-elected for South Wilts without opposition. His proposer was Mr. Bennett-Stanford, M.P. for Shaftesbury, and his seconder Mr. E. Hinxman, of Durnford House, Salisbury. The noble lord did not address the electors.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., graciously received a deputation of Freemasons of Bankipore on Tuesday last.

Bro. the Earl of Rosslyn, P.G.M. of Scotland has sent a supply of game for the patients of the German Hospital.

In consequence of the death of his father, Bro. Boord, M.P. for Greenwich, will not, it is stated, make his annual address to his constituents during the Parliamentary recess.

A number of gentlemen assembled at the residence of Bro. Dr. Jabez Hogg on Saturday evening, and presented Mr. Torrens, M.P., with a purse of £200, as a slight acknowledgment of his services as senior member of the Borough of Finsbury.

The meetings of the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, No 65, will in future be held at No. 1, Camomile-street, Bishopsgate.

Dean Stanley, in his annual sermon to children in Westminster Abbey on Innocents' Day, referred to the gallant conduct of the boys on board the Goliath, and especially of the little boy Bolton, who refused to leave the ship till the last, and whom he was proud to claim as a Westminster lad.

We have to record the death of Bro. James Rogers at his residence, 16A, Clarendon-square, on the 24th ult. Bro. Rogers was in his 81st year. He was for 54 years with the Mercers' Company, and founder and, for 36 years, Secretary of the London Coffee and Eating House Keepers' Benevolent Association; also Secretary to the Lodge of Confidence (193) for 31 years.

Bro. Alderman Ellis has arranged with the executors of the late Mr. F. J. Clark to undertake the responsibilities of the business of Messrs. Farebrother, Clark, and Co., at 5, Lancaster-place, Strand. Bro. Alderman Ellis will retain his City offices, No. 18, Old Broad-street, as heretofore.

Bro. William Ramsey, of Farringdon-street, has been commissioned by the Lord Mayor to prepare a stained glass window to take the place of the "Cotton" window in Guildhall, which is to be removed to the museum at Kew Gardens. The new window will be divided into two compartments, the upper representing Queen Elizabeth reviewing her troops, and the lower, the Armada Thanksgiving service at Old St. Paul's.

The City Masonic Club of Instruction, which holds its meetings at the Jamaica Coffee House, has just celebrated its sixth anniversary. About forty brethren were present. In the absence of the president, through illness, Bro. Tilley was called to the chair. It was stated during the proceedings that in the short space of six years this club, by devoting its receipts to Masonic charities, had become vice-presidents of both the Boys' and Girls' Schools, and would by the close of the year be qualified as vice-presidents of the other charities connected with the Craft.—"City Press."

TESTIMONIAL TO A BANK MANAGER.—We are pleased to observe that a committee is being formed for the purpose of presenting Bro. William Herbage (Lodge 177), the late manager of the City Bank, Ludgate Hill, and the present joint manager of the London and South-Western Bank, with a testimonial in acknowledgment of his zeal, assiduity, and courtesy. We observe that Bro. Alderman Hadley, P.G.D., is the chairman, and Bro. Frederick Kent, P.M., of 8, Red Lion Court House, Cannon-street, the hon. sec. to the fund, to which we sincerely wish success.

The "Evening Standard" states that the Address of the House of Commons, in answer to the Speech from the Throne, will be moved by Mr. Matthew White Ridley, member for North Northumberland, and seconded by Mr. Mulholland, member for Downpatrick.

It is a noteworthy and significant fact that at the recent elections of Common Councilmen, the City displayed a vigorous vitality and a very much stronger interest in the proceedings than usual. In many of the wards exciting contests took place, and men of position and influence came to the front and vigorously entered into them, in many cases with success; notably in Farringdon Without, the largest Ward in the City, when Mr. G. H. Mason, a new candidate, polled the unprecedented number of 975 votes, the highest ever recorded on a similar occasion in the annals of the Ward, and was elected by a majority of nearly 250, although several of the old representatives (who, by the way, polled more than usual at former contests) are among the most distinguished members of the Court of Common Councilmen.

The "Masonic Magazine" for January contains a portrait of Hon. Mrs. Aldworth, the "Lady Freemason."

ALEXANDRA PALACE AND PARK.—From the day of opening to the present time the visitors have averaged 8000 a day.

The first sixpenny day at the Crystal Palace on Monday resulted in the attendance of 8287 visitors, of whom 6186 were admitted by payment, and 2101 by season tickets.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Dangerous catarrhs, bronchitis, asthma, and influenza are rife at this season of the year; hepatic and renal congestions frequently occur as the result of checked skin action, giving rise to serious symptoms and preventing attention to business or pleasure. No time should be lost in the first appearance of any indications of the invasion of these diseases for the symptoms may be checked effectually by the use of these valuable remedies. The penetrating local effect of the Ointment acts surely on the affected parts, and restores them to a healthy condition; and the Pills, judiciously taken in accordance with the lucid directions, relieve the congestive capillaries and materially lessen the chance of serious mischief supervening.—ADVT.

H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD.

We learn that the Most Worshipful Grand Master has been pleased to appoint H.R.H. Prince Leopold Provincial Grand Master for Oxfordshire.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER IN INDIA.

The reception of the Prince of Wales at Calcutta has been most loyal, and everything seems to have passed over with the greatest success. The Investiture of the Order of the Star of India was most striking and imposing, and there can be no doubt whatever but that the visit of our Royal Grand Master to India will have produced the best effects. By the time our readers read these lines the Prince of Wales will have left Calcutta, and the "Pioneer" publishes the following as the final arrangements for the Prince of Wales's tour after his departure from Calcutta, adding that the only alteration in the least degree probable is an extension of his Royal Highness's stay at Jeypore by one day:—On Monday evening, the 3rd of January, he will leave Calcutta by the East Indian Railway, and will arrive at Benares on the evening of the 4th, visiting Bankipore en route. Leaving Benares on the morning of the 6th, he will get to Lucknow the same evening. The Prince will spend the 7th, 8th, and 9th at Lucknow, and will proceed on the morning of Monday, the 10th, to Cawnpore, where he will spend the day, starting at night for Delhi. After remaining at Delhi from the 11th to the 17th he will go on to Lahore, arriving there on the morning of Tuesday, the 18th. The remainder of the 18th and the whole of the 19th will be passed at Lahore. Leaving that city on the morning of Thursday, the 20th, he will arrive at Jummoo on the evening of the same day, and will remain there as the guest of the Maharajah of Cashmere until the morning of Saturday, the 22nd, when he will set out on his return to Lahore. Sunday will be spent at Lahore, and on Monday, the 24th, the Prince will take the train for Agra, visiting Umritsur en route. At Agra a halt will be made from the 25th to the 30th. The visit to Scindiah at Gwalior will occupy the 31st and the 1st of February, and on Wednesday, the 2nd, the Prince will return to Agra. On the 4th, he will go on to Jeypore, where he will remain until the evening of Sunday, the 6th. The night of the 6th and the whole of the 7th will be spent in travelling towards Nynce Tal, via Moradabad and Kaladoongee, and then will commence a shooting expedition in Kumanon and the Nepal Serai, lasting from the 8th to the 2nd of March. Bareilly will be reached on the morning of Friday, the 3rd, and will be left on the evening of the same day. A few hours of the 4th will be spent at Allahabad, and on the morning of the 6th His Royal Highness will arrive at Indore, where he will remain as the guest of the Maharajah Holkar until the evening of Tuesday, the 7th. On the evening of the 8th he will arrive at Ellora, where he will stay until the next evening. He will then go on to Bombay, and will embark on or about the 10th of March.

THE LIMITS OF RELIGIOUS THOUGHT AND TEACHING.

We published last week an interesting letter from, we understand, Professor Tyndall, with reference to a recent allocution or circular of the French Roman Catholic Bishop of Montpellier. No doubt Professor Tyndall calls the attention of the "Times," in which journal the letter originally appeared, to this last deliverance of an energetic Roman Catholic prelate, on account of anew by Roman Catholic authority. It is this, practically, the unchanged teaching of Roman Catholicism, which sets it so much at variance with the reason, intellect, feeling, and public opinion of the day. For what is this claim on the part of Rome? It is simply this, that the Roman Catholic Church, as the Church, has the right to pronounce and hold any and all scientific teaching contrary to the truth of Revelation, and to denounce it and condemn it "ad fideles" accordingly! But the Church—quæ the Church in our opinion—has no such inherent authority, or proper power. It is to proclaim spiritual truths not scientific, its great domain is the world of Grace, not the world of Nature. It may and probably does illustrate its teaching, from the wondrous storehouse of animate or inanimate creation, from the marvels of discovery, from the realms of science, from the laws which govern our material being, from the condition and normal existence of created man, but it has no right to pronounce dogmatically on these subjects ex cathedra, much less to make them questions of religious belief, or irreligious heresy, at least, so we hold. It would be very absurd if the Archbishop of Canterbury, for instance, were to say to any learned professor or scientific teacher amongst us, "You are propounding certain theories concerning the 'law of selection,' 'gravitation,' 'optics,' 'ethnology,' 'zoology,' 'anthropology,' 'geology,' &c., &c., and inasmuch as your researches seem to contravene the words of the Bible I claim the right of the Church to condemn your views, and denounce your discoveries." In our humble opinion, that would be travelling beyond the limits of religious thought and teaching! It is true that there may be "oppositions of science falsely so-called." It is, no doubt, correct to say that many writers have, in late years especially, advanced very questionable statements, which they hold tenaciously as "dogmata," and have spoken but little reverently of the Bible, which, as true Freemasons, we recognize and revere as God's word. But still, though this be so, it overpasses, as we regard it, the real limits of religious teaching, when any religious body professes to have a right quæ a religious body, to deal with the deductions of skilled writers, in any branch of the natural laws of this wondrous world of ours, the researches of pure science, the study of psychological phenomena, and to pass a religious opinion upon them, and declare them to be true or false, sound or unsound, contrary to God's word, or opposed to revealed truth. We cannot see or understand how such power can be vested in one or any denominational body. A church—the Church that we consider the church, has a right no doubt to lay down terms of communion, to declare on its infallible or fallible authority, as the case may be, certain spiritual verities and distinct doctrines to be the truth for its members, and to reject all who refuse to accept them, or be bound by them; but it cannot, as it seems to us, say, or lay down anything more, rightly or lawfully. It clearly has no warrant to say that, because certain truths of the Bible are seemingly affected by certain discoveries of science, those discoveries must be untrue. The Church may command its preachers to aver certain truths to be absolute and essential truths, and, e converso, to condemn by implication, all opposing dogmata, and leave the result to the understanding or faith of the people. But it can rightly do no more, and go no further. The claim of the Church of Rome to supervise and give its "inprimatur" to scientific discovery cannot be admitted by any who value the freedom of the intellect, or believe in a right use of reason. Poor Galileo said that the sun was a "fixed body," with the "earth continually revolving round it on its own axis," but the Inquisition, because the Bible had said that the "sun stood still in the Valley of Ajalon," believed that the sun moved round the earth, and not vice versa, and condemned the great astronomer as a heretic. And so it still is, Rome claims to-day, to pronounce on all the discoveries of science, on all the results of modern investigation on the bearings of the natural laws of the universe, on the careful conclusions of the student and the sage. Such a claim, as we said before, cannot be conceded, and must be resisted. It is one of the main elements of the great struggle which is now going on. We are not among those who oppose ourselves, because we are Freemasons, to religious teaching, or the proper limits of religious thought and dogma. Far from it, we are neither secularists nor sceptics, humanitarians or unbelievers, but we venture to contend for the liberty of scientific studies, just as we uphold freedom of commerce, toleration of opinion, and inviolability of worship. We regret deeply to find that the Church of Rome is embarking on a contest, in which she must be defeated, since in this, as in many other things, the absurdity of her demands, and the unreasonableness of her teaching, will, end in her own overthrow, by the spirit of public opinion, and bring down to the ground with her much that otherwise might have been willingly upheld, and safely maintained.

THE "FREEMASON."

We are still on the threshold of the new year and we have been taking stock; and the result is, on the whole, gratifying. We do not indeed wish or seek to come forward with magniloquent phrases, or conventional "bunkum." We are not very anxious to praise ourselves at the expense of others, or for the kindly purpose of annoying somebody else, give forth with boastful flourishes what we intend to be satirical, but what we know to be untrue. Far be from us any such ignoble feelings. It may suit those who deal in "cheap and nasty" wares to obtrude an inferior article on a gullible public! But we need follow no such course, nor be characterized by any such tactics. Ours is both plain sailing and straight running. We do not wish to "tout" for patronage, nor laud ourselves for support. We take approval and disfavour as they come and go; we rate them at their proper worth, we care neither for the one nor for the other, to tell the honest truth. We try to do our duty honestly, justly, liberally, by the Craft, and we have no fear that our motives will be misconstrued, or our efforts disregarded. The "Freemason" has never yet appealed to anything but the public opinion and approval of the Craft, and it never will. It has ever pursued a straightforward even course; it has neither been subsidized by friends nor patronized by any select body of Freemasons; it has had no public company to back it up; it has never been the organ of a party or the journal of a coterie, but it has asked for a "fair field and no favour;" and thanks to the liberality, and sympathy, and justice of the Craft, it has obtained a hearing. It was originally set on foot when Masonic literature seemed to have found the "facilis descensus Avernus," and since 1869, the date of its publication, it has unobtrusively pursued the even tenour of its way. It has had, like all newspaper properties, its brighter and its darker days; but owing to the energy, and perseverance, and pluck of its publisher, it has tided over many difficulties, and successfully weathered the gale. At the present time it can boast of a larger circle of readers and subscribers than any English Masonic paper has ever received, and, with one or two exceptions, perhaps than any foreign Masonic journal. It has been the first that has taken a high standard of Masonic literary excellence, and has maintained up to the present moment its intellectual character and its archaeological tone. It has led the way to that more critical study of our records, and annals, and monuments and MS., which has practically developed the modern Masonic historical school, and all passing topics it has handled with prudence and firmness, with proper liberty of discussion, and yet with often needful reticence. And, one especial feature of its career has been its toleration of, and its consideration for contemporary Masonic literature! it has never attacked and never maligned, it has never even condescended to the covert insinuation, or the ill-mannered taunt, but has always been free and fair, plain dealing and plain speaking, honest and aboveboard, firm in its own principles, but courteous to all! We think it advisable at the beginning of 1876, to say all this, not to "sing our own praises," nor to be our own "trumpeter," but simply in justice to our publisher and ourselves! Such as we have been, such we shall continue to be. We hope still to merit the confidence of our subscribers, and the approval of our readers. In the year before us, just as in the years behind us, we shall strive to keep up the high character of the "Freemason," alike for correctness in our reports, independence of thought in our leaders, and an anxious endeavour to deserve the good opinion and sympathy of a very numerous and very kindly clientèle. We thank sincerely those good friends and brethren of ours, who have cheered us so greatly, and encouraged us so warmly, by their Masonic countenance and support in times past, and especially the last twelve months, and we beg to ask them with the new year for a continuance of their liberal patronage, their welcome contributions, and their zealous co-operation.

MASONIC SWAGGER.

We all of us know that a little swagger goes often a great way in common things and in daily life. Many unsophisticated natures, as well as easy going people, are sometimes alike imposed on and affected by pretentious swagger. As a general rule the swaggerer is, to use a common and slang term, a "duffer," who covers the vacuity of his brain, or the tenuity of his acquirements, mental, critical, or intellectual, by the pretentious assumption or the overbearing demeanour! And even in Freemasonry, as in all other mundane institutions, we often find plenty of swagger, and not a few swaggerers. Who of us all does not recall even now that amiable but intolerable bore who will ever expatiate "ore rotundo" on what he has done for Freemasonry, and what he knows of Freemasonry? To hear him talk, to peruse his magniloquent phrases, you would suppose that he was some Delphian oracle, some Masonic "Deus ex machina!" Nobody knows anything of Freemasonry as well as he does, nobody writes like he does, nobody has ever done anything for Freemasonry, either in its literary development or its oratorical studies, until he came to the rescue, until he burst on our astonished Order, in the plenitude of his archaeological knowledge, and the beauties of his ornate style. Well, they say every one has a delusion in this world, and why should he not have his, poor fellow; if it amuses him, it does not hurt any one else that we know of. So we shrug our shoulders with a look of pity on such harmless self-deception. For if the truth be told, the perpetrator of this Masonic swagger for the most part, is certain never to "set the Thames on fire." He has, no doubt, great readiness of assertion and a considerable amount of "native brass," but when he comes to "chapter and verse" the true Masonic student soon "spots" his deficiencies and is amused both by his blunders and his ignorance, which are pretty much "on a par." We have listened to not unfrequently the Masonic swaggerer, and found him generally to be a plausible sciolist. We have perused many specimens of Masonic swagger, and for the most part they were only that and nothing else. The froth on the surface, not to say the scum of the pot. Such communications for the most part are very melancholy reading. If the fool will wear his motley let him do so by all means, and jingle his bells and rattle his "bauble" in the great vanity fair of life, but let him leave Freemasonry alone. It is far too serious a matter to be handed over to the empirical, the charlatan, the swaggerer, and the ignorant. The students of Freemasonry know well to-day both the difficulties and the dangers of their course. They are seeking, all real ones are at any rate, to master historical truth, plain honest reliable truth "pur et simple," without any admixture of fable, or fiction, or gloss, or myth, truth without pretence, alloy, or swagger of any kind. But the swaggerer does not take this more real and enlightened course. Not he. He has not studied the subject carefully or critically, and so he objects to and denounces all who have been so rash as to do so. "He does not approve, he says, of doubters or iconoclasts." He does not like going too deep into any theory. He has got a smattering of Masonic history, or archaeology or symbolism, or ritualism, as the case may be, and swagger does the rest for him. Now he always undervalues privately, and publicly deprecates the labours of ardent students of humble enquirers. "He said so and so," "his opinion is to this effect," "he does not see the good of such enquiries," "he knows all that needs be known," and "beyond that he thinks," we "are going too far, and he disapproves of it, &c., &c., &c." How often in our life, have we heard these dreariest of utterances, how often have we seen the "wet blanket" thrown upon the intelligent, and the enquiring. When then, any lodge is blessed by that brother who "will be heard," and "won't be put down," who swaggers in the lodge, and at the banquet, whose whole Masonic career is summed up in the one word "swagger" whose ignorance is only equalled by his impudence, and whose overbearing disposition is only surpassed by his unconquerable "cheek," we pity that lodge deeply, and unless some good fates or some countervailing influence should intervene for it, is doomed to the "husks" and rubbish, and "debris" of Freemasonry as long as that untoward specimen of Freemasonry rules the roost. We do not wish to pursue the subject further, except to say, that we do not ourselves believe that "swagger" happily ever long prevails after all. We have to encounter it daily, we peruse its "outcome" every now and then, but luckily we are living in a discerning age, and though it treats all its friends even to its own childish impertinence, or its own idle boasting, it does very little harm indeed, after all, and may safely we think, be left to the discernment of the intelligent, the pity of the intellectual, and the contempt of the wise and instructed Craftsman.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am sure the kindly letter signed "Richard Woolf, Sub-Prior of Worcestershire," which appeared in your issue of the 18th ult., has been read with much interest and satisfaction by all the members of the Order of the Temple, as coming from one who has most evidently the "true interests" of the Order at heart, and who really desires to lend his "influence and aid" towards the healing of those differences which most unhappily exist amongst us at the present time. The publication of the paper issued from the Chancery, to which you have given so prominent a position on page 591 of your issue for the 25th ult., was not only an act of fairness on your part, as you had from time to time inserted in your columns memorials against the new statutes, but I consider it is an act calculated most strongly to serve the "true interests" of our Order, as "throwing (as you have already stated) considerable light upon the compilation and authorship of the new statutes," against which there has been, and is, I am sorry to see, so much opposition. A careful and calm perusal of this document will, I hope, convince many that the changes which have been made are at least not the results of either hasty or clandestine legislation, and that the objections which have been raised to these changes are answered in a straightforward and courteous manner. The province in which I have the honour to hold office memorialised the Great Prior, under date 25th February last, and I think if you will be so good as to publish the accompanying copy of our memorial it may help to throw a little more light on the matters in dispute. I find it necessary, however, to correct a misapprehension which seems to have arisen regarding the receipt by the officers of the Great Priory of a similar copy of our said memorial some five or six months ago. It has been thought by some that these copies were sent out from the office of the Chancery of our Order because our memorial was in favour of, and not against, the new statutes. This is a thorough mistake. By direction of our Provincial Prior I sent them out myself after my arrival in England in May last, each cover being addressed in my own handwriting. I wrote and asked the Vice-Chancellor, it is true, to send them out, as he had the addresses of the officers of the Great Priory, but he declined to accede to my request, and referred me to the Calendar for the information I required. If then any officer of the Great Priory has not received a copy of our memorial, it has been because I was unable to trace his name and address.

Trusting you may find room for this communication in your next issue, and with many good wishes,

I am, dear Sir and brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

TUDOR TREVOR,
Provincial Chancellor Bombay.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Freemason," December 25th, there appears an article under the head of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital, in one part of which the writer draws a comparison betwixt Knights Commanders, and Past Masters of lodges ceasing to be subscribing members. Of the latter he says "But in Craft Masonry, if he ceases to subscribe for a year his right lapses, and he becomes a mere Master Mason, nor can he recover his position and franchise without again serving as Master of a lodge."

This is a theorem which admits of considerable doubt, being opposed to the spirit and principle of Masonry, contrary to the usages and customs of the Order, and unsupported by law.

In order to understand this matter more clearly it will become necessary to ascertain what is meant by Past Master, and in what relationship does he stand to a Master Mason. "In ancient times no brother, however skilled in the Craft, was called a Master Mason until he had been elected into the chair of a lodge," so that originally the term Master and Master Mason were synonymous, but the Act of Union laid down that pure Masonry should consist of three degrees, viz., Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason, and inasmuch as no community or body of men can conduct their deliberations in proper order without a governor, or head, it still remained that the brethren should elect one of their number to preside over them, who, after he had been installed, they should call Master. Hence arose the distinction between Master Mason and Master of a lodge, nor is this a distinction without a difference. The law says "He shall be duly installed in the chair according to ancient usage," at which ceremony "mere Master Masons" are not admitted, and none but actual Installed Masters, or Past Masters, can take part in the proceedings; even a W.M. elect cannot be admitted. It will therefore appear that, de forma, this is a fourth degree, as superior to a Master Mason as the latter is to the Fellow Craft, inasmuch as there are obligations, signs, words, &c., which are held as sacred from a "mere Master Mason," as from the popular world; and further, so long as memory retains its seat, these entitle him to be recognized as a Past Master, equally as the rites, &c., of the Master Mason or Fellow Craft entitle them to their distinctions.

In addition to this, the law grants him certain privileges subject to certain conditions. First, that so long as he holds the office of Master he shall be a member of Grand Lodge, and having executed that office for one year shall, so long as he continues a subscribing member of any lodge, rank as a Past Master, and be a member of Grand Lodge.

Having ascertained the difference in position, rank, and privilege possessed by a Master, or Past Master, above that of a "mere Master Mason," let us next consider the conditions upon which he continues to secure those privileges, and what he sacrifices by failing to comply with those conditions.

What is it then that entitles him to a continuance of those privileges? Continuous subscription to a lodge which if broken or interrupted for twelve months "he shall no longer continue a member of Grand Lodge." Observe! it does not say he shall no longer be a Past Master, nor does it say he shall become a "mere Master Mason." By ceasing to subscribe he loses his lodge membership, and the privileges connected therewith; he also sacrifices his right of membership of the Grand Lodge.

The writer of the article grants that by ceasing to subscribe he does not cease to be a Mason. If then we admit the axiom "once a Mason always a Mason," by the same course of reasoning it may be demonstrated that once a Past Master always a Past Master; and that the rights and privileges of the one are no more affected by ceasing to subscribe than the rights and privileges of the other: one ceases to be a member of a private lodge, while the other, in addition, loses his membership of the Grand Lodge, the Masonic rank of each remaining unchanged.

This brings us then to the consideration of the latter part of the writer's theory. "Nor can he recover his position and franchise without again serving as Master of a lodge."

On what law does he establish this statement? The Constitutions are comparatively silent on this point. Certainly they provide for a brother becoming affiliated to a lodge after his privileges have lapsed, through not subscribing or otherwise; but nowhere, even by implication, do they warrant the assumption of the writer of the article. On the contrary, they seem to imply that on a Past Master rejoining a lodge (after a "apse") he does so in the possession of his former rank. Rule 25, page 66 B.C., reads thus:—"Each lodge shall annually make a return to the Grand Secretary of the Masters, Wardens, and Past Masters of the lodge, and of all members who claim to be entitled to attend the Grand Lodge as Past Masters, having served the office of Master in some other lodge, and specifying the lodge in which each of them has served the office of Master." Obviously the above are Past Masters whose rights of membership in G.L. have lapsed through not contributing. It would also appear that on such brethren becoming affiliated to another lodge, they are to be returned as Past Masters, in support of their claim to attend Grand Lodge; otherwise, if they were contributing members of the lodge wherein they served as Master, they would also be members of Grand Lodge, and entitled to attend as such, and consequently the last sentence of the above rule would be unnecessary, viz., "and no brother shall be permitted to attend the Grand Lodge unless his name shall appear in such return." There is nothing here about his "again serving as Master of a lodge."

Then, as to the usages and customs of the Order, would any one dream of refusing admission to a well-known Past Master to participate in the ceremony of installation, simply on the ground of his not being a subscribing member? Further, it has been already determined that such an one is eligible to the highest office in the Royal Arch.

Therefore, the new statute of the Knights Templar is nothing more than an embodiment of the spirit and intention of the Antient Law of Craft Masonry as regards Past Masters. To wit, every Master who has executed that office for one year shall be a Past Master for life, and shall be a member of Grand Lodge, "and have a right of voting in the great body, or Parliament, of the Order," so long as he continues to subscribe to some lodge, "Nay, he may cease to do so for any length of time," but so soon as his name becomes placed on the roll of a regular lodge his rights and franchise revive."

I remain, yours fraternally,

HENRY INGHAM, P.M.

Batley, Dec. 29th, 1875. P.Z. 258; H. 1214.

[Our correspondent is entirely wrong. If he will look at law 18, section 1, Book of Constitutions, he will see that any P.M. ceasing to subscribe for twelve months, forfeits his privileges, and cannot regain his seat in Grand Lodge until he is again installed Master of a lodge, and is, in fact, again a subscribing member. There is no clearer or better known law in Masonry, and we wonder much that Bro. Ingham should be so oblivious of the Book of Constitutions. Section 25, p. 69, applies to another state of affairs, and presupposes that none of the P.M.'s have lost their privileges. If these privileges are forfeited they can only be regained in one way—re-installation.—Ed.]

GRAND LODGE OF ALL ENGLAND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to Bro. Hughan, will you permit me to say that he is perfectly right, and that I am wrong in speaking of my lodge as holding its warrant from the Grand Lodge of All England. I was led into the error by a reference in Mackey's Lexicon, stating that in past times there were "two Grand Masters in England who assumed distinctive titles, the Grand Master of the North being called Grand Master of All England, while he who presided in the South was called Grand Master of England." My lodge has a date previous to the year 1800, and its jewel is of the same date. The warrant is from the York Grand Lodge. I should be glad to read Bro. Hughan's "Memorials of the Union" if he will kindly let me know where it is to be obtained. W.M.

THE COST OF SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At page 575, December 18th, of your columns, and in the report of a lecture by the Rev. Mr. Agnew, delivered at Auckland, New Zealand, I find the reverend lecturer stating that the cost of Solomon's Temple amounted to no less a sum than nine hundred and forty-three millions of pounds sterling! Where our learned brother got that piece of information I know not, unless, indeed, he is a bit of a spiritualist, and the ghost or spirit of Hiram Abiff's clerk of works being in a jocular mood sent it to him. As to his other statement, that "The true origin of Masonry lay in the Temple of Solomon," I fear it will also have to be taken cum grano salis.

Turning to page 596, December 25th, I find another brother under no less formidable a cognomen than "A Provincial P.M.," gravely informing "such of your readers as may not be aware of it, that St. Alban formed the first Grand Lodge in Britain in A.D. 287, and King Athelstan granted a charter to Freemasons in 926, the same year in which Prince Edwin formed a Grand Lodge at York." As his authority for these wonderful assertions, "A P.P.M." mentions the "Freemason." Now as a constant reader of, and pretty frequent contributor to, the pages of the "Freemason," I was not aware of this before, and I greatly fear that our no doubt worthy brother is drawing rather largely upon his imagination, and that he has failed to read the columns of the "Freemason" with due discrimination between quoted fictions and published facts.

Before "A Provincial P.M." rushes into print again, talking nonsense, I would respectfully hint that it might do him no harm to get a little better posted up in the subject by sending Bro. Kenning a little of his spare cash, who, in return, would send him some reliable information in such works as those by Findel, Hughan, and Lyon. Perhaps, also, our brother might do worse than send up his name as a subscriber to the New Encyclopedia.

Yours fraternally,

W. P. BUCHAN.

CAN A TYLER VOTE?

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The letter signed by Bro. Kenneth R. H. Mackenzie, which appeared in your issue of January 1st, 1876, states in the third page that the Grand Secretary informs him, "The Grand Tyler is (scarcely) considered a Grand Officer, and, from his situation and duties, whether as Grand Tyler, or Tyler of a private lodge, it is impossible for him to take part in discussions, and, if he cannot do this, his vote, even if it were conceded to him as such, would not be of much avail."

I cannot understand why "scarcely" is used; the Grand Tyler is, or is not, a Grand Officer; firstly, if he be not a Grand Officer, why does Grand Lodge permit him to wear Grand Lodge clothing? secondly, if he be not a Grand Officer, why is the title "Grand" Tyler given to him in the Book of Constitutions, page 41? thirdly, if he be not a Grand Officer, why is the print of the jewel to be worn by him in the Book of Constitutions? fourthly, if he be not a Grand Officer, why are his duties as Grand Tyler laid down in the Book of Constitutions? (vide page 41.)

The Grand Tyler (and all other Tylers) retains his membership, and all privileges of Grand Lodge, as a P.M. and a subscribing member of a lodge (vide Book of Constitutions, page 18, par. 1, also page 37, par. 1, last four lines); consequently he has his vote, and I should think, right of discussion, the same as any other member, but it would not be quite in good taste for any paid officer of Grand Lodge, to enter into discussion in Grand Lodge.

Tylers are not balloted for, therefore they are not members of the particular lodge they tile, indeed, if I understand the Book of Constitutions, no brother can possibly be a member of a lodge unless he has been regularly balloted for, (vide Book of Constitutions, page 83, par. 1.) except an initiate, and then only provided he express his wish (to be a member) on the day of his initiation, (vide Book of Constitutions, page 61, par. 13.)

I fear our worthy Bro. Mackenzie must have misunderstood the Grand Secretary, and I should like to see an official answer to the question, as it must necessarily affect a great number of brethren acting as Tylers, and the Grand Tyler in particular, as they cannot possibly enter into the matter with good taste.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JAMES WEAVER,

P.P.G. Org., Midx., P.M. 862 and 1319, &c.

[We have reason to believe, that Bro. Mackenzie is in error in attributing the opinion he has quoted to our worthy Grand Secretary. The opinion he expressed has no official weight, and must be considered as Bro. Mackenzie's individual deliverance on the matter.—Ed.]

PROPER USE OF NAMES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The remarkable "paper" issuing from the headquarters of the "Order of the Temple," and published in the "Freemason" of the 25th ult., after remarking that "it is strange to find men persistently advocating the perpetuation of an historical error," goes on to state that "the equivalent designation of the Hospitaliers was Commander and their estates were called Commanderies, where as those of the Templars were termed Preceptories."

The Charter of Philip and Mary, which restored in England the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, contains the following passage—"Ac dilectos nobis Ricardum Shelley Turcupuler Turcupulerum commendatorem seu preceptorium de Slebiche et Halston, commendatorem seu preceptorium, Petrum Felices de la Nuca ballivatum de Aquila ballivum, Cuthbertum Laithen de Newland, Edwardum Browne de Templum-Bruer, Thomam Thornell de Willoughton, Jacobum Shelly de Temple-Combe, et Oliverum Starkey de Quenington, etiam Commendatores seu Preceptores ejusdem Hospitalis ordinavit et prefecit."

A folio copy in my possession of "English Houses of the Knights Hospitaliers of St. John of Jerusalem," published in 1817, by Longman and Co. and Joseph Harding, gives a list of 53 preceptories of the Hospitaliers, and references are adduced in support of the notice of almost every preceptory. I will quote one or two:—

"Transcripta cartarum et aliorum instrumentorum Ballivae de Saundford ordinata et coadunata tempore fratris, Roberti le Escrop tunc (Scil. A.D. 1274) preceptoris ibid cont. fol. 113 MSS. in Bibl. Bodl. Oxon. Wood 10."

"Rentale, &c., per sacramentum tenentium et residentium infra dominica Preceptorie de Saumpford, 14 Feb., 1512; fol. MS. in Bibl. Corp. Christi. Oxon."

Again, de terris in Com. Ebor. ad Preceptoriam de Ribstane."

And, "Quod vicarius de Thorp juxta Stow debet percipere de Preceptore de Willoughton quinque Marcas annuatim." (Claus 16, Edw. II., M. 10.)

And, "the latter term (preceptories) was in use by both Orders." (Templars and Hospitaliers).

Let me add a modern instance. The Sandilands, Lords of Saint John of Torphichen, are, I believe, to this day hereditary Preceptors of Torphichen of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, by virtue of letters from Queen Mary, to whom Sir James Sandilands, Knight of Malta, in 1564, handed over certain property of that Order.

Without here going into the question of the promulgation of error by those who, in their desire to advocate unsound doctrine, adopted the view that they "might call themselves Masonic or not, as they pleased," I ask your readers to consider whether it be the authors of the "paper" of November, 1875, or those who object to their proceedings, who "persistently advocate the perpetuation of an historical error."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

CONSECRATION OF THE LODGE OF EMERALD HILL, VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA.

On Monday, 25th October, 1875, the most important ceremony ever held in the district took place at the George Hotel, Coventry-street, on the occasion of the consecration and erection of the Lodge of Emerald Hill, under the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The ceremony and its surroundings will always be remembered with pleasure by all who had the honour of being present. The brethren signing the petition were all well-known and respected in the Craft, and from the very favourable start the new lodge has made it promises to be second to none in the colony. Worshipful Provincial Substitute Grand Master, Bro. De Gruchy (in the absence of Bro. A. K. Smith, Provincial Grand Master, through illness), opened the Provincial Grand Lodge of Scotland, assisted by that veteran and enthusiastic officer, Bro. H. W. Lowry, and the Rev. J. Stobbs, V.W. Provincial Grand Chaplain. The following Grand Officers were also present:—Bros. Joseph Cahill, W.P.G. S.W.; E. Parnell, W.P.G.J.W.; C. R. Martin, P.G.S.D.; D. Nicholson, P.G.J.D.; W. Elms, P.G. Treas.; G. F. Martin, P.G. Bard; D. A. McNicoll, P.G.I.G.; William Gane, P.G. Director of Ceremonies; John Robertson, C. F. Erichson, and H. Kelson, P.G. Stewards; W. St. John Caws, P.G. Organist, and others, by whom the solemn ceremony of consecration was very ably performed. There were about thirty Installed Masters present, representing the most important lodges in the province. In courtesy to their neighbours, the W.M., Bro. A. Hart, with the P.M.'s and officers of the Yarra Yarra Lodge, held in the same town, were also invited and were present. The impressive ceremony was considerably enhanced by a grand organ, and the vocal efforts of several musical brethren, under the direction of Bro. Thomas Ford. After the dispensation had been read and some remarks made by the V.W.P.G. Chaplain, the officers and members of the new lodge were presented, and after the following beautiful Masonic hymn had been rendered by the choir, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed:—

To Heaven's high Architect all praise,
All praise, all gratitude be given;
Who design'd the human soul to raise,
By mystic secrets sprung from Heav'n.

Great Architect, receive our praise,
And hear when we our voices raise;
To thank Thee for thy gracious care,
And for the love all Masons share.

To Thee we look with thankful heart,
Rejoicing that 'tis e'en our part;
In humble faith to seek to grow,
And do Thy will while here below.

May all our acts Thy glory prove,
May we be worthy of Thy love;
Be it, O God, our constant aim,
To live in honour of Thy name.

Thus may Freemasonry extend
With Thee, O Lord, its greatest friend;
And fostered by Thy mighty hand,
Built on a rock for ever stand.

"The Lodge of Emerald Hill" was then declared open, and Bro. Robert Patterson Negus was presented and duly installed as the first R.W.M. of the lodge—the ceremony being performed in Bro. Lowry's well-known impressive manner, after which the following brethren were installed as the first officers of the lodge:—Bros. Joseph Cahill, W.D.M.; D. McNicoll, W.S.M.; Wm. Marshall, W.S.W.; Thomas Ford, W.J.W.; J. H. Horner, Treas.; A. L. Crone, Sec.; J. Robertson, S.D.; C. Dungey, J.D.; Wm. Smitham, I.G.; L. Levy, Tyler. The whole of the ceremony of consecration and installation was exceedingly striking and effective, and many will remember it as the inauguration of a lodge which is sure to prosper. The Provincial Grand Officers then retired, and after the names of a number of candidates had been submitted, the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren, numbering nearly sixty, then adjourned while the installation banquet was being laid on the tables. The following is a list of the toasts, which were proposed in telling terms, and responded to with the greatest loyalty:—"The Queen and Craft," "The Three Worshipful Grand Masters" (H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Duke of Abercorn, and Sir M. R. S. Stewart), "The District and Provincial Grand Masters, under England and Ireland, and their officers," "E.W.P.G.M., of the Scotch Constitution and their officers," coupled with the name of Bro. De Gruchy; "The R.W.M., Bro. R. P. Negus." The proposer of this toast eulogised the services rendered by Bro. Negus, in every degree of Masonry, which was fully endorsed by all present, the toast being most enthusiastically received. In reply Bro. Negus remarked that he considered that it was a great honour in being installed first Master of the new lodge, which, with the assistance of the efficient staff of officers he had been fortunate in obtaining, he intended making a perfect lodge, one which may be looked upon as a model with respect to the working. The next toast was that of "The Installing Master." Every one present was aware of the interest Bro. H. W. Lowry had always evinced towards Masonry, and his readiness at all times to further its interests in every possible way. Bro. Lowry replied in a few feeling and appropriate remarks. The "Visitors" was next given and heartily responded to, Bro. W. Small, P.M. 714, E.C., making a very happy and telling speech on their behalf. "Our Musical Brethren" followed, and Bro. Exon, P.M. 714, E.C., replied. In doing so, he spoke of the advantage to the ceremony, when music was properly rendered by a choir. From the number of musical brethren residing in the district, and who at the present time give one of the metropolitan lodges the benefit of their services, a very complete choir might be formed in the new lodge, thus making it even more attractive to visitors, and the ceremony more impressive to candidates by the introduction of appropriate music. "The W.M.'s of Lodges under the three Constitutions in Victoria." The name of Bro. W. Spedding, W.M. of the Prince Alfred Lodge, E.C., was mentioned in the toast as being the youngest Master present—he having been only installed a few days previously. His remarks were acquiesced in by the other Masters, and before sitting down he proposed "Prosperity to the Lodge of Emerald Hill." This toast was given with great enthusiasm. After "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge" had been given and acknowledged by the various officers present, the "Last Toast" was given in consequence of the lateness of the hour through the length of the ceremony, and thus terminated the most important Masonic gathering ever held in the district. Great credit is due to all who had the management of the arrangements for their completeness—more especially Bro. T. Ford and the musical brethren who contributed the harmony at the ceremony and the banquet.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held their usual monthly meeting on Saturday last, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart presided. Among the other brethren present were:—Bros. John Symonds, H. Browne, Jesse Turner, John Wordsworth (Leeds), John Boyd, H. W. Homann, Thomas Bartlett, H. Massey, ("Freemason"), W. Paas, S. Rosenthal, W. Mann, F. Adlard, Charles Horsley, James Terry, W. F. C. Moutrie, Hyde Pullen, Richard Motion, and F. Binckes (Secretary).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the former meeting of the General Committee, and the reading of the minutes of the House Committee for information, the subject of the infirmary accommodation was brought forward, when it appeared from a statement by the Chairman that in the event of any illness breaking out in the school, which required the isolation of the infected pupils, there was no sufficient provision for this purpose. From explanations offered for the information of the brethren by the Chairman and Secretary, the hospital portion of the building, erected before the enlargement of the school, was shewn to have been occupied in great part by the additional servants rendered necessary by the greater number of boys, and the institution was consequently left with an increased number of pupils and a smaller amount of infirmary. It therefore had become evident to the House Committee that this was an unsatisfactory condition of affairs, as at any time the varying climatic influences of the country might produce illness, which would require good infirmary provision, and in an establishment so large as the Masonic Boys' School such emergencies should be provided against. The Chairman thought that no time should be lost in supplying the deficiency, and he suggested that an expenditure of not more than £2000 should be authorised to erect a suitable infirmary for the boys.

Bro. Charles Horsley, Prov. Grand Registrar of Middlesex, intimated his opinion that the authorisation of any specified expenditure before enquiries were made of competent judges as to what would be required was rather putting the cart before the horse, and he would therefore suggest that the architect should be consulted on the subject in the first instance. For this purpose he moved, "That the House Committee be empowered to ascertain the amount and position of the ground at disposal for the purpose of erecting a building with all necessary accommodation for thirty boys in case of illness, and that they instruct an architect to furnish plans with proper elevations and sectional details, together with an estimate of the actual cost of erecting the same, and within what period from the commencement of the building."

Bro. John Symonds, Vice-Patron and Trustee, thought this was the proper course to pursue, and he enquired what was the ordinary per centage of inmates of large institutions for which infirmary accommodation was usually provided.

The Secretary said 15 per cent.; and, there being 178 boys at present in the school, Bro. Horsley's proposition was adequate to that number.

The motion was then seconded and carried.

The petitions were thereafter considered, and five boys were added to the list, vacancies being declared for nine, and the list of approved candidates being settled at fifty-nine.

A letter was read from the Secretary of a lodge, which recommended the case of one candidate, desiring in the name of the members of the lodge to withdraw their candidate. After some discussion on the subject, the Secretary was instructed to acknowledge the receipt of the letter, and to inform the lodge that before the candidate could be withdrawn the consent of the candidate's petitioner must be obtained to the withdrawal.

The Secretary informed the Committee that notice had been served on him that the Wakeling bequest was before the High Court of Justice in a suit for a declaration of the rights of parties under Bro. Wakeling's will. The solicitor, Bro. Hopwood, had been consulted, and he advised that the institution should watch the proceedings, especially as it was probable that the costs of all parties would be allowed out of the estate, and that this institution and the Girls' School (which were also beneficiaries under the will) might be represented by one solicitor.

The Committee agreed to the suggestion.

An outfit of the value of £3 was unanimously granted to an ex-pupil, who had obtained a situation, and was giving every satisfaction to a firm of accountants by whom he had been engaged.

The Secretary read a letter from a brother of West Yorkshire, informing him of the appointment of a Committee to examine into the management and expenditure of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, with a view to a more judicious and less expensive management.

Upon this several questions were asked, when it was elicited that one of the members of the Committee named was not even a subscriber to the school.

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., said that every individual subscriber had a right to inspect the accounts, and enquire into the management of the School, provided that he did not interrupt the work that was being carried on; but the province of West Yorkshire could not nominate an individual, or a body of individuals, of its own accord to do this, nor could any province, or any lodge; for if they were allowed so to act the time of the whole of the officials of the Institution might be taken up in attending to different committees of the kind. If parties wanted united action in such a matter their course was to apply to the General Committee, and the Quarterly Court, and move before those bodies for a committee of investigation. This General Committee could not recognise the committee named, or any committee appointed by anybody. Any individual subscriber, however, who required information would have every facility afforded him by the Secretary.

The Secretary said that he had given the brother who had written to him substantially this answer.

The letter, with copy of resolution, was ordered to lie on the table.

Notices of motions being asked for for next Quarterly Court (next Monday), the Secretary said there was one for a perpetual presentation for the province of Warwickshire, on payment of £1050.

Bro. Charles Horsley, Prov. Grand Registrar Middlesex, asked whether any reply, written or oral, had been received from Bros. Tew and Perrott to the invitation of the Special Committee appointed to examine into the charges brought by those brethren against the accuracy of the accounts, to come forward and make any statements further than those which had been found by the Special Committee to be inaccurate.

The Secretary said there had not; whereupon a vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman for presiding, and the proceedings terminated.

THE GRAND PRIORY OF THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE, &c.

The following has been sent to us for publication:—

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Limerick, Very High and Eminent Great Prior of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temple and of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta, in England and Wales and the Dependencies thereof.

The humble memorial of the Sir Knights of the Province of Bombay in Provincial Priory assembled:

Sheweth,

That your memorialists view with pleasure and approbation the restorations recently made in the constitution of the Order [by the newly-enacted statutes of the Convent General, and emphatically desire to express their approval of the fair and straightforward manner in which those restorations were proposed for the acceptance of the Grand Conclave.

Your memorialists are of opinion that the omission of the erroneous term "Masonic" from the title of the Order was most desirable. They believe that the Order has never really been a Masonic Order, for, if it had been, entrance into it would have been possible for all in possession of the previous Masonic degrees. But such has never been the case, for reception into our Order has always been impossible for all who have been unable truly to declare that for salvation they trust in our Blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, a qualification which excludes many Masons.

Your memorialists therefore consider that the adoption of such names and titles as "Encampment," "Eminent Commander," "First and Second Captains," &c., was erroneous, and had no historical foundation, and that the restoration of the names and titles "Preceptor," "Preceptor," "Constable," "Marshal," &c., is most judicious, because it is founded upon historical authority. Such restorations, they believe, will increase the dignity of our Order by emancipating it from the anomalous position into which it had been thrust, and in which it was erroneously made to appear to be an off-shoot or dependent of Freemasonry, instead of the parent of the Craft in Europe; it really was. Your memorialists' opinion is founded upon the following facts, that is to say: The Templars, during their residence in the Holy Land, were received into the Syrian Fraternities, which, under the name of mysteries, taught the principles of moral truth and virtue, the liberal arts and sciences, and a more definite idea of the being and attributes of God than was possessed by the uninitiated. The Templars taught these mysteries to those whom they affiliated, but divested the ceremony of all its heathen rites. These mysteries are identical with those of Freemasonry, and there is no record of the existence of Freemasonry in Europe previous to the institution of the Order of the Temple.

Your memorialists consider the abolition of Past Rank, as it heretofore existed, to be most judicious, as tending to enhance the value of the elective offices of the Order. The officers of the Grand Conclave and Provincial Grand Conclaves were very numerous, and, with the exception of the Treasurers, they were all the nominees of the Grand Master and Provincial Grand Commanders, and though many of them had not attained the dignity of Eminent Commander, and their duties were merely nominal, yet they ranked, during their term of office and for ever afterwards, above all Eminent Commanders who had not attained Grand Conclave or Provincial Grand Conclave Rank superior to their own. This was manifestly unjust to Eminent Commanders, who by their installation had attained a degree, or at least a dignity, higher than that of ordinary Knights, and, therefore, never ought to have been superseded by them. Your memorialists, therefore consider, that the opposition which some are making to the abolition of Past Rank, as it formerly existed, is very ill-advised.

Your memorialists also consider that it is very desirable to retain the newly created honours of "Knight Grand Cross" and Knight Commander," because it would be absurd to make our Grand Master "the Fountain of Honour and Grace," (p. 10, Statutes of the Convent General), and then to deprive him of the power of conferring honours.

Your memorialists, however, respectfully suggest that, since "the hope of reward sweetens labour," some reward should be given to those who faithfully and zealously perform the duties of the offices entrusted to them in the Great Priory and Provincial Priorities. This reward might be granted to Preceptors in the shape of a distinction, entitling them to rank above all other Preceptors who have not held a dignified office equal to their own, and to ordinary Knights in the shape of a distinction entitling them to rank above all other ordinary Knights who have not held a dignified office equal to their own, but not above any Preceptor. Your memorialists would further suggest that it be enacted that the attainment of such distinctions shall constitute those who attain them members of the Great Priory or Provincial Priorities in which they respectively attain them, and that it shall qualify such of them as are not Preceptors, but who may become subscribing members of preceptories in other provinces, for election as members of the Provincial Priorities of those provinces respectively, in which, whether attending as visitors or members, they shall be entitled to such rank and precedence as their respective distinctions confer upon them, seniority of date of distinction giving precedence to holders of distinctions otherwise equal in rank.

Your memorialists have purposely refrained from defining what the distinctions should be, because, in their opinion, that point can best be decided after full discussion in the Convent General.

Your memorialists therefore pray that your lordship will be pleased to take such steps, as to your lordship may seem meet, to bring this memorial before H.R.H. the Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master and the Convent General at as early a date as the rules of that august body will permit.

And your memorialists humbly pray that no alteration be made in the statutes of the Convent General with respect to the name of our Order, or the names and titles of the bodies and officers in it, or with respect to the power of H.R.H. the Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master to confer the honours of "Knight Grand Cross" and "Knight Commander," but that some provision be made for rewarding those who may faithfully and zealously perform the duties of such offices as may be conferred upon them in Great Priorities or Provincial Priorities, to take effect from the date of the enactment of the present statutes of the Convent General.

Signed on behalf of the Provincial Priory of Bombay.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. EMRA HOLMES.—The following address, signed by the Collector and all the superior Officers of Customs at Ipswich, and by a large number of merchants, ship brokers and others, has been forwarded to Bro. Emra Holmes:—"To Emra Holmes, Esq., Collector of H.M. Customs, Woodbridge. Sir,—Whilst heartily congratulating you on your promotion to the Collectorship of H.M. Customs at the port of Woodbridge, as a post of duty for which we think you are eminently qualified, we cannot refrain from expressing our regret at the loss of your services at the Custom House of Ipswich. Having had such frequent business intercourse with you in the long room at Ipswich, as merchants and brokers, or as brother officers, we wish to assure you of our respect and esteem for yourself in such relationship, and to convey to you our acknowledgment of the intelligence and courteous treatment we have therein received. Wishing for your health and happiness during your continuance in your now more important sphere, till another yet higher may soon be opened up to you, we are, yours truly." [Here follow the signatures.] Bro. Emra Holmes's reply was as follows:—"H.M. Customs, Woodbridge, 18th December, 1875. Dear Sir,—The address signed by yourself and others was forwarded to me last evening, and I hasten to acknowledge the receipt without delay. As it is in your handwriting, and I conclude originated with you, may I ask you to be the medium for conveying my most grateful thanks to the gentlemen who have joined with you in this flattering and, I feel, undeserved expression of regard and esteem. I believe that an officer of the Crown who endeavours to perform his duty faithfully cannot hope to be universally popular, but it is some consolation to know that he may at least win the respect of all those whose good opinion is worth having. Although connected with you no longer officially, I yet hope to come amongst you as time and opportunity offer; and wherever, in the course of my official career, I may be stationed, I shall always look back with pleasure to the many happy years spent in Ipswich. Reciprocating your good wishes, and again thanking you most cordially for this testimony of your good will, I remain, faithfully yours, Emra Holmes.—Wm. Budden, Esq., shipbroker, &c."

"EVENING HOURS." Edited by LADY BARKER.

This very charming book we especially commend to our brethren for their little Lewises and Masonic blossoms. It is admirably illustrated, and, we feel sure, will be perused by all with equal pleasure and profit. It is sound healthy reading, and cannot be too much commended to mater familias for her little flock.

GRAND IMPERIAL COUNCIL STATE OF ILLINOIS.

We have received this beautifully printed book. We are very much pleased to note how much the engravings in the "Life of Constantine," published by Bro. George Kenning, are appreciated in America, and they are admirably reproduced. We have looked through this interesting pamphlet carefully, but we have not yet found any acknowledgment of the source from whence these effective illustrations were taken. Masonic comity and chivalric equity might, we think, have led the excellent compilers to say a friendly word for the publisher of the "Life of Constantine," the more so as he is a Constantinian himself. We are, however, heartily glad that we have enabled our good brethren in Illinois to issue so well-printed and pleasant a report.

THE EAST ANGLIAN HANDBOOK.

This is one of those local handbooks which have their interest and use for those who live in the provincial area for which they are drawn up. It is a readable book, and contains a great deal of useful local information, and we are obliged to the publisher for calling our notice to it.

MEMORIAL MASONIC WINDOW.—The Earl of Mount-Edgcombe, Grand Master of the Province of Cornwall, has designed a window to be erected in the Guildhall, Plymouth, to commemorate the joint meeting of the Freemasons of Devon and Cornwall in the Hall, to welcome H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England, on the occasion of his opening the building, August, 1874. The circle of the tracery contains a portrait of the Prince; the cinquefoils have the All-Seeing Eye, the Bible, the Crown, the badge and motto of his Royal Highness, the emblems of Faith, Hope, and Charity; and in the quatrefoils are the arms of the Prince and of the Grand Lodge of England. The tracery has appropriate Masonic borders. The design itself is so arranged, that at first sight it has the appearance of a subject-picture, but it really is composed of four subjects, viz., Brotherly Love, a figure supporting another in distress; Relief, a female with a child being succoured by a figure who consents to take charge of the child; Truth, a figure representing the Master Mason; and Obedience, figures representing the Fellow Craft, and the Entered Apprentice, who are receiving instruction from the Master Mason. The lower part of the window is occupied with the arms of the Grand Masters of Devon (the Rev. Jno. Huyshe) and Cornwall (the Earl of Mount-Edgcombe). The design has been cordially approved, and Messrs. Fouracre, East Stonehouse, have been entrusted with the work of carrying it out. Other windows in the hall represent the receipt of the news of the Spanish Armada, the sailing of the Pilgrim Fathers from Plymouth Sound, Sir Francis Drake bringing water into the town, the siege of Plymouth during the reign of Charles I., the arrest of Raleigh, and the old Plymouth pottery.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—Arduous was the work which this lodge had before it at the meeting on the 6th inst., the outgoing W.M. having the three degrees and the installation ceremony to work. The promise made in the summons was not broken to the hope in the lodge, and Bro. Newman's great powers were quite equal to the occasion. The W.M. and his officers were put upon their mettle by the presence of nearly forty visitors, including Bros. Colonel Francis Burdett, P.S.G.W., the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex; Charles Horsley, P.G.R. of Middlesex, W.M. of the Acacia, &c.; F. Binckes, P.G.S., Secretary of the Boys' School; G. Everett, W.M. 177, and W.M. elect of the Kennington Lodge; C. Jardine, P.M. St. George's, 140; D. Pearce, P.M. Canonbury; W. Worrell, P.M. of the Wm. Preston; Farthing, I.P.M. of the Constitutional; Garrod, P.M. of the Belgrave; John While, W.M. of United Strength ("Freemason"); Braun, I.P.M. of the William Preston; G. Clarke of the Domestic; Burgess Perry; H. B. Dunn, of 28; and H. B. D. Dunn, of 1288; and others. Bro. Newman raised Bro. Portch, passed Bro. Borer, and initiated the candidate proposed by Past Masters Kenning and Abbott, the initiate now being Bro. G. Statham. Bro. Cohu, the W.M. elect, was then presented, and after the usual ceremony in the lodge of F.C., received from his predecessor the benefits of installation. In this work Bro. Newman was fully equal to the expectations formed of his powers by the experienced Board of Installed Masters summoned to see the ceremony performed according to ancient custom, among the several Past Masters of the lodge present being Bros. Kenning, Abbott, Marsh, and King. The W.M. invested as his officers Bro. Arkell, as S.W.; Bro. C. Jones, as J.W.; Bro. George Kenning, as Treasurer (unanimously elected at the last meeting); Bro. Lieutenant J. G. Marsh, P.M., as Secretary; Bro. Legge, as S.D.; Bro. Francis Fellowes, as J.D.; Bro. W. T. Rickwood, as I.G.; Bro. Lucas, as D.C.; and Bro. E. King, W.M., as W.S. The usual complimentary speeches were made in lodge, the members of which voted the retiring P.M. the customary jewel of the lodge, and resolved to reimburse him the payment he had made for the installation jewel, he acting as Steward at the installation of the Prince of Wales as Most Worshipful Grand Master. The large gathering, very few short of a hundred, then banqueted in the pillar hall, the banquet being excellent in every respect. After the usual devotion to the table the more devout on this occasion, on the part of many, from the many hours "work" in lodge the W.M. commenced the list of toasts by the usual loyal one to the "Sovereign and the Craft," and followed this by the toast of "H.R.H. the Grand Master," who, the speaker said, it was to be hoped would return from his visit to a country famed for its Masonic treasures with a mind enriched with knowledge, and a body invigorated by the change. The toasts having been fully honoured, the W.M. gave "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present." In giving this the W.M. spoke of the honour which had been done to the lodge by the attendance of Bro. Col. Burdett, with whose name he coupled the toast. The Pro Grand Master of Middlesex, in responding, expressed the pleasure with which he spoke for the Grand Officers before that splendid gathering, and he said, it was rarely that a lodge could present so noble an appearance as the Lion and Lamb then presented. The lodge, in its good working, its truly Masonic feeling, and its aid to the charities, was a credit to the Order. As to its working, as he had had the pleasure and happiness of seeing the lodge work in bygone years—and he was present when Bro. Kenning was installed—he could judge for himself how the lodge had progressed, and he could say that its work was as near perfection as possible. Bro. Newman had that day performed an immense amount of work in a most masterly manner, and to use a phrase used in the army when a soldier thoroughly knew and discharged his duties, Bro. Newman had gone "fairly through the book." It was a good thing for Grand Officers to visit the different lodges, for by so doing they could understand the feelings and wants of the Craft, and could see how the work was done, and as a visiting Grand Officer that night he begged to thank the Lion and Lamb Lodge for the reception they had given him that night. The I.P.M., Bro. Newman, then, amid great applause, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," wishing him all happiness and prosperity during his year of office. The speaker said the members of the lodge were so well acquainted with their

W.M.'s good parts that it was unnecessary to say that he would do his best to keep the lodge up to the mark in every respect, and, if anything, might be expected to excel previous Masters. The members hoped that their Bro. Cohu at the end of his year of office would be as proud of leaving the chair as the lodge was that night placing him in it. The toast was received with all honours, and the W.M., in responding, said he should be happy indeed if he maintained the character of the lodge for working; but he could not expect to excel the working of the Masters who had preceded him, for that indeed would be impossible. He then proceeded to propose the toast of "The Initiate," and would tell him, he said, what was said to himself when he sat by the Master's chair many years ago. He then was told that that was the only time he should sit at that end of the table until he returned there to preside over the lodge. That was his proud position that night, and he urged the brethren to use their best endeavours to reach that position. The toast was drunk with all honours, and the Initiate responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and Bro. Charles Horsley, in response, made a laughable speech on the zoological name of the lodge, saying that Landseer never, in all his experience, painted such gentle lions, and that in this lodge, at all events, the lambs were to be found lying down with the lions. The W.M. then proposed "The Past Masters," and expressed his pleasure that their numbers had received so excellent an addition as Bro. Newman would be to them. The interesting ceremony was then performed of decorating Bro. Newman with a splendid P.M. jewel, bearing the old banner of the lodge in enamel on gold (the jewel being manufactured by Bro. Kenning); and Bro. Newman rose with his new decoration amid the cheers of the brethren. He thanked the brethren warmly for the handsome and valuable jewel, and said he had that night taken upon himself what was an innovation in the lodge—that of installing his successor. This ceremony in this lodge had been performed for many years by an esteemed Past Master but, Bro. Newman, said he, being desirous of making a change in the direction of having each Master instal his successor, had "broken the charm" of many years by his action of that night. He was led to this by a remark he heard many years ago from Bro. Charles Horsley—that it was not only the duty, but that it ought to be the ambition, of every Master to instal his successor, and not to seek for some great luminary in the Craft to do it for him. He trusted that his example would be followed, and that each Master would feel it a duty to perform the ceremony. Bro. Newman thanked the lodge for the support given to him, and for the invariable kindness and courtesy with which they had treated him. Bro. Abbott also spoke for the Past Masters, and the W.M. then proceeded to propose "The Masonic Charities," and spoke of the endeavours needed to place the son of Past Master Trott in the school, this being the only occasion upon which the boy could stand for election. The W.M. said that doubtless, Bros. Terry and Wentworth Little were at some good work that evening or they would have been present. Bro. F. Binckes, in the course of his reply, said that this lodge had so well done its duty towards the charities, that it was needless to say a word before its members as to the merits, wants, and claims of the charities. He reminded them that the three institutions could only be supported by the action of the brethren—that there was no appeal outside the Craft—but, he said, so well were their wants kept in mind, that the £30,000 necessary each year for the support of the institutions would always be forthcoming. In regard to the forthcoming Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution on the 9th prox., he bespoke, in Bro. Terry's absence, the support of the brethren, and then with regard to the candidature of their late Past Master's son, he warned them that they would require 2000 votes to warrant them in looking for success. Speaking generally of outside and general charities, he said their purposes were such as would arouse the deepest and holiest sympathy; but he urged upon the brethren not to support other charities to the prejudice of their own institutions, which, he said, notwithstanding the views of those who had but a superficial knowledge of their working, were institutions of the highest character in work, purpose, and management. He trusted that the Lion and Lamb would be true to its traditions in all time to come, and not forsake the Masonic institutions. Bro. Horsley and Bro. Pearce promised their votes for the boy. The W.M. then proposed "The Masonic Press," coupling the toast with the name of Bro. John While, of the "Freemason," and in reply Bro. John While said that the paper he represented not only filled the useful function of giving all necessary news of the Craft, week by week, but it would in the future fill that void which every Mason desirous of learning the history of the lodge felt at the present day, in the want of volumes recording past proceedings in and in connection with lodges. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and the S.W. and Secretary responded. In the course of the evening, Bro. Burgess Perry and other musical brethren greatly delighted the assemblage with some excellent chants.

ASAPH LODGE (No. 1319).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 3rd inst., at Freemasons' Hall. There were present Bros. C. S. Jekyll, W.M.; W. A. Tinney, S.W.; Edward Terry, J.W.; E. S. Jones, Secretary; E. Swanborough, J.D.; Harry F. Cox, Dir. of Cer.; G. R. Egerton, Org.; Charles Welland, I.G.; C. Coote, P.M.; John Chamberlin, jun., Joseph Perry, H. Sniders, W. Graves, J. R. Poulter, Arthur Thomas, Robert Hilton, H. Stephenson, E. Coles, Arthur Swanborough, J. Horton, George Arnold, Victor Tussaud, A. Henson; and visitors: Bros. P. A. Charrier, P.M. 1210; Ernest Sibold, 782; H. F. Moate, 1376; A. J. Phassey, C. Mordaunt Walthew, 263; H. Massey ("Freemason"), W. Robertson, 221; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. Messrs. Frederick Delevante and James L. Hambleton were initiated; and the lodge, which had met as early as one o'clock in the day, was closed shortly before four. The members in this lodge are steadily increasing, and it continues to hold the high position originally marked out for it by its founders, both in working and in support of the Masonic institutions.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—An exceedingly strong meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on Tuesday, the 4th inst. There were present Bros. S. Gardner, W.M.; G. Everett, S.W. (W.M. Domestic); Koch, I.P.M.; Mann, P.M.; Stuart, P.M. (Sec.); Webb, acting J.W.; Higgins, acting S.D.; Walls, acting J.D.; Marston, acting I.G.; Kohler, A.W.S. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by Bro. Stuart, P.M., raised Bros. Saunders and Muller, passed Bros. Collins and Andrews, and initiated Mr. Grimwade. This being the night of election of W.M. for the ensuing year, the Secretary read the names of the brethren eligible for the office, and the ballot having been taken and investigated by the W.M. and I.P.M., was found to be unanimously in favour of the S.W., Bro. George Everett, who virtually vacated the Chair of K.S. at the Domestic on the 10th ult., an office which he had filled to the universal satisfaction of the members, and consequently he will bring a year's experience in one of the largest working lodges in the Craft to bear on the position as W.M. of the Kennington. Bro. Everett, in a few well-chosen sentences, expressed his thanks to the brethren for having unanimously elected him to the chair, and assured them that nothing should be wanting on his part to further the interest and enhance the prosperity of the Kennington Lodge, and he hoped to have the pleasure on a future occasion of further thanking them for the honour they had done him. Bro. Page, P.M., who unfortunately was absent through indisposition, was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, the duties of which office he has through a series of years so well discharged. Bro. Longstaffe, after some discussion, was re-appointed Tyler, and Bros. Cruse, Muller, and Brook appointed to audit the accounts on Wednesday, the 10th inst. Several communications having been made by the Secretary, and the customary P.M.'s jewel voted to the retiring W.M., the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and Craft," which was well received. In giving "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," Bro. Gardner spoke at length upon the reception which had been given His Royal Highness by all classes of society in India, and, in conclusion, said it was a proud day for the Craft when the Prince, notwithstanding the many arduous duties of his position as Hereditary Prince, accepted the responsibilities of Grand Master of this ancient body. After the toast of "The Pro Grand Master," &c., &c., had been given and received the I.P.M. rose and proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who had done his best during his year of office to carry out the duties of his position. This toast having been duly honoured, and Bro. Walls having contributed "Tom Bowling," the W.M. responded at length. In the course of his speech he stated that he had been somewhat unexpectedly elected to the chair, and although he had been a member of the Craft many years, he had not had opportunities, in consequence of his business requiring his personal supervision, of thoroughly qualifying himself for the position of a Master, but he had done, since his election, as the I.P.M. had said, "his best" to give the lodge satisfaction, and he hoped to be spared many years to hold the proud position of a founder and P.M. of the Kennington Lodge. In conclusion, he stated that at the risk of becoming unpopular he had diminished the number of banquets, and in consequence he left the monetary affairs of the lodge in a very prosperous condition, and he believed that his worthy successor, Bro. Everett, would exercise a like retrenchment in the administration of their funds. The initiates, Bros. Andrews Collins and Grimwade, having been toasted, severally replied. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings at a late hour. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Hart (Stockwell) and Tait (1145).

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1436).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday last, at the City Terminus Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. J. Hamilton Townend, W.M. The lodge was opened at a quarter-past-three p.m., when a long list of business was presented for disposal. All three ceremonies had to be performed, and at half-past three Bro. N. B. Headon, I.P.M., raised Bros. Powell, Keith Frith, Luggar, and Hudd to the Third Degree. At five o'clock the W.M., Bro. Townend, passed Bros. Shore, Wyler, Lawson, and Ginders to the Second Degree; and on the termination of this ceremony lodge was called off for tea. On resuming, Messrs. Royd, A. F. Roberts, J. H. Boote, S. White, and T. A. De Leliva were initiated, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Edward Moody, P.M., who was the proposer of the last named gentleman, and the seconder of Messrs. Roberts, Boote, and White. The labours of the evening were not concluded till a late hour, all the work being performed, as usual in this lodge, with the strictest observance of Masonic ritual and form. Lodge was numerously attended both by members and visitors. Among the latter were Bros. Turner, 157; R. Cumming, 534; E. Wilts, P.M. 144; Smith, 144; Barnam, 144; Betley, 749; W. Phillips, 514; O'Leary, 1216; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; C. F. Matier, P.M. 645. On account of the absence of Bro. Stanway, S.W., Bro. Blackie, S.D., occupied the second chair in the lodge.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday week at the Metropolitan Club House, 269, Pentonville-road. The W.M., Bro. J. J. Michael, presided, supported by a numerous concourse of the brethren, amongst whom were Bros. Kingham, acting as S.W.; Side, acting as J.W.; James Willing, I.P.M.; George Tims, Secretary; Scales, S.D.; Siles, J.D.; Read, I.G.; and Bros. Cavett, Carter, Solomon, Cheek, Gilbert, Walters, Rapkin, Clarke, H. Stiles, Jones, Rogers; and visitors Bros. Bertie, J.W. 1185, and Yeats, 14. The work performed was raising Bro. Sayers; passing Bros. P. E. Vanderpump and E. J. Vanderpump; and initiating Messrs. Owens, Wrigley, Morgan, and A. B. Greenslade. At the conclusion of this work, several propositions were given in for more initiates at next meeting, and the brethren afterwards adjourned for refreshment, and partook of a bountiful banquet provided by the brother who is caterer of the club.

CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1572).—The first regular meeting of this very young lodge was held at the Albion on Saturday, the 1st inst. The lodge is little more than a month old; and, we suppose upon the principle of new brooms sweeping clean, every officer was at his post punctually to the minute, and the lodge was opened precisely at three o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Pawson Hooton, supported by Bros. W. S. Whitaker, S.W.; J. Cowan, J.W.; J. Clarricoats, Treas.; Montagu Scott, Sec.; T. S. Hellier, S.D.; Nelson Reed, J.D.; G. A. Brock, W. Stwd.; G. Briggs, I.G.; T. Brown, D.C. There being naturally no Past Masters, Bro. Montagu Scott, Sec., and P.M. of 765, officiated as I.P.M. The visitors were Bros. Townend, the W.M. of The Great City Lodge, 1426; J. Lee, and J. Chapman, both of the Alexandra Palace Lodge, No 1541. There were also present of the rank and file of the lodge Bros. Dafforn, Tucker, Willcocks, Crump, Munro, and Margetts, comprising every member of the lodge except five, who were unavoidably absent. The minutes of the meetings held preliminary to the formation of the lodge, and of the consecration meeting, were read and confirmed. There were five candidates for initiation, Messrs. J. C. Werring, F. Morgan, R. Cotton, G. C. Searle, and H. G. Edwards, and they all attended, and were separately and distinctly initiated, the W.M. thus setting a very good example for so young a lodge. The proposed bye-laws were referred to a committee of the whole lodge. Several candidates were proposed for the next lodge, and after closing in due form, the brethren adjourned to a refined and recherché banquet, given in the very best style of the Albion.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—On Tuesday, the 4th inst., the annual festival of the lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Windsor. The W.M., Bro. J. O. Carter, presided, supported by Bros. W. R. Denne, S.W. (W.M. elect); Canvin, J.W.; the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, D.P.G.M., Chaplain; Pulling, Treas.; Strange, P.M.; Hume, J.D.; J. Roberts, I.G.; Schieman, D.C.; Nicholes, S.; Pears, S.; Dixon I.P.M.; G.P.D.C.; Stacey, P.M.; Wilson, P.M.; Reid, P.M.; McIlwham, P.M.; Bryett, P.M.; Stedwell, P.M.; Duffield, Stollery, Pennicott, Whistler, Christian, Webster, Hiscock, Andrews, H.T. Spindler, Prince, Willoughby, Cousins, and others. Amongst the numerous visitors were Bros. Sir D. Gooch, Bart., M.P., P.G.M., Bucks; Lieut. Col. F. Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex; Major General Brownrigg, P.G.M. Surrey; W. Biggs, P.G.S., Berks and Bucks; Hickson Briggs, P.G.R., Middlesex; W. Johnson, W.M.; T. Nash, P.M.; W. Bingham, P.M. 771; Tolley, P.M. 771; Grisebrook, P.M. 771; Cantrell, 1501; Hatch, 771; Hopwood, P.M. 141; and others. The lodge opened at 4.30. The minutes having been confirmed, Mr. G. Blizard, after passing the ordeal of ballot, was initiated by the W.M. The presentation of a testimonial voted by the lodge to Bro. Tolley followed, who was addressed by the W.M. as follows:—Brethren, before I vacate the chair, I have a very pleasing and agreeable duty to perform, a duty the character of which you are all well acquainted with. Personally, I consider it a privilege to be the medium of conveying from this lodge to our excellent Bro. Tolley a small token of our sincere regard and esteem. Since we have been located in this Temple, as so many of you know, Bro. Tolley, although not a member, has attended here night after night, and I fear sometimes at considerable inconvenience, in order to assist at the working of the several ceremonies. During the time I have occupied the chair I have been congratulated, over and over again, by brethren, particularly visitors, upon the effective manner in which the musical portion of the degrees have been rendered. It has been to me, and I know it was the same with my predecessor a wonderful help in discharging the duties of the chair, whilst it at all times must have forcibly appealed to the feelings of the candidates, thereby enabling us to add solemnity and beauty to the working of the degrees, and, if I may use the expression, even have a tendency to elevate Freemasonry itself. Well, brethren, it has been thought the time has now arrived when we could no longer delay offering to Bro. Tolley this small token of our esteem and regard. Do not let me be misunderstood: this is not in return for Bro. Tolley's services, for if we were to make him an adequate return our offering would be of a far more extensive character than it is. It is to let him know and see that we are not insensible of his repeated acts of kindness. It is not my intention to make a long speech, to extol the virtues of Bro. Tolley; they are well known to you all. His character may be fairly described as a perfect monument of "wisdom, strength, and beauty." With regard to the form this recognition should take, perhaps I may be allowed to say a few words. It was Bro. Tolley's wish that it should be in some way connected with Freemasonry; and a decision was made in favour of a Provincial Grand Officer's clothing. Well, brethren, we felt we could not allow it to cease there, as Bro. Tolley, to the knowledge of so many of us, is as much appreciated in his family circle as in the lodge; and we therefore decided—whilst carrying out Bro. Tolley's wish as to the form in which what I may call the Masonic offering should be—that it should also embrace some token of his house. And the result has been, as you now see before you—a clock—and which it is my duty to ask Bro. Tolley's acceptance. Bro. Tolley, as the mouthpiece of the Etonian Lodge, I sincerely hope the Great Architect of the Universe may grant you many years of happiness and prosperity. May He show his blessings on your wife, and to your children may He ever be mindful; and as they rise, as I trust they will, to positions of honour and usefulness, may it be a consolation to you to find that the excellent precepts so forcibly taught them by their parents were not in vain. Bro. Tolley, with evident emotion, thanked the W.M. and the brethren for so very handsome a recognition of services that were totally inadequate to justify the regard, thus shown. He had contributed only very small services to the best of his ability in the past; but this expression of their good will and esteem towards him would be an incentive in the future to merit their kindness. The W.M. then proceeded to instal the W.M. elect; who afterwards appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Canvin, S.W.; Hume, J.W.; Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, Chaplain; Wilson, P.M., Treasurer; Carter, I.P.M., Secretary; Roberts, S.D.; Schieman, J.D.; Nichols, I.G.; Strange, P.M., Dir. of Cer.; Pears, S.; Webster, S. The addresses were forcibly given by Bros. G. W. Dixon, Bryett, and Wilson, P.M. The W.M. afterwards presented the Immediate P.M. with a massive P.M.'s jewel and a gold Albert chain to Bro. Pullen, P.M., for the eminent services he has rendered to the lodge as Treasurer during the past twelve years, having been closed in due form, the brethren assembled at the Windsor Town Hall, kindly placed at their service by the Mayor of Windsor, where over fifty sat down to the banquet, most admirably and bountifully served by Bro. J. Johnson, of the White Hart Hotel. Upon the conclusion of the banquet the W.M. rose and proposed "The Queen and Craft." They were, he said, within the precincts of the Royal residence, where, as elsewhere, her Majesty was beloved. He need say little to obtain a response for so honoured a toast as "The Queen," "National Anthem," Bros. Tolley, Christian, and Smith, of the Chapel Royal, The W.M. asked that glasses might be charged to drink "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England, and the rest of the Royal Family." He said the position of His Royal Highness, as Grand Master, was one of which the Craft might indeed be justly proud. He (the W.M.) had the honour of attending the Prince's Installation at the Albert Hall, and he was impressed deeply, for it was a wonderful ceremony, the like of which had never been seen by the present generation of Masons. After referring to the Prince's visit to India, and the great good that would come from that visit, the W.M. concluded by wishing His Royal Highness a God-speed back to the old country, when the Craft would receive him with all the enthusiasm of brotherly love. Drink with honours. The W.M. said the next toast was also one of high honour, which he knew would receive their recognition most heartily—"The Healths of the Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and Grand Officers of Grand Lodge of England," with which toast he coupled the name of Colonel Burdett, Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, whose presence with them that day would be felt as a great honour by the Etonian Lodge. Drink with honours. Bro. Colonel Burdett expressed himself highly gratified with the honour the W.M. had done him in connecting his name with the toast of the Grand Lodge of England, and which was given in language far more flattering than he deserved. He had seen that day in the Etonian Lodge that which many other lodges might well take a lesson from. He had never seen "working" superior to what he had witnessed that day; and the hall itself and its arrangements were in keeping with the excellent ceremonies conducted by the lodge officers. For the hospitality they had extended to the Provincial Grand Masters he felt grateful; and in the name of the officers of Grand Lodge, with which his name had been associated, he thanked them very heartily. Drink with honours. The W.M. asked the brethren to drink, with all the enthusiasm they could give it, "The Health of the Right Worshipful the Grand Master of the Province, Sir Daniel Gooch," who he regretted had to leave them so early. He need scarcely say how delighted they were to have Sir Daniel with them that evening. Drink with honours. Bro. Sir D. Gooch thanked the W.M. and brethren very much. He could only express his high approval and satisfaction with what he had witnessed. It was not the first time he had attended the Etonian Lodge of St. John. He was with them a year ago; and he was glad to see them maintain their excellent character and position. He would have stopped longer, but he had to catch a train. He hoped they might spend a very pleasant evening. Drink with honours. The W.M. next gave "The Health of Gen. Brownrigg, Provincial Grand Master of Surrey," who had also honoured the Etonian Lodge as a visitor. He gave the General's health with the usual honours. Bro. General Brownrigg felt exceedingly flattered by their expression of feeling towards him, as well, also, in breaking through the usual routine of toasts in his favour at that early hour of the evening. He would not detain them, but it would not be affectation in him to express the great interest he felt in the lodge. It was a happy augury in the provinces represented that evening to be geographically united—Bucks, Middlesex, and Surrey—it was an omen for good. With the three provinces united together, showing a good front, they would be powerful for every purpose of fraternal excellence. From his heart he thanked them for their cordial reception. Drink with honours. The W.M., in eulogistic terms, gave "The Very Worshipful the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg." The Rev. J. S. Brownrigg briefly responded. He congratulated the senior lodge of the province upon its eminent position holding its laurels for excellence, and setting so good an example to the junior lodges of the province. He heartily echoed the sentiments of General Brownrigg as to the union for good, charitable works of different provinces, and instanced what had been effected in Wiltshire and other places. He concluded by proposing what he considered the toast of the evening, "The Health of the Worshipful Master of the Etonian Lodge, Bro. W. R. Denne." The W.M. thanked them for the high honour of his position that day, as also for the assemblage that had given him so generous a welcome. He might now well be proud to be the W.M. of the Etonian Lodge, which, thanks to the energy and devotion of the W.M.'s and officers of the last few years, had risen so progressively. To his predecessor some share of praise was due, and he proposed "The Health of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. J. O. Carter." Bro. J. O. Carter had during the past year received many proofs of their kindness, but he felt this, perhaps, more than any other occasion, occurring, as it did, at the close of his year of office. He promised them twelve months ago to do all in his power to maintain the true principles of Freemasonry, to uphold the dignity of the lodge, and at the same time, as far as was consistent, to study the comfort of the individual members. He trusted he had not been found wanting in the proper discharge of his duties as W.M. He asked them not to think that, because his connection with the lodge as W.M. had ceased, that he would cease to take interest in the lodge. They might believe him that it would always be his chief endeavour to support their elected W.M. to the best of his ability. He hoped they would accept his sincerest thanks for their kind wishes—to the W.M. for the manner in which he had proposed his health, and to the brethren for the way in which they had received it. The other usual toasts followed, and were duly honoured. In response to "The Visitors," Bro. Hickson Briggs, Prov. Grand Registrar for Middlesex, expressed the pleasure his visit had given him, and regretted he had not been before. He confessed he had been fairly surprised at the admirable working of the lodge, which had surpassed everything he had seen in his neighbourhood. During the evening, the intervals between the toasts were agreeably sustained by sweet harmony in glees and part songs by Bros. Tolley, Christian, and Smith, the pianoforte being presided over artistically by Bro. Tolley.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The winter banquet of the above lodge took place on Thursday, the 6th January, at the lodge house, Bro. Tucker's, the Lord Raglan, Plumstead, when upwards of a hundred of the brethren and visitors sat down to enjoy the good cheer provided for them by the worthy host. It being the regular monthly meeting of the lodge, some excellent work was done by the W.M. in lodge; Mr. A. Wallis, of the Oaks, Plumstead, being regularly initiated into Masonry, and Bro. T. Cartland raised to the Sublime Degree. The working of Bro. Penfold, the esteemed W.M., is too well known to need eulogy, suffice it to say that one and all were delighted with it. The other officers present were Bros. J. McDougall, P.M.; C. Coupland, P.M. and P.G.S. for the Province of Kent; W. T. Vincent, S.W.; H. Butters, J.W.; A. Jessup, Treas.; T. Denton, P.M. 706 and Sec.; W. B. Lloyd, S.D.; J. Chapman, I.G.; B. Lester, Tyler; R. J. Cook, D.S.; and Mason, W.S. Among a large circle of visitors were Bros. Capt. C. Phillips, R.A., P.M. 13 and 1536; T. Ward, W.M. 700; F. J. Dawson, P.M. 700; W. Weston, S.W. 1536; F. Sales, 13 and 706; G. Spinks, J.W. 1536; H. Picken, S.D. 1536; F. Hastings, S.W. 829; E. J. De Salis, 1331; C. Beard, 700; E. Tappenden, 781; S. Waters, J.W. 700; H. Carlin, 1536; J. Pudney, 829; R. Thompson, 1536; W. McCoy, 700; C. Cook, 13; J. Knight, 1536, and others. In proposing the toasts the W.M. hoped much from the visit of the Grand Master to India, believing it to be a good thing both for Masonry and the country at large, and trusted that our Royal brother would have a safe return to his native land. The toasts were Masonically received and responded to. In returning thanks for the well-deserved compliments paid him by P.M. McDougall in proposing his health, and the hearty reception it met with from the brethren, the W.M. gave the credit entirely to the valuable assistance received from the P.M. of the lodge, and said, that for himself, if he had by his endeavours made every brother content with himself, and content with every other brother of the lodge, he had his reward; and concluded some very happy and apposite remarks by thanking them for their kindness to him. In proposing "The Health of the P.M.'s," he spoke highly of their zeal and love for Masonry, and Bros. Coupland and McDougall replied, the former adverting strongly to the necessity of supporting the charities, "the magnificent charities" of the Order, and, having accepted the office of Steward at the next Festival for the Boys' School, pleaded the cause of that section most eloquently and effectively. "The Visitors" received a warm welcome, and in putting the toast, the W.M. expressed his pleasure and the gratification of the lodge at seeing so many present; it was a great compliment to the good working of the lodge, and sprung from the seed sown by the former Master, the fruits of which they were now gathering. He took no credit to himself, but was proud and pleased to welcome them to the Pattison Lodge. Bro. T. Ward, W.M. 700, replied, and wished both Master and lodge a happy and prosperous new year. "The Initiates," health was of course given. "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge" was then proposed by the W.M., who spoke warmly of the great assistance he had received from them in carrying on the duties of the lodge. Bro. Vincent, S.W. responded, and after a truly Masonic treat the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings.

INSTRUCTION.

UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE (No. 507).—This lodge held its first meeting this year on Friday, 7th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall. The officers were:—Bros. R. N. Field, W.M.; Cass, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Durham, S.D.; Harvey, J.D.; Watts, I.G.; Geider, Tyler; M. S. Larham, Preceptor; Francis, Secretary; and others. The lodge was duly opened and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was ably rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Francis being the candidate. The first, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh sections were worked by Bro. Larlham, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Cass was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation. Bro. Larlham was elected W.M. for Friday, February 4th, on which occasion the members will hold the annual festival. It was decided to open the lodge on that occasion at six p.m., when three sections in the first lecture will be worked as follows:—Second by Bro. J. W. Watts; third, by Bro. H. J. Harvey; and the fourth, by Bro. E. A. Francis. The dinner is to be on the table at 7.30. Bro. Larlham returned thanks to the brethren for electing him W.M. for the festival night, and hoped that he should be numerously supported on that evening. The lodge was then closed, and adjourned in perfect harmony till Friday, the 14th inst., at 7 p.m.

GLASGOW.—St. John's Lodge (No. 34).—The annual festival of the St. John's Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 28th ult., in Maclean's Hotel. Previous to the dinner the ceremony of installing the office-bearers for the ensuing year, elected at last meeting, took place in the hall of the lodge, 213, Buchanan-street, the rite being performed by Bro. A. McTaggart. The following is the list of office-bearers:—R.W.M., Bros. D. M. Nelson; P.M., W. Bell; D.M., D. Young; S.M., T. B. Bell; S.W., J. Sellars; J.W., P. Brownlie; Treas., J. Dunn; Sec., J. Dick; B.B., R. Craig; Chap., D. Lindsay; S.D., A. Cameron; J.D., D. Paton; Archt., J. Ritchie; Jeweller, T. A. Tennent; D. of M., A. Carrick; G.M., J. Wilson; I.G., A. Peddie; Tyler, J. Wright; P.S., R. D. Samuels; Auditors, G. Park, J. McMillan, T. Fletcher. The dinner in Maclean's Hotel was well attended, both by members of the lodge and by visiting brethren, about seventy gentlemen sitting down. R.W.M. D. M. Nelson presided; Bros. J. Sellars, S.W., and J. D. Young, D.M., fulfilling the duties of croupiers. Supporting the R.W.M. were Bros. Sheriff Clark, Rev. R. Thomson, J. Baird, P.M.; A. McLean, W. Kyle, J. Kyle, R. McDonald, W. Bell, P.M.; R. Craig, P.M.; A. McTaggart, P.M.; ex-Deacon Robertson, D. Lindsay, J. McGaw, and J. Dick. The usual loyal toasts having been duly honoured, the Chairman proposed "The Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland," which was responded to by Bros. W. H. Bickerton for the English, and by Bro. J. Baird for the Scotch Grand Lodge. Bro. Buchanan also spoke to the toast, complimenting the old St. John upon her antiquity and still flourishing condition. In proposing the toast of "The Grand Lodge of Glasgow and the Benevolent Fund," Bro. T. Fletcher, P.M., said that the fund was being dispensed to great advantage, many poor and indigent widows having received assistance from it. He would be glad if the Lodge St. John would form a fund for the assistance of brethren who, from whatever causes, had fallen into decayed circumstances, using as a nucleus the donation of £10 which had been received from a worthy member. Bro. J. Baird, P.G.S.M., responded, and gave "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces." This was followed by the toast of "The Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Glasgow." Bro. McTaggart then proposed the toast of the evening, "The Lodge of Glasgow St. John (No. 34), and its R.W.M." After a reference to the question of the great antiquity of St. John's Lodge, he stated that, however old she was, she was worthy of their drinking prosperity to her with the warmest enthusiasm. St. John (No. 34) stood forth on the honoured roll in the Grand Lodge of Scotland, but she had maintained a very high position for the last twenty-five years in Glasgow. She had spared no effort in raising Masonry, and had been a loyal daughter. More than this, she had led in every good work. He was delighted to hear the suggestion put forward to establish a small fund in the lodge for the assistance of brethren. Bro. McTaggart then spoke on the question of fees of admission, and advocated a still higher scale than that adopted in St. John (No. 34). He held that this was one, and not the least important, of the conditions of elevating Masonry in Scotland, and the chief way in which the benevolent work of the Craft could be carried on. He coupled with the toast the name of the R.W.M., Bro. Nelson, who, in responding, asked for the co-operation of the elder brethren in the work of carrying on the business of the lodge worthily. He agreed with Bro. McTaggart on the question of raising the fees, and, as an argument for Scotch Masons bestirring themselves more in the work of benevolence, stated that in England last year £16,504 had been raised by Freemasons for the institutions established by the Craft, £6630 being sent in on one day. He then again acknowledged the toast, and sat down amid applause. Amongst the subsequent toasts chiefly prominent was that of "The Learned Professions," proposed by Bro. James Ritchie, Architect of the lodge, and responded to by Sheriff Clark in so happy a vein, that after a few remarks from the Chairman and Bro. Smillie, following upon his lordship's reply, the latter expressed his willingness to give in the lodge hall a lecture on "The Antiquities of Masonry"—say somewhere about November next. The evening altogether was a thoroughly pleasant one.

DUMBARTON.—St. John's Kilwinning (No. 18).—The annual meeting, and installation of office-bearers for the ensuing year, and the anniversary of St. John, was held in the lodge-room on the evening of Friday, the 24th ult. Bro. Barr, R.W.M., presided. The annual report was read, showing the addition of twenty members, and the income for the year to be about £50 odd, most of which was spent in benevolent purposes, the furnishing of the lodge, and working expenses, this leaving the amount at the lodge's disposal £96, the same as last year, and a private benevolent fund, which is at the disposal of the R.W.M. An inventory of articles belonging to the lodge was likewise read, amounting to £210. The election was proceeded with, but, there being no opposition for any office, the members proposed at the regular nomination meeting were declared duly elected, viz.: Bros. Wm. Hodge, R.W.M.; John Johnstone, D.M.; Robt. B. Thomson, S.M.; John Barr, S.W.; John McCall, J.W.; John McKay, Treas.; Tho. Boyd, Sec.; Rev. H. R. Williamson, Chaplain; Wm. Campbell, S.D.; Robt. Swan, J.D.; W. F. Henry, S.S.; Arch. Brodie, B.B.; Wm. Ledgett, I.G.; Wm. Lawson, S.B.; Jas. Buchanan, Tyler—all of whom were installed to their respective offices by the Presiding Officer, Bro. P. M. Barr, who in vacating the chair said the office of R.W.M. was one of the highest positions to which a member could attain, and the most honourable to which the brethren could elect a brother. Thousands covet the office, but with it there was great responsibility in the discharging the duties aright, the maintaining the dignity of the lodge, and in instructing the brethren to have credit to fill the offices, likewise to make true and upright Masons. In their new R.W.M. they were losing nothing but gaining much, and without the assistance of the officers he cannot perform his duties aright, but during the past four years I occupied as R.W.M. my knowledge of the brethren is that the lodge should be proud of their officers, and while we have appointed those to rule over us we must not forget our duties. The R.W.M. of any lodge has a certain amount of arbitrary power, so long as he keeps by the Constitutions; but so long as we aid and support him and his officers it is not at all likely that he will be called upon to be arbitrary. We must all attend to the grand principles we profess, and in concluding he trusted that the harmony which had existed during his term of office may not in time be disturbed. On the new R.W.M. taking the chair, along with his D. and S. Masters, the brethren accorded to them the grand honours. Bro. Hodge, R.W.M., in reply, said he had to thank the Installing Master for the manner he introduced him to the brethren, and to them also for the high position they had raised him to, and in his new sphere he trusted that he would do credit to his mother lodge. In accepting office he was stepping into the shoes of one who had occupied the position of R.W.M. with credit to himself and his lodge, and his (Bro. Hodge's) endeavour would be to fill those shoes worthily and well, and from the support that the brethren had promised to accord him he had the more confidence of success. In conclusion he hoped the Great Architect of the Universe would grant him wisdom so to govern the lodge that the brethren would have profit and pleasure thereby. The lodge was then passed from labour to refreshment, and the celebration of the anniversary of St. John's. A blessing having been asked by the Rev. Chaplain, the brethren did ample justice to the repast, purveyed by Bro. Young Baker in his usual creditable manner. The R.W.M. read letters of apology from Bro. Denny and others for unavoidable non-attendance. The usual loyal and Masonic toast was then proposed by the R.W.M., "The Queen and the Craft." She could not be a Mason, but she had done the next thing to it, she had allowed her sons to join the Order, which was a good thing for the Craft. They had already attained a high position in the Order, and he concluded by referring to the various Masonic ceremonies the Prince of Wales had engaged in during his journey through India. As for the Craft, Masonry teaches morality, brotherly love, relief and truth. By the acting to the true principles of Masonry men may attain to all the blessings of the world to come. "The Holy Lodge of St. John's," by the R.W.M., who in proposing it referred to the interest that St. John took in Masonry. When above 90 years of age he was appointed Grand Master of Jerusalem. "The Three Grand Lodges, England, Ireland, and Scotland," proposed by Bro. J. Barr, S.W. "The Prov. Grand Lodge," by P.M. Barr, who said that the Province of Dumbarton might be proud of their Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Smollett, a man of the highest standing, literary and political, and an honour to the fraternity for the interest that he takes in Masonry at his advanced age—the endeavours he takes to spread the principles of Masonry. All would be gratified to see that he had been appointed to instal the Provincial Grand Master of Argyle and the Isles, a duty he did with credit to himself and the province of Dumbarton. It was the interest, desire, and prayer that he may be long spared to preside as Prov. Grand Master. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. John Babbie, G.S.W., who, in replying, thanked the brethren for the expression of their sentiments, and, in addition to what P.M. Barr said in regard to Bro. Smollett, that all the brethren must be highly delighted that a man of 74 would, in the middle of winter, proceed into the Highlands, and perform at his age so arduous a duty, thus showing his lasting interest in Masonry, and his endeavour to promote the worthy cause was a matter of great congratulation. Many attended that installation that it took at this time of the year eight days to come and return home. "The New R.W.M., Bro. Hodge," was proposed by Bro. Babbie, who said that, with a little experience, he would obtain the respect of all. Whatever he undertook he was sure to carry it to a successful issue, and his career in the office of R.W.M. would be a prosperous one, from the great interest that he took in Masonry. R.W.M. Hodge regretted that Bro. Barr thought it his duty to retire, but, after consideration, he was convinced that the promotion of officers should be more frequent, for by so doing it stimulated the brethren to aspire to higher things, but it was always desirable to retain the services of a brother such as Bro. Barr, but in his new office he would endeavour to succeed Bro. Barr worthily. D. Master Councillor Johnstone said that he had been requested to take the next part in the proceeding of the evening. He would rather it had fallen to other hands than his, but the committee considered that their Chairman was the proper person for the occasion. So, brethren, you must take the will for the deed. A more pleasant duty could not have fallen to my lot, namely, that of presenting our now worthy Past Master with a token of our respect and esteem for the very efficient manner in which he has presided at the head of our lodge as R.W.M. for the last four years. His duties were faithfully performed. During his reign 126 members have been added to the roll, thus showing the amount of work performed by him, that the position of the lodge is improved, and that he added more to the roll than any of his predecessors. Many other likely subjects might be multiplied, but most of you are conversant with them without my recapitulating them. Charity is the distinguishing characteristic of Masonry, and a desire for the enlightenment and welfare of our fellow creatures is the wish and work of every true Mason. But to any one who occupies the office of R.W.M., this love for mankind seems to be doubly in their heart, and I am sure Bro. Barr has an extra supply of this love. Many are the occasions that a R.W.M. is called upon to exercise charity, and many were the appeals made to Bro. Barr, as R.W.M., to all of which he cheerfully responded. His desire to enlighten his brethren was shown by the careful attention he paid to his office, and the numerous nights he spent in instructing the younger brethren. If it had not been for the love of Freemasonry the nights thus spent might have been employed by him and gained for him and his many pecuniary advantages, and likewise they might have been occupied in instructing his family for their future welfare—but time he found for all. When the proposal was made to present him with a testimonial, liberally and unanimously did the brethren subscribe to it, and put the committee in a position to present Bro. P.M. Councillor Barr with the purse of sovereigns and this handsome gold P.M. jewel. The former will secure many of the comforts of life—but of course Bro. Barr is not deficient in them—and the latter will in after years bring to his remembrance the forms of those with whom he associated in this lodge, and among whom was his delight to be; and may the square and compass guide and guard his actions through life, and God, the great Architect of the Universe, be with him, and the star point his thoughts to that haven above where all true Masons hope to meet. He concluded by proposing "The Health and Prosperity of P.M. Barr," which was duly responded to. (Loud and prolonged cheers.) P.M. Barr on rising was the sign for those expressions being again and again repeated. P.M. Barr, in reply, said he did not know how to express his thoughts. He felt his own unworthiness. He tried to do his best, but was never satisfied with the result. When first asked to become R.W.M. (four years ago) he decidedly refused, but he was proposed to the lodge and accepted. From the first three previous years he took a great interest in everything connected with Masonry. During his term of office he was assisted well by all the brethren. The first year Bro. Graham, then R.W.M. of No. 321, gave him great assistance, but since his removal to another quarter the brethren all had materially assisted him, especially Bros. Thomson and Boyd. He had formed association with many who had gone abroad, many who had gone to their long home, and many who were present; these associations were cemented with truly Masonic love, and were never to be forgotten. They were always men with whom he was proud to meet. This handsome present has entirely taken me aback. Brethren, you must accept my heartfelt gratitude. I have gained a great deal of instruction since I joined the Order, and I intend to gain more from our new R.W.M., in whom we have found a worthy Master to conduct the business of this lodge, and do honour to the Craft. Again he expressed his thanks to all. "Departed Brethren," proposed by Bro. Rev. H. R. Williamson, who said that this was the solemn toast of the evening. Many brethren had departed to foreign climes—but, as our P.M. has said, others had gone to their long home—the way of all the earth. It was his fortune to stand around the death bed of many, and hear expressions uttered. With greater feeling of reverence did I attend the death bed of two, son and grandfather, who died recently—both Masons. Their departure was joy to them. Masonry teaches us to cherish a kindly feeling for the widow and fatherless. It is a sad thing to guide the helm when the bark is tossed on the sea of life. Masonry is good when it supports such. The toast was drunk with due solemnity. "The Visiting Brethren," by R.W.M., replied to by Bro. Valentine, Lodge St. Machar, 54, Aberdeenshire; "The Sister Lodges," by R.W.M., reply by Bro. Alexander, 543; "The Ladies," by Bro. Paton, reply by Bro. Boyd; "The Festival Committee," by P.M. Barr, reply by Bro. J. Allen; "Wisdom, Strength, and Beauty," proposed by Bro. A. Booth, reply by R.W.M.; "The Chairman," by Bro. S. M. Thomson, reply by R.W.M. The following brethren gave songs:—Johnstone, Lawson, Campbell, Dewar, Findlay, Dawson, Momson, Barr, and Easton.

DUNBAR.—Dunbar Castle Lodge (No. 75).—Monday Dec. 27, having been the festival of St. John, the brethren of Dunbar Castle Lodge No. 75 assembled at their lodge room in goodly numbers. The lodge having been opened in the Three Degrees, Bro. D. Vallance, P.M., in the chair, Bro. Charles Nelson, J.W., was installed R.W.M. for the ensuing year, having been proclaimed in the East, West, and South in due form. The lodge being lowered to the First Degree, the following brethren were elected and installed office-bearers for the ensuing year:—D. Vallance, P.M.; J. Sharp, D.M.; A. Melvin, S.M.; J. Blake, S.W.; H. Payne, J.W.; J. Smith, S.D.; Wm. Wilkinson, J.D.; P. Morrison, Steward; A. Main, Asst. Steward; J. McGraw, I.G.; R. Knox, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired to the Castle Inn for supper, Bro. Charles Nelson, R.W.M., in the chair. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given and heartily responded to, a most enjoyable evening was spent. This lodge is, and has for some time been, in a most flourishing condition; and we understand that Bro. Captain Dennistoun, 64th Regt., P.M., has recently forwarded a donation of ten pounds for the benefit of the lodge.

GLASGOW.—Commercial Lodge (No. 360).—This lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John on Monday afternoon, the 27th December, in Bro. Thornton's Clarendon Café, 251, Argyle-street. The brethren met in their lodge room at 6 o'clock p.m., which was opened in due form, Bro. J. Monro, R.W.M., in the chair, Bro. J. M. Oliver, S.W., and Bro. T. Graham, J.W., and a large number of brethren present. The R.W.M. raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason Bros. Rev. D. McCordale, 360; T. Greenlees, 541; and J. Tweigergang, 354. Mesars. W. S. Stewart, James Porteous Scott, and Robert Wylie received the Entered Apprentice Degree. Bro. J. M. Oliver, S.W., performed the ceremony in a masterly style. The brethren, numbering over 60, adjourned to Bro. Thornton's, where a substantial and excellently purveyed supper was fully enjoyed by the brethren, and after doing ample justice to the good things set before them, returned to the lodge, which was again re-opened and put under the care of Bro. Graham, J.W. Among the most distinguished were the following:—Bros. John Monro, R.W.M. (Chairman); J. M. Oliver, S.W., and T. Graham, J.W. (Croupiers); A. Morton, I.P.M. 360; Wm. Findlay, S.M.; George Scott, Treas.; John Smith, Sec.; J. McCosh, 360; G. Steven, 360; J. Gibson, 360; A. Sloan, 360; J. Clark, 360; Morton, 360; James Colquhoun, 360; G. Macpherson, 360; W. B. "The Three Grand Lodges, England, Ireland, and Scotland, with their respective Grand Masters," "The Prince of Wales and other Members of the Royal Family," "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," proposed by Bro. Peters, R.W.M. 153, and coupled with the name of Bro. Lieut. John Macnab, R.N.R. (1356 E.C.). "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow" was proposed by Bro. J. D. Porteous, and in doing so said:—It is with the greatest pleasure I propose this toast, and with all due respect to the other P.G. Lodges in Scotland, there is none which occupy so proud a position as the P.G. Lodge of Glasgow. Bro. James Shaw, R.W.M. 354, replied in behalf of the P.G. Lodge in suitable terms. "The Lodge Marie Stuart, 541," was proposed by Bro. Davidson, P.M. 360, who said: "There is no toast this evening will receive the same interest (keeping of our own lodge), as we may say that it is a child of our own, and I am proud to say it has been very prosperous, and have no doubt it will go on to prosper; it will always have the sympathy of the brethren of the Commercial. I have therefore now much pleasure in proposing the 'Prosperity of Lodge Marie Stuart, 541.'" Bro. W. McG. Mason, the R.W.M., acknowledged the toast in feeling terms. Bro. Julius Brode, P.M. 360 and 451, on rising to propose "The Health of Bro. Porteous," was received with cheers. He said: Brethren, in complying with the request made to propose this toast and hand over to Bro. Porteous a presentation, I can assure you I am glad to have the pleasure of doing so. I need not flatter Bro. Porteous, but confine myself to a few facts regarding Bro. Porteous's career in the Province of Glasgow and Renfrewshire East. He became Secretary to Lodge Athole (413) at its erection, and did his duty well. He joined this lodge when it was at a low ebb, and did it great service and brought it to a prosperous condition, and occupied the position of R.W.M. for two years. Bro. Porteous then went south, and was the means of starting a lodge there in 1873, and although not large in numbers there is, I can assure you, good quality. Bro. Porteous was R.W.M. of that lodge (Marie Stuart) until his removal to England about 8 months ago. Bro. Col. Campbell, P.G. Master Renfrewshire East, appointed him P.G.J.W., but on account of his removal from this country he did not enjoy that high position long. I now beg leave to present you, Bro. Porteous, in name of the subscribers, with this handsome set of tea and coffee service, and salver, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented by the brethren of the Lodge Marie Stuart, Crosshill, No. 541, conjointly with the principal office-bearers of the P.G.L.R.E. and several members of Lodges Commercial, No. 360, and Athole, No. 413, Glasgow, to Bro. James D. Porteous, 18, M.M. 384, Past Secretary 413, P.M. 360, P.M. 541, and P.P.G.J.W.R.E., December, 27th, 1875." And, Bro. Porteous, may it please you—may it compensate you for your able and untiring work in Freemasonry amongst us. You have endeared yourself to us all, and may you be long spared to enjoy these along with your better half in England, and hand it over to your children and their children to shew our appreciation of your services. I therefore conclude, wishing you every prosperity. Bro. Porteous, in replying, said: Brethren, I must say I have no eloquence on my part to thank you for the kind expressions used by my friend and brother (Brode), and allow me to say I shall never forget the warm-hearted friends I left in Scotland. On behalf of my partner in life I thank you. It shall give me the greatest delight in handing this excellent gift over to her. I do not know how she will contain herself for this mark of your appreciation. "The Clergy" was proposed by Bro. J. M. Oliver, S.W., who said he was glad that one of the last laid stones was a clergyman, and trusted that many more of the same profession would join our Order. Bro. the Rev. D. McCordale replied in a neat and very humorous speech. "The Lodge Commercial, 360" was proposed by Bro. Humphreys, who said it was one of the brightest lodges in the Province of Glasgow, always first in the van with all good deeds. I am now 17 years in Glasgow, and have visited the Commercial many times, and have always found it in harmony. I have therefore to propose "Prosperity to Lodge Commercial." Bro. J. Monro, R.W.M., replied, and thanked the brethren for the manner in which they received the toast; and said: We have harmony amongst us, and that is the reason we are in such a prosperous condition, and would still persevere until 360 would be second to none in the province. "The Last-laid Stones" was proposed by the R.W.M. Bro. J. P. Scott replied on behalf of himself and the other two brethren who were initiated along with him that night. The R.W.M. proposed "The Health and Prosperity of Lodge St. Mary's, Partick, No. 117," who have met to-night in their new hall, and have kindly sent a deputation to wish us a happy evening. Bro. Brunton, P.M., who headed the deputation, replied. "The Press" was proposed by Bro. Colquhoun, and replied to by Bro. William Ferguson, P.M. 543 ("Freemason"). Bro. Paterson proposed "The Past Masters of the Commercial," and Bro. Davidson, P.M., replied. Bro. Graham, J.W., proposed "The Visiting Brethren," and Bro. C. McKenzie, 354, replied. Bro. Gibson proposed "The Ladies," and Bro. Sloan replied on their behalf.

GOVAN.—Lodge Govandale (No. 437).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, Portland Buildings, Govan, on Tuesday evening, the 21st ult., Bro. John McFarlane, R.W.M., in the chair, supported on the dais by Bros. A. Campbell, P.M.; John Miller, D. M.; R. Muir, S.W.; G. Wilson, J.W.; J. Sutherland, Sec. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The Auditors' report was then read, showing the lodge to be in a very prosperous condition. The election of office-bearers for the next twelve months then took place, and the following brethren were duly elected:—Bros. J. Miller, R.W.M.; J. McFarlane, I.P.M.; J. Hutcheson, D.M.; W. Ferguson, S.M.; R. Muir, S.W.; A. James, J.W.; A. Blair, Treas.; J. Sutherland, Sec.; J. Wilkinson, Chap.; J. Carrick, S.D.; W. Colville, J.D.; C. J. Headman, B.B.; J. Robertson, Arc.; P. Farquhar, Jewr.; W. Maxwell, S.B.; L. Hamilton, D. of M.; W. H. Charles, D. of C.; R. Blyth, P.G.S.; T. Paton, S.S.; J. McPhail, J.S.; J. Moggie, I.G.; and J. McIntyre, Tyler. The lodge was then transferred to refreshment, under the care of the Junior Warden, Bro. McFarlane, I.P.M., presiding. The usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were given from the chair and heartily responded to. "The Past Office-bearers" was proposed, and replied to by Bro. Campbell, I.P.M. "Bro. Miller (R.W.M. elect)" was proposed by Bro. McFarlane, I.P.M., and in doing so paid him a high compliment for the way in which he always endeavoured to promote the interests of the lodge since its erection, he being one of the founders of the lodge, and wished him every success during the ensuing year. Bro. Cameron proposed "The Health of Bro. McFarlane, I.P.M.," which was enthusiastically received by the brethren. Bro. McFarlane replied at some length, thanking the office-bearers and members for the support he received at all times at their hands. Bro. Campbell proposed "The Visiting Brethren," and Bro. Wm. Ferguson, P.M., No. 543 ("Freemason"), replied. After the Tyler's toast the lodge was recalled and closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Clydesdale (No. 556).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 106, Rose-street (S.S.), on Monday evening, the 20th ult. Bro. William Phillips, R.W.M., in the chair; Bros. John McNaught, S.W.; and Thomas Phillips, J.W. There was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren. Among the latter we noticed Bros. Robert Jack, R.W.M. No. 128; David Ronald, R.W.M. No. 275; William Findlay, S.W. 275; G. H. C. McNaught, P.M. 275; Peter Hepburn, S.W. 178; William Forsyth, J.W. 103; William Ferguson, P.M. 543 ("Freemason"); Owen Short, 87; James Henderson, 87; James Watt, jun., 219; and others. The minutes and Auditors' report were read and confirmed, after which a motion was brought forward to alter the meeting nights to the first and third Thursdays of each month (June, July, and August excepted), commencing on Thursday, the 6th January, which was unanimously agreed to. The installation of office-bearers was then proceeded with. The ceremony of installing the R.W.M., D.M., and S.M. was performed by Bro. William Ferguson, P.M. 543; and the other office-bearers were installed by the newly re-elected R.W.M. in a very creditable manner. It was agreed to hold the annual festival on Friday, the 28th January, in Crown-street Hall. The lodge was then transferred to refreshment.

The "Canadian Masonic News" for January contains an excellent photograph of the late Earl of Zetland.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1273, at the Marquis of Granby, New Cross, on Saturday, the 22nd January next, when the Preceptor, Bro. Govan Macdonald, will preside. Lodge will be opened at 6.30 precisely.

District Grand Lodge was opened in form at 6.30 p.m. The Acting District Grand Secretary reported the receipt of apologies from several brethren for unavoidable non-attendance.

The District Grand Master in the chair said that before opening the business of District Grand Lodge, as set down in the agenda paper, he wished to ask some of the brethren present to perform a duty which he thought would be as pleasant to them to do as it was to him to ask them to do.

At the last Quarterly Communication of District Grand Lodge, as they would all remember, a committee had been appointed to consider and report upon the means by which the erection in Calcutta of a Freemasons' Hall worthy of the Province of Bengal might be secured. After six weeks of almost unintermitted labour the committee presented a progress report, in which certain proposals were submitted, upon which it was necessary that the opinion of District Grand Lodge should be expressed before the committee could proceed further.

A special communication of District Grand Lodge had been held on the 14th of previous month to consider these propositions, and the result was the adoption of the committee's scheme for the formation of the "Bengal Freemasons' Hall Building Association, Limited," and the passing of a resolution directing the committee to take such further steps as might be necessary for the due launching of the company.

The first thing had of course been the framing of the memorandum and articles of association. Great care had been bestowed upon this work by W. Bro. Bonnetjee, barrister-at-law, their District Grand Registrar, and by Bro. G. C. Farr, solicitor, and he (the District Grand Master in the chair) could not allow the present opportunity to pass without acknowledging the obligations under which those brethren had placed not only himself but, as he thought, District Grand Lodge and the brethren generally, by the labour and pains which they had so freely and ungrudgingly given to this work.

The memorandum and articles were now complete, and the former was duly engrossed and lay upon the pedestal before him for the signatures of such applicants for debentures as might then be present, and whom he would ask to append their signatures accordingly, after hearing the documents read.

W. Bro. Thomas Jones, P.M. 67, District Grand Registrar, objected to the documents being either read or signed in District Grand Lodge, no notice of the business having been entered upon the agenda paper. W. Bro. Jones was proceeding to address District Grand Lodge on the subject of the Building Association, to which he was opposed, when

The District Grand Master in the chair said it was impossible for him to allow W. Bro. T. Jones to continue his remarks, seeing that there was no motion before District Grand Lodge—that in fact the business of District Grand Lodge had not commenced.

W. Bro. T. Jones then expressed his desire to move a resolution upon the subject.

The District Grand Master in the chair could not allow W. Bro. Jones to move any resolution whatever or to address District Grand Lodge in any way at that stage of the proceedings, but would have no objection to his doing so later in the evening, under the provisions of Art. 28 of the District Grand Lodge Bye-laws.

The District Grand Master in the chair then called upon the District Grand Registrar to read the memorandum of association of the "Bengal Freemasons' Hall Building Association, Limited," and the said memorandum was read.

Bro. G. C. Farr, was then requested by the District Grand Master in the chair to read the articles of association of the "Bengal Freemasons' Hall Building Association," and they were read accordingly.

The memorandum of association of the "Bengal Freemasons' Hall Building Association" was then signed by those brethren present who had applied for debentures.

W. Bro. T. Jones asked if he might then move his resolution regarding what had just taken place.

The District Grand Master in the chair said he thought the regular business set down in the agenda paper ought to be dealt with before any other motion was brought to the vote, but as far as he was concerned personally he had no objection to accede to W. Bro. T. Jones' request. If, however, any single member of District Grand Lodge objected he (the District Grand Master in the chair) would be obliged to refuse what W. Bro. Jones asked for.

No one objecting, W. Bro. T. Jones then moved—"That as the solemn proceeding which has been authorized by the Officiating District Grand Master, in the signature by certain brethren present of the deed of association of the Masonic Hall Building Association, was not announced to the Craft in the usual Masonic mode by means of the agenda paper, this District Grand Lodge will in no sense hold itself bound by, or be considered, in its representative character as the Grand Lodge of the District, to countenance, the proceeding in question."

W. Bro. T. Jones in moving the foregoing resolution addressed District Grand Lodge at considerable length and in very strong terms, depreciative of the proposed Building Association and condemnatory of the step taken by the District Grand Master in the chair in laying the memorandum of association before the members of District Grand Lodge, in communication assembled, for signature, without notice having been given, in the agenda paper, that such business would be brought forward. W. Bro. Jones considered that the action of the Acting District Grand Master was altogether ultra vires.

Bro. C. F. Egerton Allen, J.W. 109, and District Grand Steward, seconded W. Bro. T. Jones' motion.

After some remarks on the subject from W. Bro. H. H. Locke, Past Deputy District Grand Master, and acting District Grand Secretary, Bro. C. Compton, Past District Grand Organist, moved, and W. Bro. Girling, W.M. 232, and Past District Grand Director of Ceremonies, seconded the following amendment to W. Bro. Jones' resolution:—"That this District Grand Lodge entirely approves of the step taken by the acting District Grand Master in placing the memorandum of association of the Bengal Freemasons' Hall Building Association before the brethren for signature this evening, inasmuch as considerable trouble to the acting District Grand Secretary will thereby be saved."

Bro. Compton's amendment to W. Bro. T. Jones' motion was put to the vote, when there appeared thirty-two for and two against it. The amendment was accordingly declared to be carried.

The minutes of the proceedings of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal at the Quarterly Communication of the 24th June, 1875, having been printed and circulated, it was proposed by W. Bro. W. Girling, W.M. 232, and Past District Grand Director of Ceremonies, and seconded by W. Bro. J. T. Limpus, P.M. 1160, and Past District Grand Pursuivant, that the said minutes be taken as read. Carried.

W. Bro. W. H. Fitze, P.M. 218, Past District Grand Deacon, and Acting District Grand Treasurer moved "That the minutes of the proceedings of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal at the Quarterly Communication of the 24th June, 1875, be confirmed." Seconded by W. Bro. W. Girling, and carried.

W. Bro. Prosunno Coomarr Dutt, W.M. 234, and District Grand Assistant Director of Ceremonies, moved, and W. Bro. Major T. N. Young, W.M. 1374, P.M. 552, 836, 988, and 1065, and Acting District Junior Grand Warden, seconded "That the minutes of the proceedings of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal, at a special communication held on the 14th August, 1875, having been printed and circulated, be now taken as read." Carried.

W. Bro. W. C. Bonnerjee, barrister-at-law, W.M. 67, and District Grand Registrar, moved, and W. Bro. J. H. E. Beer, W.M. 218, and Past District Grand Organist, seconded, "That the aforesaid minutes of the 14th August, 1875, be confirmed." Carried.

The District Grand Master in the chair addressed the District Grand Lodge as follows:—"Worshipful Brethren,—Yours time has already been so much taken up this evening in ways that, were you disposed, you might well say it ought not to have been so treasured upon, that I will make the remarks which you are accustomed to hear from this chair before proceeding to the consideration of the reports of the committees in as few words as possible. I am sorry to find in the report of the Committee of General Purposes the mention of arrears of dues by 'Lodge Courage with Humanity' and another Masonic body (Rose Croix) for rent—that is to say, I am sorry that there were arrears—not that the committee brought them to notice, that of course they were bound to do, as it would have been a failure of duty on their part had they omitted to do it. In the last named of the two cases the committee were satisfied with the explanation offered, and I trust that the communication which the committee directed should be made to the Worshipful Master of Lodge 'Courage with Humanity' will have the effect of preventing any further necessity for complaint. I regret to have to report to you three exclusions—all for non-payment of dues. Both the Acting District Grand Secretary and myself have had many enquiries put to us as to whether any reply has been received to the memorial which was sent from this District Grand Lodge to the Most Worshipful the Grand Master on the subject of the appointment of a District Grand Master for Bengal, on the 29th of June last. I am sorry to say that no answer of any kind has been, as yet, received. I wish to bring to your notice that a handsome presentation of some plate, in the shape of certain table requisites of a very useful character, has been made to us by Bro. St. Aubyn King, on the part of the District Grand Stewards of last year, out of a surplus which their fund exhibited at the close of their labours. I am sure that I carry you with me when I beg Bro. St. Aubyn King and his colleagues to accept our best thanks for their exceedingly useful and handsome present. (Applause.) As the hour is already late, and we have yet a considerable amount of work before us, I will detain you no longer from the consideration of the business which stands next upon the agenda paper, the report of the Committee of General Purposes."

The report of the Committee of General

Purposes at a meeting held on the 4th September, 1875, was read.

W. Bro. Major T. N. Young, W.M. 1374, P.M. 552, 836, 988, and 1065, and Acting D.J.G.W., moved, and W. Bro. J. H. E. Beer, W.M. 218, and Past D.G. Org. seconded, "That the accounts, as exhibited in the abstract, contained in the report of the Committee of General Purposes, be accepted as correct and passed; and that the recommendations of the committee in respect to the investment of the balances at credit of the General, Musical Instrument, and Freemasons' Hall Funds, in debentures of the Bengal Freemasons' Hall Building Association, be adopted."

W. Bro. T. Jones, P.M. 67, and Past D.G. Reg., moved the following amendment:—"That before any funds under the control of this District Grand Lodge be assigned over to the purposes contemplated in the resolution, the committee appointed to consider the proposal for establishing the Bengal Masonic Hall Association be requested to submit a further report on the subject for the information of this District Grand Lodge."

In moving the foregoing resolution, W. Bro. Thomas Jones addressed District Grand Lodge at great length, and went very elaborately into figures, with a view to showing that the outlay which the building scheme would involve would amount to at least Rs. 11,000 per annum, and that this was more than District Grand Lodge could provide. Bro. T. Jones complained also that one feature in the scheme as set forth in the committee's first prospectus, namely, the swimming bath, had subsequently been omitted, but nothing had been said as to how the amount which it had been calculated would be derived from this source was to be made up without it. It might be that it was intended to increase the rates charged to lodges for rent—in fact, he had elicited this admission from a tolerably good authority. Now Masonry was not what it used to be, either in respect to the number, or the wealth and position, of those who formed our lodges, otherwise no doubt they would be very willing to accede to an increase in their rent payments; but as it was, no such increase could be looked for. He was therefore of opinion that the scheme, which he regarded as crude and impracticable, should be sent back to the committee, with the request for such details as would enable District Grand Lodge to understand clearly how it was proposed to raise the sum which would certainly be required, month by month, after the hall was built. He (Bro. Jones) had no wish whatever to oppose a sound scheme for the building of a Masonic Hall, there was nothing that he would more heartily support, but he felt compelled to condemn the present one (which he regarded as ridiculous) in the strongest manner. It was in his opinion a wholly impracticable project, and such as must inevitably lead to disastrous results.

Bro. C. F. Egerton Allen, J.W. 109, and District Grand Steward, seconded W. Bro. T. Jones' amendment. Bro. Allen deprecated the idea that he was otherwise than most favourably disposed towards such an undertaking as the building of a new hall. Nothing would give him greater regret than to see the project abandoned; but he felt compelled to oppose the resolution now before District Grand Lodge as to the investment of their funds in this particular scheme, until it had been more fully explained and its details more clearly put before them.

W. Bro. H. H. Locke hoped that District Grand Lodge would, by its utter rejection of W. Bro. T. Jones' amendment, mark in an unmistakable manner its sense of the exceedingly objectionable line of procedure which Bros. T. Jones and Egerton Allen had adopted in respect to the violent opposition which they were offering to the building scheme. He would forbear to characterize the nature of the conduct in question (both as to what had taken place that evening and what had been done outside by the two brethren he referred to during the last few weeks) lest he should be betrayed into stronger language than it was desirable should be used in that room; but he would ask District Grand Lodge to consider one or two facts (which it would be impossible for W. Bro. T. Jones to deny) and to form their own conclusions thereon. The committee to which District Grand Lodge had entrusted the work of preparing a scheme for the building of a Freemasons' Hall in Calcutta for the Province of Bengal consisted of 25 members, of whom 12 were the elected representatives of private lodges, 4 the ex-officio representatives of the officers of District Grand Lodge, and the remaining 9 were brethren of well-known ability and experience in the Craft (all of them, save one, Past Masters), who had been specially added to the committee by the Acting District Grand Master, in accordance with the resolution passed by District Grand Lodge in June last, for this particular work, for which each and all of them had seemed in some way or other to possess such qualifications as would be of material assistance in the preparation of a sound scheme for the attainment of the object in view. Surely it would be no stretching of terms to say that a committee thus constituted consisted of 25 of the best men for the purpose which the Masonic fraternity could command in Calcutta. This alone would probably induce District Grand Lodge to hesitate before rejecting what had been a laborious and long considered work on the part of the committee merely at the bidding of Bros. Jones and Allen. Not that he (Bro. Locke) was in any way a supporter of the tyranny of majorities. He would not even say that it was an utter impossibility, and would express no opinion as to the probability, that W. Bro. Jones should be right and the other twenty-four members of the committee wrong; but he would ask District Grand Lodge to consider the following points in the line of procedure adopted by W. Bro. Jones, and to say whether that procedure bore evidence of a desire simply to steer clear of difficulties and disastrous consequences, and to base the project under discussion upon a sure and safe foundation, or whether it was dictated by a factious and violent antagonism of which it was unnecessary to seek very far for the cause. W. Bro. Jones was a member of the committee to which the framing of the building scheme had been entrusted; surely if he were so competent to point out miscalculations and to detect flaws and errors in the committee's scheme as he had endeavoured to make District Grand Lodge believe, it was his duty to have pointed them out to the committee and to have assisted to remove them. This was a duty which, with every desire to use language as temperate as possible, he (Bro. Locke) was constrained to declare thus publicly to District Grand Lodge that W. Bro. Thomas Jones had most conspicuously neglected. (Hear, hear.) The committee had met four times for the framing of the building scheme, and W. Bro. Jones had attended once only. Bro. Jones might of course say that on the three other occasions it had not been convenient to him to attend; but seeing that printed minutes of the proceedings of the committee at each meeting had been furnished weekly to every member it must have been quite easy for Bro. T. Jones to see what was being decided upon, and to make known to his colleagues any objections, or any suggestions for improvement, that might have occurred to him. There was no possible excuse for his not having done this; not only had printed minutes of each meeting of the committee been furnished to every member as soon after such meeting as was possible, but after the last meeting (held on the 24th July) a complete set had been issued for the deliberate consideration of every member, more than a fortnight previous to the special communication of District Grand Lodge, held on the 14th of August, for the one sole purpose of considering the committee's scheme. Why had not Bro. T. Jones assisted his colleagues, as he ought to have done? Why had he not pointed out whatever objections he had to make at the proper time and in the proper place? Why had he not even brought them forward at the meeting of District Grand Lodge, held for the especial purpose of considering the building scheme? This was not the proper time for going into figures to show how the calculations of the committee had been made, otherwise he (Bro. Locke) would have been perfectly prepared to show the utter absurdity of the financial statements made by Bro. T. Jones. It was, however, wholly unnecessary to notice them. The question before District Grand Lodge was not whether the committee's scheme was practicable or impracticable—that had been decided on the 14 August, after full publication of the committee's proposals. What they had now to decide was this: would they in a practical manner demonstrate that confidence in the undertaking which was declared by the resolutions of the 14th August, last by investing their own funds therein? Could they expect that others would put money into the undertaking if District Grand Lodge itself did not? However sound the scheme might be, it was absurd to suppose it possible for it to succeed unless the debentures were promptly taken up, and how could they expect this to be done if District Grand Lodge showed reluctance to invest its own balances in them? If, by any chance, the scheme did fail, he should always consider Bros. Jones and Allen to be responsible for having brought it about by the manner in which, during the last few weeks, they had, in various ways, done their best to damage it. He would mention one other fact which would enable them to judge as to the value they might attach to the vehement opposition which Bro. T. Jones was exhibiting towards the building scheme. At the last meeting of the Committee of General Purposes, the report of which they were then considering, Bro. T. Jones had commenced a hot attack against what he said was an impracticable feature in the project, namely, the swimming bath; and it had been necessary to inform him that the committee had themselves decided against that feature (which had only been thrown out as a suggestion by one member at the beginning), and that it was entirely omitted in the final scheme submitted to, and accepted by, District Grand Lodge. This would show the care with which Bro. Jones had acquainted himself with the papers which had been furnished to him, and with what the nature of the building scheme really was!

I am now trying to trace this MS., and have found a clue not to the MS. actually, but to the collection of MSS. of the house where the MS. is said to have been. If I succeed, I will report proceedings.

Obituary.

BRO. J. J. FARNHAM.

We deeply regret to read in "The East Anglian Daily News," of January 10th, the death, by drowning, of Bro. J. J. Farnham, late Curate in charge at West-horpe, Suffolk, Past Dist. S.G.W. of Bombay.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Intermittent and continued Fevers, Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Hysteria, and general Debility are best treated by these remedies, as they possess within themselves a gently stimulating and tonic principle, which invariably produces the desired result; they impart tone to the mucous membrane of the stomach, expel flatulence, increase the appetite, and produce a grateful sense of internal warmth and elasticity of mind and body. As a detergent in Scrofulous and foul ulcerations, and as a healing and soothing application in burns, scalds, and excoriations, the Ointment will be found most valuable, as it promotes the healing action, and cleanses off all foul discharges, and neutralises any noxious matter that may be present. Very plain directions accompany them.—ADVT.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

The Prince of Wales since he left Calcutta has visited Lucknow, Cawnpore, and Delhi. He has been over the ground of the great mutiny, and has been reminded everywhere of the heroism of the Feringhee. Many noble soldiers are lying in their humble graves along his route, whose blood has "spilt like water" for the name of the Queen, and in devotion to old England. We can quite understand that the Prince will have been deeply impressed; it could not well be otherwise. All honour to "John Beetlecrusher," and "peaceful resting places and quiet graves" for those who fought so gloriously and died so well. One very touching sight at Lucknow was the review of those surviving natives who adhere so loyally to the English "Rag," and shared no nobly the privations and dangers of these white-faced comrades. They were all presented to the Prince of Wales. The telegraphic account in the "Times" is most interesting up to the 11th, and we subjoin it:—There is every reason to be satisfied with the favourable impression produced on the Talookdars and the people by the Prince's visit to Lucknow. At noon, on the 10th, His Royal Highness presented colours to the 1st Battalion of the 14th Regiment of the Line. After the ceremony, Lieuts. Le Grice and Taylor's Batteries, with the 65th, 14th, 6th, and 41st Native Infantry, marched past. The march past of the 6th was much admired. At 2.30 on the 10th the Prince bade good-bye. The special train to Cawnpore arrived at 4. The Prince thanked Sir George Couper for the reception at Oude. He drove to the Memorial Church with a Guard of Honour of the Buffs and a cavalry escort. There was an Artillery salute. Mr. Prinsep, Colonel Maude, the civil and military authorities, and multitudes of natives were present. The Prince spent some time examining the church and reading the mural inscriptions. Then they proceeded to the fatal Well and the Enclosure, which stand in a fair park, with flower beds. The Prince remained inside a quarter of an hour, and walked to the Cemetery, close at hand. It is beautifully kept, and forms a strong contrast to the Crimean graveyard. From the Cemetery the Prince proceeded to Mr. Prinsep's. He dined there, leaving at 9.30 by special train to Delhi. Cawnpore is very quiet. Thousands were sitting by the road sides to see the Prince. The Prince of Wales entered Delhi at 9 a.m. on the 11th. Lord Napier of Magdala was present, and the Generals and an immense mounted staff rode with the suite through the lines of Artillery, Cavalry, and Infantry from the station through the city out by the Lahore Gate over the ridge for four miles to the camp, where the Prince held a levée of European and Native officers, lasting two hours. The Prince dined with Lord Napier, who is not yet able to ride. Crowds of natives are lining the route. Extraordinary triumphal arches have been erected with inscriptions. The general attitude of the population is very respectful and courteous. The Prince received an address from the Delhi Municipality. His Royal Highness was much interested in passing the memorable sites, surrounded as he was by many who had borne a share in the great siege.

H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD.

We feel sure that the entire Craft will rejoice to hear of the nomination of H.R.H. Prince Leopold by his Royal brother our Royal Grand Master, to be Prov.G.M. for Oxfordshire. The close connection of the Royal family with our Order has always been a subject of heartfelt satisfaction to every loyal Freemason, and we feel convinced that on the present occasion that satisfaction will be largely augmented, and universally expressed. H.R.H. Prince Leopold is well known to have many attributes of personal tastes and feelings, greatly in unison with that of our peace-loving and philanthropic sodality. He is a patron of the fine arts, a friend to education in its widest sense, "simpatico" with all those pursuits and tendencies which serve to improve, to adorn, to elevate the human race; most anxious to give his countenance to all that may conduce to the social advancement and æsthetic culture of his fellow citizens; no mean proficient himself, if report be true, in those studies which enlighten, and those branches of learning which civilize, the great family of mortal man. He is a soldier of peace, a pioneer, like his great father, of national advance, of cosmopolitan unity and welfare. And therefore to-day it is that a discerning brotherhood hails its newest ruler with genuine welcome and heartfelt pleasure. May that distinguished province over which he is so fitly called to rule soon demonstrate the benefit of his genial sway, and may it in the future, as in the past, ever maintain its high character for true Masonic principles, for sound Masonic teaching, and for the practice and development of those Masonic virtues and graces without which our highest dignities and our most venerated symbols are but as "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

A MUNIFICENT MASONIC GIFT.

Our pages last week record a most munificent donation by Bro. H. C. Fox, of Philadelphia, to his lodge, the Covenant Lodge, 456, Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, of 5,000 dollars, or £1,000. Bro. W. J. Hughan has kindly called our attention to the circumstance, and we agree with him in his estimation of the act as a remarkable one, and deserving both of record and remembrance. Nay, we may go a little further and say—yes—imitation. For, to say the truth, we have often thought ourselves how much local Masonic charity might be aided in the ever increasing demands on our funds, private and general, by the voluntary offerings to our lodges of some benevolent and well-to-do brethren. As a general rule our lodges are not rich and have but small investments; but we feel sure of this, that much good would accrue to our Order, if lodges had good Benevolence Funds of their own, and if, as a general rule, individual liberality came in to supplement the formal amount of the annual lodge subscription. Many brethren think when they have paid their annual subscription to their lodge that they have done their duty by the Order. We have always held this to be a mistake, and we are glad to see our worthy Bro Fox, of Philadelphia, U.S., so to say, "breaking" the ice" and setting an example of lodge donations. We must not shut our eyes to one fact, that though Freemasonry is very prosperous just now it has inevitably its day of trial in store, for the large present admission of members must result ere long in increased demands on all its institutions and all its resources. Now then is the time, while we are sailing before a prosperous wind, to make provision for future possible "dirty weather;" and the only way in which we can do this is by largely increasing our funds of lodge benevolence, and, if possible, making lodges themselves dispense local and immediate aid to deserving applicants. Just as the poor laws, it is most fully and generally admitted, require to be supplemented and aided by individual effort, if ever we are to break down the dreadful "incubus" on honest industry of habitual pauperism, so, if our general funds are to be preserved and relieved, in the pressure which is assuredly coming upon them by anything, it can only be done by the increase of our lodge funds, and the development of lodge relief, judiciously given and carefully supervised. There is a tendency in lodges to throw relief on to the Provincial and the Grand Lodge funds, forgetting, that if our professions are worth anything, if our principles are true, such needful and beneficial work of true Masonic charity, should begin with the lodge in which the recipient first saw the light or received the teaching of Freemasonry. There is another tendency at the present day, equally unsound in practice, to make the aggregate do, what the unit should effect in the first instance. As we hold, that all true work is individual and not general in the world, and that great results are achieved by the unit-worker, not by the aggregate, by the person, not the community, so if Masonic charity is to become properly organised and thoroughly efficient, and sound alike in its theory and practice, it must begin with our lodges, and the Provincial and Grand Lodge Funds should not be appealed to until the actual exigencies of the case required it, or until in justice to others local relief had reached its furthest possible limit. Having said this, we greatly commend and admire Bro. H. C. Fox's munificent gift to the lodge in itself, and call the attention of many large-hearted and liberal-minded brethren in this country, to this seasonable and striking display of American Masonic sympathy and active good will.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The scheme for the enlargement of the Girls' School is still a thing of the future. At the Quarterly Court on Saturday Bro. Kenyon withdrew his resolution, wisely in our opinion, and the whole matter is now practically before the Committee again. We shall await its report with interest, and we trust that when it appears it may be characterized by clearness of scope, and largeness of vision, and that it may deal efficiently and effectively with the undoubted necessities of the Order. We may add that 21 new candidates were accepted on Saturday.

MASONIC IMPOSTORS IN IRELAND.

We have been requested from Ireland to caution the brethren against some "false brethren," who are now seeking to "loot" the Masonic "Treasury" in that country, and who may perhaps ere long pay us in England, and our brethren across the borders, a fraternal visit. They profess to be American Freemasons, shipwrecked somewhere, but are deliberate Masonic swindlers and vagrants. They are probably some of those worthies who, named in the American Masonic prints, have found the United States too hot for them, and are now seeking to prey on confiding brethren in the old country. We recommend for them an "interview" with the police. We may observe, that one gentleman of this interesting fraternity is now expiating his vagabond raids by a prolonged term of seclusion, little food, and much work, in one of the American penitentiaries. We call attention to an extract elsewhere, taken from the "Keystone," which may assist our good Irish brethren in the matter.

THE SUPREME COUNCIL 33° IN SCOTLAND.

Letter from D. G. A. Walker Arnott, to Alexander James Stewart, Grand Clerk of the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

2. Victoria Terrace,
Downhill, near Glasgow,
18 April, 1872.

My dear Sir,

To answer your letter fully would consume a vast deal more time than I can afford, particularly as you seem to be perfectly ignorant of what preceded the formation of the Supreme Council of the 33° by Dr. Morrison. The order of Mizraim of 90° was established in Scotland about 40 years ago, I think in 1822, but perhaps earlier; at all events, it was long before March 1829. The heads of that body were the Messrs. Bedarride, of Paris. The late Duke of Athole, and Bro. H. R. Roux and some others were admitted to the 90th degree, and in March several others to the 99th and inferior degrees. I had once a copy of the printed original list, but it seems to have gone astray. Alexr. Deuchar, Sir Patrick Walker, and some others were admitted to the 90th in 1829. The same year it was established here the Bedarride established it in Ireland, and there it forms the third series of their Supreme Council of Rites. The order of Mizraim contained all the degrees that belong to the Rite Ancient of 33° (and many more), except the two highest degrees, the 32° and 33°. You must be aware also, that what was called Prussian Masonry, or the Rite of Perfection, consisted of 25 degrees, and that the highest is the "Princes of the Royal Secret," and identical with the 32nd of the "Ancient Scottish Rite." These were the original degrees, but in America an addition took place in the beginning of the century (4th December, 1802, at Charleston), so as to make the total number 33° (the number of years our Saviour was on earth). No new degree was however concocted, except the 33° itself, all the other 7 were taken from the floating degrees belonging to several small rites in France and elsewhere, all perfectly puerile.

Now the Rite of Perfection of 25 degrees was brought to Scotland, from America, before the Rite Ancient, and Alexr. Deuchar and some others initiated. Deuchar, however, had a wish that all Masonic degrees above M.M., should, if not Christian, be placed under the Royal Arch series; and all those that were Christian, made part of those of the Temple. No arrangement was however completed, although many of the degrees were in accordance with that view, given by him in the Royal Arch Chapters and Templar "Encampments."

The history of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in Scotland is more obscure. From documents shewn to me by Mr. A. Deuchar, it appeared that both he and the late Duke of Athole had received the 33° regularly, as they believed, and, in consequence, Mr. Deuchar received from France, in French, the Ritual of the 33°, I think also of the 31° or 32°, but these he already had.

I was admitted by A. Deuchar to the first degree of Mizraim as far as the 77th on 23rd November, 1842, and as Mr. Deuchar was anxious that I should relieve him of the trouble of looking after the high degrees, I was soon after promoted to the 90°, and I also obtained the highest degree of all the other rites.

No one doubted the perfect legality of our practising these until Dr. Morrison came, and, as the proper documents had been lost, he deemed that the Rite Ancient had been properly established, in consequence of the body with which he was connected in Paris laying down certain forms, which were not regarded necessary by the other body in France which practised the Right Ancient, viz., the Grand Orient of France, the only one now permitted to practise Masonry, and by which our body here would be regarded as irregular, having derived its authority from the polluted source of their opponents.

From this you will at once understand that, although there may be a doubt about the power of the Scottish Council of Rites, formed by the amalgamation of all the rites, to initiate any one into the Rite Ancient generally, we had a full right to confer all the degrees it contains except the 33° itself.

The object of establishing these degrees here was one merely of curiosity; no one considered it to be of the smallest value, and the only object was to keep up the knowledge of them as a record of the folly of those who aspired to "high degrees." A mere trifle was therefore charged for initiation, or rather affiliation, from those who resided in Scotland, but a higher rate was taken from those out of Scotland, because they had some peculiar object in view.

Now, if my memoranda be correct, James Bell and two others, all Knights of the Royal Order and Royal Arch companions of the Chapter Edinburgh, No. 1, were affiliated into the Degree of Rose Croix in March, 1845, and as our rule was to admit them members of all the rites as far as the same degree, in each, this would probably be done. The same at least were all admitted to the degree of K.H., and afterwards to the 87th Degree of Mizraim, to the 25th Degree of Rite of Perfection, and 32nd Degree of the Ancient Rite. Archibald Douglas alone was then admitted to the 33°, but I know that others were afterwards, but feel sure that among these Mr. Bell was not.

After Dr. Morrison established the 33° in his own fashion, I, feeling that there was great impropriety in there being two such powers in Scotland, refused to hold any meetings of the original body, although I did not object to confer the degrees in Mizraim and Rite of Perfection—in short, all except the "Grand Inspector General." I formed the determination rather to allow the whole to drop than to do anything that would cause umbrage. I ought to mention that Bro. W. Alex. Laurie, Secretary to the Grand Lodge, had been admitted to the Rose Croix, to the 90th of Mizraim, and to the 33rd Degree of the Ancient Rite in September, 1845.

After Dr. Morrison's death—at least, I think it was not till then—a proposal was made to me to join the 33°, as there was then a vacancy. I refused, unless arrangements could be made to admit also to the same degree they who had obtained from my Supreme Council all those in my list—and at a trifling fee—and that if there was no place for them at present in the corresponding degree they were to be received into that of next highest, with the understanding that they were to be promoted when a vacancy occurred, or at all events were to be so according to seniority—they to rank from the date at which they had obtained the degree from Supreme Council.

This was agreed to by the late J. L. Woodman, and I find a memorandum among my papers, dated Glasgow, 1st May, 1857, (at the time I left Glasgow and came to reside here, and when my Masonic papers were likely to get into great confusion by the flitting—indeed, some have entirely disappeared), to the following effect:—

"In consequence of the Rite Ancient having been established in Scotland by Dr. Charles Morrison, in connection with the Supreme Council of the 33° of France, and as the late Alex. Deuchar had left no documents to show that this Rite had been properly established in Scotland, and that he had been admitted a member of the 33rd Degree according to the precise manner laid down in its regulations, the members of the Supreme Council of Rites agreed, without any formal meeting, that they would no longer grant any degree as part of the Rite Ancient, and on the other hand the newly-formed body agreed to admit, as far as there was a place for them, those of the 33°, in connection with the Council of Rites, either to the 33°, or to the next highest degree in which there might be a vacancy, on payment of a modified fee. It was in consequence agreed, also, by the members of the Council of Rites, that in future they would not grant any degrees but those belonging to the Order of Mizraim, and, moreover, that they would not grant more than the 45th Degree to one who was not a member of the Royal Order, or of the 18th of the Rite Ancient, or more than the 63rd Degree until one had obtained the 30th of the Rite Ancient, or the 66th Degree to one who had not received the 31st in the Rite Ancient. This was agreed to, so as to avoid any collision, and in the hope that the fees would be made so moderate as not to exclude brethren. But the members of the Order of Mizraim reserved to themselves power at any time, if they saw cause, to act quite independently of the Rite Ancient, especially if they found it placed obstacles, either by high fees or the ballot, in the way of any brother of respectability, although not of civil rank, obtaining all the degrees up to the 31st inclusive.

"In consequence of the above, no meeting has taken place for several years, the general wish being to allow the Order of Mizraim to die out, unless for the purpose of admitting some worthy brother who would take charge of the papers of the body."

I do not recollect what the modified fees were (but think £1 1s.) made by the Supreme Council of 33°. I alone was admitted to the 33°, there being only one vacancy. Archibald Douglas and some others of my 33° were admitted to the 32°; others cared so little about it that they would not apply or pay the fee. W. A. Laurie, I believe, refused. Dr. MacRitchie and Thomas Elder MacRitchie were both entitled to join the 32°, but I do not know if they did so. Mr. Bell, about whom you wrote, was entitled to join the 32°, but not the 33°; or, if the number was limited, and no place for him, he was entitled to join the 31st, it being distinctly understood that the modified fee was to be a single payment for all the 31°, 32°, and 33°, and that no fee whatever was to be paid for K.H., or Rose Croix, unless they wished a diploma, when they were to pay for the parchment, &c.

I have faithfully kept to my part of the bargain, and hope that the Supreme Council will keep to theirs.

I regret to say that in the matter of the Royal Order, and the 18°, it was distinctly understood by Woodman and myself, when the articles of agreement were made, that every one admitted by the Royal Order as a Knight was entitled to be affiliated into the 18° without ballot or fees, the Royal Order paying the fee of £1 1s. for them. Had Woodman been alive this paction would never have been attempted to be broken, and will force me to grant the Rose Croix of the Order of Mizraim. You will recollect, also, that the Rose Croix formed part of the degree of the Temple in England and Scotland long before Dr. Morrison introduced the 33°. Mr. Bell's oath to the body under me prevents his publishing any secrets, and I do not believe he ever had access to the rituals, at least not from me.

Yours, very truly,

G. A. WALKER ARNOTT.

P.S. As I know you dislike reading or writing long letters, I shall here add a summary—my reasons being given above.

1. Mr. Bell was a member of the 32° before the Rite Ancient was established in Scotland by Dr. Morrison.

2. Mr. Bell is entitled to be admitted to the 31° of your now established Rite Ancient, in virtue of the agreement between me and Mr. Woodman—although rather late of asking to be affiliated with you.

3. Mr. Bell is not entitled to be affiliated except on payment of the modified fee, I believe £1 1s., but the Supreme Council books will show what the others paid—as Archd. Douglas, &c.

4. Mr. Bell is not entitled to free himself from his oath and publish any rituals, &c., unless you violate the paction with me.

5. Mr. Bell remains still a member of the 87° of Mizraim, which I regret you do not combine with the Rite Ancient, nearly as done in Ireland, in the one Supreme Council of Rites, and so end these squabbles.

6. The first principles of Masonry, I was taught, were equality as far as regards civil rank or private fortune, and to give high office to those only who had proved themselves best Masons, provided their character in the world was unblemished. By these principles I have been actuated throughout; and as Mr. James Bell had been admitted in the Royal Order, and afterwards into the Order of Mizraim, Perfection, &c., at a time, too, when it was difficult to rouse any one to assist in (the giving) the higher degrees, I see no reason why he ought not to be admitted at once to the 32°, or, if the number is limited, into the 31° until a vacancy in the 32° takes place, and that for the modified fee, but without ballot, and by merely taking the vow of allegiance to you.

7. I furnished Mr. Woodman at the time with a list of all (not many) who belonged to the several rites under me, and the degree in the series of 33° to which each was entitled. It would cost me too much trouble and time now to furnish another, from my having allowed the rites to become almost obsolete.

G. A. W. A.

Be so good as to read this postscript to Mr. Bell, or I will send a copy if you wish it.

Since writing the preceding I have found the following memorandum, apparently a copy of the one I gave to Woodman.

George Phil. Stanhope, 30°, 5th January, 1846.
J. L. Woodman, 33°, 5th January, 1846.

I freed Woodman from his obligation to us when he wished to join Dr. Morrison's body.

The letter, hitherto unpublished, by Dr. G. A. Walker Arnott to Alexander James Stewart (formerly Grand Clerk, then Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and Secretary General to the Supreme Grand Council 33°), is a most important document, and should be carefully noted by your numerous Scottish readers. The career of Dr. Arnott is too well known to require any notice from me, and masonically, I presume, few would claim to be his equals in knowledge, and none his superiors, throughout Scotland, his death being a great loss to the Craft. Bro. Stewart also was well known as Grand Clerk, and subsequently as Grand Secretary; the latter office he held but for a short time prior to his decease. Of the names mentioned I have but to state that Bro. Archibald Douglas (deceased) was a searcher of Public Records in Edinburgh. Bro. T. Sennebler (deceased) was a teacher of the French language and a foreigner. Bro. W. B. Callender (deceased) a landed proprietor, resided in Edinburgh. Bro. T. E. MacRitchie, a writer to the Signet, I am happy to state is still living, and a member of the present Supreme Grand Council 33°. Bro. James Bell (deceased), a solicitor in the Supreme Grand Courts of Scotland, and was proprietor of a bi-weekly newspaper called the "North Briton," published in Edinburgh. Bro. W. D. MacRitchie was a medical practitioner in the same city, since deceased. Bro. W. A. Laurie was the Grand Secretary of Scotland prior to Bro. Stewart. Bro. Laurie succeeded his father in that office, and the present Grand Secretary is a representative of the same family, beloved and respected by all who know him. Bro. Viscount Suidale became subsequently Earl of Donoughmore, and Grand Warden of Scotland, and Bro. T. L. Woodman was a writer to the Signet, Grand Clerk to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and has been dead for many years.

In the other names I have not discovered any particulars worth chronicling here.

A QUERY FOR BRO. J. C. PARKINSON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Do I understand our excellent Bro. J. C. Parkinson, to say Dr. Samuel Johnson was a Freemason, as appears from a speech at the centenary festival of St. Thomas's Lodge, recently reported in the columns of the "Freemason"? This is a new fact, and if a fact, most interesting to all.

Yours fraternally.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

BRO. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you in the cause of fair play allow me to say in the "Freemason" that, having learnt on the 26th of November last that a meeting of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons would be held on the 30th of that month, I at once addressed a letter to the Secretary, asking him to place before that Grand Lodge my claim, to be at once re-instated, on the ground of my expulsion having been illegally carried out, in defiance of Article 13 of the Constitutions of the Mark Degree, which provides that no brother shall be expelled from the degree without a hearing in Grand Lodge; and that my claim was suppressed from the meeting of Grand Lodge? I only ask for fair play, but the Temple is too strong in the government of the Mark Degree to let me have it.—Faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF THE NEW PRINCE'S DOCKS, BOMBAY.

One of the most interesting of all the ceremonies connected with the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to India, was the laying of the foundation stone of the Prince's Dock, with full Masonic honours, on Thursday, November 11th, when our Royal Grand Master made his first appearance in Asia as the head of our noble Craft.

As our readers will remember, these docks have long been talked of and written about, and a certain section of the community have even persuaded themselves that the vast City of Bombay would be better off without them at all! However, now that a beginning has been made, let us hope that the work may proceed rapidly, and that before many years are over "the Liverpool of the East" will be seen in possession of dock accommodation suitable to the requirements of its extended commerce. The new docks will accommodate thirty large ships and will be available at all seasons. The dimensions will be 1460 feet by 1000 feet, with a jetty 700 feet in length, the total area being 30 acres. The wharves round the dock are from 120 to 200 feet wide. The sills are to be laid at 59.30 on Bombay datum, so that there will be 21 feet on them at half tide, 24 feet at high-water of neaps, and from 27 to 30 feet at spring tides. The walls are to be from 37 to 45 in height, according to the nature of the foundation, and 17 feet thick at the bottom. They are to be of rubble masonry, with a facing of small ashlar and large binders. The stone will be of Bombay basalt, set in mortar made of local lime, mixed with ground pumice from Aden. These walls are about a mile and a half in length; the timber for the dams being procured from the forests of the Austrian Alps, and about 1000 tons have already arrived by the P. and O. Company's steamers from Venice. There are to be two entrances, each 60 feet wide in the clear, with a single pair of gates to each. The stones for the pointing sills are to be of Cornish granite, and are being supplied by Messrs. Freeman and Sons, of Penryn. These are of large dimensions, running up from 4 tons to 15 tons each. The last is the weight of each of the heel-stones. The platform will be secured by means of sluices on each side. A cast iron syphon-pipe is to be laid under both entrances, to hold the pressure-pipes for working the hydraulic gear of the gates, &c. The openings will be spanned by a swing-bridge 180 feet long, turning on the central pier. It is intended to have cranes and shears fit to lift weights up to 60 tons. The excavation from the dock will probably be deposited at Moody Bay, in continuation of the reclamation of that part of the foreshore. For the dredging of the entrance-channel plant is now being made in England. The dredger will be a very powerful machine. Each bucket will hold a ton, and 15 bucketsful will be discharged every minute into hopper barges alongside. The machine can be worked in water from 7 feet to 35 feet in depth. The dredger is being constructed by Messrs. J. and G. Rennie, of Blackfriars and Greenwich; and the three hopper barges are being made by Messrs. John Elder and Co., Glasgow. Each barge will carry 500 tons in its hopper, and the load can be discharged at once through the bottom, by means of tripping chains. The dredger and the hoppers will be all propelled by screws, and their engines are compound surface condensing, working with 60lbs. steam. The dredger's engine is 300 indicated horse-power, and each engine in the hopper is 180 indicated horse-power. The fleet—dredger and hoppers—will be sent out by the Suez Canal, and as their construction is now well advanced, they will probably be here by the end of the next monsoon. These docks are part of a great scheme, commenced about twelve years ago, and on which two millions sterling have been already expended. The whole scheme of reclaiming the harbour foreshore originated with the Hon. A. Malet, a member of Lord Elphinstone's government, in 1854, and has been supported by each successive government up to the present time.

The scene was most animated and picturesque, and the outside public evidently felt great interest in the unusual sight. Over the site a large mandwa had been erected, at the east end was placed the Grand Master's chair, which was of fine carved work, draped with crimson velvet and standing on a dais of green carpet. On either side thereof the visitors were accommodated, whilst the Masons, ranged under their respective banners, lined the pathway from the entrance to the chair. The posts supporting the roof were all draped with coloured cloths, and from the canvas covering hung numbers of flags and banners, arranged with a pleasing artistic effect. Conspicuous amongst the decorations were a number of shields bearing the coats of arms of the several Governors of Bombay, during whose administration the works, and the discussion arising out of them, have been successively carried on, viz.—Lord Elphinstone, Sir Geo. Clerk, Sir Bartle Frere, Sir Seymour Fitzgerald, and Sir Philip Wodehouse. The approach from the street to the spot where the stone stood was a distance of some 200 yards, and was covered in the whole way, and the floor, all along the centre, was carpeted with crimson cloth. Close to the entrance, and on either side, were two robing-rooms, erected for the convenience of the brethren in donning their Masonic attire; and from that point a long avenue, enclosed on either side, led to the main structure and the scene of the ceremony. Above and behind the Prince's chair, and forming a rich and striking background, was hung a beautiful standard emblazoned with all the quarterings of the Grand Master's arms, worked in various coloured silks, and adorned with a heavy fringe of crimson and gold. This banner, we believe, cost Rs. 4000. In the centre, behind, was worked in gold letters the following inscription:—"Presented by H. H. Mahabat Khanji, K.C.S.I., Nawab of Junagadh. Kathiavad, 1875." In front of the Prince's seat, and to the side of the stone, stood a table, on which was placed a splendid carved ebony casket, containing the implements to be used by His Royal Highness in laying the stone, viz.—A trowel, a mallet, and a plumb-level. The trowel-blade was of silver, richly chased with gold, and with a carved ebony and silver-gilt handle; and the plumb and mallet were both of carved ivory, mounted with silver and gold. They were all beautiful models of the useful instruments they were intended to represent. The face of the trowel bore this inscription—"The foundation stone of the Prince's Dock, Bombay, laid by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 11th November, 1875." And on the reverse side was another and longer inscription, which read as follows:—

"Wet Dock, 1460 ft. long and 1000 ft. wide; area 30 acres; depth on sill, neap tides, 24 ft., spring tides, 27 ft. Estimated cost, Rs. 67,43,397. Thomas Ormiston, M. Inst. C.E., Engineer. His Excellency the Honourable Sir Philip Edmond Wodehouse, K.C.B., Governor of Bombay. Trustees of the Port, Col. John A. Ballard, C.B., R.E., Chairman; the Hon. Edward W. Ravenscroft, C.S.; Lieut.-Col. Henry F. Hancock, R.E.; Commander George T. Robinson, late I.N.; Forster F. Arbuthnot, C.S.; Wm. G. Hall, Esq.; Geo. A. Kittredge, Esq.; Geo. F. Henry, Esq.; Henry P. LeMesurier, M. Inst. C.E.; Francis Mayhew, M. Inst. C.E.; The Hon. Nacoda Mahomed Ali Rogay; Sorabji Shapurji Bengali, Esq.; Geo. Manson, Secretary."

The casket itself stood on four silver claws, and had two massive silver handles and a silver plate on the top, bearing the inscription:—"Presented by the Trustees of the Port of Bombay to H.R.H. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, on the occasion of his laying the foundation stone of the Prince's Dock, Bombay, 11th November, 1875."

On the same table stood a sealed bottle, which was intended to be deposited in the cavity of the stone, and which contained copies of five Bombay newspapers:—"The Bombay Gazette," the "Times of India," the "Indian Statesman," the "Guzerat Mitra," and the "Indu Prakash;" a plan of the docks; and the current Indian coins, viz.:—Gold-mohur—ten rupee piece, and five rupee; Silver—rupee, half rupee, quarter rupee, and two annas; Copper—half anna, quarter anna, and pie. A copy of the "Masonic Record of Western India," in a hermetically sealed case, was added to these.

The foundation stone is of Bombay basalt, and bore, on the top the Prince's monogram A.E., and on each side the "Marks" of the Prince, the District Grand Master, the Grand Master of Scottish Freemasonry in India, Bro. Ormiston and R.W. Bro. M. Balfour, were chiselled in the stone, and brought prominently into notice by being marked with red paint. The upper portion of the stone was raised by means of a pulley, and in the lower half was the cavity intended for the reception of the bottle of coins, and papers, and the usual inscribed copperplate.

The seats began early to receive their occupants, and both sides soon presented a gay and picturesque appearance. The native side, filled with gorgeously-dressed rajahs and Parsee ladies, boasted the greatest variety of colour; but the Europeans, with the bright uniforms of military and naval officers plentifully sprinkled among the sober black of the civilians' evening dress, and the pretty and tasteful toilets of the ladies, formed also a striking and interesting spectacle. Among the native chiefs, there were present such distinguished and imposing-looking personages as Sir Salar Jung and other members of the Nizam's deputation, Sir Madhavarao, the Jam of Nowanuggur, the Thakore of Palitana, and H. H. Ali Shah; but the greatest attention was paid to the young Gackwar, who sat apart with his guardian, Sir R. Meade. The young prince wore the black velvet and gold-laced doublet in which he has usually appeared in public while in Bombay, and, besides his magnificent necklace of diamonds, a large gold medal, a silver scabbard and gold-hilted sword (almost as big as himself), and a beautiful gold watch and chain. The last three ornaments have been presented to his highness by the Prince of Wales, and he seemed immensely proud of them, exhibiting them freely, and with evident gratification, to a large number of ladies and gentlemen, who, attracted by the appearance of so young a boy so splendidly decked out, and interested by his extraordinary history, expressed a desire to be presented to him. The boy appeared much interested and pleased with the scene, and listened eagerly to the explanations and information given him by Sir R. Meade. Among the Bombay gentlemen present, we observed Sir William Merewether, Commissioner of Sind; Major-General Kennedy, R.E., Secretary to Government, P.W. Department; A. T. Crawford, Esq., C.S.; Dr. Lumsden, Sanitary Commissioner of the Presidency; Colonel Worgan; Mr. C. P. Cooper, Mr. G. W. Allen, T. C. Glover, Esq., the Contractor; the Trustees of the Port, viz.:—Col. Ballard, Lt.-Col. Hancock, Mr. Ravenscroft, Mr. Arbuthnot, Mr. Hall, Captain Henry, Mr. LeMesurier, Mr. Mathew, the Hon. Nacoda Mahomed Ali Rogay, and Mr. Sorabjee Shapurjee Bengalee, and Messrs. Maclean, Maneckjee Cursetjee, Wadia, and others.

The ceremony was announced to commence at a quarter to five, and shortly before that time the members of the District Grand Lodge, the Grand Lodge of Scotland for Hindustan, and the representatives of the various lodges, to the number of 550, were marshalled into order by Wor. Bro. Rowe (England), the District Grand Master of Ceremonies, aided by Bro. Yates (Scotland), the English brethren lining the right side and the Scotch the left. The banners looked particularly well, chief among them being those of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. While the brethren were being marshalled, H.E. the Governor, Sir Philip Wodehouse, arrived, and was received by Colonel Ballard and the members of the Trust, and shortly afterwards a cheer from the crowd outside announced the arrival of the Prince. His Royal Highness drove in a carriage and four, escorted by a party of the 3rd Hussars, and was received by a guard of honour of a Native regiment, who saluted as he passed. He was accompanied by Sir Bartle Frere, the Duke of Sutherland, K.G., and his suite, and was received by the Governor, who presented Col. Ballard, C.B., with whom the Prince shook hands, and the other members of the Port Trust. On alighting, the Prince disappeared for a few moments into the robing-room, and shortly emerged, wearing his apron, cuffs, and collar, as M.W. Grand Master of Freemasonry in England. He was otherwise dressed in a plain black frock-coat and white trousers, and the only ornament he wore beside his Masonic emblems was the Star of India; Sir Philip Wodehouse wore the Star of the Bath, Sir Bartle Frere that of the Star of India. While the Prince was dressing, the Governor and other non-Masonic members of H.R.H.'s suite, and the Port Trustees, proceeded to their places near the stone.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Quarterly Meeting of Subscribers to this Institution was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John Symonds, Past Grand Deacon, Vice-Patron, presided. Bros. Lieut. Col. Creaton, P.G.D.; John Symonds, C. F. Matier, H. Browne, A. H. Diaper, H. Massey ("Freemason"), W. Stephens, and F. Binckes, Past Grand Steward (Sec.), were also present. A long list of minutes of previous meetings of committees, &c., were read, after which nine vacancies were declared for filling up at next election out of a list of fifty-nine approved candidates.

The brethren then proceeded to consider the following recommendation of the General Committee, as notice of motion:—"That the right to the presentation of a properly qualified boy in perpetuity for admission to this institution be secured to the Province of Warwickshire on payment to the funds of this institution of one thousand guineas."

Bro. F. Binckes having read this notice of motion, which had been duly advertised,

The Chairman was about to put it to the meeting for adoption, when

Bro. W. Stephens asked whether the amount of £1000 to be paid for the privilege of having one boy in the school in perpetuity was quite sufficient. It appeared to him to be a small sum.

Bro. Binckes replied that before the institution came to the conclusion to fix that sum, the brethren took the opinion of an eminent actuary, who calculated that this was the right amount to charge. On this opinion they acted.

Bro. Henry Browne was of opinion that the amount was not sufficient, and he very much feared that if the law of the institution, that this sum was the price of a perpetual presentation, remained there would soon be a great number of presentation boys in the school.

Lieut. Col. Creaton did not think there ought to be any presentations at all. Still, the law was on the books that there should be, and until it was altered they could but follow it.

The Chairman said there was no law at all on the subject. There was a law as to the price of a presentation for life, but not one for a perpetual presentation.

Bro. Henry Browne asked what was the price of a presentation for life?

Bro. Binckes: 500 guineas.

Lieut. Col. Creaton: There is a law by which we can do it.

The Chairman: Oh, yes.

Bro. Henry Browne: I think we ought to amend the law, but it will take us some two months to do it according to our rules.

Bro. Binckes having read the law that a life presentation should be 500 guineas,

Bro. Henry Browne said that that bore no comparison to a presentation in perpetuity; it was very extravagant compared with that. They must, however, accept the rule that day; but he hoped some one would consider the matter and move the Court to alter the law.

The Chairman: There is no law adequate to this: it is a special law for each particular case. We have struck out the law by which any one was entitled to claim it.

Bro. Binckes said that a rider might be added as an expression of opinion to the resolution granting the presentation to Warwickshire that it was inexpedient that after the present time the privilege should be secured to a province in perpetuity at this sum.

The Chairman thought this could not be done without notice.

Bro. Binckes: But only as an expression of opinion.

Bro. W. Stephens said it would call the attention of the governors and subscribers to the matter.

Lieut. Col. Creaton: Yes; and some one will no doubt take it up.

Bro. W. Stephens said that more than one province now had a perpetual presentation, and that with the instances of these provinces before them other provinces might follow their example. This would be stopping the income of the institution to a great extent, because the different provinces would subscribe a sum of money that they might present a boy in perpetuity, and not subscribe further.

Lieut. Col. Creaton thought until there was a law passed against this granting of presentations they must pass this motion, but he was of opinion that it was right to add the rider suggested to the resolution.

The Chairman, therefore, put the motion, "That the application be granted on the recommendation of the General Committee; but that in the opinion of this meeting it is not desirable that any future similar presentation should be granted."

The motion was carried.

On Bro. C. F. Matier rising to propose the following motion, seconded by Bro. J. H. L. Hime, "That any brother not serving the office of Steward who may collect for the R.M.I. for Boys the sum of fifty guineas shall, when that sum is completed, be made a life subscriber, and have one vote for life, and should he collect a further sum of fifty guineas shall, on the completion thereof, receive an additional vote, and so on for every further fifty guineas he may collect."

The Chairman appealed to him not to press it at present, because pains had been taken to assimilate the laws of the Boys' School and the Girls' School, and no similar notice had been given to the latter institution. He might perhaps be told that it was competent for the Girls' School at the next Quarterly Court to adopt this resolution; but three months would elapse before that meeting took place, and then a different class of minds might be present and the motion might not be passed. It had been found very valuable in administering the affairs of the two institutions to have their laws similar; and on this ground he would appeal to Bro. Matier not to press his motion at present. He did not want to discuss the motion itself, as it would be out of place for him to do so; but he thought its terms would require consideration if brought before a future court. A hard and fast line should not be drawn. A difference might be made between Stewards and non-Stewards, and there should be perhaps a certain amount of option.

Bro. Matier expressed his readiness to comply with the Chairman's wish.

Bro. Henry Browne could not see any reason whatever in the argument of the excellent Chairman as regarded the Girls' School. He was quite satisfied that there would be notice given of a similar motion for that institution if it was carried now in the Boys' School. If it was withdrawn here, however, a brother might hesitate to give notice of the motion there. If a brother worked hard to get 50 guineas for either institution why should he not be rewarded with the privilege of a vote at each election for every 50 guineas he collected? He was quite at a loss to understand the pith of the Chairman's argument. If the motion was adopted in the Boys' School, he was sure in his own mind that the Girls' School would adopt it too. If it was good for one it was good for the other. The object of passing it now was that they would have the benefit of it at the next festivals of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, for which there was now ample time if the motion was passed that day. He did not wish to have the matter deferred, and consequently he was quite prepared, if Bro. Matier would proceed with his motion, to second it himself.

The Chairman, in explanation, said he did not propose that in all cases this school should have to follow the Girls'. He would rather that an important alteration of this kind were made at a Special Court of the two institutions, held jointly on the same day, so that there might be no possibility of a divergence of opinion between them. Notwithstanding all the arguments of Bro. Browne, he was not satisfied that it was absolutely certain that a law passed at this institution would be passed at the other. If it was not passed at the other, then they would be immediately breaking up the printing in parallel columns of the rules, which was their great beauty.

Bro. C. F. Matier said that as it was the wish of the Chairman he would defer his motion till next quarterly meeting; but he believed that such a law, if carried, would be found to bring in a large staff of unpaid canvassers. It would cost the institution nothing but a vote. It had been found that the large-hearted men who gave their ten guineas and five guineas placed their money on the Stewards' lists; but the bulk of the Craft, who could give their half-guinea or guinea, were not appealed to. It was for the purpose of getting them appealed to that he brought forward his motion. However, in deference to the wish of the Chairman, he would postpone it till next Quarterly Court.

The Chairman again suggested that there should be a Special Joint Court of the two institutions to discuss the question. As trustee of the Boys' School he had the power to request Bro. Binckes to summon a Special Court of the Boys' School, and Lieut.-Col. Creaton, who was present, had the same power with respect to the Girls' School.

Lieut.-Col. Creaton concurred.

Requisitions were then drawn up and signed for the summoning of a Joint Special Court of the two institutions for the 5th Feb., at three o'clock p.m., and with a vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding the proceedings of the day terminated.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The annual entertainment of the boys who did not go home for the holidays was given on Friday, the 7th inst., at the school house, Wood Green. The inclemency of the weather was against a large attendance of visitors, but several brethren of the Lewis Lodge, No. 1185, were present, with the members of their families, to take part in the amusements of the evening, and assist in making the pupils happy. The Rev. Dr. Morris, the head master, was present; Bros. C. F. Matier, of Manchester; Binckes, Secretary; Miss Hall, matron, and the general staff of the institution also. There were numerous amusements provided for the boys, the principal one, however, being Mr. Bridgman Smith's two lectures, "The World," and "Cinderella," accompanied by his excellent dissolving views. Those of the former illustrated the natural wonders to be seen in different parts of our globe, and of the latter the well-known fairy tale. The entertainment was highly appreciated, and gave our young friends especial delight. On Tuesday last the entertainment was supplemented by the boys being taken to see the capital pantomime at the Alexandra Palace.

The subscriptions to this institution amounted in 1875 to the enormous sum of £13,211, thus exceeding the estimated amount announced at last festival by £500.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A Quarterly Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the above Institution was held on Saturday last in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Lieut.-Colonel J. Creaton, P.G.D., Vice-Patrol, was voted to the chair. Among the other brethren present were Bros. H. Browne, P.G.D.; John A. Rucker, P.G.D.; Walter Wellsman Samuel Poyater, Thomas W. White, E. H. Finney, George Kenning, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; Robert Kenyon, Robert B. Webster, Thomas Massa, Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; John Symonds, P.G.D.; E. J. Barron, P.G.S.; S. Rawson, P. Dist. G.M. China; Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D.; George Wright, H. Muggeridge, W. Roebuck, A. H. Diaper, H. M. Levy, W. F. C. Moutrie, W. Dawson, John Boyd, P.G.P.; F. D. R. Copestick, Fredk. Keily, W. Hall, H. Massey ("Freemason"), and R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G.S.W., Middlesex (Secretary).

Bro. Little having read the notice calling the meeting, and the minutes of former meeting, which were put and confirmed, the Chairman called on Bro. Kenyon to bring forward the following motion, of which he had given notice:—"That a branch school be established as soon as practicable, and that a committee of five Governors be appointed to inspect a freehold estate at Sunninghill, comprising about ten acres and a half, with a view to purchasing the same, and erecting the requisite school thereon; that the outside cost of the land and buildings shall not exceed £15,000."

Bro. Kenyon said that out of due deference and respect to the members of the Special Committee, to whom this question had been amongst others referred, he wished to postpone all discussion on his motion set down for consideration that day. The Christmas holidays had intervened since he gave notice of this motion, and no meeting of the Committee could possibly have taken place. He, therefore, should propose that until that committee had made its report he should not bring on any discussion of his motion. He would, therefore, either withdraw his notice, and give a fresh notice for next Court, or postpone the present motion till that time. He would ask not to be called upon at present to make his motion (hear, hear), and it was out of respect to the committee that he did so.

Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., thought Bro. Kenyon should withdraw his motion, and he would propose that that should be done, because it was hardly fair perhaps, while the subject was before the Special Committee, to get this motion on before the Quarterly Court. Bro. Kenyon had exercised a wise discretion. He (Bro. Joseph Smith) should have opposed the motion tooth and nail if it had been brought on. If Bro. Kenyon's motion had been carried it would have been by stealing a march upon the committee.

Bro. Kenyon begged (Bro. Joseph Smith's) pardon. He had given notice that he would bring on his motion at this meeting, and having appeared in his place for the purpose of doing so he had fulfilled his plan. The report of the committee might render it unnecessary for him to renew his motion.

The Chairman asked whether he understood that Bro. Kenyon withdrew his notice of motion.

Bro. Kenyon replied that he thought that would be the right course.

The notice of motion was accordingly withdrawn.

The Chairman then called for Bro. H. W. Hemsworth to bring forward the motion of which he had given notice, "That not more than two children of same parents be admitted to this institution at the same time," but Bro. Hemsworth not being present and no brother moving on his behalf, the matter fell to the ground.

Bro. Robert B. Webster thereupon brought on his motion, upon the recommendation of the General Committee:—"That the sum of twenty guineas be granted to Miss Moss, late assistant governess, as a gratuity on her retirement from the school." Miss Moss, he said, had been in the school now something like twenty years, and had during that time won the confidence of every one connected with the institution. (Hear hear.)

Bro. John Symonds, Past Grand Deacon, and Vice-Patron of the institution, said that he had the greatest pleasure in rising to second the motion. Having been for many years connected with the school he had had an opportunity of seeing Miss Moss's career in that school. He was sure that every brother must feel she thoroughly deserved the higher promotion she had obtained. She had faithfully followed in the steps, first of Miss Brandenburgh, of the London Orphan Asylum, and afterwards of Miss Davis, in the school. The British Orphan Asylum in obtaining Miss Moss as head governess had secured the services of a most efficient mistress. She had earned the respect of all the brethren; and the very least compliment they could pay her on her leaving the Masonic Girls' School was to present her with a gratuity of the nature proposed. (Hear hear.)

The Chairman observed that if he might be allowed to add a few words on the subject he would say that he quite concurred in all the remarks that had fallen from the two preceding speakers. Miss Moss had been a most valuable governess, and she had been connected with the school nearly twenty-one years. He was only sorry that the sum proposed to be given her was not larger than it was. Twenty guineas was really too small a sum. Some short time ago they had given £20 to the gardener's wife, who had not one tithe of the claim on them that Miss Moss had. He only wished he had the power of moving that the sum should be larger.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, Past Grand Deacon, said perhaps Bro. Webster would withdraw his motion for the present, and then bring forward at the next court a motion including the increased sum.

Bro. Webster replied that he would do so.

Bro. W. Roebuck quite agreed with Bro. Stewart. Miss Moss at the present time ought to have held a much better position than she had (a Brother: "No doubt about it.") He would be glad to see the amount increased to fifty guineas.

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., entertained much the same view on the subject as the worthy chairman, a feeling of regret that the sum proposed was not larger than twenty guineas, but as that sum had been recommended by the General Committee to this Court, it would not do for the brethren now to take any exception to it. He was, however, quite sure that the course which had been suggested would commend itself to all of them, and it was on that ground he would second the proposition to withdraw the motion.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., would, in a friendly spirit, move as an amendment to Bro. Webster's proposal that the matter be referred to the House Committee. They could recommend it to the General Committee, and then it would come back to the Quarterly Court.

The Chairman said he quite advocated such a course; the House Committee would, he felt sure, fall into the views which had been expressed.

Bro. John A. Rucker, P.G.D., as a member of the House Committee, informed the Court that there was a very strong feeling among the brethren of the House Committee that the sum of twenty guineas which they were proposing was too small; and, it was only from fear that the larger sum would not be carried unanimously at the Quarterly Court that they determined on recommending the smaller sum. They thought it would be better to give a small sum, unanimously voted, than run the risk of a large sum not being unanimously granted.

The Chairman: I am sure that explanation is very satisfactory.

The matter was then referred back to the House Committee, on the motion of Bro. Robert B. Webster, seconded by Bro. John Symonds.

Eleven vacancies were then declared for next election, and the list of candidates was settled at forty-four.

On the motion of Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., seconded by Bro. S. Rawson, Past District Grand Master of China, a vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman for presiding, and the Chairman having replied, the brethren separated.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The annual Twelfth-night celebration which is provided by the members of the House Committee of this Institution to the girls who remain in the school during the Christmas holidays was held on Thursday week, on the premises at Battersea Rise. Thirty-nine of the pupils had not gone home for the holidays, but their Christmas had been merrily spent, and everything had been done to make them happy and comfortable. And very happy and comfortable they had been, for Christmas cheer had been bestowed upon them, and Christmas amusements had been partaken of. The crowning point, however, of these amusements is reached on Twelfth-day, when the House Committee, with the ladies of their families, Bro. Little, the Secretary of the Institution, and Mrs. Little; the familiar old form of Bro. Henry Muggeridge, the collector; Bro. Hedges, Miss Jarwood, the matron and centre figure, with the governesses, all join the young people in the general festivities. Miss Davis, the head governess, was this year away on her holidays, but Miss Redgrave, the successor of Miss Moss (who has become head governess of the British Orphan Asylum), most ably discharged the hostess's duties. The weather without the walls of the Institution was cold and cheerless; snow fell in large quantities, and the traveller by road felt the necessity of Christmas cheer. In bright contrast to this wintry weather, and the brighter for the contrast, was the aspect of the building from the exterior. The festivities commenced early in the afternoon, and when darkness set in, the lights in the windows, the fires burning, the music playing, and the sounds of dancing and cheerful voices within the house, promised the visitor a hearty welcome. Flitting to and fro along the corridor were to be seen through the glass doors of the entrance hall the little girls walking in couples to an fro, neatly dressed waiting maids, and here and there a committee man or his wife, anxious that nothing should be wanting that might add to the evening's enjoyment. On entering, this was more manifest, for in addition to the hearty welcome with which a visitor was received, "Welcome," in Christmas emblems, was profusely displayed on the walls. The children's tea was provided at four o'clock, and in the interval between that and the visitors' tea, which was partaken of at five, visitors and children engaged in dancing and music. At five the visitors sat down to tea, and among those present were the following:—Bros. Benj. Head (without whom these agreeable gatherings would lose much of their charm), H. Collington, Joshua Nunn, Mrs. Nunn, Miss Nunn, Mrs. Rowland, Miss Rowland, H. A. Dubois, Miss Dubois, Robert B. Webster, H. C. Levander, H. d'Antier, John A. Rucker, H. M. Levy, R. H. Tattershall, H. Massey, ("Freemason"), Thomas W. White, H. Muggeridge, Mrs. Muggeridge, Miss Muggeridge, Miss Sawyer, R. W. Little, Mrs. Little, E. H. Thiellay, Edward Cox, John Boyd, Mrs. and Miss Massey, Bro. Hedges, and F. J. Cox. No time was lost; and the visitors after tea again joined the children in the merry dance. Before seven o'clock Bro. F. J. Cox (optician of Ludgate-hill) had kindly furnished his beautiful dissolving views and an operator and lecturer, and the large exercise room was fitted up for the exhibition. Nearly two hours of this excellent entertainment was provided, and visitors, matron, governesses, pupils, and servants of the institution participated in it. It was admirable in design and execution, and met with unqualified admiration. After this the children went to supper, when the twelfth-cake, wine, bonbons, and drawing for characters occupied the attention of every one for another hour. Again, dancing, refreshments to visitors, bonbons, and characters, cheerful and happy conversation, reminiscences of the old school, always gratifying (some of the pupils had come down to join in the entertainment), and then more dancing and singing. In the last acquirement, Miss Josephine Mackay created great excitement by her wonderfully beautiful execution of the song, "The Bridge." Her careful singing and exquisite voice took the company entirely by surprise, and she was greatly cheered on her resuming her seat. Thus matters went on till ten o'clock at night, when London visitors, knowing "the perils that do environ" travellers by Clapham Junction, had to think of the principal peril of losing a train. On a wintry night this was a weighty consideration, and even the bright happy faces of the children, the hospitable reception, and the warm rooms of the building, could not induce them to stop. Therefore, after having spent a most happy evening, and wishing all the inmates a happy new year and many of them, they took their departure. The amount of subscription to this institution during the past year is £8663 14s., £1600 more than was announced at the last festival. This is exclusive of the grants made to the institution by Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, and also exclusive of dividends on invested funds.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday last, in the library, Freemasons' Hall, Lieut. Col. Creation in the chair. There were also present Bros. S. Rawson, Benj. Head, Raynham W. Stewart, Charles Lacey, R. Wentworth Little, W. Hale, W. Hilton, James Brett, W. Stevens, H. M. Levy, Geo. Bolton, Joshua Nunn, Thomas W. White, John Newton, Henry G. Warren, John M. Stedwell, L. Stean, F. Adlard, Dr. Jabez Hogg, John Constable, H. Massey ("Freemason"), and James Terry, Secretary.

After the minutes had been read and confirmed, the Secretary reported the deaths of nine annuitants, five men and four women. The Wardens' report, which was also read by the Secretary, informed the committee of the receipt of 56 sacks of coals, the gift of Grand Lodge. The report also conveyed the thanks of the inmates for the very successful entertainment given to them on the 5th inst., and also for Bro. W. Hale's gift of 11b of tea to each inmate, and for the gifts of tobacco, &c.

The Financial Committee's report was received, to which was appended a recommendation that on account of the Secretary's duties being so much increased an addition of £50 a year be made to his salary. (This will come before the Committee at their next meeting.)

The brethren then proceeded with the consideration of the petitions, which occupied an hour. In the end it was found that 12 women and 6 men had been passed. One case (male) was rejected, and one widow's petition for half her late husband's annuity was granted. The petition of a widow, who some time since left the asylum to live with her friends, to be allowed to return, was allowed, though the principle was objected to. The petition of the friends of Louis Holberg, for the return of 50 guineas which he had given to the institution, was refused, the grounds advanced for such return being decided to be totally insufficient. The list of candidates for next election was thereafter settled, the number being 59, 26 men and 33 women; 21 new male cases, and 5 brought forward; and 17 new female cases, and 16 brought forward.

The Committee passed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, and adjourned till the 8th February.

ORGANS.—We have much pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the many advantages offered by THE ESTEY AMERICAN ORGAN, and to this original and genuine instrument the credit for superior excellence alone belongs. Among the numerous improvements introduced the Patent Vox Humana is deserving of special attention, a wonderful invention, imparting to the tone a charming wave-like effect, hitherto unknown in instrumental music. In addition there are numerous patents in connection with THE ESTEY AMERICAN ORGAN, among which we select for notice the Patent Octave Coupler, and the Manual Sub-Bass, &c. These organs are designed for the Drawing-room, Public Halls, Churches, Schools, Lodges, &c., in prices varying from 12 to 125 guineas, especial attention being called to an eight-stop organ, 38 guineas, possessing sufficient power for the Drawing-room, with great variety and sweetness of tone; and a ten-stop Instrument, with many patented improvements, 50 guineas—of the latter, no need organ of its size and price will bear comparison to it. We strongly advise Masonic brethren visiting London, and those resident in Town, who are about purchasing, either for private use or Public Halls, Masonic or otherwise, Churches, &c., to visit the ESTEY AMERICAN ORGAN COMPANY'S Show Rooms, 6, Argyll-st., Regent-st., where every attention and information will be afforded, and the several instruments can be seen. Every instrument made by the firm fully warranted, and so simply arranged, that the most ordinary performer can manage it. Illustrated pamphlet and price-list on application and post-free.

The installation meeting of the Enoch Lodge, No. 11, took place on Wednesday last. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

"THE GOLDEN PHEASANT," "YOUNG FOLKS' WEEKLY BUDGET."—London. J. Henderson.

We are struck with these evidences of the love of fairy tales which exist amongst us, nay, seems to be increasing amongst us at the present hour. In our young days even fairy tales were going out, and realistic stories like "Sandford and Merton," "The Boys' own Book," &c., were coming in. Not that "Robinson Crusoe" was unknown, or the tales of the Genii unread, or the "Arabian Nights" were strange to us then—no, they were duly perused, alike at a "scoob" at Winchester, and on a wet day, and before the fire. But the "Swiss Family Robinson Crusoe," with its greater details of actuality, and the "Old English Baron," and "The Seventh Champion of Christendom" gave way to Peter Parley's tales, and countless other useful and improving booklets for youth. And here we are after the lapse of how many years?—well never mind—with a fresh "outcome" of fairy literature before us. A profound writer who has been "discoorsing" eloquently and "elegantly" on fairy literature, in the "Times" newspaper, as they say, hardly seems to realize the immense amount of current productions of this kind, which find a ready sale, and countless young and trusting readers. He may be au fait as regards the past, and he writes very well about it, but as to the present he is certainly not "up," and we must therefore deal with the subject as a subject "sui generis" ourselves. Well, we do not find fault with the taste for this fairy literature on the part of the young, though some have decried it, and more have condemned it. And for this reason. We believe, that in this love of fairy literature, we discern the traces of those nobler aspirations which still amid many weaknesses, much debasement, and patent evil, seem to cling, so to say, to our poor humanity. For in fairy tales we have vice, if triumphant for the moment, eventually overthrown, virtue prevailing, and good upheld, the base and the cowardly, and the crooked go to the wall, and the honourable, and the brave, and the upright, win the race, and conquer in the struggle. The good fairy always appears at the right moment, says the right thing, and does the right act. Why then is youth to be blamed, if in an ideal world of its own it seeks to find the typical representatives of virtue and constancy, of right and faith, of trust and duty, of all that is fair, and loving in this darkened world of ours? We do not, ourselves, much care how you implant a love of these graces and virtues in the youthful mind, if only you do so. Some minds are affected by the essay and sermon, others by the imaginative and mystical; all in our opinion ought to be pressed into the moral education of the young, as then if ever, the admiration of the true, the beautiful, the right, is to be implanted in their tender breasts. King Pippin and the Golden Pheasant, will be read, no doubt, by many trusting juvenile students, and we find no fault with their tastes, neither do we frown on their love of the marvellous, because we firmly believe au contraire, that in their loyal hearts and loving sympathies they admire all that is gracious and noble, and beneficent and brave, and they condemn with their happy earnestness the lower teaching of that grovelling school, which delights to picture dirt, and is utterly reckless of dishonour, and ignorant of moral truth and beauty.

THE LADIES' TREASURY. Edited by MRS. WARREN.—BEMROSE & SONS.

This is a most interesting magazine for what the intelligent foreigner called "our vimmins" and we have pored over its pages with much of mental admiration. Certainly the ladies are ahead of us, and if you may judge by the "Ladies' Treasury," they are equally "au fait" of the latest Parisian fashions, or of the last excursions into the ologies; poetry, and romance, crochet work and cookery, sentiment and sobriety, all are "fish for their net," and if the men don't look out, as old John Jones says, there'll be no "holding 'em in." Nay, if our own domestic angel wishes to see how best she can be dressed, or how well she can be instructed, let her study the "Ladies' Treasury."

THE WESTMINSTER PAPERS.—W. KENT & CO.

An interesting serial for proficient in chess and lover of whist. We commend it to both classes, as we think both games deserve to be cultivated amongst us, despite the opposition of some well meaning but fanatical persons.

THE ARTIST.—HARRISS & SON.

This is a new weekly journal for the artistic world, and very promising it is.

WHITTAKER'S JOURNAL.

This is also a new venture, and we are dealing with No. 1. It seems to us very likely to be a success; and we wish it heartily a good "trade wind." We are especially struck with "As Long as She Lived," and shall follow the story with interest and pleasure.

THE "ERA" ALMANACK.

We wish that we could give to this useful and interesting publication the space it deserves. We could linger a long time by it, for it is rendered doubly interesting by the autographs of actresses and actors, with whose names and features we are many of us so familiar. Among the former appear the well-known names of Marie Bancroft, Madge Kendal, Ada Swanborough, Lydia Thompson, Ellen Terry, Marion Terry, Adelina Patti, Charlotte Saunders, Ada Lester, Mrs. John Wood, Emily Fowler, Rose Hersee, Emma Albani, Genevieve Ward, Fanchita, Mrs. K. Crowe, Helena Ernstone, Adeline Billington, Caroline Hill, Ada Ward, Fanny Brough, Minnie Walton, Myrie Fairfax, and Ellen Meyrick. Among the latter we note the popular appellations of G. W. Anson, Dion Boucicault, Wm. Terris, George Conquest, Joseph Eldred, John Ryder, Henry Compton, Henry Howe, John Clark, Henry Sinclair, Frank Holland, Wm. Kendall, C. Santley, G. Clarke, Thomas Thorne, and many more, all living representatives of the "poor actors," who still can warm our sentiment, delight our sympathies, arouse our emotions, and excite our risibility. We are among those who wish well to the stage and to those who play their parts so well, for the amusement of us ungrateful mortals. Let Mawworm denounce, let Bartolo calumniate actresses and actors the ornaments of the crowded theatre, may equally adorn private life, with unostentatious virtue, and kindly natures. That the stage has its pitfalls, and its snares, and its dangers, who will deny? But so has human life, and in our opinion, the prejudice which too often accompanies the word "actress" or "actor," is a disgrace to civilization, and we will even say to religion. We look upon the stage as a great school of morals, and a passing if genial satire upon our follies and faults, our high flown pretensions and our baser developments; and if it ever degenerates into licence, or is vitiated by a forgetfulness of propriety and decorum, the fault is not with the stage itself as a profession. If in order to raise the cachinnations of the gaudier, or to gain the applause of the anser, indecency and vulgarity mark its utterances, the blame is to be visited, not on those who live to please, but on perverted intellects, and debased sympathies, on the taste and temper of the age, on those who tempt only to betray, and who insolently patronize only to degrade. We thank the editor of the "Era Almanack" for a very readable and pleasant book.

Masonic and General Tidings.

Having completed his University education, H.R.H. Prince Leopold has given up his residence at Oxford, known as Wykeham House, and has taken up his abode at Boyton, Codford, Wilts, where his goods have been recently removed. The installation of His Royal Highness as Provincial Grand Master of the Freemasons of Oxfordshire will, it is understood, take place on February 22nd.

The annual banquet and meeting of the Unanimity Lodge, No. 102, was held on Monday last, the visitors including the Grand Master of the Province of Norfolk, Bro. Lieut. Col. the Hon. F. Walpole, M.P. At this meeting Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Suffield, the W.M. elect, should have been installed, but, as his lordship is now in India with H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, that ceremony is postponed until his return. A fuller report of this meeting will appear in our next.

A quarterly court of the Needleworkers' Company was held in the Guildhall, when a considerable number of the livery were present. The Master, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Past Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex, J.P., delivered an address, advising them to do all in their power to maintain the company's ancient rights and privileges, and presented to each liveryman a certificate, engrossed on vellum, of his admission to the freedom of the company.

The Royal York Lodge, No. 315, held a private ball on Tuesday night, at the Pavilion, Brighton, in aid of the Masonic charities. The band of the Royal Scots Greys attended, by permission of Col. Nugent and the officers of the regiment, and the company numbered about 150.

Bro. Alderman Stone has contributed £5 5s. to the funds of the Gifford Hall Mission.

The Town Council of St. Helen's, Lancashire, have bought the local gas-works for £131,000.

The members of the Benevolent Fund attached to the Lodge of Joppa met on Monday evening last, at Bro. Albert's, the Hon. Sec., to elect a President for the ensuing year. After a short discussion, owing to a member of the lodge being present who was not eligible to serve on the committee, the brethren proceeded to ballot, when Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. and Senior V.P., was elected by a considerable majority. We regret to say that Bro. S. E. Hickman, I.P.M., one of the trustees, was unable to attend in consequence of meeting with an accident the day before.

The Cestrian Chapter, No. 423, will be consecrated on Monday next, the 17th inst., at the Grosvenor Hotel, Chester, by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Superintendent, Lord de Tabley, for which purpose his lordship has given directions for a convocation of R.A. Freemasons to be summoned for 2-30 p.m. on that day. His lordship will be assisted in the ceremonies of consecration of the chapter and installation of the Principals by his Provincial Grand Officers and Comp. Henry Muggeridge, Past Grand Standard Bearer of England. The Principals (Designate) of the chapter are Comps. Horatio Lloyd, M. E.Z.; John Chesworth Robinson, H.; and John Oswell Bury, J.

The Captain Superintendent of the Goliath, who has been so warmly commended for his kindness to the poor boys under him, and for the example of courage he placed before them in standing on the burning ship until the last, saying, when urged to leave, "That's not the way at sea, my boys," is an old brother, and every Mason will rejoice that Bro. Captain Bouchier succeeded in rescuing so many of the poor boys. He was warmly supported by Bro. Jenkins, the Harbour Master of Gravesend.

The annual Masonic Ball in Liverpool, which took place at the Town Hall, last Tuesday, was a very successful affair, and the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution will doubtless be greatly augmented in consequence. A full report of the ball will appear in next week's "Freemason."

Bro. Major E. S. Stillwell, of the 1st London Engineer Volunteers, has been gazetted Lieut.-Colonel.

The Metropolitan Club of Instruction, No. 1507, will hold its anniversary festival at 269, Pentonville-road, on the evening of the 28th inst. The brethren will sit down to banquet at half-past six o'clock.

A MASONIC PRESENTATION.—At a meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Staffordshire, held at Tamworth, on the 23rd of September last, it was resolved to give a wedding present to Lady Theresa Talbot, eldest daughter of the Earl of Shrewsbury, Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, on her marriage with Viscount Castlereagh. Accordingly, a committee was appointed, consisting of Major Tudor, P.D.P.G.M.; Mr. Frank James, D.P.G.M.; Mr. H. Woodhouse, P.P.G.D.; Mr. James Rodgers, P.P.G.D.; and Mr. J. Jacobs, P.P.G.R., and the movement having been heartily taken up by the various lodges in the province, it was decided that the present should take the form of a diamond pendant and necklet, bearing appropriate Masonic emblems. The ornament is in 18-carat gold, and is surmounted with an earl's coronet, jewelled with diamonds, rubies, and emeralds. Around the locket proper are 34 large diamonds, and Masonic emblems in the centre—namely, the square and compasses, and the five pointed star, with the word "Staffordshire" underneath. On the reverse side of the locket is the following inscription:—"Presented by the Freemasons of Staffordshire to Viscountess Castlereagh, eldest daughter of the P.G. Master, October 2nd, 1875." The necklet consists of alternate oblong and circular links, the latter bearing the five-pointed star and other ornamentations, and the links are joined together at the bottom with the Staffordshire knot. The jewel is enclosed in a handsome case, and altogether it is a very pretty present. It is expected that the Viscountess will return from her honeymoon next week, when the presentation will be made; and for this purpose the committee, with Mr. Davis, have been invited to Ingestre Hall, by the Earl of Shrewsbury.—"Daily Post," Dec. 25th, 1875.

INFORMATION OF IMPOSTORS.

In pursuance of our purpose to aid in shielding the Craft from the numerous impostors who strive to ply their nefarious trade at the expense of the charities of the fraternity, we give below brief, pointed descriptions of several who have been recently detected in this jurisdiction. We are indebted to Bro. John P. Clark, Secretary of Newport Lodge, 381, F. and A.M., Newport, Perry County, Pa., for the following names and descriptions, and we will thank other Secretaries to further us in our laudable undertaking to aid in exposing those who have been discovered to be impostors.

It will be observed that all of the following claimed to hail from jurisdictions outside of our own:—

We are indebted to a Louisiana brother for the following description of an impostor who is now, or lately was, in that State, having come from Illinois:—Name, W. W. Temblum, with several aliases; about five feet eight inches in height; dark complexion; large, full, blue eyes; well built; about thirty-five years of age; fluent in speech; and "bright."

Hair steel-mixed; eyes grey; gray whiskers below jawbone; height about five feet five inches; thin; face pallid; large and long upper lip; says his age is seventy-seven in September; keen look out of his eyes; is known in Morenci; is not a member of any lodge in the United States.

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE, the Original and Only Genuine, immediately Relieves and Cures Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Spasms, Colic, Whooping Cough, and all Nerve Pain. It acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. It rapidly relieves pain from whatever cause, soothes and strengthens the system under exhausting diseases, and gives quiet and refreshing sleep. (Numerous testimonials accompany each bottle.)

Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish, and Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24, 1873. Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 20s. Sold by all chemists.

The following testimonial is one out of many:—
From G. F. SMITH, Esq., Manager Licensed Victuallers' Pure Tea Company.

9, Curtain-road, London, E.C., Sept. 21, 1875.
Sir,—I have taken your invaluable "Chlorodyne," (especially in the winter time) for some years. When I was advised first to use Chlorodyne I procured some of Collis Browne's. It did me no good whatever, I then bought some of your preparation. I firmly believe (under God) that it has been the means of prolonging my life, am affected (or rather was affected) with severe "Winter Cough," at now, when supplied with your incomparable specific, I defy my old enemy, and drive him out of the system.
I knew nothing personally of you, Sir, nor, for that matter, of Mr. Collis Browne; but I knew that his preparation of Chlorodyne does me no good whatever, and, it is with deep gratitude to you that I now pass my winters free from cough, and in comfort.
Yr. Mr. RICHARD FREEMAN.

None genuine without the words, "Freeman's Original Chlorodyne," engraved on the Government Stamp.

Numerous Testimonials from the most eminent medical men accompany each bottle.

ENOCH LODGE (No. 11).—This old lodge met on Wednesday 12th inst. at Freemasons' Hall, for the installation of the new W.M. Bro. E. J. Bradstreet, W.M., presided, and raised Bros. J. S. and S. Cakebread, Hanneford, and John Smith. Afterwards, the veteran Bro. Peter Matthews installed Bro. E. C. Taylor as W.M., thus adding another year to the many annual occasions on which he has performed this important office. The following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. Tubbey, S.W.; Oxenham, J.W.; Charles Watson, P.M., Treas.; Peter Matthews, P.M., Sec.; Pigott, (D.C.L.), S.D.; Heald, J.D.; Garrett, I.G.; Oakley Coles, M.C.; Charles Venables (Prov. G. Organist, Berks and Bucks), Organist; and Bro. J. Woodstock, Tyler. As Bro. Charles Watson stands as Steward for the Benevolent Institution £5 was voted to his list. Two guineas were voted to the Girls' School and two guineas to the Boys. A handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Bradstreet, and a sumptuous banquet was provided for the brethren at the conclusion of the working of the lodge. When this was over the W.M. proposed the toasts with fluency and brevity, and the brethren in the intervals were treated to some beautiful singing by Bros. Farquharson, F. H. Cozens, and H. D. Martin, the music being very superior and obtaining the heartiest applause. One of Bro. Colard Moutrie's oblique grand pianos, similar to those supplied to the two schools, and to the institutions in Ireland, was used, and the musical brethren elicited its magnificent capabilities, to the great delight of the company. Bro. Bird, a very old P.M. of the lodge, replied for the P.M.'s, and referred with great feeling to the "old times" when he used to meet in the lodge faces which have long been missed from this sublunary sphere; nevertheless, there were many old P.M.'s present, and among them were Bros. Henry Potter, Isaac Bird, W. F. C. Moutrie, George J. Palmer, W. H. Honey, John Young, J. H. McQueen; besides Bros. C. Watson and Peter Matthews. The members and visitors present were Bros. H. Smith, P.M. 1360; E. Peacock, 1360; F. A. Barnard, Clydesdale, S.C. 1360; E. Preston, 65; Reginald Taylor, 177; G. A. Garnett, P.M. Camden; T. Boyce W. Lane, W.M. 28; F. H. Cozens, Org. 907; Thomas Young, Peace and Harmony; Gilbert Venables, 357; W. A. Holden, Peace and Harmony; G. W. Martin, 1309; R. Farquharson, 99; H. Massey ("Freemason"). The brethren of this lodge, according to ancient custom, entertained the numerous visitors with the greatest hospitality. Bro. Venables, Organist (Prov. G. Org. Berks and Bucks), informed the W.M. that he would in the forthcoming year, as he had before, be glad to place the services of his choir at the disposal of the lodge once during the season, when the brethren would have the gratification of hearing some good music. The W.M. expressed his willingness to accept Bro. Venables' proffered kindness, and thanked him for the offer which he had made.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—The Domatic Lodge, which now numbers 190 members, met on Friday week at Anderson's Hotel. Bro. George Everett, W.M., presided for the last time during his year, and raised Bros. Gilbert, Ferrier, Billingham, W. J. Bennett, Zoebeli, and Simner. He also initiated Messrs. Guym, W. Cook, S. R. Stevens, and John Abrahams. Afterwards Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., installed Bro. A. Treadwell as W.M., when the following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. James Willing, S.W.; Wm. Palmer, J.W.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P., Treas.; T. Williams, Secretary; J. Buscall, S.D.; G. Clarke, J.D.; E. White, I.G.; McLean and Spinks, Stewards; and Daly, Tyler. The joining fee of the lodge was raised, and after which the brethren adjourned to banquet. 135 sat down, of whom 33 were visitors. Among the latter were Bros. E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; J. J. Michael, W.M. 1507; H. G. Thompson, W.M. 299; F. W. Koch, P.M. 820; W. H. Stokes, P.M. 861; G. T. Carter, P.M. 145; H. Massey ("Freemason"); W. Worrell, P.M. 766, &c.; and D. S. Bayfield, P.M. 1158. Among the Past Masters of the lodge were Bros. F. Kent, C.C.; J. R. Foulger, H. Elmes, W. F. Smith, George Tims, J. E. Walford, C.C.; and Joseph Smith, P.G.P. At the proposition of the toasts, Bro. E. P. Albert, A.G.P., replied for the D.G.M., &c. Bro. G. Everett proposed "The W.M.," and said that since his last appearance he had been elevated to the bench and now took his seat in an entirely new character. For six years he had had the pleasure of addressing the brethren, from the position of I.G. to that of Master. He had now arrived at that very coveted place, a seat among the Past Masters. He should not therefore ask for the kind indulgence which was readily accorded to the inexperienced, because he was now somewhat used to the business. His first duty as a P.M. was of a most pleasurable and agreeable description. It was to propose "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Treadwell had been elevated to the highest position it was in the brethren's power to confer; he had been for 20 years a member of the lodge, three years longer than he (Bro. Everett); had followed him step by step, and had been a most able auxiliary. He had done everything he could to assist, and the position he had been elected to he thoroughly deserved. Now that he had become Master he would do all in his power to promote the welfare of the Domatic Lodge, but he would not be able to do that if the brethren did not afford him their assistance. Without such assistance he had no chance at all, and he (Bro. Everett) asked the brethren to extend to Bro. Treadwell the same support they had extended to him. He would then at the termination of his year of office a satisfactory state of affairs to show. (Cheers.) The W.M. in reply said that though he had been a member of the lodge 20 years, he had not gone into office till six years ago, because he had not the time to devote to it. Having arrived at his present proud position he trusted that the brethren would assist him in maintaining the dignity of the chair. (Hear, hear.) The Master of a lodge was its chairman, the chief magistrate and highest authority. Therefore he must be allowed to rule. He would do it very mildly and would give the brethren the greatest possible liberty. (Applause.) Bro. W. Worrell, P.M. 766, replied for "The Visitors." Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., Treasurer, made an admirable address to the brethren on behalf of "The Charities," informing them that before they met again the Festival of the Benevolent Institution would take place, and that Bro. Everett would represent the lodge on that occasion. It was necessary that the brethren should support him. The Domatic Lodge was the largest lodge in the Order, and therefore a greater responsibility rested on them than on small lodges. When a Steward undertook to represent them, therefore, they should send up the largest subscriptions of any lodge. Five shillings gave a vote, and he hoped the brethren would put down such sums as 5s., 10s., 15s., or 20s. They must remember they were taking the poor aged Freemasons and widows of Freemasons under their care, and making them comfortable for the rest of their lives. While in prosperity the brethren should do this, and they would thus show that they were not only professing but practising Freemasonry. A list was then sent round, and a considerable sum was added to it. "The Initiates" having been proposed and responded to, the W.M. gave "The P.M.'s," remarking that it was a great privilege to be W.M. of the Domatic Lodge, as, in so numerous a lodge, it required great tact to govern it. For himself he was already on the road to be a P.M., although he had only commenced his journey on a long lane, whose end he would see in a twelvemonth. Bring on that road, he had consequently to talk of the P.M.'s merits. (Laughter.) Many of them had been initiated since he became a Mason, and among these was, as they had been informed, Bro. Everett, whom he had known 23 years, who had always been a hard worker, and had come to be the most successful and popular W.M. the Domatic Lodge had had for the last 10 or 12 years. (Hear, hear, and cheers, in the midst of which the W.M. presented Bro. Everett with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, manufactured by Bro. George Kenning.) Bro. Everett in acknowledging the gift, after the toast had been enthusiastically drunk, said he was very much obliged to the brethren for the cordial way in which they had received the toast. He had already stated that he appeared that evening in a somewhat singular position. A year since he took the command of the good ship Domatic, which was going on a twelvemonth's voyage. He knew when he undertook the duties, he was assuming a great responsibility. He knew there were a great many dangers and difficulties attending them, that there were shoals and quicksands he might encounter; but he knew he had a good pilot on board, in the person of Bro. Joseph Smith, a good boatswain in the person of Bro. Willing (a rare fellow he was for piping all hands); officers and men second to none; and last, though not least, a merciful admiralty board, in the shape of P.M.'s, and if any disaster overtook him on his voyage, it would be looked upon considerably by them. (Laughter.) Starting as he did under very favourable auspices, could it be wondered at that he had had a successful voyage, and had brought his ship into port very little the worse for wear. He believed his brother officers would bear him out in saying that they had had a very happy and prosperous year. They had certainly been overtaken by severe storms about July somewhere off the coast of Dulwich (laughter) at the summer festival; but kind friends came to the rescue in great numbers, and they were in difficulty for a very short period, and that which they were afraid would be a great failure turned out a brilliant success. (Hear, hear.) He was very proud indeed to have got through his year of office in the manner he had, and he was pleased to meet them all that night at the end of his term in order that he might thank them very heartily and sincerely for their kindness to him throughout his year. (Cheers.) Bro. Everett again thanked the brethren for the Past Master's jewel, and sat down amidst loud applause. Bro. Williams responded as Secretary to the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary," and Bro. Joseph Smith as Treasurer. The latter brother reminded the brethren that he was the father of the lodge. The "boys," not using the word offensively, sometimes thought the "old dad" went a little too far. If he did so it was with the best intention, believing that what he did was for the benefit of the lodge. If he could not take a liberty with them he did not know who could. As "the old governor," he tried to keep them right, and he was pleased to say that up to the present time he had given satisfaction, for they had honoured him by re-electing him a great many years as their Treasurer. As long as they chose to honour him with their confidence he should be with them to the end of the chapter. He wished them every happiness and prosperity. The remaining toasts were then given, and the brethren separated. During the evening the brethren were treated with some good singing by Bros. Dawson and Carter. Some recitations, and Sir Pertinax Macsycophant's narrative of his mode of success in life, which was admirably given by Bro. Hudson, of Brighton, and of the Chaucer Lodge.

ST. JAMES'S UNION LODGE (No. 186).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 11th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. W. C. Parsons, W.M., presided, and after initiating Mr. Heathcote, installed Bro. Gillard, S.W. and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. W. C. Parsons, I.P.M.; F. Annett, S.W.; Pillin, J.W.; G. Bubb, P.M., Treas.; H. A. Stacey, P.M., Sec.; Smith, S.D.; Harrison, J.D.; Farwig, I.G.; J. P. Stacey, P.M., D.C.; Stollard, W.S.; and Gilbert, Tyler. A splendid P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Parsons, and the W.M. in presenting it said, he wished that every Master of a lodge was like Bro. Parsons, of whom the lodge might well be proud. Wishing he might live many years to wear the jewel, he fastened it on his breast. After Bro. Parsons had acknowledged the gift he announced his stewardship for the forthcoming festival of the Benevolent Institution, and asked the support of the brethren for his list. Banquet followed, to which seventy-nine brethren sat down, including sixteen visitors.

BOLTON.—Anchor and Hope Lodge (No. 37).—The installation meeting of the above lodge (constituted 1731) took place in the Freemasons' Hall, Bolton, on Monday, 10th Jan. There was a good attendance of members of the lodge, amongst whom were Bros. James Walker, W.M.; W. H. Horrocks, S.W.; R. H. Freeman, J.W.; Jno. Tunnah, Prov. G. Sec.; J. H. Winder, P. Prov. G. Bearer; J. W. Taylor, P.M. 221; P. Prov. G. Org.; Lever Rowbottom, P.M. 178; Jno. Wild, W.M. 146; James Horrocks, P.M. 348; and others. The lodge being opened in the First Degree, the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when the W.M. elect, Bro. W. H. Horrocks, was presented to the retiring W.M., Bro. James Walker, to receive the benefit of installation at his hands. The usual ceremonies were performed in the Second Degree, and the lodge then proceeded to the Third Degree, when the brethren below the rank of Installed Master retired, and Bro. Horrocks was installed into the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, by Bro. Walker, in the presence of the goodly number of nineteen Installed Masters or Past Masters. The remainder of the brethren were then admitted, and the newly-installed master was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees. The lodge being closed down to the First Degree, Bro. Walker invested the officers, viz.:—Bros. R. K. Freeman, S.W.; J. Brown, J.W.; G. P. Brockbank, Treas.; Walter Pennington, Sec.; Samuel Crowthier, S.D.; Rooke Pennington, J.D.; Robert Harwood, Master of Ceremonies; F. W. Pacey, Org.; Johnson Mill, Inner Guard; W. Redman, Tyler. A cordial vote of thanks was given to the Immediate P.M., Bro. James Walker, for his services during the past year, and also as Installing Officer on this occasion. Three candidates for initiation were proposed, as also a brother to become a joining member. The closing of the lodge followed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet table.

CAMBRIDGE.—Scientific Lodge (No. 88).—A meeting of the members of this ancient and flourishing lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, on the 10th inst., the chief interest being the installation of Bro. W. J. Basham, W.M. elect. There was a large attendance of brethren to witness the installation. The ceremony of installation was preceded by raising Bros. Walker and Long to the Third Degree. At the conclusion of the above ceremonies, the W.M. Bro. J. F. Fetch, resigned his gavel to Bro. P.M. Dimmock, P.G.S.W., the Installing Master, who as a skilled workman performed the ancient ceremony in a most able manner, the musical part being effectively performed by the Organist, Bro. P.M. J. R. Ling. At the close of the ceremony the following appointments were made:—Bros. J. F. Fetch, I.P.M.; A. Heed, S.W.; H. Chennell, J.W.; W. F. Jarrold, S.D.; A. H. Moysen, J.D.; T. Hunnybun, I.G.; B. W. Beales, Treas.; T. Nichols, Sec.; W. Boys, Dir. of Cer.; W. Davidson, P.M., Steward; F. Grain, P.M., Chap.; J. R. Ling, P.M., Org. The lodge was closed in due and ancient form, when about 50 brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet. Bro. W. J. Basham, W.M., presided, supported by the D.P.G.M., Bro. J. Deighton, the P.M.'s of the lodge. The visitors comprised Bros. J. G. Barber, W.M. 441; E. Haggs, P.M. 441; A. F. Donagan, P.M. 441; F. Bailey, 441; H. Nickell, 441; W. M. Fawcett, 859; — McCullum, 1250; F. M. Dowell, 52; — Tomlinson, 441; J. Hinge, 441.

NORWICH.—Social Lodge (No. 93).—On Tuesday evening, 11th inst., the usual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, when, as this was the occasion for installing the W.M. elect, there was a very large attendance of brethren, both members and visitors. After the Town Clerk of Norwich (W. L. Mendham) had been duly initiated into Masonry, the retiring W.M., Bro. C. H. Capon, proceeded to instal as his successor Bro. J. J. Commins. The ceremony, which was performed by him in its entirety, was gone through in a most impressive manner, and its effect upon the brethren was most marked. The new W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—S.W., C. Havers; J.W., G. Stockings; S.D., J. Moore; J.D., J. B. Bridgman; I.G., Fox. Bro. Dunsford was appointed Director of Ceremonies; G. Brittain, Organist; and J. Marshall, Sec. and Treas.

NORTH WALSHAM.—Unanimity Lodge (No. 102).—The annual banquet and meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, Jan. 10, at the lodge house, King's Arms Hotel, North Walsham, Norfolk. There was a good attendance of the brethren and several visitors, including the Grand Master of the Province, Lieut. Col. the Hon. F. Walpole, M.P.; the P.G.S.W., Bro. Lieut. Col. H. L'Estrange; the P.G. Sec., Bro. H. Barwell. At this meeting the W.M. elect, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, should have been installed, but as his lordship is now in India with the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, that ceremony is postponed until his return. The retiring W.M., Bro. Lieut. Col. J. Duff, P.G.J.W., will continue to hold the office until his lordship's return. The business of the lodge consisted of two initiations, and this ceremony having been ably and accurately performed by the W.M., the brethren proceeded to the banqueting-room. Here a magnificent repast awaited them, the cuisine being in charge of Bro. Chapman, who performed his duties so well as to leave nothing to be desired. After dinner the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and these were, of course, heartily received. The toast of "The G.M. of the Province" was drunk with Masonic honours. The Provincial Grand Master, in responding, said that as this was the first lodge he had visited since his installation, he must say that which he had unfortunately forgotten to say on the occasion of his being placed in that proud position. He omitted altogether to refer to the great loss sustained by Freemasonry in Norfolk by the death of the late P.G.M., Bro. Benjamin Bond Cabbell. The late P.G.M. was ever distinguished by a desire to do everything in his power to promote Freemasonry. He was ever foremost in subscribing to the different Masonic charities, and he was always ready to lend a helping hand to everything that tended to the interest of the Craft. In him the province had lost one who had endeared himself to all the brethren, and that loss they would never cease to deplore. In conclusion, the P.G.M. said he should do his best to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, and should consider himself well rewarded for his efforts if he succeeded in winning for himself but a small part of the esteem in which their late P.G.M. had been held. The next toast was given by the S.W., Bro. Cubitt, and was that of "The W.M. of the Lodge"—a toast that was also received with full Masonic honours. The W.M., in responding, thanked the brethren for the kind and courteous reception they had given him, and promised to continue his efforts to deserve their approbation and esteem. This was one of the most successful meetings this lodge has ever held.

SIDMOUTH.—Lodge of Perseverance (No. 164).—On Wednesday, the 5th inst., the annual festival of St. John was celebrated at the Masonic Hall, Sidmouth, by the brethren of the above-mentioned lodge, when V.W. Bro. W. Hine Haycock, P.M., Prov. S.G.D., was again installed as W.M. by installing Master Bro. B. T. Hodge, P.M., Treas., 30°. Amongst those present were Bros. W. Mitchell, S.W.; J. Orchard, P.M.; P.G.S. Devon, J.W. pro tem; G. Beard, Sec.; W. Salter, S.D. pro tem.; W. T. Orchard, J.D. pro tem.; R. Perryman, I.G.; T. Paul, Tyler; P. Masters, Bros. W. Hine Haycock, Prov. S.G.D.; W. Pile, J. Northcott, J. Purse, H. Dawe; Bros. R. T. Thornton, A. J. Thornton, J. Godfrey, S. Cummings, Thos. Halse. Visitors: Bros. Rev. J. Huyshe, M.A., R.W. Prov. G.M. Devon, P.G.C. England; Rev. W. H. Coyte, Prov. G. Chaplain, Cambridgeshire; W. Elphinstone Stone, P.P.G.J.W., P.M. 372; Fredk. Horspool, P.M. 1254; H. Woodgates, P.M. 847; G. Evans, P.M. 1181; W. Salter, P.M. 1181; Rev. — Swansborough, Chap. 1181; J. Read, J.W. 847; W. H. Banfield, 847; T. Acland, Org. 847; J. Hussey, S.W. 837; L. Loveridge, S.W. 1181; Henry Ford, 1181; W. Willis, 1181; J. Skinner, 372; H. Layzell, 847. Shortly after opening the lodge the brethren retired to the large ball-room, adjoining where a procession was formed, and the R.W. Prov. Grand Master escorted into the lodge, he was then formally saluted, after which he took his seat at the right of the W.M. Bro. P.M. Hine Haycock, then entered the W.M.'s chair and performed the ceremony of initiating Messrs. Wilders, Salter, and Algar in a most able and praiseworthy manner, the whole of the officers above-mentioned assisting him with admirable precision. W. Bro. Hodge, the Installing Master, then proceeded to install the W.M. elect, Bro. P.M. Hine Haycock, performing that beautiful ceremony in a skilful and impressive manner. The W.M. then proceeded to appoint his officers, and the following brethren were duly invested: Bros. Dawe, I.P.M., W. Mitchell, S.W.; T. H. H. Orchard, J.W.; J. Thornton, Sec.; R. T. Thornton, S.D.; W. T. Orchard, J.D.; R. Perryman, I.G.; Paul, Tyler. W. Bro. Hodge was again unanimously elected Treas., and invested. W. Bro. Fredk. Horspool delivered the customary address to the new officers. At the conclusion of the appointment of the officers the W.M., Bro. H. Haycock, on behalf of the lodge, presented the R.W. Prov. G. Master with a handsome portrait of the M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, nicely framed, together with a beautiful and appropriate address. The R.W. Prov. G. Master most feelingly and suitably acknowledged the compliment, expressing the great pleasure it gave him to receive so unexpected a mark of the esteem of the brethren. A vote of thanks to W. Bro. H. Woodgates for his kindness and ability in presiding at the organ during the ceremonies of the lodge having been unanimously passed and acknowledged, the lodge was closed. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting-room. The healths of "Her Gracious Majesty," and "The M.W. Grand Master and the Grand Officers" were proposed and respectively honoured, followed by the toast of "The Prov. Grand Master of Devon," which was received with great enthusiasm, and suitably acknowledged by that R.W. brother. "The Health of the W.M., Bro. H. Haycock," was proposed by the R.W. Prov. G. Master, and received with considerable warmth, showing how much that brother is esteemed and appreciated. "The Health of Bro. P.M. Hodge, the Installing Master," was given, and met with an equally warm reception, that worthy brother having sustained the lodge in its less prosperous days, and filled the chair of W.M. no less than six times. These toasts were appropriately responded to, and various other complimentary toasts followed, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Lodge of Hengist (No. 195).—This lodge celebrated the festival of St. John the Evangelist at the Masonic Hall adjoining the Belle Vue Hotel, and previous to the ceremony of installation of the W.M. elect, the Installing Master, Bro. P.M. McWilliam, in the name of the lodge, presented to Bro. P.M. E. W. Rebbeck, W.M., a Past Master's jewel, value ten guineas, made by Bro. Kenning, suitably inscribed, in recognition of his services during his year of office, he having held during the past year nineteen lodges, initiated nineteen, passed fifteen, and raised fourteen brethren, being the largest number admitted in any one year in this lodge, which celebrated its centenary in 1870. The ceremony of installation was most effectively performed by Bro. P.M. McWilliam, after which the W.M., Bro. D. Sydenham, appointed his officers as follows, viz.:—Bros. P.M. E. W. Rebbeck, I.P.M.; Weissmüller, S.W.; Wheaton, J.W.; Merson, S.D.; Jolliffe, J.D.; P.M. Atkinson, Sec.; W. J. Worth, I.G.; P.M. Rogers, Chaplain; Lane and Briggs, Stewards. Bro. Plank was invested as Treasurer; and Bro. Green was elected Tyler. There were twenty-six brethren present, and after the lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to the Bath Hotel, where an excellent banquet was provided by Bro. Briant, when several brethren who were unable to attend the duties of the lodge were present.

OXFORD.—Alfred Lodge (No. 340).—The anniversary festival of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 11th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Alfred-street, when the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, Bro. Jules Buc, M.A., was duly installed in his office. There was a large attendance of brethren, and among the representatives of other lodges who were present were the Grand Junior Deacon of England (Bro. F. P. Morrell, M.A.); the Past Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. R. J. Spiers), the Worshipful Master of the Apollo Lodge (Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pickard, M.A.), the Worshipful Master of the Bowyer Lodge (Bro. J. Sladden), Past Master Captain Ferrier (of the Churchill Lodge), Bro. Green (of the Marlborough Lodge), and other strangers. The installation ceremony was admirably performed by the Immediate Past Master, Bro. W. Thompson, and at its conclusion the new Worshipful Master appointed his officers as follows:—Senior Warden, Bros. J. Pratt-Junior Warden, F. W. Ansell, Treasurer, H. Hough; ton, P.M.; Secretary, W. R. Hobbs; Senior Deacon, J. Jenkin, Junior Deacon, H. C. Helier; Senior Master of Ceremonies, J. Chapman; Junior Masters of Ceremonies, G. Brunner and Butt; Inner Guard, F. R. Hall; Organist, H. Plunridge; Stewards, E. Horn and S. Harris; and Tyler, W. Stevens. After the installation, a handsome Masonic jewel was presented by the lodge to Past Master G. T. Prior, in acknowledgment of his past services. At the conclusion of the business an elegant banquet was served, the arrangements for which were excellently carried out by the Stewards, and to which about 40 sat down. The newly-elected Worshipful Master presided, and proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in particularly felicitous and graceful terms. Many excellent songs were contributed, and the proceedings were of a very festive and enjoyable character. During the evening much enthusiasm was excited by the announcement, by the Worshipful Master of the Apollo, that a telegram had been received from India during the past few days from the Prince of Wales, in which His Royal Highness appointed Prince Leopold to the office of Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire. The latter was last term elected to succeed Bro. Pickard as Worshipful Master of the Apollo on the expiration of the present term of office, and his selection to preside over this province, whilst it will be appreciated as a high honour by Masons throughout the county, will be received with great satisfaction by the Craft generally. The installation of His Royal Highness will probably take place on the 22nd of February.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—At the regular meeting held at the Masonic Hall, the new W.M., Bro. Cooke, for the first time opened the lodge at 8 p.m., supported by Bro. Bartrum, I.P.M.; Gore, S.W.; H. Culliford Hopkins, J.W.; Dickenson, Sec.; Barber, Treas.; Little, I.G.; C. A. Bush, P.M.; and a few other members. The minutes having been read and confirmed, and also the bye-laws, a formal procession entered the room, consisting of Bros. Clark, W.M.; Brown, S.W.; Wilton, P.M.; Ashley, P.M.; Cooper, P.M.; Dr. H. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. and P.M. 43 and 958; Braham, J.D.; and others, all of the Royal Cumberland Lodge, No. 41, of whose attendance previous notice had been given, and they were received with the usual honours. The report of the Treasurer, which had been duly audited, was adopted. The report of the Provincial Grand Treasurer was also presented. Out of these two arose a discussion with regard to the expense of a meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge held at Bath in 1874. This had entailed an expenditure of £40, divided between the three lodges, which was felt to be a heavy tax upon so small a lodge as 379. The consideration which suggested itself was that the Provincial Grand Lodge should bear its own expenses, more especially as it had money in hand and invested to the extent of about £5000. The result was an expression as to the desirability of ventilating the matter at the next meeting of that body. Other business was disposed of, and the lodge was opened in the 2nd Degree. It had been arranged that the ceremony of raising the candidate should be performed by his Bro. C. A. Bush, who had initiated and passed him, but as he was not very well, Bro. Dr. Hopkins was at a moment's notice called upon to take his place. He accordingly entered the chair, and having examined Bro. H. G. Bush, complimented him on the perfect accuracy of his replies to the questions, entrusted him, and dismissed him for preparation. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and the whole of the ceremony was performed by Dr. Hopkins, including the traditionary history and the charge. Bro. Cooper impressively recited the passages of scripture bearing upon the subject, and Bros. C. A. Bush and Dickenson acted as Deacons. The W.M. again took the chair, resumed the lodge in the 2nd, and afterwards in the 1st Degree. On the proposition of the S.W., seconded by the J.W., a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Dr. Hopkins for his assistance in conducting the ceremony. A similar vote was passed to the W.M. and members of No. 41 for their attendance. Suitable acknowledgments were made, and the lodge was closed at 10 o'clock.

STOKESLEY.—Cleveland Lodge (No. 543).—The twenty-eight anniversary festival of this, the mother lodge in Cleveland, was held in the lodge-room at the Golden Lion Hotel, on Monday evening, Jan. 10th, just previous to which a lodge was held. Present: Bros. J. H. Handyside, P.M., as W.M.; Richard Watson, P.M., as S.W.; James Coulson, J.W.; William Scarth Dixon, S.D.; David Dixon, J.D.; W. R. Sharp, I.G.; and William Harrison, Tyler. The principal business was the installation of Bro. William Guthrie Forbes, M.B., as W.M., the ceremony being performed in an impressive manner by Bro. George Marwood, of Bushy Hall, J.P., P. Prov. D.G.M., one of the P.M.'s of the lodge. The W.M. then appointed as his officers the following brethren, who were invested accordingly:—Bros. James Coulson, S.W.; William Scarth Dixon, J.W.; David Dixon, S.D.; William R. Sharp, J.D. and John Hall, I.G. The lodge re-elected Bros. J. H. Handyside, P.M., Sec.; Richard Watson, P.M., Treas.; and William Harrison, Tyler; all of whom were re-invested with the jewels of their office. The lodge being closed and the meeting adjourned, the brethren retired from labour to refreshment, an excellent dinner having been provided by Mr. and Mrs. Laws. Bro. Marwood officiated as chairman at the banquet, and Bro. Handyside as vice. The usual Masonic and loyal toasts were given, Bro. T. Bowren, a Grand Officer of the neighbouring Province of Durham, and Bro. John Sutherst, the W.M. elect of the Zetland Lodge, replying to the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," of whom several from Gisbrough were present. Benjamin Richardson, the I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the Chairman, Bro. Marwood," who was at all times ready to act as Installing Master for their own and many other lodges in the province. The Chairman, in responding, said that he always felt it a great pleasure as well as a duty he owed to the Craft to render any services in his power either to that, his mother lodge, or to any other in the province of which he had for several years been Prov. D.G.M. Some thirty years had elapsed since he was made a Mason in that room, and he had always felt that Masonry had made him a better man; not only more charitably disposed to his brother Masons, but to all mankind. "Bro. Forbes, W.M.," was proposed by Bro. Wilcox, P.M.; "Bro. Benjamin Richardson, the I.P.M.," by Bro. Handyside, and "Bro. Handyside, the Father of the Lodge, by the Chairman; all of whom responded in suitable terms. Bros. Johnson and Coulson briefly responded for the late assistant officers. Bros. Harrison and Robinson favoured the brethren with recitations, and several songs were sung by Bros. Emerson, Messenger, Wilcox, Purdy, Sharp, Watson, Marwood, W. R. Richardson, Rontree, and W. S. Dixon, and a very agreeable evening was spent, to the satisfaction of all the brethren.

FARNWORTH.—Earl Ellesmere Lodge (No. 678).—A meeting was held at the Church Hotel, on the 5th inst., for the purpose of witnessing the ceremony of the installation of Bro. T. Laycock in the W.M. chair. The lodge was opened at 4 o'clock by Bro. T. Holme, W.M., and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The chair was assumed by Bro. Robert Whittaker, P.M., P.P.G.D. of E. Lancashire, as Installing Master; and the W.M. elect, Bro. Laycock, was presented by Bro. W. H. Kirkman, P.M. A Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Thomas Laycock was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being most ably and impressively performed by the Installing Master, Bro. Whittaker. The W.M. appointed the following brethren as officers:—Bros. T. Entwistle, S.W.; D. A. Elliott, J.W.; R. Warburton, P.M., Treas.; R. Whittaker, P.M., Sec.; J. Thorpe, S.D.; T. A. Martin, J.D.; J. Barrow, sen., P.M., D.C.; T. Barlow, Org.; J. Pickford, I.G.; Pendlebury and Atherton, Stwds.; and Brooks, Tyler. Two brethren were proposed as joining members. The brethren retired to celebrate the Festival of St. John. About sixty of the brethren, twenty of whom were Past Masters, then partook of an excellent banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. During the evening Bro. W. H. Kirkman, P.M., in the name of the members of the lodge, presented to Bro. R. Whittaker, Sec., a very handsome and noble timepiece as a small token of the esteem in which he is held by the brethren. Bro. G. Chatton presented the lodge with a beautiful and highly finished engraving of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master, in handsome emblematic Masonic frame. Bros. T. Holme, I.P.M.; Thomas Laycock, W.M.; and David A. Elliott, J.W., also presented the lodge with three handsome oak chairs for the W.M. and Wardens; these were supplied by Bro. George Kenning, London, and gave universal satisfaction on account of their chaste workmanship and finish. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. J. Tunnah, P.G. Sec.; S. Isherwood, P.P. G. Treas.; W. Slater, P.P.S.G.D.; Maden, P.P.G.S.B.; J. Wild, W.M. 146; A. Crabtree, P.M. 146; Pilling, W.M. 350; J. Varley, W.M. elect 350; N. Horrocks, P.M. 934; Milne, P.M. 1012; T. Cort, 146; Plews, P.M. 1161; T. Newton, P.M. 37, and others. The evening was enlivened by several good songs. The brethren separated at an early hour, full of zeal for the coming year. This was one of the most successful meetings that has taken place in this lodge for many years.

DEAL.—Wellington Lodge (No. 748).—This lodge met on the 13th inst., at the Assembly Rooms, Park-street, Deal, for the installation of W.M. for the ensuing year. The brother elected to that distinguished position was Bro. H. S. Goodall, J.W.; and to witness his installation a very large number of brethren assembled, comprising members of the lodge and visitors, among the company being a great many past and present Provincial Grand Officers. Bro. J. E. Apps, W.M., presided, having Bro. A. F. S. Bird, P.M., as S.W. pro tem., and Bro. William Harding, P.M., as J.W. pro tem. Before the ceremony of installation was commenced, the W.M., addressing the brethren, said that Bro. A. E. Ralph, P.M., and P.P.G.J.D. Kent, had kindly consented to have his name inserted in the summons as Installing Master, as his (the W.M.'s) presence was very uncertain. He (the W.M.) had, however, been able to be present, and so would have the pleasure of installing his successor himself. He was, nevertheless, exceedingly obliged to Bro. Ralph for the readiness with which he had agreed to take the duties of Installing Master on himself, and if he had been called upon to perform them the brethren certainly would have had a treat which they must not expect from him (the W.M.). But he was anxious to instal the W.M., and he would therefore do so. Nevertheless, the brethren would have the pleasure of hearing Bro. Ralph deliver the charges. Bro. Ralph then presented Bro. Henry Stephen Goodall, J.W. and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge, and performed his duties with great ability. The Board of Installed Masters was composed of 16 brethren. After the installation Bro. Goodall, having been duly saluted, appointed as his officers the following brethren:—Bros. Hayman, S.W.; George Moon, J.W.; the Rev. C. E. Shirley Woolmer, M.A., Rector of St. Andrews's, Deal, Chaplain; J. E. Apps, P.M., Treasurer; W. M. Cavell, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. Kent, Secretary; F. Fitch, S.D.; Tyson Stubbs, J.D.; John Green, I.G.; Thomas Paul, D.C.; S. Olds and E. L. Bridge, Stewards, and J. W. A. Norris, Tyler. Bro. Ralph delivered the addresses, after which, on the motion of Bro. Apps, seconded by Bro. Cavell, the brethren elected the W.M. to serve on the Charity Committee of the province for the year. A long list of letters of apology for absence was read by the Secretary from brethren, among them being the Prov. G.M., Lord Holmesdale, Bro. Knatchbull-Hugessen, M.P.; Grand Secretary (Bro. Hervey), the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Eastes, and Bro. Frank Toole. The W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to the Installing Masters for the admirable manner in which the ceremonies had been carried out. Bro. Browning seconded it, and it was carried unanimously. Bros. Apps and Ralph both acknowledged the compliment, after which the lodge was closed. A choice banquet was then partaken of, and the customary toasts followed. In giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" the W.M. expressed the hope that the Queen and the Craft might long be united. The next toast was "The Grand Master, the Prince of Wales," and the W.M. said that none of the brethren who were present at the installation of H.R.H. could fail to believe that he took the greatest interest in Freemasonry. He trusted his Royal Highness would speedily and safely return from India, and long adorn the Craft by his presence. The W.M. trusted that the Earl of Carnarvon would long be with the Freemasons of England, when proposing "The Health of the Prov. Grand Master." After giving "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M.," the W.M. gave "The Health of Lord Holmesdale, Prov. G.M. of Kent," and regretted that his lordship was not then present; but said his absence was caused by entirely unavoidable circumstances. Bro. Ralph responded to the toast of "The Deputy Prov. G. Master, Bro. Eastes," who was absent on account of the serious illness of a near relation. He was sure every one regretted Bro. Eastes' absence, more especially on account of its cause. It was a matter of pleasure to any lodge to entertain distinguished visitors. The Grand Officers of the Province were always well received, and the lodges of the province felt very much honoured by their presence. When prominent members of a province visited a lodge the brethren were always very pleased to see them; but as regarded this lodge it had not yet had many opportunities of entertaining distinguished brethren of the province. The members had, however, hoped on that day to have the presence of Provincial Grand Officers, and to have a sort of gala day. But unavoidable circumstances intervened and the Prov. G.M. and other notabilities in the Order were prevented from coming. In their absence he, as a Past Prov. G. Lodge Officer, thanked the lodge for the honour they had done them. Bro. Emerson, P.P.G.S.W., proposed "The Health of the W.M." He had been associated with the W.M. in Masonry from almost the very moment of his initiation and subsequently to his becoming a Master Mason he (Bro. Emerson) had had the happiness to assist in the ceremony of the W.M.'s exaltation in the R.A. Degree in the chapter belonging to the Wellington Lodge. From the experience he had had of the W.M.'s antecedents he might say he did not know of any brother who was more peculiarly adapted to fill the position which he now occupied. That day he had been impressed with the charge which had been delivered to him by the Installing Master, and he was sensible of the responsibility of those duties which devolved upon him in the position which he filled; but of this he (Bro. Emerson) was well assured, that the W.M.'s best talents and energies would be exerted in maintaining the honour, reputation and usefulness of the lodge, and that on all occasions he would endeavour to promote the feeling that in acquiring a knowledge of Masonry, Masons should ever be guided by humility and faith. Masons should always remember the words of the poet:

All nature is but art unknown to thee,
All chance direction which thou canst not see,
All discord harmony not understood,
All partial evil universal good;
And spite of pride in erring reason's spite,
One thing is clear, whatever is, is right.

The W.M. would impress upon the brethren the Masonic virtues of benevolence and charity, and not only by precept but by example teach those moral or social virtues which must tend not only to the individual happiness of the brethren, but the welfare of their fellow men. He hoped that the W.M. would have a prosperous year, and that at its expiration he might have the satisfaction of feeling that in exerting his best talents and abilities to promote the interests of the Order he had secured the fraternal regard, esteem and respect not only of the members of his own lodge but of the Craft in general. (Cheers.) The W.M., in reply, said he could not find words to express his heartfelt thanks for the kindness of the brethren in drinking the health which had been so warmly proposed by Bro. Emerson. He felt deeply honoured by the confidence the brethren had reposed in him, and by the presence of so many distinguished brethren. He was quite at a loss for words to thank them sufficiently for all their kindness. In giving "The Health of the Installing Masters," the W.M. said he was sure that none of the brethren who were present at the installation would have failed to admit that Bros. Apps and Ralph had gone through the ceremony with satisfaction to every one in the lodge. (Applause.) Bros. Apps and Ralph replied, the former stating that although what he had done had met with the approval of the brethren, it would have been much more pleasing to himself if he had done it better. It was, however, his first attempt, although he had been Master of the lodge twice, and was the oldest P.M. As W.M. it was his duty to instal his successor, and he resolved to do it. If he had hesitated at all it was the tongue that failed, and not the heart, which was still the same. Bro. Ralph said that his share of the ceremony was very slight, and it was quite unnecessary to thank him for it. The brethren had thanked him in the lodge-room, and he had already responded there. It was at all times a pleasure and satisfaction to him to advance the interests of Freemasonry by every means in his power, and if he had contributed to this end by taking part in the installation he was very much gratified. The Chaplain of the lodge, the Rev. C. E. Shirley Woolmer, then rose to propose the toast of "The Masonic Charities." In doing so he said the brethren were all met together that evening as speculative Masons, and therefore it would hardly become him to go back into the old charities of the operative Masons. If he did he would have to take the brethren into the very old times of antiquity; but still they saw the remains of the old operative charities in all the ancient cathedrals and fane with which our land of England was especially adorned above all other lands on the face of the earth. The speculative Masons came into existence 150 years ago upon the foundation of the old operative Masons upon that one word of "charity." Charity must first of all exist between themselves before that bright light could send its radiance forth to illuminate more distant parts. It must be first of all that love between brethren, concord and harmony among men, which would enable them to work together in order that they might perform works worthy of their great Creator, and of themselves as being formed in His image. Masonry therefore was originated in order to bind together men who by religion—which ought to bind us all together—in politics—which ought to bind us all together as having but one polity—were nevertheless brought into discord. Speculative Masonry was introduced for that purpose. It was that science of love and harmony by which men of different views in religion and politics might be bound together, and meet together; might perceive in themselves and amongst themselves the real germs of a principle—love to God and love to their neighbours. He hoped and trusted that this speculative Masonry, after having existed now in the world 150 years, had fulfilled the duties performed by its ancestors, the old operative Masons. These had monastic bodies. Let the brethren remember that Freemasonry was but monasticism—the old monastic bodies revived, whether they were Dominican, Cistercian, Franciscan, or other, all of whom differed vitally from each other on certain points of religion and temporal politics; but, nevertheless, they all united when they met as a monastic body; they were all bound together for one simple purpose of helping, aiding, and supporting the weak and those who required help, and in carrying love throughout the world. Freemasonry was doing this now. He was happy to say that in Deal, and also in other parts of England where he had been, in Lancashire, Devonshire, or elsewhere, there never had been a great building erected, either for the assistance of the aged, or for educating and sustaining children—either for orphanages or almshouses—but the Masons of the district had always been the first to come forward and lay the ancient monastic gavel upon the stone. And then, with regard to themselves and their individual love and friendship, he thought we lived in a very good world of political and religious turmoil in this 19th century, and he would ask them to put it to themselves whether they were not then sitting round the table some extreme radicals, some extreme high tones, some dissenters and some high church, but still they all felt they were children of one Father, and members of one family. If this was not one of the things that Masonry was and did, he did not know what Masonry was. Now, to speak of the Masonic Charities of the present day. He expected that if we were to be able like the old gentleman in Le Sage's old Spanish book, "The Devil on Two Sticks," to take off the roofs of houses and look inside, we should see a great many hearts made joyous by the efforts of Masons. (Hear hear.) He should say there were a good many people in some little corners of England, many an old man or old woman, would say their declining years were made comfortable and pleasant through the agency of Masonry. He could point out a great many parishes where that had taken place, not only in almshouses, but through the individual charity of lodges which had been poured out, where men and women had been made happy. And it was this object which actuated the Duke of Cumberland starting a school 100 years ago for keeping children of whatever politics their parents might be, but simply because they were the children of Masons, and feeding, clothing, and educating them, whether they were of the highest or the lowest grades in the land. Freemasons are now maintaining, clothing, and educating nearly 400 children of both sexes. This could only be done, not simply through lodges, but also by the individual efforts of the brethren, by each Mason taking an interest in it. When people met on some great occasion, like the building of a church or a cathedral, there was a grand procession, plenty of noise, something to be seen, and every one wished to take part in it. When it came, however, to the simple piece of Masonic work in the charities there was not much fuss. But though there was less ostentation, there was a great deal of work done by small means. As an old milk woman once said when she was asked to subscribe to a charity, "I cannot afford to do what all you gentlemen do, put down a guinea a year; but I am able to give, and shall be very glad to give my shilling a week down." (Laughter.) He did not say much for her arithmetic, but he would say a great deal for her heart. Applying the old milk woman's principle to Freemasonry, suppose the Mason gave sixpence a week, what a lot that would be in the course of the year. If they could not give sixpence let them give a threepenny bit a week. Remember that charity one towards another, true love and charity which was worthy of being preserved to the great day of doom, the taking care of the aged, and educating the young, was carrying out the principle of Masonry, and was what they called Masonic charity. (Cheers.) Bro. Bird responded. The Masons of the neighbourhood were doing what had been suggested by the Chaplains. During the last year they had instituted charitable quartets; four brethren would join, each subscribing sixpence a week, which was placed in the hands of one of the four as trustee for the whole four. At the close of the year they had £5 4s., and they then balloted for a life governorship of one of the Masonic Charities, and the fortunate winner added one shilling to make the same five guineas. They had had two of these quartets, and he thought it was only on account of the system not being known that they had not had more. This lodge contained 56 members, and he hoped they would make up a number of these quartets, as he thought it would be a valuable aid to the Masonic charities. He would mention another subject. Once a year they sent round the charity box, and he proposed that this should be now done. He was happy to say that this year the lodge would be represented by a Steward at one of the Masonic festivals for the first time, and he entreated the brethren not to let him go empty handed. The W.M. resided in London, and there was this advantage in that fact, that he was able to attend Grand Lodge and the different meetings of the Lodge of Benevolence. Bro. Goodall, while he had been J.W., had constantly attended Grand Lodge, and had given, as he always would give, every attention to the interests of this lodge. (Cheers.) Bro. Woodroffe replied to the toast of "The W.M.'s of the Neighbouring Lodges." The Chaplain responded to the toast drunk specially in his honour. Bro. H. Massey ("Freemason") acknowledged the toast of "The Masonic Press," which, he said, not only endeavoured to advance the interests of the Order generally, but was particularly devoted to promoting the good of the Masonic charities. The "Freemason," which he had represented almost from its birth, had always kept this end in view; and without wishing to flatter it, or claim for it a title which it did not possess, it would be absolutely wilful blindness if he shut his eyes to the fact that through the instrumentality of that paper there had been a very large accession to the funds of the three institutions. Bro. Emerson (No. 1426), and Bro. Soutter (No. 65) replied to the toast of "The Visitors," all expressing their great pleasure in visiting the lodge, and Bro. M'Niven informing the brethren of the great service the Order had been to him in the course of his travels. When he had placed himself under the guidance of Masonry he had never been deceived. The S.W. responded to the toast of "The Officers," and assured the lodge that he and his brother officers would exert themselves to support the W.M. during his year of office. The brethren separated at a late hour, after having experienced a great Masonic success. Excellent singing and recitations were furnished by Bros. Doore, Bird, Harrison, Stubbs, Apps, Emerson, and McNiven. The list of visitors comprised the names of Bros. W. M. Cavell, P.P.G.S.D. Kent; A. E. Ralph, P.P.G.J.D.; L. Hall, 1206, Prov. G. Sup. Wks.; R. J. Emerson, P.P.G.J.W.; Usher, Prov. G. Steward; Harrison, P.M. 1096; Ayling, S.W. 1096; Rolfe, 1101; McNiven, 1426; Soutter, 65; R. L. Harrison, 1206; Smeeth, 1208; Gorton, 199, and H. Massey ("Freemason").

NEWBURY.—Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Hope (No. 754).—The members of this lodge held a successful gathering on Friday, the 7th inst., in connection with the installation of Bro. W. H. Herbert, Senior Warden, as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. A portion of the Town Hall having been partitioned off, the lodge was

After the newly Installed Master had received the accustomed salutations Bro. Newton invested the following brethren with the collar and jewel appertaining to their respective offices:—Bros. John Tennant, S.W.; L. Wilkinson, J.W.; Geo. Riley, Treas.; W. C. Hamer, Sec.; J. L. Hawksworth, S.D.; J. Gilbert, J.D.; J. Bradshaw, I.G.; J. Sharples, and T. Hargreaves, Stewards; and H. Ainsworth, Tyler. The brethren then adjourned from labour to refreshment, when "The Queen," "Grand and Provincial Officers" and other toasts were proposed by the W.M. in brief but suitable terms. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Tunnah, P.G.S., in a characteristic speech. He spoke in very high terms of the new W.M., who, in conjunction with his father, the retiring W.M., had shown such praiseworthy zeal in the cause of Freemasonry. The establishment of the Albert

Edward Lodge had necessarily brought Bro. Edmund Heywood and himself very frequently together, and therefore, he knew more perhaps than anyone else how much the lodge was indebted to him for its existence. He felt sure Bro. Heywood would fill the position to which the suffrages of the brethren had appointed him with credit to himself and honour to the Craft, and that he would preside over their meetings with impartiality and discretion. It had given him very great pleasure to install Bro. Heywood, and he congratulated the lodge on his accession to the chair. The W.M. made a suitable acknowledgment. He thanked Bro. Tunnah for coming so great a distance at his period of life to install him in the W.M.'s chair of the Albert Edward Lodge. It was an event he should never forget, and it would be his endeavour during his tenure of office to merit the continued approbation of the brethren. He felt deeply the responsibility of his position, and whether in the government of the lodge or in the promulgation of the true principles of Masonry, no exertions would be spared to enhance the prestige of the Albert Edward Lodge. "The Health of Bro. Tunnah, the Installing Master" was proposed by Bro. W. T. Holden, P.M., in appropriate terms. Bro. Tunnah, in reply, expressed the satisfaction he had experienced in being with them. He hoped he should come again, for on looking round he recognised the stamp of "good fellowship" on all their faces. "The Visitors" was proposed by Bro. L. Wilkinson, J.W., to which toast he coupled, especially, the name of Bro. Forrester, who had befriended the lodge in a most handsome manner. Other toasts were proposed and replied to, and a most pleasant and agreeable evening was spent, an evening we are happy to say which would bear the morning's reflection. Bros. Towers, Berkett, Sanderson, and Jones, enlivened the evening at intervals with excellent singing. In closing our brief notice we must not forget to congratulate our Clayton-le-moors brethren on the beauty and excellence of their furniture and appointments.

LEICESTER.—Albert Edward Lodge (No. 1560).—The second regular meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Tuesday, January 11th. In the absence of the W.M., Earl Ferrers, the chair was occupied by Bro. G. Toller, jun., I.P.M. There were also present Bros. W. Kelly, P. Prov. G.M.; Rev. Canon Burfield, P.M., S.W.; John Hunt, J.W.; Clement Stretton, P.M., Treas.; W. Langley, P.M., Sec.; J. G. Richardson, Asst. Sec.; Rev. F. H. Richardson, S.D.; J. F. Rolleston, J.D.; S. S. Partridge, P.M., Dir. of Cers.; W. Sculthorpe, P.M., and Captain Goodchild, Stewards; Dr. Buck, I.G.; G. Morris, P.M. 279; Dr. Clifton, P.M. 1391; C. C. Woodcock, P.G. Reg., and others. Visitors: T. Worthington, W.M. 50; J. M. McAllister, W.M. 279; T. A. Wykes, J.W. 523, and W. Millican, P.M. 523. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed Bros. Burgess and H. Fowler, after being examined, were passed to the degree of F.C. The Rev. C. H. Wood having been approved on the ballot, and being in attendance, was then initiated into Masonry by the acting W.M., assisted by Bro. W. Kelly. Bro. Wykes presided at the organ. Time did not permit of the lecture being given in either degree. After the remaining business had been disposed of the lodge was closed, and a banquet took place, to which the W.M.'s of all the other lodges in the town had been invited as guests, but unfortunately only the W.M. of 279 was able to attend. The alms having been collected, the various toasts were well received and duly honoured, and altogether a very pleasant evening was spent.

EDINBURGH.—The annual celebration of the Festival of St. John took place on Monday, the 27th ult. In Edinburgh most of the lodges held meetings for the election and installation of office-bearers, and thereafter dined together at their respective rendezvous. During the evening the R.W. Masters interchanged deputations, and sent their congratulations and wishes for the prosperity of the different lodges. The weather being favourable, these visitations were carried out with a degree of comfort almost unlooked for at this usually inclement season of the year. At the meetings the loyal and Masonic toasts were given with great enthusiasm, especially the toast of "The Prince Patron of Scottish Freemasonry, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master Mason of England." PARTICK.—St. Mary's Lodge (No. 117).—On Monday evening, the 27th ult., the handsome hall erected at the instigation of the above lodge in Douglas-street, which has already been described in our columns, was opened with a grand Masonic banquet. The hall, which has been tastefully painted and artistically decorated with emblems of the Craft, including the representation of the "all-seeing eye" above the R.W.M.'s chair, and an inscription, centered by the compasses and square, giving the name of the lodge and date of laying the memorial stone, together with chastely-arranged sun-lights drooping from the roof. R.W.M. Wylie occupied the post of honour in the east, and Bro. Murdoch, in the absence of S.W. Bro. Peacock, through indisposition, discharged the duties of Senior Warden, Bro. A. Agnew being in his usual place as Junior. Around the R.W.M. on the dais were Bros. Brunton, I.P.M.; Bain, D.M.; Donaldson, S.M.; J. M. Wylie, Treas.; Lawrence, Sec.; J. Baird, S.P.G.M.; Hendry, No. 12; Smellie, A., &c. The J.W. had around him Bros. Perry, Granger, Captain Rowlings, Maclellan, M'Gregor, &c. About 100 members of the order were present. After an excellent supper, purveyed by Bro. William M'Farlane, the toasts of the "Queen and Craft," "Prince and Princess of Wales," the "Grand Lodges—Provincial," was given from the chair, and responded to by Bro. Baird. "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers" found a champion in the person of Bro. Agnew, J.W. The toast of the evening was then given from the chair. In the course of a racy and able speech the R.W.M. traced the history of the ancient lodge, an old document, from which he read extracts, showing that it had been formed as far back as 1767, when their ancestors celebrated the occasion by a grand musical parade and "spree" at a certain house kept by a J. Craig. What would the said ancestors now think if they could only see their successors assembled in this handsome new hall? remarked the R.W.M. They would indeed be proud of this temple of beauty, and admit that their sons had reared a monument worthy of St. Mary's Lodge, No. 117. They would indeed be rather astonished at seeing an illuminated palace like this. The document he held in his hands showed that as far back as 1763 there was a split in the lodge, and after some time spent in litigation, their forefathers made it up again, but an offshoot from the original obtained powers from the Grand Lodge, and formed the present St. Mary's in 1769. He concluded by hoping that in their fine new hall the lodge would be as successful and prosperous in the future as she had been in the past. (Loud cheers, and all the honours.) Bro. Brunton then gave "Sister Lodges," which was duly acknowledged by Bro. Hendry, No. 12. "Visiting Brethren" was proposed by the Treas., and responded to by Bro. Davidson, who headed a deputation from No. 390. The other toasts included "The Builder," to which Bro. Smellie replied; "The Press," "The Ladies," &c.

STEVENSTON.—Thistle and Rose (No. 169).—The election of office-bearers took place on Monday, 27th ult., when the following gentlemen were chosen to fill the different offices:—Bros. J. A. Beattie, W.M.; T. Lambie, D.M.; D. Park, P.M.; J. Kilpatrick, S.W.; A. Guthrie, J.W.; R. Walker, T.; Peter Kilpatrick, S.G.; Kilpatrick, S.D.; J. Scott, J.D.; W. Fleck, B.B.; D. Smith, S.S.; W. Scott, J.S.; W. Alexander, S.B.; J. Hunter, I.G.; A. Thomson, O.G. Deputations were received in the evening from Mother Kilwinning; Irvine St. Andrews, 149; Blair Dalry, No. 290; Royal Arch, West Kilbride, 314; and St. Matthews Kilwinning, Dregthorn, 549.

GRANGEMOUTH.—Lodge Zetland (No. 391).—On Monday night, 27th ult., about 40 of the brethren of this lodge assembled in Bro. Dunkel's Royal Hotel, for the celebration of St. John's festival, previous to which the following office-bearers were duly installed for the ensuing year:—James Baxter, W.M.; A. Taylor, P.M.; T. Allan, D.M.; E. Christensen, S.M.; J. Kennedy, S.W.; James Walls, Sec.; A. Thomson, Treas.; G. Young, S.D.; T. Osborne, J.D.; G. Palmer, S.S.; T. Dunkel, J.S.; S. Selstrom, I.G.; G. Wilson, Tyler. After the installation a most sumptuous supper was served to the brethren, to which ample justice was done. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and heartily responded to. During the evening a number of the brethren gave a selection of songs and recitations. A special vote of thanks was awarded to Bro. Dunkel for the handsome manner in which he had discharged the duties of purveyor, after which the lodge was closed.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER IN INDIA.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has been to Lucknow, Delhi, and Cawnpore, and on the 16th was again at Madras. He has been most admirably received, and the natives seem to have vied with Europeans in expressions of loyalty and devotion. He has been over ground and made a pilgrimage to spots very dear to English memories and English hearts. He has traversed the country, if not the line of march, on which gallant Havelock and fiery Neil hastened on to the "rescue," and where their averging little columns performed such wonders, and did their duty so well. He has looked on the defences of Lucknow, and beheld traces everywhere of the heroism which animated Sir Harry Lawrence and those brave men, and brave women, and loyal natives, who maintained the honour of old England amid the crumbling walls and devastated cantonments of Lucknow. He has stood within the walls of Delhi, and heard the dark tale of abominable treachery, and the glowing recital of what an English army can do, and he will, no doubt, like many more, have kindly remembered these stout hearts who are now sleeping so peacefully, "life's fitful dream being o'er," many on the spots where they fell, like the good knights of old, with their "harness on their backs," doing their duty under every difficulty chivalrously and cheerfully to the last. He has seen Cawnpore, that place where one has sung,—

"Babes and women butchered lie Round those bloodstained walls," and has, in his always kindly disposition, visited the cemetery where sleep so many gallant and devoted soldiers and servants of the Queen. One little trait of our Grand Master is very characteristic and not a little touching. In the cemetery rests a very gallant officer of the Rifle Brigade, a son of Field-Marshal Sir A. Woodford, Lieut.-Col. Charles John Woodford, who fell at the head of his men "in the very moment of victory." The Prince is reported to have plucked some leaves from the tree overhanging his soldier's grave, an act as thoughtful as kindly. Though the visit of the Prince is intended to cement all classes in that now happily peaceful land, owing to the peculiar disposition of the native mind "to take things easy," whether good or bad, it is well to be reminded of a sterner past amid the shouts of the present, and better and brighter hopes for the future. The account of the 16th leaves our Grand Master at Madras, and next week we shall continue our narrative of his Royal progress.

THE PERPETUATION OF MASONIC ERROR.

It is wonderful how long error clings to the traditions and teachings of our human race. It may be exploded and mastered over and over again, it may be clearly refuted and calmly silenced, and yet after a little while it reappears as bold and as brazen as ever. Like the clowns in the pantomime, its cry always seems to be to its sympathetic audience "Here we are again!" And this common law of life holds good in Freemasonry as in the profane world. It is very difficult to remove, above all to eradicate, Masonic error. As "each dear delusion fades and dies" before the light of truth or careful criticism, it leaves us "pro tempore," only to re-appear after a little cycle of time. In nothing is this fact so evident as in the history of what some have mistakenly called the Locke MS., though the original document, such as it is, is not a MS. at all. The latest Masonic deliverance on the subject we have seen boldly treats the MS. as a reality, and declares "ore rotundo," that a "copy was taken by Leland and preserved by him in the Bodleian Library. This has been recopied and was first published in Frankfurt in 1748." The writer also talks of the "acute comments of Leland upon it," and asserts that its date is practically 1445. Now we beg to say that such an averment on the part of a Masonic writer in 1876 is, as Talleyrand said of a mistake, "worse than a crime." It is an insult practically to the critical studies of our period, it is in itself absolutely incorrect and unhistorical from beginning to end, and demonstrates that this Masonic scribe, whoever he may be, has not mastered the first rudiments of Masonic archæology. In Germany such a remarkable assertion will be simply laughed at. Indeed, we have never seen more errors in a short statement. So far as modern research can be depended upon, no such MS. exists in the Bodleian, nor does Leland any where say that he had made a copy of it. Indeed, we are inclined to believe that Leland never saw the MS., and nowhere records it. We have long asked for the passage in Leland which points to this MS., but so far in vain. No such MS. can be found in the Bodleian, or is known anywhere to exist, as stated—and even Locke's letter is now very much and properly questioned. There is a MS. copy of this pamphlet or printed catechism, in the British Museum among the additional MSS., but it is very late 18th century, and is, we believe, in the handwriting of Essex, the architect, who seems to have made a small collection of Masonic MSS. But this MS. was copied apparently from the printed form, and not the printed form from it. The document first appeared in the "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1753, and was said to be an "Ancient MS. on Freemasonry, and a copy of a small pamphlet consisting of 12 pages in octavo, printed at Frankfort, in Germany, in 1748." It also is stated to have been found on the writing table of a deceased brother, and to have been translated from the German. Now, of this German or English pamphlet nothing is known. The perpetuator of error states that it was published in 1748 at Frankfort, but of this fact no evidence is forthcoming. Kloss doubts it, and Kloss's doubts are most other peoples' certainties. It appeared first of all in the "Gentleman's Magazine" in 1753, as we said just now, and is reprinted by Preston in 1772, and Hutchinson in 1775, having previously appeared in the Constitutions of 1767 and 1769. At this moment we cannot put our hands on the Constitutions of 1756. The document professes to be a translation from the German of an English original, and, notwithstanding this self-evident absurdity, has been handed on as a genuine Masonic evidence. And, though later students have shown its unreal character historically and critically, it is still gravely declared to exist in the Bodleian as copied by John Leland. Thus error is perpetuated, and how are we to stop it? Experts in MSS. have long doubted the "archaisms" of the document, and above all that remarkable vocabulary. Locke's letter has never been traced, and the whole "surroundings" of the MS. or pamphlet are full of suspicion. As an evidence of 1445 it is worthless. In its present form it does not represent 1445 or 1545, and we do not believe 1645. It is in all probability the adaptation by some of those restless, hermetic, alchemical, and Rosicrucian Masons, who, about the middle of the last century, were adepts at inventing and palming off Masonic documents on credulous brethren. It may have for its basis an old Masonic or Lodge Catechism, conjoined with an alchemical or hermetic one, and is in fact a "fraus pia" on the Masonic world, in what it claims and in what it asserts. But such is the perpetuation of error that it survives often all the laborious efforts of the scholar and the critic, and is, as ever, greedily received and industriously perpetuated by the charlatan and sciolist. But in the true interests of Masonic archæological science, we protest again to-day against this perpetuation of error, this unscientific and uncritical method of dealing with the antiquities and history of Freemasonry.

THE SUPPLY OF MASONIC LITERATURE.

It was one of the old objections to lodge libraries that books were few, and all pretty much the same. "Cui bono?" was the ancient cry, whenever any more ardent minds raised the question of a lodge library. The plea of no books, or few books, cannot now be made, and if the objection to lodge libraries is to prevail it must be based on other grounds, viz., that inertness and immovability which characterize our excellent Order on the subject of Masonic literature generally. Despite our increase and advance, despite our æsthetic tastes, and ritual improvements, we are inclined to fancy and to believe that the same objections to lodge libraries as were potent with our Masonic fathers will prevail with their Masonic children! Still, as we know, in things extern to Freemasonry, the way to remedy a grievance, or to amend a shortcoming is not to talk about it. Talking goes a very little way, and costs nothing; action takes many steps in advance, and entails some sacrifices. In order, then, to facilitate the wish, if any, for lodge libraries, in order to meet the want, if any, of Masonic literature, Bro. Kenning offers, as appears in detail in another column, to supply a certain amount of Masonic literature at a given price to lodges and chapters. And in order to accommodate the less pronounced views and wishes of some lodges on the subject, as well to suit the state of their finances, he has arranged four prices for the beginning of a lodge library, or the addition to an existing one, the lowest £2, the highest £10, the intermediate amounts being £7 and £5. We, therefore, call the attention of our readers to this liberal offer, as, no doubt, Bro. Kenning will endeavour to meet the wishes of lodges and chapters, and to exchange any books he now offers them, if already in their possession, for others. We venture to think the proposal is a liberal one, a reasonable one, and a sound one. We have far too long neglected our lodge libraries, we have taken no care of our archives, minute books are missing, records are wanting, and if they exist they are buried away in inaccessible houses or dusty lofts. We therefore say to all our readers, with the new year let us turn over a fresh leaf in our literary history, and seek to revive among us a taste for Masonic literature. The books so offered are all worthy of acceptance and purchase. Bro. D. M. Lyon's work is a book which ought to be in every lodge library; it is truly a remarkable work, and is most important for all Masonic students in the information it gives, and the light it throws on past centuries of Masonic life and work in North Britain. Bro. Findel's is the best Masonic history of our days. We do not wish to seem to say too much on the subject, or puff the wares of our enterprising publisher, but we think it well to commend the offer to the notice of our lodges, as we think that many lodges may be willing to make these interesting works the nucleus of a Masonic collection which may one day grow into a useful and valuable library. We know of course what Bro. Prudent, and Bro. Pickpoint, and Bro. Rational, and Bro. Keepsawere will say at once, the objections that will be made, the resistance that will be probably offered; but believing the movement to be a true one, and a right one, we have no doubt that if, delayed for a time it will eventually succeed. Bro. Kenning offers it a helping hand to-day, and it has our hearty good wishes for the improvement and intellectual culture of our kindly and useful Craft.

URGENT APPEAL ON BEHALF OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR AGED FREEMASONS AND WIDOWS.

19, Montague-road, Dalston,
January 12th, 1876.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow this letter to appear in your next, in reference to my appeal to the wives, mothers, and daughters of Freemasons on behalf of the aged and decayed.

I have issued nearly 2000 circulars and lists for contributions, giving the date for return on or before the 4th of January, but I am sorry to say up to the present time I have only received the following lists:—

Mrs. Robert Clarke	5	0	0
" Louis J. Wolff	2	15	0
" J. Boor	1	1	0
Miss Mayo	0	5	0

I take the opportunity of thanking the above ladies for their kind consideration and contributions.

I trust the brethren who have received lists for contributions will (if not already done) place the same into the hands of the ladies, and I have no fear of the result. The members of the Craft who have not received my list can on application to the above address, or at 51, Threadneedle-street, E.C., obtain as many as they require post free.

The total expenditure of the institution is over £8000 annually, and at the present time has 233 annuitants (men and widows). To meet this the institution only receives an income of about £2100, including the grant from Grand Lodge of £950, so that it has to rely on the liberality of the Craft to make up a deficiency of over £6000 annually.

The brethren will see by this what work there is to do. I thought that during the Christmas festivities the old men and women would not have been forgotten. This was the object I had in view in appealing at that time (I pray the Grand Architect of the Universe the appeal will yet be answered liberally). Observe our position, twenty-one unsuccessful candidates at last election, and at the coming one about forty male and an equal number of female candidates, while, at the present time, only six vacancies.

In conclusion, let me earnestly entreat, on behalf of our aged brethren, a liberal response to my appeal; and, praying for contributions on or before the 30th January,

I remain, dear Sir, yours fraternally,

FRANCIS FELLOWES,
Lion and Lamb, 192.

THE ANTIQUITY OF FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Freemason" of the 8th inst., page 18, a few paragraphs appear adverting to my communication in your issue of the 25th ult., relating to the antiquity of Freemasonry in Great Britain.

The remarks made being incorrect, I had thought they did not require notice, yet, when your Glasgow correspondent attempts to review, criticise, or advise, he ought to be well versed in the subject.

He stated that I had taken as my authority for the assertions, the "Freemason." Here he committed a very great error; I merely referred to your valuable newspaper, as to the remarks made by the Rev. P. P. Agnew.

As to the antiquity of the Craft, I quoted the "Masonic Miscellanies," by S. Jones, P.M., published about the commencement of this century (the book is dated 1811).

I have not written on this topic without having authority for the observations made, still, I am not alone in publishing what is here referred to, as, by a singular coincidence, there appears in the "London and Provincial Illustrated Newspaper," page 58, 8th January, 1876, "A Preliminary Sketch of Freemasonry," by Bro. Kenneth R. H. Mackenzie, who supplies in similar words, the dates 287 and 926, &c., as before mentioned.

Since your correspondent is a brother, I forbear noticing the want of courtesy displayed in his personal remarks.—Yours fraternally,

A PROVINCIAL P.M.

[The "Freemason" is for archaeological discussions, not for personal discussions, and we can admit no more letters in this style. We have seen Bro. Mackenzie's paper, but such dates cannot be dogmatically asserted to be landmarks of speculative Masonry, only of Craft or operative Freemasonry.—Ed.]

CAN A TYLER VOTE?

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I believe it was rather the way in which I stated my own views which caused them to be regarded with an authority to which they might not be considered entitled, being founded on an incidental expression of opinion. I, therefore, assume the entire responsibility of what I said. I may be perhaps allowed to add that it would not be possible for the Tyler of the Grand Lodge to have any other title than Grand Tyler. As such he performs, and with remarkable ability. I had no idea of making any imputation against the Grand Tyler, or the Tyler of any other lodges, and I am glad to find my views so fully borne out by so experienced and distinguished a Mason as Bro. Weaver; his words are so explicit that I may be pardoned for bringing them forward again. He says "Tyler's are not balloted for, therefore they are not members of the lodges they tile," precisely my meaning. A Tyler in one lodge may be a Deacon, Warden, or Master in another, or at any rate a private member. This was all I wished to bring forward, and the case mentioned by Bro. S.C.H. must, according to Bro. Weaver's view, be a very exceptional case. It is scarce worth while occupying your valuable space with any remarks on the other portion of the paragraph of Bro. Weaver's letter, it being foreign to the immediate question.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE.

Chiswick Square, W., Jan. 10th, 1876.

[We are glad that Bro. Mackenzie disclaims the use of the high name and great authority of our esteemed Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hevey. It is clear that Bro. Mackenzie had no authority to quote his opinion, and is in error as to payment per se being a disqualification.—Ed.]

A FRIEND AND A BROTHER.

Onnord Sur,

As I know that you are a friend to wot his right and prupper, I think it to be my dooty to hinform you of a wery quere proceeding on the part of won of your Masonic lot. Tho honly a newsboy, I ave a soul above peepers and halways has ad a sense of wot is "strait." And as I thinks the gent com I ham a writing to you hof wants a talking too, I troubles you with this here statement, or memo, as the swells calls it. "Jimmy is my name, and Brixton is my station," and I sells there for Smith and Son of oom you may ave eerd on the moornin and hevenin peepers. The hother day a gent walks up to our stall, and takes up the "Freemason." Thinks hi to myself he is a coming down with his tuppence, and perhaps a penny hover for me, like a brick. I ave allers eerd say as Masons is "bricks." But no such thing. Not E. He actually read the "Freemason," all through hadvertisements and hall, and then he puts the paper down and quietly walks away. He nearly missed his train owing to his occupation, but not a blessed farthing did he pay up. Now this Sur is wot I calls cheap liteurtoor with a wengeance. How about its being nasty too for any one to hact, as I would ave scorned to ave done? The chap seemed well to do too, but I do think it were right mean of im. How is newsboys to live, and Smith and Son, let alone heditors and newspaper proprietors, and them "chaps in the chapel." This is a joke of mine.

Now sur, do you think sich conduct, and it haint uncommon, fair of im, or fair on hus, or fair on Bro. Kenning, as I ear them calling im. No! brother, brother, brother, says he, but vry dont you hact as a brother should hact, says hi. If that worthy hindividual sees this letter, praps he'll come to the Briston Station and buy a "Freemason," and give me summat for my trouble, not monkey's hallowance.

Some folks his so different. The hother day a wery good looking yung ooman came and basked for the "Freemason." I said to her, his you one, Miss. She said I'm a sister. So I gives her a "Freemason," and she gives me sixpence, and says you may keep the fourpence for yourself. So I says to her Thank you, Miss, and good luck to the sisters I says to you to-day.

I hopes as ow you will put in this letter, for I've been in a Board School, and am

Yours respectfully,

A News Boy,

Brixton Station.

[We thank our observing correspondent. We entirely agree with his view of the matter, but, as he truly says, such behaviour is not uncommon. We wish brothers would practice "fraternity" and not merely "spout" it.—Ed.]

HISTORICAL ENGRAVING OF THE INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, M.W.G.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I wish through the medium of your columns to inform the brethren generally that the above engraving is rapidly and most satisfactorily progressing, the eminent engraver employed upon it sparing no labour or pains to produce a result worthy of the great event. Upwards of 400 portraits are now in hand, and I wish especially to call attention that I can insert fully 200 more; but these portraits must all be collected and arranged by the end of February next, which will be the latest period that I can receive portraits for insertion. I therefore particularly request qualified brethren to lose no time in forwarding their portraits to me.

I have a large number of the nobility, gentry, and brethren generally, a complete list of which I shall shortly publish in your columns. As I am sure the Craft generally will be glad to see the engraving as complete as possible, I will conclude by again requesting that portraits be forwarded to me without further delay.

I am, dear Sir and brother, fraternally yours,

EDWARD J. HARTY.

213, Regent-street, W.

P.S. I may add that brethren calling at this address can point out the position they occupied and be at once photographed, it not being necessary that the photograph should be in Masonic costume.

LETTER FROM DR. ARNOTT.

CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see you have my name appended to the letter of Dr. Arnett's, and in justice to the brother who forwarded it for publication I must not allow it to be considered as my contribution (which it is not), my part being simply to furnish the editor with particulars of the brethren mentioned in Dr. Arnett's most interesting communication.

WM. J. HUGHAN.

[We quite confirm Bro. Hughan's statement.—Ed.]

GRAND LODGE OF ALL ENGLAND AND "W.M."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to our Bro. W.M., I must again object to the terms he uses as to "York Grand Lodge," and his lodge warrant, &c.

The "York Grand Lodge" was of course the "Grand Lodge of All England," held at York, to which W.M.'s lodge did not belong, so the warrant under which his lodge works was not from the York Grand Lodge, though he says it was.

I have no doubt but what W.M. refers to the "Grand Lodge according to the old Constitutions," held in London from 1753 to 1813, and which united in the latter year with the regular Grand Lodge, known for a short title by the name of the "Moderns," and the former by the name of the "Ancients," though in reality the "Ancients" so-called were the Modern seceders, and the "Moderns" so-called were the Ancients.

My "Memorials of the Masonic Union of 1813" are out of print, but if Bro. W.M. will state the name and number of his lodge (which he has not yet done) I can give him the information desired, or lend him my list of lodges.

WM. J. HUGHAN.

BROS. BINCKES, PERROTT AND TEW.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I ask Bro. Binckes, through your columns, if he knows anything of the "Boys' School Investigation Committee" of the Province of West Yorkshire, or of the "Report" of the same announced for presentation at Leeds, January 26th?

May I ask him, has he been examined, or any of the House Committee, or any brother who knows anything really about the school at all?—Yours fraternally,

FAIR PLAY.

BRO. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have hitherto abstained from replying to any of the numerous letters and articles which have appeared in your columns under the heading "Bro. Burgess and the Mark Degree," and this for reasons known to others as well as myself.

I cannot, however, in justice to the Mark Grand Lodge, its rulers and executive, refrain from stating, in reply to the letter in your last issue, wherein Bro. Burgess makes use of the following words—"My claim was suppressed from the meeting of Grand Lodge"—that he is on this point entirely mistaken.

Not only was Bro. Burgess's letter not "suppressed" but its reception was duly announced, and on motion, duly proposed and seconded, it was unanimously resolved that it be referred for consideration and report to the General Board.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES,

The procession, on reaching the pavilion, opened out, and His Royal Highness walked forward and took his seat on the chair surrounded by the Grand Lodge Officers, &c.

His Excellency the Governor then addressed His Royal Highness as follows:—May it please your Royal Highness,—On behalf of the people of the Presidency of Bombay, I have to request that your Royal Highness will be good enough to lay the foundation stone of this structure, which is to be called the Prince's Dock.

The Prince bowed graciously, and said—With much pleasure.

H.E. the Governor then requested Col. Callard, Chairman of the Port Trust, to explain the history and object of this work, which he did in the following terms:—

May it please your Royal Highness,—Before commencing the ceremony, I will briefly give the reason for the trustees of this port undertaking the great engineering work which your Royal Highness had condescended to gratify us by this day inaugurating. It is not long since the place on which we now stand was covered by the tide, which almost reached the houses of the native town, which you see before you. A concession of the right to reclaim this foreshore was made by government to a company called the Elphinstone Land Company, who, by the year 1870, had brought the reclamation and the line of wharves to a state little different from what it now exhibits. In that year, Her Majesty's Government seeing the benefit which would accrue to trade, were this line of wharves to become public property, repurchased the whole estate on behalf of the town of Bombay, and invested it in trustees, to whom was also committed the general charge of the conservancy, lighting, and pilotage of the harbour. In order to afford increased facilities for the landing and shipping of cargo, as well as to improve their property, the trustees resolved to construct a wet dock, capable of containing with ease 30 large vessels, on the site of the basin beside us, which indeed has been planned with this view. For this purpose, Government has given us a loan of £700,000. The works have been designed by Mr. Ormiston, who is the Chief Engineer of the Port Trust, and the contractor is Mr. Glover. Both gentlemen have given proof, by the large works they have carried out in the course of their professional career, that they are possessed of the skill and resources necessary to cope with the difficulties which such a vast piece of hydraulic engineering is sure to entail. We hope the Dock may be completed in five years, and that large vessels (perhaps the Serapis) may be berthed close to the spot on which Your Royal Highness has so graciously condescended to do this service for the trustees, and for which we desire to render our humble and hearty thanks.

The Grand Master said: The ceremony will now commence.

The District Grand Chaplain (Rev. Mr. Gilder) offered the following prayer:

"Most Glorious God, Grand Architect and Governor of the Universe, we entreat Thee to pour down Thy blessing upon us, and upon the duty of which we are about to perform. Grant that this great work that is begun in Thy name, may contribute to the welfare of this community and the prosperity of this port. We pray Thee to bless this city. May its rulers be guided by Thy gracious counsels, and may its people be distinguished by truth, loyalty, and uprightness. Give peace in our time, O Lord, that all merchants and traffickers may have the free and interrupted enjoyment of their trade, and reap the fruits of their industry and enterprise. Confer, we pray Thee, Thy choicest blessings upon our Sovereign Lady the Queen; upon our Grand Master, Albert Edward Prince of Wales; Alexandra, Princess of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Grant to the Viceroy of this Empire, the Governors, and all in the authority, strength and wisdom to carry out their duties to the honour of Thy name and the welfare of the people. Vouchsafe, O Lord, to aid and preserve our Masonic Order, and to inspire us with a spirit of unity, peace, and concord. O thou whom winds and waves obey, crown this undertaking with success; and may those engaged in it be preserved from all danger, and their work, founded in wisdom, be established in strength, and adorned with beauty. Amen, so mote it be."

The whole of the brethren responded solemnly "So mote it be;" and with a peculiarly impressive effect.

The Prince wrote inside the Bible that was used on the occasion the following words, adding at the end of his signature a Swedish mark; as His Royal Highness was first affiliated in Sweden:—This Bible was used on the occasion of laying the Foundation Stone of the "Prince's Dock," Bombay, November 11th, 1875.

ALBERT EDWARD,
Grand Master.

The M.W. the Grand Master then directed the Grand Treasurers, W. Bros. J. N. Wadia (Scotland), and C. Langley (England), and the Grand Registrars, W. Bro. H. W. Barrow (England), and Phiroshah M. Mehta (Scotland) to place the coins and papers in the stone, and as both coins and records were sealed up in one bottle, carried by W. Bro. Barrow, the ceremony of placing the bottle was jointly performed by those four brethren.

The Grand Master next called on Bro. Ormiston, the Engineer of the Works, to read the inscription on the plate to be placed over the cavity in the stone. It was as follows:—

"To provide increased facilities for the commerce of Bombay, the Trustees of the Port, with the sanction of Government, resolved to construct a Wet Dock for the accommodation of the largest sea-going vessels, and by the favour of Almighty God, and in the presence of His Excellency the Honourable Sir PHILIP EDMOND WODEHOUSE, K.C.B., Governor of Bombay, and many of the Native Princes, Chiefs, and Nobles of the Empire; His Royal Highness ALBERT EDWARD, Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Free and Accepted Masons of England, and Patron of the Order in Scotland, assisted by the Honourable JAMES GIBBS, Right Worshipful District Grand Master of Bombay and its Territories, HENRY MORLAND, Esq., Most Worshipful Grand Master Mason of Scottish Freemasonry in India, and a numerous assemblage of the Craft, laid the foundation-stone of this work, to be called the Prince's Dock, on the 11th of November, A.D. 1875, and of the era of Masonry 5875, and in the 38th year of the reign of Her Most Gracious Majesty Victoria, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the Colonies and Dependencies thereof in Europe, Asia, Africa, America, and Australasia, Queen, Defender of the Faith, &c. The Most Honourable ROBERT CECIL, Marquis of Salisbury, Secretary of State for India; His Excellency the Right Honourable THOMAS GEORGE BARING, Baron Northbrook of Stratton, G.M.S.I., Viceroy and Governor-General of India. TRUSTEES OF THE PORT OF BOMBAY:—Colonel John Archibald Ballard, C.B., R.E., Chairman; the Honourable Edward W. Ravenscroft, C.S.; Lieut.-Colonel Henry F. Hancock, R.E.; Commander George T. Robinson, late I.N.; Forster F. Arbuthnot, C.S.; William G. Hall, Esq., George A. Rittredge, Esq., George F. Henry, Esq., Henry P. Le Mesurier, M. Inst. C.E.; Francis Mathew, M. Inst. C.E.; the Honourable Nacoda Mahomed Ali Rogay, Sorabji Shasoorji Bengali, Esq., George Manson, Secretary; Thomas Ormiston, M. Inst. C.E., Engineer; Glover and Company, Contractors. May the Great Architect of the Universe bless and prosper the work."

The plate was then laid on by Bro. Ormiston, Mr. Glover, the contractor, spreading the cement.

The Grand Master then completed this part of the ceremony by touching the stone with the trowel, and Bro. Ormiston lowered the stone into its place. The Junior Grand Warden (Scotland), W. Bro. Murzban, the D.D.G.W. (England), and the Deputy District Grand Master (England and Scotland) having received the commands of the M.W. the Grand Master to press the stone with the plumb, the level and the square, severally reported that the work was proper and that the craftsmen had done their duty.

The Grand Master struck the stone three times with the mallet and said I declare this stone well and truly laid. May the blessings of Heaven be on this work.

The Grand Master then poured from three separate silver ewers, corn, wine, and oil upon the top of the stone, the D.G. Chaplain meanwhile pronouncing the words—May an abundance of corn, wine, and oil be vouchsafed to us and to all men; and may the Great Architect of the Universe bless this undertaking, and promote the prosperity of this great work, the brethren all solemnly rejoicing "So mote it be."

The Prince, having examined the plans, returned to his seat, when

The Hon. Mr. Gibbs, D.G.M., addressed him thus—Most Worshipful Grand Master,—May it please your Royal Highness to receive a humble address from the Masons of Bombay.

His Royal Highness bowed his permission, and the District Grand Master then read the following address:—

To the Most High, Most Puissant, and Most Illustrious Prince, ALBERT EDWARD, Prince of Wales, K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.B., G.C.S.I., &c., &c., Most Worshipful Grand Master of the United Fraternity of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England, Patron of Scottish Freemasonry, &c., &c. &c.

May it please Your Royal Highness,—We, the District Grand Master of Bombay and its Territories, and the Grand Master of all Scottish Freemasonry in India, for ourselves, and on behalf of the District Grand Lodge of Bombay, the Grand Lodge of all Scottish Freemasonry in India, the Masters, Past Masters, Wardens and brethren of all the lodges here holding under the English and Scottish Constitutions, greatly rejoice to welcome your Royal Highness to Bombay, the oldest of Her Majesty's possessions in India.

We avail ourselves of the opportunity thus graciously afforded us of declaring our firm and indissoluble loyalty and devotion to Her Majesty the Queen, and expressing our profound attachment to your Royal person; and we now, with grateful pride, beg to offer the homage due to your Royal Highness as Grand Master and Patron of our Ancient and Honourable Order.

The wide extension and material progress of Freemasonry in the Presidency during the past decade, and the welcome accession to your fraternity of an ever increasing number of lodges entirely supported by our loyal and enlightened Parsee, Hindoo, and Mahomedan fellow-subjects, afford just ground for congratulation, and for the belief that this visit of your Royal Highness will give a lasting impulse to the advancement of the Craft in India; and strengthen, if it be possible, that unswerving allegiance to and veneration for our Rulers and Patrons which have ever distinguished Freemasonry.

We earnestly pray that your Royal Highness may long be spared to exercise the power and influence of your most exalted station in forwarding the interests of our beneficent institution, whose aim and end it is to promote the growth of virtue and morality, and lessen the aggregate of human misery and vice.

Commending your Royal Highness to the constant guidance and protection of the G.A.O.T.U., we have the honour to subscribe ourselves, your Royal Highness' most obedient, faithful, and devoted servants,

HENRY MORLAND, G.M.F.S. India.
J. GIBBS, D.G.M. Bombay.

Dated at Bombay, this 14th day of November, A.L. 5875, A.D. 1875.

The Grand Master listened attentively to the address, and bowed graciously at two or three points.

When R.W. Bro. Gibbs had concluded, R.W. Bro. Morland stood forward and said—May it please your Royal Highness,—The Lodge Rising Star of Western India had hitherto been honoured by the Grand Masters of Western England receiving their Founder's Medal, and I have been deputed by the brethren to request, on this occasion, your gracious acceptance of that medal.

The Grand Master,—I have the greatest pleasure in accepting it. R.W. Bro. Morland handed him the medal, enclosed in a carved wood case.

The Grand Master then replied to the address. He said—Right Worshipful, Worshipful, and other Brethren,—I thank you for your address. I have learned with great pleasure the flourishing condition of the Craft in this part of India, and the efficiency with which lodges annually increasing in number fulfil the objects of the institution by uniting together men of various castes and creeds in the bonds of fraternal brotherhood, by giving them common objects of exertion for extending the knowledge of our ancient Craft and for promoting the good of all mankind. It is a great pleasure to me to join the brethren in Bombay in a work which will tend to the protection of life and property to the extension of trade, and to add to the prosperity and happiness of large bodies of our fellow men.

This speech was followed by loud cheering, amid which the procession was reformed, and His Royal Highness retired.

MASONIC CAREER OF THE EARL OF SHREWSBURY.

COMMUNIQUE.

The Right Hon. Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot was installed P.G. Master of Staffordshire about six years ago, and at once took great interest in the various lodges in his province, establishing quarterly communications for the different parts, holding a meeting in each part every three months, so that all Masons could have an opportunity of attending Prov. Grand Lodge, and becoming acquainted with its members. He himself regularly attended these meetings and consequently soon knew all the prominent members of each lodge, which enabled him much better to select the P.G. Officers at the annual meeting at Stafford. He also causes at each of these four meetings, the charity box to go round, giving largely himself; the proceeds to go to a fund called the "Shrewsbury Fund," for local charity only. He also took very great interest in the three great Masonic Charities, volunteering to take the chair of each at the annual festival dinners in rotation. He began with the Boys' in 1872, at which £5510 was collected, Lord Shrewsbury himself giving a large sum he had collected from his friends to the Stewards from his province, who supported him on that occasion. In the following year he presided at the Girls' School, giving away at Clapham the prizes to the various young ladies who had earned them, assisted by Lady Shrewsbury and his daughter, Lady Theresa Talbot; expressing his great delight at the splendid schools, and the proficiency of the scholars. To celebrate the event the Masons of his province subscribed and Lady Shrewsbury presented the schools with an entirely new service of pottery ware, breakfast, dinner, &c., sufficient to supply the whole school, and a few over in case of breakage. Each article is impressed with a design of the schools, and under is the Staffordshire knot, which gives a very pretty effect, and will remind the girls of the donors. In 1875 he presided at the dinner for the Aged Freemasons, when £7020 was collected, the largest amount yet obtained at the annual festival. There is in his province an association which other provinces would do well to follow—the "Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Association," established just five years ago for the increase of subscribers to the various Masonic charities, which is done by annual subscriptions of one guinea a year for five years, a ballot taking place every half-year for priority of life subscriptions. Thus 100 members give £100 guineas each year, which will make twenty life-subscribers; a ballot is taken which of the 100 shall be first entitled to his life vote, and as all promise, under pain of losing what he may have already paid, to pay each year one guinea, in five years the whole hundred will be life subscribers of any institution they may select, thus collecting a large amount for the various charities, and giving the province such a large number of votes that in a few years they will be able to place their candidates in the schools almost on the first application. The P.G. Master is the President, and took the chair at the annual meeting held at Stafford last December, when forty life-subscribers were balloted for. There is also in connection with it a benevolent fund, which is to educate the children of deceased local brethren, who are too old, or who cannot get into the schools. Perhaps, however, Lord Shrewsbury's Masonic love for the brethren of his province was best shown when H.R.H. the Grand Master was installed. Knowing that a good many brethren would then be in London who were not in the habit of often going, and that they would not know where to go on their arrival, he caused his P.G. Sec. to issue circulars inviting all the Worshipful Masters, Wardens, P.G. Officers, &c., who were going, to meet at his house in Dover-street, Piccadilly, where he had a splendid lunch ready, and sufficient carriages and omnibuses to take the whole of the brethren to the Albert Hall, giving to each a ticket on which was the number of his carriage, to prevent confusion, and appointing a place to meet again. When the installation was over the carriages were again waiting, and the brethren were taken back to Dover-street, the noble lord driving them first in his own carriage to welcome the brethren on their arrival at his house, where another substantial meal was ready for those who would partake of it, and wine in profusion was served during the whole time the brethren were present. Such a truly Masonic gathering did not take place in any house in London on that great day, and the Staffordshire Masons felt justly proud of their Prov. Grand Master, and it was with very great pleasure when, at the annual meeting of Pro. Grand Chapter, it was arranged to present a marriage present to Lady Theresa Talbot, who was about marrying the Viscount Castlereagh. Almost every member of the province subscribed; they felt that it would in a small way show the respect and esteem in which they held the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, their Provincial Grand Master.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT: Indigestion, bilious headache.—These ailments may sometimes be considered by the young and thoughtless to be trifling inconveniences, but it should be borne in mind that by simple inattention and neglect they often end most seriously. The wise without delay rectify a deranged stomach. They take Holloway's Pills, rub his celebrated Ointment over the pit of the stomach and liver, and they at once perceive the change for the better in the system, spirits, appetite, strength and energy. The improvement, though it may be gradual, will be thorough and lasting. They preserve from a recurrence of the malady. Holloway's Pills will be found to purify the blood, and give healthy action to every organ.—ADVT.]

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS. FESTIVAL 1876. BY WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

It has occurred to me that a few words respecting the above institution might be acceptable to our brother Stewards for 1876, as to its origin and early history.

In the report of our excellent Secretary Bro. Binckes, dated June, 1875, is a most interesting sketch of the commencement of the institution, which merits our careful attention, and especially as it communicates valuable information hitherto unnoticed by the fraternity.

The popular notion is that the R.M.I. for Boys was founded by certain members of the Lodge No. 23, under the "Ancients" A.D. 1798, and that the "Moderns" had no such society, theirs being for girls alone, (the R.M.I. for Girls having been established in 1798) or that the institution for Girls originated with the "Moderns," (so called) and the Boys with the "Ancients" (so called).

Undoubtedly Lodge No. 23 (United Mariners), has the honour of starting the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and at a meeting convened of "Ancient" Masons, held on the 3rd day of July, 1798, it was agreed, according to the recommendation of that lodge to "establish a Masonic Society for clothing and educating the sons of indigent Freemasons." The Grand Lodge "according to the old constitutions" soon took the matter in hand most earnestly, and passed a law, that upon registering each initiate in London, or in the country, the sum of five shillings, or two shillings and sixpence shall be paid respectively towards the funds of that society, and under the patronage of the M.W.G.M. the Duke of Athol, the institution flourished, some fifty children being so educated and clothed every year.

The regular Grand Lodge, in the person of one of its most distinguished members, Bro. Sir Francis C. Daniel, M.D., however formed an independent society. In a memoir of this good brother, now brought into notice by Bro. Binckes, we find that Sir Francis Daniel established a "Masonic charity, for clothing and educating the sons of indigent Freemasons; and in July, 1798, (1808 is believed to be the year), the foundation stone of this institution was laid. This praiseworthy undertaking was accomplished under the wing of the Royal Naval Lodge, No. 50, London, on the roll of the "Moderns," and of which lodge the worthy knight (Daniel) had been Master for seventeen consecutive years, and resumed the same office twice since at different periods.

During his long period of Mastership of the Royal Naval Lodge he initiated "upwards of 600 American captains and near 400 British Naval Commanders," so that it is quite evident that the lodge had every right to its title. Sir F. C. Daniel was succeeded by the Right Hon. the Earl of Kingston as W.M., and was presented by his lordship, in requital of his eminent services, with a silver cup unanimously voted him by the lodge.

In the minutes of a General Meeting of the subscribers to the Masonic charity, instituted by Bro. Daniel, held at the Royal Naval Lodge on Friday, 23rd June, 1809, it would appear that the Society, especially active from March 25th, 1808, had then received subscriptions in one year amounting to £330 (circa), and expended £151 for the same period. The Earl of Kingston was then its noble patron, and the Earl of Moira and other distinguished brethren, Vice-Presidents, the well known Chevalier B. Ruspini being prominent as usual in any and every good Masonic work.

It is then a fact that Sir Francis's next "Grand Masonic Act" was to institute a second charity for the purpose of protecting the widows and orphans of the regular Masons, and is noted in the memoir, by which it would appear that the institution alluded to is in reality the one already mentioned, and that the foundation was 1808, and not 1791 as stated in another paragraph. I think it likely that the writer of the memoir has erroneously taken the year of origin of a similar institution under the "Ancients" to refer to Bro. Daniel's Society, and so we may fairly take it for granted that the Society for the education of the sons of deceased and indigent Freemasons was originated by that brother in 1808. This is evident also from the purport of a circular issued by Sir F. C. Daniel, asking for subscriptions, dated Nov. 6th, 1809.

In consequence of the glorious Union of 1813, by which the "Moderns" and "Ancients" were consolidated into one body, Bro. Sir Francis C. Daniel, after three months' arduous exertion accomplished the Union of the two charities, in which work he was much indebted to Bro. W. Williams, Esq., M.P., Provincial Grand Master for the County of Dorset, and Sir William Rawlins, Past Senior Grand Warden, without whose able assistance he would have had much difficulty. These two gentlemen, along with Sir Francis, subscribed additional sums in order to accomplish this desirable object. The effect of these noble exertions, by the consolidation of this excellent institution, has been that it provides for 70 children, who are neatly clothed and educated the same as in the best academies, and on calculating the numbers from the establishment it is ascertained that near 1000 children have been provided for, and about 400 families relieved, including a pension for several widows.

The union of the two charities was consummated on the 26th May, 1817, and in a circular issued during the same month the energetic knight again implored the aid of the fraternity, in the names of the noble patrons, the Dukes of Sussex, Kent, and Athol, and others, and for the sake of "upwards of forty boys imploring protection." The number "left out in the cold" is still more at the present time, and should incite the Stewards for 1876 to strive to their utmost in the glorious cause of Masonic Benevolence, not only for the boys, but for the sister institutions of which we, as Masons, are so justly proud.

In this year of the foundation of the Masonic Institution for Boys by the "Ancients" there were six lads provided for, now there are fully 170 more! What need be said more than this simple yet eloquent fact to cause a large influx of subscriptions?

It is pleasant to note that the two lodges, to whom the honour is justly due of originating the institution in question, exist to this day. The Royal Naval Lodge having been warranted A.D. 1738, and was numbered 57 immediately before the Union, as we have seen. At the union that number was changed to 79, then in 1832 to 70, and in 1863 to 59. The "United Mariner's Lodge," (both names singular to say having to do with the Navy) before the "Union" was No. 23 under the "Ancients," afterwards it became No. 36, in 1832 No. 33, and in 1863 No. 30. Long may they exist, and help to maintain our great Masonic Charities.

CONSECRATION OF ROYAL PRINCE OF WALES'S LODGE, NO. 1555, PENANG, STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

The rapid progress that our ancient and honourable Craft is making in Europe is fully equalled in proportion in the far East. Where, a few years ago, Masonry was hardly represented, now it exists as a well-known and flourishing institution, its noble and honourable tenets respected, and its ancient landmarks guarded and upheld by men whose names are associated with that nobleness of mind and purpose which are the ramparts of social and moral virtue.

In Japan, China, Singapore, Batavia, Manilla, and other places, lodges have been existing for some time, and now another support has been added to the old Masonic Oak by the founding and full establishment of a lodge in Penang, (or Prince of Wales's Island), Straits Settlements.

The Royal Prince of Wales' Lodge, No. 1555 (deriving its name from a double source, viz., from our M.W. Grand Master in England, and from the Island in which it is situated), was commenced in April last by the resident and seafaring brethren, numbering in all some fifteen or sixteen. These in a most liberal manner furnished the necessary funds, and through the truly fraternal help and kindness of the R.W. Bro. F. H. Gottlieb, of Singapore, in Masonic charge of the Eastern Archipelago, the formal and proper application was made and forwarded to the United Grand Lodge of England for a warrant of constitution, &c. Fortunately, the R.W. District Grand Master, Bro. W. H. Read, then on a visit to England, at once gave the matter his undivided attention, and to whose untiring energy, and great interest taken in the proceedings we may attribute our present success. The warrant, bearing the sign manual of our Royal Brother the M.W. Grand Master, and dated July 5th, 1875, was duly received, though it was not until the 4th of December last that the consecration and installation could be arranged to take place. On that day these ceremonies were carried through under the presidency and direction of R.W. Bro. W. H. Read, D.G.M., and R.W. Bro. F. H. Gottlieb. The members of the lodge, numbering thirty-six, were all present, besides numerous visitors. Many of our naval and military brethren were unavoidably absent, having to be present at the scene of the disturbances in the adjacent territory of Perak. How sorely did we miss the one whose cruel and treacherous murder by the Malays, in Perak, had necessitated the presence of troops and naval forces to avenge his death.

W. Bro. the Hon. J. W. W. Birch was one of the brightest stars of Masonry in the East, and, with his great love for its principles, was respected by the whole Craft here.

He, together with Bro. Captain Innes, R.E., were both members of the lodge, and had looked forward with much pleasure to joining in these ceremonies, which alas! they were not to see. They died as Masons should die—for duty.

Never will those brethren who had the honour of being present forget the impression left by these beautiful services. The perfect working of the R.W. brethren and the marked unanimity and love prevailing made it an occasion to be remembered by all.

W. Bro. the Rev. Arthur Fearon, Colonial Chaplain, was installed as first W.M. of this lodge, and the brethren have good cause to congratulate themselves that circumstances should have permitted of their choosing one to rule that is so well known and respected for his great admiration and love for the fundamental principles of our Masonic Craft.

Much satisfaction was expressed at the furniture, regalia, &c., which had been supplied by Bro. George Kenning, of London, and the reasonable prices charged.

At seven o'clock in the evening the inauguration banquet took place in the library and committee room, and, thanks to the energy and kind attention of the Stewards, Bros. Lavine, Comrie, Hill, Fox, Anthony, and Ainslie, was a complete success.

The usual Masonic and loyal toasts were drunk with honours, and after a very pleasant and sociable evening, it being Saturday night, the brethren broke up and dispersed to their homes about eleven o'clock.

The officers for the year 1875-6 are W. Bros. the Rev. A. Fearon, W.M.; A. Ainslie, S.W.; S. A. Fox, J.W.; W. D. Hill, Treasurer; J. Wilkinson, Secretary; W. Marshall, S.W.; J. King, J.W.; E. S. Cohen, I.G.; W. Penegar, Tyler.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, which will hold its annual festival next Friday at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville Road, at half-past 6 in the evening, was incorrectly described in our last impression as the Metropolitan Club of Instruction. As "Clubs of Instruction" are not allowed by Grand Lodge, the brethren who read the paragraph must have seen that this was an unintentional error.

Knights Templar.

PRESCOT.—William de la More Preceptory.—A conclave of the Knights attached to this preceptory was recently held at the New Masonic Hall, Prescott. The proceedings were opened about half-past three o'clock by Sir Knight J. Kellett Smith, E.P., and the others present were Sir Knights G. Turner, P.E.C.; J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.C.; R. Brown, Prelate; R. Young, First Cap.; T. Ashmore, Second Cap.; H. Nelson, Registrar; J. Wood, Treasurer; W. Tyrer, Almoner; J. W. Ballard, Expert; W. J. Thomson, Cap. Lines; E. M. Sheldon; and the visitors were Sir Knights H. R. Beswick Roysds, Sub Prior; W. Doyle, E. C. Alpass, Preceptor and Constable Lancashire; T. Berry, P.G. S.B. England and P. Prov. First Grand Cap.; and J. E. Jackson, First Cap. Alpass. After some preliminary business, Sir Knight H. R. Beswick Roysds, Sub Prior of Lancashire, took the chair, and proceeded with the installation of Sir Knight R. Young as the E.P. for the ensuing year, the work being done in a remarkably effective style throughout. The E.P., having been saluted in the usual form, proceeded to invest the following as his officers:—Sir Knights T. Ashmore, C.; H. Nelson, M.; W. Tyrer, P.; R. Brown, R.; J. Wood, Treasurer; J. W. Ballard, A.; W. J. Thomson, E.; and Dr. E. M. Sheldon, C. of the L. Sir Knight Captain G. Turner, in name of the Sir Knights, presented Sir Knight Dr. J. Kellett Smith, I.P. Preceptor, with a valuable solid silver cigar case, as a slight recognition of his valuable services during the past year as E.P. After the transaction of some business, the preceptory was closed, and the assembled Knights adjourned to a sumptuous banquet. Sir Knight Young, E.P., presided.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LANCASTER.—Red Cross Conclave (No. 12).—The regular and installation meeting of this conclave was held on Monday, 18th Jan., at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, when the following officers were present:—Em. and Perf. Sir Knt. Wm. Hall, M.P.S.; Em. Sir Knt. W. H. Bagnall, V.E.; Illus. Sir Knt. J. Daniel Moore, M.D., Insp. General; Sir Knt. F. Dean, S.G.; Sir Knt. E. Airey, J.G.; and others. After the preliminary business had been transacted, and two candidates elected, a senate of Sovereigns was opened, and Sir Knt. Moore, as Installing Officer, duly enthroned Sir Knt. Bagnall into the chair of C., and a college of Viceroys being declared, afterwards inducted Sir Knt. F. Dean into the chair of E. The Knights were re-admitted, and paid their obeisance to the M.P.S. and V.E. The officers were then appointed as follows:—Sir Knts. J. D. Moore, Treas.; E. Airey, S.G.; W. J. Sey, J.G.; W. Wearing, Prefect; R. Taylor, Sentinel. There being no other business, the conclave was closed in due form.

MASONIC BALL AT SHEFFIELD.

One of the most successful balls of the season was given on Friday night (January 7th), in the Cutlers' Hall, by the Freemasons of Sheffield. As usual they engaged the whole suite of rooms, and made the most complete and elaborate arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of their guests. They did not wish the Masonic Ball to stand pre-eminent in point of number of visitors, but what they have always wished to bring about, and what they again achieved, was firstly to keep it select, and secondly that their guests should be thoroughly satiated with pleasure. The large handsome banqueting hall (of world-wide renown) was devoted to dancing, the ladies' gallery being occupied by the band. The hall was excellently laid. The ball-room was approached from the vestibule by an ornamental passage formed by a screen and awning; this passage was laid with rich carpet, on which appeared the Prince of Wales's plume (used during Royal visit), and the awning, screen, &c., were decorated with festoons of flowers and gilt heading. The supper gave every satisfaction, as also did the wines. The tables were tastefully decorated with choice plants and flowers, which contributed to make up a brilliant scene. The ball-room (same as used during the recent Royal visit) presented a very animated appearance, the chandeliers casting down a flood of light upon the dancers. Amongst the regalia worn we noticed that of Craft, Provincial Grand Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Provincial Grand Mark, Rose Croix, 30°, Knights' Templar, Red Cross of Constantine, K.H.S., and the Royal Order of Scotland; others in military uniforms. These, together with the light costumes of the ladies, made up a most enchanting picture. The band was under the conductorship of Bro. Charles Harvey, and in addition to his ordinary string band there was the principal viola and bassoon from Mr. Charles Halle's band, (Manchester), and the principal violoncello of Mr. De Jong's band, (Manchester). The programme consisted of eighteen dances, exclusive of supper dances. The whole of the arrangements were under the supervision of a committee of twelve, selected from the three lodges, Bros. S. B. Ellis and Joseph Binney acting as Honorary Secretaries; the Stewards (which included the committee) were Bros. J. A. Andrew, R. Arnison, P.M., &c.; H. H. Bedford, J. Binney, W. H. Brittain, P.M., &c.; J. Clark, T. Collinson, P.M.; H. Eeroyd, W.M.; S. B. Ellis, S.W.; John Fawcett, W.M.; H. J. Garnett, P.M., &c.; G. W. Hawksley, P.M.; S. Hayes, P.M.; J. F. Moss, P.M.; H. W. Pawson, P.M.; R. Renton, A. Scargill, P.M.; R. Schott, John Sutcliffe, P.M., &c., (Grimsby); Dr. W. R. Thomas, J.W.; Geo. W. Webster, J.W.; W. White, W.M. The dancing commenced at 9, and continued until 4 o'clock. Upwards of 300 were present, some of whom came from Rotherham, Chesterfield, Worksop, Nottingham, Manchester, York, London, Liverpool, Barnsley, and Grimsby.

INTERESTING PRESENTATION TO A WORTHY BROTHER.

There is no more familiar firm in Liverpool and neighbourhood than "Vandyke and Brown," the eminent photographers, and on the occasion of Bro. R. Brown, W.M. 241, Hon. Sec. to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, resuming the sole proprietorship of the business he originally founded under the above well-known title, he entertained at his residence a few evenings ago the principal artists connected with his numerous establishments. These numbered some sixty or seventy ladies and gentlemen, who sat down to an elegant banquet, supplied by Bro. W. Vines, and afterwards the party resolved itself into a most enjoyable ball, which was kept up with great spirit until the following day. It is probable that so large a gathering, in connection with the comparatively new business of photography, could not be produced by any other than this well-known Liverpool firm, which promises, under new auspices, to continue its prosperous career. Advantage was taken of the occasion to present Bro. Brown with a testimonial, signed by the staff present.

Bro. R. Brown is most deservedly esteemed very highly in Masonic circles for his untiring energy and zeal in the cause of charity and in every work which will further the cause of the Craft, and every brother in W.L. will rejoice that he has thus been honoured by those whom he employs. His name and fame are known in all the lodges, and every brother desires him the greatest success in the business of which he is now the sole proprietor.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President, presided, having Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., in the Senior Vice-President's chair, and Bro. E. P. Albert, Assistant Grand Pursuivant, in the Junior Vice-President's chair. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, attended, with Bros. H. G. Buss, Grand Registrar of Middlesex, and A. A. Pendlebury. There were also present Bros. James Glaisher, P.G.D.; Samuel May, P.G.S.; Griffiths Smith, P.G.S.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Samuel Poynter, P.M.; W. T. Howe, Prov. G.S. Middlesex; H. Potter, P.M. (No. 11); W. Mann, P.M. (No. 186); John Bingemann, W.M. (No. 55); Herbert Dicketts, P.G.S.; W. Hilton, P.M. (No. 780); W. H. Myers, W.M. (No. 820); H. Lloyd Thomas, P.M. (No. 449); C. Pulman, W.M. (No. 720); H. W. Hemsworth, P.M. (No. 1193); W. R. Marsh, I.P. M. (No. 9); W. H. Morris, W.M. (No. 1489); F. Driver, W.M. (No. 45); J. J. Canelley, W.M. (No. 13); B. Carter, W.M. (No. 898); Alfred Savill Tomkins, W.M. (No. 822); Stephen Lewin, W.M. (No. 861); John Mason, W.M. (No. 1567); E. Wahn, W.M. (No. 1437); T. G. Day, W.M. (No. 1076); B. Brayshaw, W.M. (No. 1472); G. R. (No. 1158); Henry Bartlett, P.M. (No. 147), and Wm. Stephens, P.M.

The grants of from £40 to £15, each (amounting in all to £425), made at the last Lodge of Benevolence, which required confirmation were confirmed.

The lodge then proceeded with the new cases, of which there were 16, 7 widows and 9 brethren. One case was dismissed, and two cases were deferred. The remainder were relieved with £180; which was composed of one £40, three £20, two £15, and five £10. A new case was brought up without any previous notice; but although it was of a case of very great distress, the constitutions of Grand Lodge not having been complied with, (three days' notice) it could not be entertained.

The brethren then adjourned.

ROSICRUCIAN SOCIETY.

The Quarterly Convocation of the Metropolitan College was held at 17, Great James-street, on Thursday, the 13th inst. Present: Bros. the Rev. W. B. Church, R. Wentworth Little, Dr. Woodman, H. A. Dubois, T. Cubitt, Dewar, Matier, Kenning, Hubbard, Thomas, Rosenthal, and others. Several brethren were received into the M.C.

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS TASSEL.

Bro. T. Tassel, P.M. 79, died on Friday, 14th inst., at his residence Church-street, Deptford. Some years back he took an active part in politics, afterwards he left Deptford for a short time, on his return he rarely mixed in company of any sort. He carried on business as a chemist, and dying at a comparatively young age under fifty. He never relinquished his profession. His wife died some time ago, but he has left children to lament their loss. He was initiated in Pythagorean Lodge, 79, where he passed the chair about ten years ago; of late he did not attend any Masonic meetings.

DOMESTIC WATER SUPPLY OF GREAT BRITAIN.—One of the most important questions of the present day is how to secure for our water supply, purity and freedom from putrescent organic matter. This subject is deeply interesting to a body concerned in SCHOOLS, ASYLUMS, and other kindred INSTITUTIONS; and a filtration that ensures the decomposing of organic matter should at once be fully recognised. The Royal Commission on Rivers Pollution (1868) states, "Whenever towns have the misfortune to be supplied with water from rivers polluted by sewage, efficient filtration should always be stringently insisted on," and of all materials with which the Royal Commissioners experimented, animal charcoal and spongy iron were found to be the most effective in removal of organic matter; the Thames water assumes the chemical character of deep well water, bright, sparkling, palatable and wholesome. Bischoff's Patent Sparkling Iron Filtrates to the consumer the most powerful and lasting action in purifying water, with perfect control over the speed of filtration, and is officially recommended by Royal Commission, as superior to all other Filters tested. Copies of the Original Official reports can be seen, and extracts obtained at the Depot, 505, Oxford-street, where inspection and every information is afforded. Special attention is called to the last Report of the Registrar General (January, 1876), that one of the worst London waters, after filtration through Spongy Iron Filters, was even considerably purer, so far as chemical character is concerned, than the Kent Company's water—unpolluted and drawn from deep wells—and which the Registrar's Official Report states "was of its usual quality." We are glad to note this important and convincing statement, and commend it to the attention of our readers.

An entertainment will be given this (Saturday) evening by the members of the School of Dramatic Art, at Ripon House, Woburn-place, Russell-square, at 7 o'clock. The entertainments will include Andrew Halliday's Comedy "Checkmate," and S. T. Smith's Comedietta "Happy Pair."

ANNUAL GRAND MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The 27th Annual Grand Ball of the Freemasons in and around Liverpool, which took place at the Town Hall, on Tuesday, the 11th inst., was, in point of attendance, the most successful, with one exception, which has ever been held, and a great amount of this success must be attributed to the great zeal, tact, and enterprise shown by Bro. H. Nelson, the Hon. Sec., P.M. 673 and 1505. "Honour to whom honour is due" demands that primary credit should be given to him for his keen and brotherly exertions in connection with the honourable office, and the very substantial addition to the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution which will be the result, will doubtless be to him sufficient return for his almost night-and-day labours to make the 1876 ball a great success. This noble charity, which is the pride and pet of Freemasons in West Lancashire, was again the object of the annual festive gathering of Masons, and it must have been satisfactory to those who enjoyed the brilliant assembly that they were in some degree contributing in some measure to the strengthening of the foundations of that charity.

The W.L. Masonic Educational Institution, which has been founded and fostered by true Masonic hearts and hands, is perhaps one of the noblest Masonic organisations in the country, and the annual help it receives from the Craft assembling at the town hall is cordially seconded by the individual efforts of every one of the 79 lodges in the province. As a result of this brotherly pulling together, the "W.L." now boasts the possession of a vested capital of £13,000; and out of this sum there are at present between 60 and 70 children who are educated by its instrumentality at a cost of from £8 to £45 each. The voluntary subscriptions of the brethren go a long way towards securing this noble end; and its flourishing condition is largely due to the enthusiasm displayed by all the lodges in the maintenance of its efficiency and usefulness. The success of the institution is largely due to the untiring efforts of Bros. R. Brown, the Hon. Sec., W.M. 241, and R. Wilson, P.G.S.D., the Hon. Treas. Previous balls have invariably resulted in a large addition to the funds of the institution, and that of last evening is likely to be even more helpful to the cause of charity than any which has been given for several years.

The ball enjoyed the patronage of His Worship the Mayor (Lieut.-Col. Thomson) and Mayoress, both of whom were present during a considerable part of the evening, and the other patrons and patronesses were Right Hon. the Countess Bective, Right Hon. Lady Skelmersdale, the Hon. Lady Constance Stanley, Mrs. Bousfield. Bros. Right Hon. Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M. England; Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. England, R.W. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Major Starkie, R.W. Prov. G.M. East Lancashire, P.G.W. England, W. Prov. S.G.W. of West Lancashire; Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Major G. C. Legh, M.P., W.D. Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Edward Samuelson, Esq., P. Prov. S.G.D. Cheshire; Hon. Frederick A. Stanley, W.D. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Gilbert Greenall, Esq., M.P., P.S. G.W. England, and W.P. Prov. S.G.W. of West Lancashire; Charles Fryer, Esq., W. Prov. S.G.W. West Lancashire; W. C. Deeley, Esq., W. Prov. J.G.W. West Lancashire; Sir J. Ranaden, W.P. Prov. G.S.W. W. Lancashire; Lieut.-Col. Birchall, W.P. Prov. G.J.W., West Lancashire; John Prescott, Esq., W.P. Prov. G.J.W., West Lancashire; Earl Bective, R.W. Prov. G.M., Cumberland and Westmorland; W. R. Callender, Esq., M.P., W.D. Prov. G.M., East Lancashire; Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart, M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M. Shropshire and North Wales Major N. G. P. Bousfield, M.P.; John Pearson, Esq., J.W. 680, High Sheriff Lancashire; W. Rathbone, Esq., M.P.; Right Hon. Viscount Sandon, M.P.; Colonel Ireland Blackburne, M.P.; J. Torr, Esq., M.P.

The arrangements, as usual, were well considered and admirably carried out by an efficient committee, constituted as follows:—President.—Bro. Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. England, R.W. Prov. G.M., W.L., Vice-President.—Bro. Hon. F. A. Stanley, M.P., W.D. Prov. G.M., W.L. Chairman of Committee.—Bro. H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec., W.L. Vice-Chairman.—Bro. W. M. Chudley, P.M., 241. Treasurer.—Bro. G. Hutchin, S.W. 241. Thanks to the capital generosity of an active band of Stewards (who wore handsome Masonic rosettes supplied by Bro. G. Kenning) and the committee, the comfort of the visitors was greatly promoted. This was no easy task, when it is stated that about 1000 persons were present at the ball. For their accommodation the entire suite of noble rooms at the Town Hall was brought into requisition, the council chamber being used as a general supper room. Nearly every Order in Freemasonry was represented, and as clothing and insignia of office were worn by nearly all the brethren present the ensemble was particularly picturesque and striking. The ladies dresses as a rule were in exquisite taste, and greatly aided in completing a picture of singular beauty and effect. Dancing commenced shortly after nine o'clock, and was kept up with spirit until about three, every one present seemingly having enjoyed the merry meeting.

Bro. H. M. Molyneux was again an efficient Master of Ceremonies. The catering of Bro. W. Vines gave great satisfaction. The musical arrangements were under the superintendence of Bro. G. A. W. Phillips.

At a specially served supper, presided over by Bro. Alpass, Chairman of the committee, having the Mayor and Mayoress on either hand, a select company was present.

"The Health of the Mayor and Mayoress" was proposed by the Chairman, and the Mayor paid a similar compliment to Bro. Alpass.

The "Voice of Masonry," (Chicago), for January contains a portrait of Bro. Albert G. Mackey, M.D.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Excelsior Lodge of Instruction is now held at the Commercial Dock Tavern, Plough Road, Rotherhithe, every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The ceremony of installation will be worked at the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, 1056, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, E.C., on Friday, January 28th, 1876, by Bro. John Bingemann, W.M. 55. The lodge will be opened at 7 p.m. precisely.

Sir Knight John Hervey was installed as Eminent Preceptor of the Mount Calvary Preceptory on Friday, the 14th inst., at the London Tavern.

H.R.H. Prince Leopold will be admitted to the 30th Degree this month.

The Freemasons in Denmark held their annual grand festival on Thursday week. The Grand Master, the Crown Prince, as well as Prince Hans, the brother of the King, and nearly four hundred brethren, assisted at the banquet. The reception of the Grand Master was unusually warm, and the whole festival was most successful.

MASONIC SERMON.—On Sunday 27th ult., the Rev. Bro. Mills preached a special sermon in the Trinity Episcopal Church to the Masonic Lodge of St. Mirren, Paisley (129), of which he is the Chaplain. Members were present from the following lodges:—St Mirren's Lodge, 129, Paisley; Royal Arch, 116, Rutherglen; Houston Lodge, 242; Operative Lodge, 347, Rutherglen; St. Mungo, 27, Glasgow; Renfrew County Kilwinning, 370, Paisley; Prince of Wales, 426, Renfrew; St. Mark's, 102, Glasgow; Irish Constitution, 41, Belfast; Union and Crown, 305, Barrhead; St. Andrew's, 215, Strathaven, East Kilbride, and Marie Stuart, Crosshill; St. Winnoch, 205; St. Barchan, 156, Kilbarchan; and a number of others. Altogether there were about 250 present. The Rev. Mr. Mills preached a very eloquent discourse from the 133rd Psalm, "Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell in unity." There were special hymns sung upon the occasion by the choir of the church.

At the January meeting of the Britannia Lodge, No. 139, Sheffield, notice of motion was given that, at the next regular lodge its sanction would be asked in support of a petition for a new lodge to be held in Sheffield. We hail this movement with much satisfaction, seeing that there are only three Craft Lodges in Sheffield, viz., 139, 247, and 1239, numbering respectively (about) 100, 60, and 70 members; the population of the town being nearly 300,000, there is clearly room for two or three more lodges, and taking the proportion of neighbouring towns, Sheffield has not kept pace with the times.

The oldest Freemason in Scotland, Bro. T. Cross, who was initiated in the Royal Arch Lodge, Rutherglen, in 1807, recorded his vote on a recent occasion.

On Monday, the 3rd inst., Bro. Emra Holmes delivered his lecture, "Olds and Ends of Wit and Humour," at the Town Hall, Hadleigh, Suffolk, to a large audience, some 300 being present. In the absence of the rector, the Very Rev. C. Spooner, co-Dean of Bocking, the chair was taken by one of the Churchwardens, Mr. Wm. Grimwade, bank manager. The lecture was one of a series given by various clergymen and gentlemen, the object being that thoroughly Masonic one—to assist the funds for the restoration of the parish church. The present rector, who is brother-in-law of the Archbishop of Canterbury, has been most energetic in completing the work begun by his predecessor. On this occasion the Rev. Craufurd Tait, his Grace's son, was to have lectured, but the programme was altered, and Bro. Holmes took his place. The lecture was listened to with great attention, and was provocative of great laughter and hearty applause. The county Conservative paper, the "Ipswich Journal," speaks of it in very complimentary terms, as does the "East Anglian Daily Times," of the 7th inst., and a cordial vote of thanks was proposed at its conclusion by Dr. Muriel, and carried by acclamation. Hadleigh Church is, in truth, well worth lecturing for. It is one of the largest and most beautiful in Suffolk, and about £3000 has been expended over it, we believe, during the last few years. In the interior is an ancient font with a singular Greek inscription, which reads equally as well backwards as forwards, and there is the tomb said to be that of Guthrum, the Dane. The great tower and gateway of the rectory, which adjoins the churchyard, bears the date 1490. Hadleigh was formerly incorporated, but lost its charter, we do not know why, in the reign of James II. Dr. Rowland Taylor, once a rector of this parish, was burnt on Haldam Common, in 1555, during the reign of "Bloody" Mary. Bro. Holmes' lecture will shortly appear in the pages of the "Masonic Magazine."

The racing colours of the Prince of Wales appear for the first time in the new volume of the "Racing Calendar." They are—"Purple body with gold braid, scarlet sleeves, and black velvet cap, with gold fringe."

VISIT OF THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT TO MALTA.—The "Malta Times" says the Duke of Connaught is about to visit Malta, and that Her Majesty's dispatch-boat Helicon will proceed to Gibraltar this month to convey the Duke to the island.

The committee on dedication of the new Masonic Temple, New York City, received in all for that purpose the sum of 13,771.25 dols., and expended 9,809.34 dols., leaving a balance of 3,961.91 dols., which has been paid to the Trustees of the Hall and Asylum Fund.

ALBION LODGE (No. 9).—This lodge met at the Regent's Masonic Hall on Wednesday, 12th January. Present: Past Masters E. Coste, H. S. Friend, S. Vallentine, W. Willy, E. W. Storr, J. S. Cater, S. Coste, J. A. Abbott, T. Moring. The visitors present were Col. Burdett, H. Pullen, P.G.S.B.; G. de Maid, P.M. 1328; E. B. Burr, 1188; D. H. Jacobs, 27; H. J. Lewis, P.M. 907; W. R. Best, P.M. 3; D. Dewarr, W.M. 1415; W. A. Littis, P.M. 27; C. W. Gray, P.M. 22; G. Haddock, 1364; T. R. Eames, W.M. 22; W. Black, W.M. 19. Bro. W. R. Marsh, W.M., having passed Bros. Elliott and Watson, then vacated the chair to Bro. S. Vallentine (an old P.M. of this lodge) as installing Master, who proceeded to install Bro. E. Kimber, and completed the ceremony in the most impressive manner. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. W. T. Scott, S.W.; W. R. Lake, J.W.; F. McCarthy, S.D.; G. Robey, I.G.; T. Moring, Treas.; J. A. Abbott, Sec.; S. Coste, D.C.; J. Forbes, Org.; S. Vallentine, Treas. Benevolent Fund; and E. Coste, Stwd.; J. Rawles, Tyler. Bro. W. R. Marsh, the late W.M., was presented with a Past Master's jewel. The working of the lodge was most admirably carried out. On the closing of the lodge the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was all that could be desired. The musical arrangements were complete. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the charities not forgotten.

TEMPERANCE LODGE (No. 169).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the White Swan, Deptford, on Thursday, the 20th inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Dingle, who proceeded to pass Bros. Wilson and Hayward to the Second Degree, and Bros. Skidden, Craster, and Coles to the Third. The W.M. then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. G. Bolton, P.M. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. T. Debac was installed. The officers are Bros. Neild, W.S. and Secretary; Denton, J.W.; Brown, P.M., Treasurer; G. Moore, S.D.; Preecham, J.D.; Cooper I.G.; and Goddard, Tyler. The selection of the W.M. appeared to give unbounded satisfaction to the brethren—indeed, Bro. Wild received quite an ovation. The ceremony of installation was performed and the addresses given with that accuracy and finish that always distinguishes Bro. Bolton's working. The Board of Installed Masters was unusually well attended, and amongst those present we noticed Bros. Tabblis, Bolton, Rosenstock, Pulley, Lettlecott, Brown, and Dingle, P.M.'s of the lodge; while the visitors included Bros. Dilley, Roper, Ball, Chapman, and Lightfoot, P.M.'s; and Bros. W. Andrews, W.M. of the Justice Lodge, 147; G. Andrews, P.M. 871, and H. Moore, P.M. 73; G. Macdonald, S.W. 1155; Fixture, J.W. 272; Lover, J.W. 1178; Syers, Secretary 13; Church, J.D. 1471; Harries, D.C. 1426; Forge, D.C. 619; Hutchings, 147; C. Porter, 147; Lemon, 871; Bellamy, 91; Thomas, 871, and many others. After the ceremony the W.M. in the name of the lodge presented the I.P.M., Bro. Dingle, with a P.M.'s jewel, in recognition of his services during the past twelve months. Bro. Dingle, in suitable terms, acknowledged the presentation, and assured the brethren that he would always have the welfare of the lodge at heart. The sum of £5 was voted from the benevolent fund to a distressed brother, and an earnest appeal was made to the brethren on behalf of the widow and children of the late Brother Searle. The brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where some sixty of the brethren and their visitors sat down. The W.M., in felicitous terms, proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Dingle, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," observed that they had worked through the different offices in the lodge together, and that he had always found Bro. Debac a most zealous and efficient officer, and he had no hesitation in saying that they had in their present W.M. a Mason well able to perform the onerous duties appertaining to that high office. The W.M., in reply, thanked the brethren for the great honour they had conferred upon him, and assured the brethren that it was his earnest desire to promote the welfare of Freemasonry in general, and the Temperance Lodge in particular. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. dilated on the great pleasure it always afforded the brethren of the Temperance Lodge to welcome the members of other lodges amongst them, as it showed that kindly feeling that should at all times characterise Freemasons. They had so many visitors that evening that they must forgive him if he did not dilate on their individual merits; but he felt greatly honoured by the presence of three eminent Preceptors in Masonry, Bros. Dilley, Macdonald, and Andrews. They had also among them

Bro. H. Moore, P.M. of the Mount Lebanon Lodge; Bros. Bellamy, Maltby, and many other distinguished Masons, who he was sure they were heartily pleased to see among them. Bros. Maltby, Moore, Dilley, Andrews, Macdonald, and Bellamy responded to the toast in appropriate terms. Bro. Dingle, in responding to the toast of "The Past Masters," thanked the brethren again for the jewel they had presented him with, and, alluding to the peaceful year of office he had enjoyed, suggested that in future the lodge should be called the "Temperance and Unanimity Lodge." Bro. Tibbals, the father of the lodge, also responded for the Past Masters, and in a very eloquent speech urged the brethren not to lose sight of the grand principles of Freemasonry, and trusted that the lodge would long continue in its present prosperous condition. "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge" having been duly honoured, the Tyler's toast brought the evening's proceedings to a conclusion. The evening's entertainment was greatly enlivened by some excellent songs by Bros. G. Moore, C. Porter, Denton, Dilley, and others.

LODGE OF SINCERITY (No. 174).—This lodge held its annual installation meeting on Wednesday, the 19th inst., commencing business at 3 p.m. There were present Bros. Moore, W.M.; Wells, S.W.; Hilyard, J.W.; Appleby, S.D.; Sedden, J.D.; Dunstan, I.G.; Webb, D.C.; Newton, P.M., Sec.; Rawley, P.M., Treas.; Miller, W.S.; Past Masters Lacey, Barlow, Buller, Tuck, and several other members of the lodge and visiting brethren. After opening the lodge with the usual Masonic prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the business of the lodge commenced by raising Bro. Blaine, and then initiating Messrs. Wyld and Taylor, followed by the installation of Bro. Wells, S.W., to the chair of W.M. The ceremony was performed in a most impressive and imposing manner by Bro. Lacey, P.M., assisted by the well known, and most highly, and worthily appreciated Bro. Terry, Secretary for the Institution of Aged Men and Women belonging to the Fraternity. We are sure that those brethren who witnessed the ceremony for the first time will retain it in their hearts for many a long year. The W.M. then proceeded to elect his officers, which he did in rotation; Bro. Jones becoming D.C. Bros. Renton, Sec.; Rawley, Treas.; Bro. Miller, Wine Steward; and Berry, Tyler, were all re-instated in their former offices, so thoroughly have they gained the esteem and respect of all the brethren in the lodge, and those, whose name is legion, with whom they were acquainted out of their own lodge. The business of the lodge concluded with the payment of fees, distribution of certificates, &c., &c., and the brethren adjourned to banquet shortly after seven, the members having increased by this time to nearly 100. When the repast was ended the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received, "The Queen," "The Prince of Wales," (Bro. Palmer, "God bless the Prince of Wales"), "The Pro Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and other Grand Officers," to which Bro. Banning, one of the Grand Officers responded; "The Initiates," to which they responded, and Bro. Batten sang "The Entered Apprentice," "The W.M." (Bro. Batten, "The Old Musketeer"); "Visitors;" "I.P.M." (Air "She wore a wreath of roses," with variations most excellently rendered). The next was a very important toast, for it produced a reply of great interest to Masons, viz., "Our Masonic Institutions," coupled with the name of W.M. Wells, the Steward from Lodge 174 for the next festival, and Bro. Terry, the Secretary, who told us that at present there were 246 inmates in the old people's establishment, and room for only 28 more with 60 candidates, and he sincerely hoped that this state of things was not going to last, and that while he heartily thanked the Lodge of Sincerity for their contributions, always so cheerfully, largely, and consistently given, he still hoped that they would see what more they could possibly spare for so worthy a cause; that the three institutions cost £7000 a year and that though they managed to fill them, they were like Oliver Twist, always asking for more. During this and the previous toasts, replies, and harmonies, Bro. Newton, assisted by Bro. Lacey, collected over £25 for the W.M., as Steward, to take up to the coming festival, which, with what had been previously collected, would make a very handsome contribution. The toast of "The P.M.'s, Secretary, Treasurer, and Officers of the Lodge," being duly given and responded to, the Tyler's toast closed a very pleasant and satisfactory meeting.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY (No. 185).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 17th inst. at the City Terminus Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. J. H. Ross, assisted by the following brethren:—J. D. Barnett, S.W.; D. Posener, J.W.; G. S. Pare, S.D.; W. D. Bayley, J.D.; F. Crooker, I.G. The notice convening the meeting contained many items of business, which were accomplished with proficiency and expedition. Messrs. Simon Lowenthal and Frederick Upson, were initiated, Bros. Rowley, Schultze, Lederer, and Davis passed, and Bro. Saillard raised. The business of the evening was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, which fell unanimously upon the S.W., Bro. J. D. Barnett, whose genial, kind, and gentlemanly behaviour has endeared him not only to every member of the lodge but his large circle of friends. Bros. J. Peartree and Philip Levy were elected respectively Treasurer and Secretary for the 16th time; Bro. Rawles, Tyler. The Committee of the Benevolent Fund were re-elected, and Bros. P.M. Hart, and Solomon appointed Auditors. The sum of £10 10s. was voted from lodge funds to present the W.M. with a testimonial on his retirement from the chair. We understand the brethren intend supplementing this sum to make the present more substantial. Mr. Maurice Harris was proposed for initiation by his father, who, we understand, will initiate his son upon the next occasion of meeting. The members having adjourned to a frugal meal, to which ample justice was done, the W.M. gave the toasts with the considerable brevity and force. The visitors, of whom there was a goodly array, one and all testified their pleasure with the very perfect rendering of the ceremonies and the harmonious feeling exemplified by the members of the lodge, and particularly in the election of W.M., no other name being put in the box than that of the S.W. The W.M. elect could not find words adequate to express his appreciation of the high position to which he had been exalted, and though he was afraid he could not add much lustre to the lodge during his Mastership, yet he assured the members that no stone should remain unmoved to maintain its prestige. Bros. Pare and Bayley, as officers, spoke of the W.M. in glowing terms, who had devoted much of his spare time in fitting them to perform the duties they had the pleasure to fulfil, and if they should rise to the dignity of the chair it must be attributed to the ambition the Master caused in them by his many acts of kindness and labour of love. The brethren numbered upwards of forty, amongst whom were Past Masters Bloomfield, Harfeld, Moss, Harris, and Constable; Bros. Smith, Gotthiel, Gluckstein, and others. The visitors were Bros. Brown, 1426; Lewis, 779; Jason, 879; Gompertz, jun., 869; Webb, 521; Jolliffe, 22; Mead, 141. Bros. Bayley, Webb, Gompertz, Barnett, and Constable contributed to the harmony and amusements of the evening. The installation in this lodge will take place on the 21st prox.

UNITED STRENGTH (No. 128).—An emergency meeting was held on the 18th inst., at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, for the purpose of clearing up the work of the present Master's year of office, that the W.M. elect, when installed, might commence with a clear programme. There was a necessity for so clearing the books of old work, inasmuch as that, notwithstanding a material increase in the joining and initiation fees, seven gentlemen stand as well and worthily recommended candidates for initiation, while several brothers are down for joinings. The lodge commenced its work punctually to time, and all the officers were present, namely, Bros. While ("Freemason"), W.M.; Griggs, W.M. elect, S.W.; J. Hill, J.W.; Snare, S.D.; Halford, J.D.; and Piercy, I.G. Three brethren initiated at the previous meeting were passed a degree, namely, Bros. Hanchet, Coles, and Adams. The lodge was raised, and the next degree was conferred upon Bros. Breinholt, Baker, Gedge, Bellott, and Holmes. The repetition of the ceremonies gave hard work to those actively engaged, and at the conclusion the lodge was closed down. Though only an off night the lodge had a goodly assemblage of the brethren present, and among others P.M. Joseph Crump, the Secretary for nearly a quarter of a century; P.M. James Terry, the Secretary of the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and P.M. Davies. After the lodge had been closed the brethren supped together, and "The Healths of the W.M. elect, the Master, and Past Masters" were cordially toasted. The lodge has so increased of late that it has almost overgrown its place of meeting, and the work of the installation day, when the outgoing Master will install his successor, and the new W.M. will initiate five candidates, will be performed in the small hall in order to facilitate the after proceedings.

BURDETT COUTTS LODGE (No. 1278).—The regular January meeting of this lodge was held on the 20th inst., at the Approach Tavern, Victoria Park, Bro. W. J. Crutch, W.M., presiding. Mr. Henry Fairbank and Mr. Charles William Davies were initiated, and Bro. William Cambden, of 901, was elected a joining member. The brethren who were candidates for the Second and Third Degrees did not attend. On the motion of Bro. James Terry, P.M., Treasurer, seconded by Bro. Berry, the sum of £10 was unanimously voted to be placed on Bro. G. Ward Verry's list for the Benevolent Institutions' Festival of next Wednesday week. Bro. Verry, in thanking the lodge for this gift, took occasion to inform the brethren who were not aware of it of the nature of the institution, the benefits it conferred on the aged of both sexes, and the small amount of subscription, 5s., which entitled subscribers to one vote; and he solicited the brethren to support him and enable him to take up a total which would sustain the prestige of the Burdett Coutts Lodge. He reminded the brethren of what the lodge had done hitherto in the cause of benevolence, and exhorted them after having put their hands to the plough not to look back. Bro. Verry also stated that the charitable association which had been formed four years ago for obtaining life governorships of the institutions for brethren by the payment of a shilling a week, had come to an end by effluxion of time, every member having obtained his life governorship. He was himself now a life governor of all three institutions, which he probably never would have been but for these associations. Therefore, he should wish all the other brethren to obtain that rank, and to give them that opportunity he informed them that another association would now start, to meet once every four weeks. Bro. Verry's appeals were at once responded to, several brethren putting their names on his list for 5s. each, and also enrolling themselves members of the association. After this, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper. When this was over, the loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and Bro. Terry proposed "The Health of the W.M." with spirit, brevity, and point. He selected the salient features of Bro. Crutch's Masonic career as his topic, informing the brethren that Bro. Crutch was the first initiate in the lodge, and also the first initiate of the lodge who had passed through the three chairs. His work that evening had shewn them what he could do, and they were all sorry that the candidates for passing and raising had not afforded them an opportunity of shewing what more he could do. At next meeting no doubt this would be done, and the brethren would then see that he combined in himself the excellencies of all the Masters who had preceded him. The W.M. said that if it gave a brother pleasure to propose a toast it gave the respondent pain to reply to it, because the proposer always eulogised him up to the skies when he knew very well he did not deserve it. Throughout the various offices that he (the W.M.) had held in the lodge he had endeavoured to discharge his duties to the best of his ability, and by punctual attendance to set an example to the brethren, while duly supporting the W.M. What he had done in the past he hoped he should do in the future, and he trusted that at the end of his year of office the brethren would have the same kindly feelings to him as they then shewed. (Hear, hear). The great event of the evening then took place. It will be remembered that in July last the Baroness Burdett Coutts presented to this lodge three magnificent chairs made of oak and surmounted by her ladyship's arms. The chairs were those of the Master and two Wardens; but as the Baroness understood nothing of the peculiar construction of each of these chairs, which she intended to be strictly Masonic in build, she deputed to Bro. James Terry, the first Master of the lodge, and Bro. Verry, the Secretary, the supervision of their manufacture. This necessarily involved the expenditure of much time and labour, but the duties confided to these brethren were eminently successful in their result, as was also the ceremony of presentation by her ladyship, which was made in lodge, to which ladies were admitted, at Freemasons' Hall. Her ladyship on that occasion expressed her great satisfaction with the proceedings of the day, as also with the admirable arrangements that had been made, but especially with the great work of Freemasonry. In recognition of the efforts of Bros. Terry and Verry in executing the Baroness's wishes, the brethren of the lodge at a subsequent meeting passed resolutions by which they thanked them for what they had done. This was done by the lodge as a lodge; but the brethren as individuals thought that something more should be done as a testimony of their opinion, and that a souvenir of their appreciation of these brethren's efforts should be presented to them. A private subscription was therefore arranged, and a beautiful silver epergne was purchased for Bro. Terry, and a massive gold Past Master's and Secretary's jewel for Bro. Verry. The W.M. now rose to present both these testimonials, and addressing the brethren, he narrated the facts given above. Bro. Terry was the first brother to respond, and while modestly keeping any mention of himself as much as possible in the background, traced the history of the Burdett Coutts Lodge and his connection with it from the beginning. It appeared, however, that it was mainly to him that the lodge was indebted for its name, in which project he had the hearty co-operation and assistance of Bro. Henry Lloyd, P.M. Bro. Terry was entrusted with the application to her ladyship for permission to attach her name to the lodge, and this having been made, the Baroness, then Miss Burdett Coutts, presented the lodge with the bible. When she was raised to the peerage she was desirous to shew to the lodge that she had not forgotten the lodge, and to give a mark of her appreciation of the honour which had been conferred on her by Her Majesty. Every brother who was in the lodge when the chairs were presented would always look back with feelings of pride and pleasure to the occurrences of that day, and the more so as it was the first time in the annals of Freemasonry when ladies were admitted to their proceedings. To himself the event gave a great amount of pleasure. He had been honoured by the W.M. with a request that he should preside; and to that worthy brother he felt under a deep debt of gratitude. Speaking of the handsome present that had just been made to him, he assured the brethren that he did not need it, and would have been happy if the amount of money subscribed for it, had been devoted to another purpose. Nevertheless, as it had been resolved that it should take its present form, he could but accept it with thanks, and he begged the brethren to believe that it would be preserved in his family as an heirloom, and as a memento of a very pleasing day in his life. His wife and family would prize it equally with himself. Bro. Verry thanking the brethren for the jewel of which he was the proud recipient, mentioned his connection with the lodge, and was pleased to feel that he had been in some measure a contributor to the present success of the Burdett Coutts Lodge. When he and Bro. Terry undertook the duties connected with the presentation of the chairs, they little dreamt that the gifts of the epergne and the jewel would be the result of their labours. Their great anxiety had been to do all they possibly could to make Lady Burdett Coutts's presentation at Freemasons' Hall a success; but, though it involved much labour and trouble, they were amply rewarded by the very successful issue. Every one who witnessed the presentation expressed unlimited satisfaction, and this was no slight reward. The toast of "The Masonic Charities," was acknowledged by Bro. Verry, as Steward for the Benevolent Institution's Festival, and Bro. Terry supplemented his remarks by saying that the institution was now giving annuities to 246 old men and old women, and there were 59 candidates on the list for next election. At the last committee there were 21 fresh applicants, all of whom had been in affluent circumstances. There were but 25 vacancies, and it rested with the brethren to say whether the number of annuitants should be increased. Last year the amount given in annuities were increased by £1500. At the festival he wanted to see £7500 collected, and at the election to put on 12 new annuitants. He hoped at the festival to announce Baroness Burdett Coutts as a Life Governor of the Institution. (Applause.) The remaining toasts were honoured, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated.

FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1288).—The installation of Bro. R. Davies as W.M. of this lodge was performed on the 13th inst. by Bro. Stacey, P.M. of St. James's Union, and Preceptor of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. The lodge is held at the Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sister's-road, and there were present Past Masters Thomas Meekham, I.P.M.; S. Price, Smith, and John Frost, Sec. The visitors included Bros. Charles Morton, R. Albert, Dunn, and S. Dickinson. The ceremony was worked in Bro. Stacey's best style, and was perfect in ritual and language. The brethren afterwards partook of an excellent banquet, and the toasts usual on the occasion were given and responded to, full justice in language being done to the services of the Installing Master, to the merits of the new Master, and to the services of the Past Masters.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—This lodge, the mother lodge of all lodges in the Woolwich district, has at last begun to gather her children around her, and by a vigorous effort striven to revive the old and glorious traditions that were once so well and worthily hers among the Alma Maters of the Order. Her first effort has been directed to the revision of the rules of the lodge; and at the usual monthly meeting on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, the principal business before the brethren was the receipt of the Revising Committee's report, and the sanctioning or amendment of such alterations as they recommended to the lodge, and after a lengthy discussion several important amendments were made, provision being especially made for a larger support of the Masonic charities by the raising both of the yearly subscriptions and the initiation fee. The time of the next installation was altered from March to July, and altogether the recommended alterations were well received by the brethren. The other business before the lodge was the initiation of Mr. W. W. Prophet, sail maker, of Deptford, which ceremony was most impressively rendered by Bro. T. J. Carnelly, the W.M. The following officers were present beside the W.M.:—Bros. G. Davies, P.M.; G. W. Reed, J.W.; J. Henderson, P.M. and Treasurer; H. Syer, Secretary; J. P. Moore, S.D.; J. Hutton, J.D.; N. Brown, I.G.; and B. Norman, Tyler. Bro. J. Reilly taking the S.W. chair in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Pownell. Among the visitors were Bros. A. Penfold, W.M. 913; E. De Salis, 1331; E. M. Fisher, 700; J. Coghlan, 928; C. Glazier, 700; P. Jorkey, 1107; and C. Jolly, 913. After the lodge had been duly closed the brethren remained in the hall for refreshment, and passed a few social hours in harmony, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts being of course duly honoured.

PLYMOUTH.—Lodge Fortitude (No. 105).—The annual banquet of this lodge was held on the 10th inst. at Bro. Walters' Hotel, Union-street, the spread being one of a very substantial character and reflecting the highest credit upon the host. The W.M., Bro. Bunce, presided, and amongst a large and influential attendance were Bros. L. P. Metham, D.P.G.M. of Devon; Colonel Elliott, P.P.G.S.W.; S. Jew, P.P.G.T.; R. Rodda, P.P.G.R.; J. Way, P.P.G.T.; W. Whitley, P.G. Chap.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.A.D.C.; H. Cochran, P.G.J.D. of Cornwall; E. A. Davies, P.P.G.S. Works; C. Cooper, I.P.M.; Anthony, P.M.; R. B. Twose, P.M.; Hillson, P.M.; W. J. Thuell, P.M.; Ingram, P.M.; J. Curteis, P.M. 189; Avery, P.M. 70; H. W. Thomas, W.M. 70; J. Rendle, P.M. 1247; M. Williams, P.M. 105; J. Manning, P.M. 156; W. Coath, P.M. 89; A. Lethbridge, I.P.M. 159; R. Bird, W.M. 1550; D. Bux, W.M. 156; J. H. Keats, S.W. 1247; S. Hyne, S.D. 1205; F. Bond, I.G. 1550; J. Gouley, 153; J. Trevan, 159; Husson, 70; R. L. Blight, 1205; C. Mutton, D.C. 1205; J. James, S.W. 105; G. Hillson, S.D. 105; Harris, J.D. 105; Pinkham, I.G. 105; H. Davey, D.C. 105; G. W. Field, S.S. 105; C. H. Walters, J.S. 105; Northey, A.S. 1205; J. R. Horncastle, J. Northey, Woodcock, I. W. N. Keys, Jackson, Murch, W. Martin, J. Griffin, G. P. Reed, Pleace, E. A. Lyons, Luscombe, R. Stancombe, Roach, and others. After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. That of "The Health of the esteemed Prov. Grand Master of Devon" was, as usual, drunk with considerable enthusiasm. A letter was read from the P.G.M. expressing his deep regret that the state of his health prevented him from accepting the invitation of the W.M. to be present. Bro. Whitley responded for the toast of the D.P.G. Master and in so doing he said it gave him great pleasure as a minister of religion, and as one who was, to a great extent, cut off from what was generally known as the pleasures of this world, to meet upon the common platform—none the less grand and glorious because it was common—of Freemasonry. It was on these occasions that they met free from all religious or political feeling—he meant the feeling of strife and opposition, for religious feeling they all had, and there was no true Mason who was not a man of religion; and being separated from these strifes, if there was a community in the universe where joy ought to be realised when assembled it was the community of Freemasons. He must say that in all his experience he had found no community equal to that for real, innocent recreation and pleasure. He counselled them all to be true to their principles, otherwise they would fail to carry out the grand objects for which their Order was founded. Bro. Cooper in complimentary terms proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and the toast having been very warmly received, Bro. Bunce, in responding, said he was anxious that the lodge should stand well in the estimation of the whole province, and that they should have a class of men amongst them of whom no one need be ashamed. Bro. Twose responded for "The Past Masters of the Lodge," Bros. Jew and Cooper for "The Treasurer and Secretary," and the other toasts were "The Senior and Junior Wardens, the Senior and Junior Deacons, and other Officers," "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers;" "Sister Lodges and Visiting Brethren," "Masons' Wives and Sweethearts," and "Our Poor and Distressed Brethren." The musical responses of the evening—instrumental and vocal—were ably conducted by Bros. C. Rodda and Jew. A very agreeable evening was spent.

GIBRALTAR.—Inhabitants Lodge (No. 153).—The annual installation meeting of the Inhabitants Lodge was held on the 3rd inst., when Bro. Barker, P.S. W., was placed in the chair of K.S., and the following brethren appointed to their offices:—Cunningham, S.W.; R. Gillmore, J.W.; Randall, S.D.; Conroy, J.D.; Collins, Sec.; Hunt, Treas.; Brewster, Dir. of Cers.; Briggs, I.G. Paxton, Bacon, and Compton, members of committee, and Llamas, Tyler. Upwards of sixty brethren attended, amongst them Bros. Leslie, Vine, Franceri, P.M.'s. The lodge was opened in due form, when the report "Grand Lodge" was given. The D.G.M., Bro. Cornwell, attended by Bros. R. B. Hepper, D.G.S.W.; J. H. Haynes, D.G. J.W.; Glassford, D.G.J.D.; C. V. D. Saury, D.G. Sec.; Imossi, G. Sup. of Wks.; Brewster, D.G.D. Cers.; Clarkson, D.G.I.G., were then received with due honours and conducted to the dais, after which the ceremony of installation was proceeded with, Bro. W. J. Henry, P.M. 30, acting W.M., kindly officiating as installing officer. The ceremony being concluded, the D.G.M. was addressed by Bro. Henry, and the attention of the brethren drawn to the presence amongst them that evening of the highest Masonic authority in the district, together with a few remarks on the present hopeful signs in connection with the future of the lodge. The D.G. Master, in reply, made a few eloquent remarks as to the pleasure he felt at being among the brethren and the harmonious feeling prevailing, and congratulated them on the manner in which the ceremonies of the evening had been conducted. The D.G.M., accompanied by his officers, then retired, the brethren paying the usual honours. The ordinary business of the evening was then proceeded with, which brought the labours of the evening to an end. The lodge was then closed in due form.

PLYMOUTH.—Lodge Charity (No. 223) celebrated the festival of St. John on the 12th inst. There was a very pleasant gathering, and the occasion was marked by special features of interest. The lodge was opened in due and ancient form in the lodge-room, Union-street, Plymouth, the following officers being in their places:—Bros. E. Patten, W.M.; J. Dupre, I.P.M.; J. Moysey, S.W. pro tem.; J. Lewarn, J.W.; H. S. Hill, S.D.; T. Mair, J.D. pro tem.; R. Blight, I.G.; W. J. Yeo, A.D.C.; J. Ivey, O.; and M. Stevens, J.S. The brethren called off to refreshment, adjourned to Bro. H. Matthews's, J.D., Bedford-street, and partook of a most excellent luncheon, admirably served. About seventy sat down, the W.M. being supported by Bro. Metham, D.P.G.M. of Devon; Bro. L. Latimer, P. Prov. G.J.W.; Bros. Colonel Elliott, P. Masters, Wolf, Hifley, Browning, Witheridge, Phillips, Anniss and Cornish, of Charity; Dupre, of St. John's; and Stentford, of Brunswick. All the officers of Charity were present. "The Queen" having been given, Bro. Latimer proposed "The W.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England and the Craft," with a reference to the Masonic welcome that had been accorded the Prince in India as indicative of the universality of Freemasonry. The toast was drunk, with a hope for his Royal Highness's safe return. In a speech, characterised by graceful compliment and eulogy, Bro. Dupre followed with "The R.W. the Rev. J. Huyshe, P.G.M. of Devon, and Bro. L. P. Metham, D.P.G.M. of Devon." Bro. Metham responded, and in the course of his remarks touched upon the respective responsibilities of Masons to the calls of public life and the Craft. Afterwards he proposed "The W.M. of Charity," urging that all in his position should act on their own responsibility in the office, after having sought the aid of the counsel of the Past Masters. Bro. Patten appropriately responded. The Secretary announced that that day the P.G.M. had sanctioned the alteration of the bye-law, by which the lodge had increased its initiation fee to seven guineas. Accompanying the sanction was a letter congratulating the lodge on the wise step it had taken. The D.P.G.M. took occasion to remark on the great importance of lodges seeing the clearing-off certificate of every brother seeking to join. There had been a lamentable laxity in this respect in Plymouth lodges. Bro. Cornish gave "The I.P.M. of Charity," who, during his year of office, had conclusively shown that he had the interest of the lodge at heart. The W.M. pinned on the I.P.M.'s breast the Past Master's jewel voted by the lodge, and Bro. Anniss accepted it as an evidence—a jewel of infinitely more worth to him—that they felt the confidence reposed in him had been found to be not misplaced. The brethren had shown their interest in the lodge by a very large attendance. During his year of office retiring rooms had been added to their accommodation, and he hoped that ere long a scheme would be started for providing a handsome Masonic Hall for Plymouth. The W.M. proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary," and Bro. J. W. Cornish, the Treasurer, at the conclusion of his response, proceeded to present the Secretary with a handsome gold watch, voted by the lodge in recognition of the high ability and fidelity he had displayed in the office held for nine years. Bro. Browning feelingly responded, saying that the kindness and good-fellowship extended to him by all had more than amply repaid him. Bro. Wolf responded for "The Past Masters," proposed by the S.W. Bro. Hifley proposed "The S.W. and J.W. of Charity," and Bros. Boon and Lewarn respectively responded. Bro. Anniss proposed "The S.D., the J.D., and Assistant Officers of Lodge Charity," and Bros. Hill, S.D.; H. Matthews, J.D.; Blight, I.G.; Lavers, D.C.; Yeo, A.D.C.; Ivey, O.; Holland, S.S.; and Stevens, J.S. severally acknowledged the toast. Bro. Dupre, P.M. of the senior lodge (St. John's), responded for "Our Sister Lodges," proposed by P.M. Phillips. Bro. Latimer responded for "Our Visiting Brethren," proposed by P.M. Wolf. Bro. Latimer, proposing "Our Masonic Charities," spoke of the benefits of the Fortescue Fund of the Devon Province, and took occasion to deprecate the general scramble that sometimes took place in Grand Lodge to obtain a vote for institutions outside Freemasonry, when their own charities were in need of support.

GIBRALTAR.—Friendship Lodge (No. 278).—The installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. R. B. Hepper, took place on the 29th ult., Bro. B. Carver acting as installing officer. In spite of the frown of God Pluvius there was a good gathering of the brethren, amongst them the D.G.M., Bro. Cornwell, J. Francis, P.M.; J. Cortes,

P.M.; W. J. Henry, P.M. 30°; T. Haynes, P.M.; J. Haynes, W.M. 115; J. Ashton, P.M.; G. Bolland, W. J. Stanley, W. Glassford, C. V. De Santy. The officers appointed for the year are Bros. A. Patterson, S.W.; A. T. Preston, J.W.; H. Clavacasso, S.D.; M. Bensilum, J.D.; A. Aparicio, I.G.; E. Harrison, M.A., Sec.; Ward, Dir. of Cers.; J. Speed, Treas.; J. Peterkin, Tyler. The lodge may be congratulated on the selection of Bro. Hepper, and a successful year may be looked forward to.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—On the evening of the 5th inst. this lodge met in due form, pursuant to regular notice, for the purpose of celebrating the Festival of St. John, and to install the W.M. for the year ensuing. Bro. J. W. Smith, the W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported by the following brethren, who occupied seats on the dais:—Bros. Kelly, R.W. P.P.G.M.; S. S. Partridge, P.G.S.; Rev. J. H. Smith, P.G. Chaplain; Stretton, P.M.; Soller, P.M.; A. Palmer, P.M.; Baines, P.M.; W. B. Smith, P.M., and Pro Grand Treas.; Thorpe, W.M.; Worthington, W.M. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The Installing Master, Bro. Partridge, Provincial Grand Secretary, took the chair. Bro. Smith, the retiring W.M., presented the Master elect. Bro. C. S. Stretton read the ancient charge, and Bro. J. M. McAllister took the O.B. as Master for the year ensuing. A Board of Installed Masters was formed and the interesting and impressive ceremony of installation, was performed, and Bro. McAllister declared Master of the Lodge of St. John for the year 1876. The installation here concluded in solemn grandeur, and the thrilling effect produced by Bro. Partridge at this ceremony will be long remembered by all lovers of Masonry who had the good fortune to be present. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. G. Statham, S.W.; C. S. Stretton, J.W.; Rev. J. H. Smith, Chaplain; S. Cleaver, Sec.; Dr. Buck, S.D.; J. L. Jarndale, J.D.; Jessop, I.G.; Weare, and Cleaver, Stewards; Bembridge, and Dunn, Tylers. The Treasurer's account and report for the financial year was then read by Bro. Weare and adopted. A ballot took place for the Treasurer for the year ensuing, and the W.M. declared Bro. Gurden elected. The lodge was afterwards closed with the usual solemnities. The banquet followed; the W.M. presided, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

TEIGNMOUTH.—Benevolent Lodge (No. 303).—The annual meeting of the members of this lodge was held in the Lodge, Holland's-road, on Monday, 3rd inst., for the purpose of installing the W. Master elect, Bro. S. L. R. Templar. There was a good attendance of members, and there were eleven Past Masters present, some of whom came from Plymouth, Exeter, Torquay, Dawlish, and Newton. This ceremony was admirably performed by Bro. H. Walrond, P.P.G.M., and after the installation the W. Master appointed the following brethren as his officers: C. H. Collings, I.P.M.; J. Kerstreman, S.W.; W. F. McIlwhain, J.W.; G. H. Croydon, Chap.; J. Whidborne, Treas.; T. B. Gibbs, S.D.; Godfrey Lee, J.D.; F. Tomes, Sec.; De Courcy Dashwood, D.C.; G. Etheridge and W. R. Gilpin, Stewards; G. Norris, I.G.; P. Haggerty, Tyler. The finances of the lodge are in a good position, much progress having been made during the past year in clearing off a debt which had been incurred in the building of a new lodge. After the lodge had been duly closed the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, where they partook of a very handsome banquet, provided by the I.P.M., Bro. Collings, who catered for the party most excellently. The chair was occupied by the W. Master, and the vice-chair by the S. Warden. After dinner the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly responded to, and the evening was passed most agreeably.

ROCHDALE.—Probity and Freedom Lodge (No. 367).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 20th Jan., at the Bull's Head Hotel, Smallbridge. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Schofield. The first candidate for initiation was Mr. Wren (son of Bro. Wren, P.M., who has been a member of the lodge over a quarter of a century). Being under age, a dispensation from P.G.M. was read, and Bro. T. Baker Ashworth, P.M., then initiated him. Bro. Ashworth also initiated Mr. W. Hooson. Bro. J. J. Ashworth, I.P.M., afterwards initiated Messrs. Holt and Stanfield. There was one candidate proposed for initiation next lodge night, and the lodge was then closed. Supper was afterwards served by the host, Bro. McOwen.

CHESTER.—Cestrian Lodge (No. 425).—The annual festival of this old lodge was celebrated at the Grosvenor Hotel, Chester, on Thursday, the 20th inst. The R.W.P.G.M. of Cheshire, Lord De Tabley, was present upon the occasion; and among the visitors were the following brethren:—Bros. E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Sec.; C. Dutton, P.P.S.G.W.; J. Lewis, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Taylor, P.P.S.B.; J. Cunnah, W.M. 721; E. R. Parr, W.M. 979; G. H. Wilson, P.M. 537; A. Walker, P.M. 1124; D. Sherratt, P.M. 9; R. J. Sisson, P.M. 721; H. Johnson, P.M. 721; J. McEvoy, M.E.Z. 721; and others. The ceremony was performed by the Installing Master, Bro. J. Williams, P.S.G.D., in an impressive and masterly manner. Bro. J. McHattie having been raised to the chair, appointed the following brethren as officers:—Dr. Taylor, S.W.; T. M. Lockwood, J.W.; the Rev. J. S. Darvill, Chap.; E. Minshall, Treas.; W. C. Hunt, Sec.; J. Knox, S.D.; J. G. Smith, J. D.; F. A. Dickson, I.G.; David Baines, Tyler. A banquet was afterwards held in the assembly room, when about ninety were present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M. In responding to the toast of the R.W.P.G.M., Lord De Tabley said he had looked forward with pleasure to again visiting that lodge, with whose historical associations, loyalty, and good works on behalf of Masonic charities, he was so well acquainted. He was pleased to find that the brother who had officiated that day as Installing Master, in a manner he had scarcely ever seen equalled, had been made an officer of that Masonic Boys' School to whose funds the lodge had that day voted £25. He congratulated them upon the P.G. Cheshire Lodge responding to the call for the restoration of the old cathedral at Chester, and was pleased to be informed that the P.G. Lodge of West Lancashire was about to do the same. The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, intimated his intention to promote the Masonic charities, and to create the office of W.M. of that lodge into a vice-presidency of the boys' institution, so that their lodge would be in the proud position of having a vice-patron and two vice-presidents of the institution among them. Speeches were delivered by Bros. H. Lloyd, P.M.; J. C. Robinson, I.P.M.; J. Williams, P.S.G.D., and others.

HITCHIN.—Cecil Lodge (No. 440).—The Cecil Lodge met on the 13th inst., at the Sun, Hitchin, Bro. William John Fitch, W.M., presiding. This worthy brother, having opened lodge, deputed his duties to Bro. H. Lloyd Thomas, P.M., who proceeded immediately to install Bro. Richard Shillitoe as W.M. The ceremony was performed in a style which was remarkable for its completeness and impressiveness from its opening to the last of the charges; and the Installing Master was greeted with the applause of the brethren on his concluding. The W.M. appointed Bros. George D. Groom, S.W.; Geo. H. Smith, J.W.; R. R. Shillitoe, P.M., Treas.; W. J. Fitch, P.M., Sec.; Armigell Wade, S.D.; Joseph Hargreaves, J.D.; and Francis Shillitoe, I.G. To the great regret of the brethren, Bro. John Sugars, who has been Honorary Secretary of the lodge for more than thirty years, was, through serious illness, unable to accept a renewal of his appointment. There are in this lodge some brethren who are very old members, and among others the Treasurer, Bro. Shillitoe, the father of the present W.M., is the oldest living P.M. of the lodge. The work of the lodge was followed by one of Mr. Hill's admirable banquets, and a very delightful evening, in which each brother vied with every other to contribute to its success.

SEACOMBE.—Combermere Lodge (No. 605).—This lodge celebrated its annual installation festival at the Seacombe Hotel, on Thursday, the 20th inst. Amongst those present were Bros. J. P. Platt, P.P.J.W.; T. Platt, P.P.G.J.D.; Dr. Spratley, P.P.G.S.D.; Dr. Lambert, P.M. 537; Laidlaw, P.M. 477; J. G. Adam, W.M. 477; D. Fraser, I.P.M.; L. Ellis, P.M. 1289; J. Ridhalgh, P.M. 1276; J. Radcliffe, P.M. 477; and others. The lodge was opened by Bro. E. J. Hadden, W.M., who was supported by a full complement of officers. Bro. Dr. S. Spratley, P.P.S.G.D., subsequently took the chair, and installed Bro. Matthew C. McNeerney as W.M. for the ensuing year in a remarkably effective and impressive manner. Sowden, 44, Crelling-street, Barrow-in-Furness, Lancashire, England, tendering his resignation, was then read, and his resignation accepted with regret, and the Secretary directed to forward him, an E.A. clearance certificate, and send Grand Lodge certificate fees to the W.M. of Hindpool Lodge, No. 1225, E.C., and ask him to make application for Bro. CONSTANTINOPLE.—Bulwer Lodge (No. 891) held its anniversary in the Masonic Temple, Pera, on the evening of Thursday, January 13th. The minutes of the last regular lodge were read and confirmed. The first business was to ballot for Bro. Yorgerson as joining member, who was unanimously accepted. The principal business of the evening was to instal Bro. W. Keay, W.M. elect, as successor to W. Bro. Temple. Here W. Bro. G. R. Warren, P.M., took the chair in the East as Installing Master, which he has done many times before, and as usual very ably performed the ceremony of installation, in the presence of a large number of members of the Craft of Constantinople. Amongst the distinguished visitors, although members of the lodge, were W. Bros. Laurie, P.D.D.G. Master; Pears, D.G.R.; Hopper, D.G. Sec. of the D.G. Lodge of Turkey; W.M. and Wardens of the Italia Resoria; W.M. and Wardens of the Lodge Oriental, Wardens of the Lodge Pesdos; also many other visitors from other lodges. Harvey, I.G.; Magyania, Org.; Gingell, Tyler. The W.M. then rose and thanked the brethren of the lodge for the honour that had been conferred upon him, in a short but eloquent address, trusting he should receive every support from the brethren of the lodge throughout his year of office. The brethren adjourned to banquet, W.M. took the chair. The usual Masonic toasts were given, and heartily responded to by one and all.

WORKSOP.—The Pelham Lodge (No. 939).—The brethren of this prosperous and united lodge met on Thursday, the 20th of January, at their rooms in the Corn Exchange, Worksop, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect Bro. the Rev. F. Vernon Bussell, M.A.). The lodge was opened by Bro. J. Baxter, P.M., the first business being to initiate the Rev. William John Humble, clerk in holy orders; after which Bros. King and Tomlinson were passed to the Second Degree. The ceremony of installation afterwards took place, the installing officer being Bro. Joseph Allen, P.M. of the Lodge of Peace (No. 149), Meltham, West Yorks—a brother conspicuous for that fervency and zeal in the conduct of the ceremonies of Freemasonry without which no Master can preside over a lodge with credit to himself or complete satisfaction to his brethren. Bro. Allen having required and received from the W.M. elect the usual assent to the ancient laws and regulations, dismissed the brethren below the chair and opened a Board of Installed Masters (12 being present). Bro. Bussell was then installed in the East with the customary honours, after which the brethren were re-admitted, and the newly installed successor to K.S. was saluted in due and ancient form. The working tools of the three degrees were presented by Bro. Ensor Drury (P.M. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge, Sheffield, and P.P.G.W. West Yorks) in his usual masterly style, which is peculiarly his own, and which never fails to render most deeply impressive those Masonic ceremonies in which he takes a part, be they those of the Craft or of the Royal Arch Degree. The ceremony being ended, Bro. Bussell appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. A. J. F. Bussell, I.P.M.; William Mallender, S.W.; William Allen, J.W.; Rev. H. A. Steel, Chaplain; Edward Baxter, P.M., Hon. Secretary; P. Lowe, S.D.; Thomas Henderson, J.D.; John Appleton, I.G.; William H. Caparn, Organist; and T. Mallender, Tyler. The brethren afterwards banqueted together at the Lion Hotel, being excellently catered for by the worthy host, Mr. R. Morris. The Worshipful Master occupied the chair, supported by Bros. the Rev. Canon Maltby, W.M. of the Royal Sussex Lodge (402), Nottingham; Rev. E. Hawley, vicar of Worksop, and Past Chaplain to the Pelham Lodge; William Newton, P.P.G.W. Notts; Edward Baxter, P.P.G.W. Notts; Ensor Drury, P.P.G.W. West Yorks; Thomas Webster, P.P.G.D. Notts; Henry Ecroyd, W.M. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge (261), Sheffield; Thomas Harrison, P.M. of the Goderich Lodge (1211), Leeds; Rev. J. R. U. Elliott, of the Yarborough Lodge (422), Yarborough; Edward C. C. Hart and Robert Raines, of the Minerva Lodge (250), Hull; and others. After the loyal toasts, "The Health of the Worshipful Master" was proposed and ably responded to by Bro. Bussell, who gave the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," coupling with it the names of Bros. the Rev. Canon Maltby and Henry Ecroyd. Other speeches followed, in which allusion was made to the present unsatisfactory state of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Nottinghamshire, which is now to all intents and purposes in abeyance, owing to the Prov. Grand Master—the Duke of Newcastle—neglecting the duties of his most important office. No Prov. Grand Lodge has recently been held, and thus the progress of Craft Masonry in the Province of Nottinghamshire has been seriously affected, and the brethren cut off from all participation in provincial honours, to which every Past Master ought to aspire. The Past Prov. Grand Officers present cordially united in the expression of regret at this state of things, and it is to be hoped that our Royal Grand Master will be pleased to appoint an active and working Prov. Master, for this neglected but truly Masonic province. "The Health of the Newly-Initiated, Bro. Humble," was proposed, and responded to in a pleasant speech, in which Bro. Humble congratulated himself on having been initiated on the occasion of the installation of his old schoolfellow and college-friend, Bro. Bussell. He had hitherto considered that the principal events in a man's life, were three in number, viz. his birth, his marriage, and his death. From this time forward he should add a fourth to the list, viz. his initiation into Freemasonry. Songs and recitations were afterwards given by Bros. Rev. E. Hawley, the worthy vicar; J. Allen, P.M.; William Mallender, S.W.; Rev. W. J. Humble, J. Baxter, P.M.; and others; and an unusually pleasant evening was closed in order, harmony, and brotherly love. "Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again."

Wigram, Grand Chaplain, delivered the charge to the initiates. Bro. A. Lucking received a cordial vote of thanks for the manner in which he had performed the duties of Installing Master, who having acknowledged the compliment, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, presided over by the W.M., Bro. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings at a late hour, and the brethren separated, looking forward to a successful year of office under the rule of the new W.M.

Rutherford, P.M., P.G.A.C., was duly installed by Bro. J. Wood, P.M. 1073, P.P.G.O. The interesting ceremony attracted a good muster of the brethren. The following brethren were appointed officers for the ensuing twelve months:—Bros. T. Usher, I.P.M.; J. D. Wivell, S.W.; W. Lamony, J.W.; J. Wood, P.M., Sec.; P. T. Freeman, P.G.O., Org.; D. J. H. Gratton, S.W.; W. Unsworth, J.W.; Rev. H. J. Day, Chaplain; J. H. Watson, Treasurer; T. F. Shepherd, Secretary; J. Sutton, S.D.; W. H. Chambers, J.D.; S. Clarkson, I.G.; J. Morris, Organist; Bankes and Alderson, Stewards; and Smith, Tyler. The W.M. upon the investment of the officers made a few remarks pertinent to the duties devolving upon each of them. The business of the lodge was brought to a close at 4.30 p.m., and the brethren afterwards sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided for them in their handsome lodge room at the King's Head Hotel by the well known host, Mr. T. Smith, the W.M. presiding. He was supported on his right by the I.P.M., Bro. Richard Carter, P.M. 61, P.P.G.W. of West Yorks (Mayor of Barnsley), and Bro. H. Smith, Provincial Grand Secretary of West Yorks; and on the left by Bro. Alderman Taylor, of Manchester, P.M. 1007, and several P.M.'s of the Yorkshire and Lancashire Provinces, the newly-elected Wardens taking their respective positions at the festive board. The customary Masonic and other toasts were duly proposed and honoured by the brethren, who separated after having thoroughly enjoyed this their first Festival of St. John.

Unavoidable circumstances prevented them from attending. Several candidates were proposed for exaltation at next meeting. The chapter was closed. Refreshment followed labour. Visitors: J. Griffin, P.Z., 79, 933; J. Mason, 177, 1194; H. Cutress, 1326.

Birdseye, J.; Kenning, Treas.; Fellowes, S.E.; Jones, S.N.; Arkell, P.S.; Chapman, 1st Assist.; Gilbert, Janitor. The companions dined together, the usual toasts being given and honoured. Comps. H. Muggeridge, H. Cox, Chapman, Phythian, H. Birdseye, and others contributed some good songs and recitations, adding considerably to the pleasure of the evening.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—At a regular meeting held on Tuesday, January 18th, at the Masonic Hall, the chapter was opened punctually at 7.30, the First Chair being occupied by Ex. Comp. J. Parfitt, Z., the Second by Ex. Comp. G. Parfitt, P.Z., acting as H.; the Third by Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z., acting as J., in the absence of the proper officers owing to illness. There were also present the following P.Z.'s:—Rubic, Reeves, Keene, Mann, Moutrie, Wilton, and Tudor Trevor, of the Chapter of Perseverance, Bombay. The following companions were afterwards admitted:—Hill, E.; Hearn, N.; Brown, Pr. Soj.; Young, Sen. Soj.; Falkner, Jun. Soj.; Howse, Davis, Dutton, Brooke, Gazard, Bigwood, jun. The minutes were read and confirmed, and the bye-laws were also read. A ballot was taken for Bro. Paquer, which was unanimous in his favour. Bro. Gummer was admitted, properly prepared for exaltation, having been previously balloted for. As far as the O.B. the ceremony was performed by the M.E.Z., when his chair was taken and the duty completed by Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z., who also gave the Historical, Symbolical, and Mystical Lectures, of which those present expressed their approval by acclamation; and on the proposal of the M.E.Z., seconded by the acting H., a cordial vote of thanks was passed for the assistance thus rendered. Comp. Hill most efficiently discharged the duties of Principal Sojourner in the ceremony. A report of the Committee appointed to examine into the condition of the furniture and robes was presented, and arrangements were agreed upon in reference to the proposed renovations. No other business offering, the chapter was closed at 9.30.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF DEVON.

A special Provincial Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of Devon was convened yesterday at Newton Abbot. Ten years since Newton considered that in addition to its other institutions it ought to possess a Masonic lodge, and the matter was accordingly submitted to the Masonic authorities of the province, subsequently to the Grand Lodge in London, and eventually Lodge Devon, No. 1138, was duly instituted, dedicated, and consecrated. Since then a suitable suite of lodge-rooms, forming a handsome addition to the buildings of the town, has been erected for Masonic purposes in general, and the use of Devon Lodge in particular. With the prosperity and progress of Freemasonry in the town has sprung up among the brethren of Devon Lodge a desire to add to their lodge the honours of a Royal Arch Chapter. The following companions were accordingly elected as the first officers of the chapter:—Ex. Comps. the Rev. Robert Bowden, Z.; Captain F. D. Bewes, H.; P. D. Michelmores, J.; Comps. F. Pratt, S.E.; Bickford Prowse, S.N.; Ex. Comp. H. G. Beachey, P.S.; and J. Saunders was nominated as the first S. The consent of the P.G. Superintendent was obtained, and at a recent quarterly convocation of the Grand Chapter the usual petition was presented, and a warrant granted containing the names of the companions mentioned as the officers empowered to open the new chapter. Yesterday over seventy of the companions of the province attended the Provincial Grand Chapter to take part in the dedication and consecration of the Devon Chapter. Among those present were the Rev. John Hayshe, M.A., the Provincial Grand Superintendent, who presided; J. W. Keyworth, P.G.J.; W. G. Rogers, P.S.E.; Dr. Woodgates, P.G. Reg.; Lieutenant-Colonel Fitzgerald, 189; the Rev. Robert Bowden, P.Z. 710; Captain R. Dawkins, R.N., Adams; Captain E. W. Fawcett, R.N., Calpe; J. Harris, P.P.G.T.; Commander W. E. Stone, R.N., P.P.G. Reg.; J. Heath, P.P.G. Reg.; E. A. Davies, P.P.G. Reg.; W. Joll, P.P.G., first S.; T. Daud, P.P.G.B.B.; H. G. Beachey, P.Z. 710; B. Prowse, first S., 710; S. B. Colston, P.P.G. S.B.; G. Barry, J. 248; R. Lamswood, S.E. 248; W. B. H. Maye, J. 710; J. P. Phillips, Z. 223; C. H. Law, P.Z. 92; W. T. Maynard, P.P.G.P.S.; A. Bodley, P.G.B.B.; W. Haynes, P.Z. 106; P. D. Michelmores, H. 710; P.G. Supt.; S. N. Burden, P.G.S.N.; G. W. Ormerod, Z. 303; S. Loran, J. 303; T. Perry, H. 328; W. Easton, P.Z. 112; P. Sherwin, H. 106; W. Bishop, Z. 106; J. J. Drake, 303; W. Ball, 303; M. L. Brown, 303; F. C. Frost, 70; T. Morgan, 189; S. Templer, P.S. 303; J. Hammick, 248; J. Crocker, 710; J. E. Saunders, 710; W. L. Blanchard, 112; J. Rogers, P.G.A., Janitor. At first all went merry as a marriage bell, but a dilemma soon occurred, one of the high contracting parties having declined to attend. This was Captain Bewes, the H. elect, and a deputa-tion under the leadership of Comp. Stone was at once organised and despatched to the companion's residence. In half an hour the gallant commander returned with the announcement that Captain Bewes could not be prevailed upon to alter his decision. The Provincial Grand Superintendent stated that in all his experience of Masonry this was the first time he had witnessed such conduct. As Captain Bewes was recorded on the Grand Chapter warrant as the H. the business could not proceed. The companions would have to elect another H., and the matter must be submitted to the Grand Chapter. It was rumoured that Captain Bewes had not received notice un-fil-that morning of his attendance being required at that meeting early in the afternoon. If that was the case an awkward dereliction of duty must have occurred somewhere. Comp. P. D. Michelmores was nominated to the vacant office of H., and Comp. F. Pratt nominated J. This closed the proceedings. A large party of the companions dined together at the Queen's Hotel in the evening.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF GIBRALTAR.

The general meeting of this lodge was held at the Friendship Rooms, on Wednesday, 29th Dec., the attendance being rather under the usual average. The D.G.M., Bro. G. F. Cornwell, and Bro. G. Gilbard, D.D.G.M., presided, and the following brethren were appointed or elected as officers for the ensuing year:—R. B. Hepper, D.G.S.W.; J. H. Haynes, D.G.J.W.; Barker, D.G.S.D.; Glassford, D.G.J.D.; C. V. De Santy, D.G. Sec.; W. J. Henry, D.G. Treas.; Clarkson, D.G.J.D.; Brewster, D.G. Dir. of Cers.; Bensilum, D.G. Purst.; Balland, D.G. Swd. Br.; J. B. Invozzi, D.G. Sup. of Wks. After the transaction of the usual business, the D.G.M. had the pleasing duty of presenting a silver inkstand to the late D.G. Sec., Bro. R. B. Hepper, as a testimonial in recognition of the services rendered by him to the lodge. A few well chosen words from the D.G.M. brought the proceedings to an end, and the lodge was closed in proper form. It is to be regretted that the meetings of this lodge are held at an hour that precludes many brethren from attending. Were the meetings held during the evening double the number would without doubt assemble to do honour to the occasion.

FREEMASONRY IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

On the evening of Thursday, the 23rd December, the brethren of Lodges Leinster, No. 166, I.C., and Caledonian, No. 489, met together in the Masonic Temple, Hasskieu, the purpose being the installation on the same night of office-bearers for both lodges. This arrangement was deemed advisable, and most fraternally acceded to by the brethren of both, for the following reasons:—1st. Convenience. Many brothers located far from the place of meeting, but, desirous of being present with both, could not find it convenient to do so—hence this unity. 2nd. Economy—not niggardly economy—but of that kind which prompts good men and true to count the cost, have all things decent and in order, and when the reckoning is made, a balance, if any, to the poor and needy, so as to endorse the greatest of all great principles—charity. And 3rd. The final and grand reason was brotherly love—that others might know, though our banners hailed from separate and distinct towers, our aims and hearts were one. The Caledonian was constituted first as a lodge by W. Bro. W. Dorrell; who, the usual preliminaries over, in the most impressive and solemn manner installed the officers for the year 1876:—Bros. H. T. Rand, W.M.; J. Blair, S.M.; R. McGill, D.M.; J. Noble, S.W.; W. Morrison, J.W.; D. Chalmers, Treas.; D. Fransen, Sec.; T. C. Luckner, S.D.; G. Sutherland, J.D.; D. Beith, I.G.; C. Robson, Org.; D. Hayne, M.C.; and Alex. Scott, Tyler. Installation over, W. Bro. Rand, in terse, but complimentary terms, thanked the brethren for the high position they had placed him in, and congratulated P.M. Bro. Dorrell for the very efficient manner he had discharged so onerous and important a duty. Bro. Dorrell's reply was succinct and appropriate. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the Leinster was opened by solemn rite, W. Bro. He presiding. As in the former lodge, business over, labour was proceeded with, and again the interesting ceremony of installation began, W. Bro. He having, in a manner creditable to himself, and most gratifying to the brethren present, performed all the duties devolving on Installing Master. The office-bearers of Lodge Leinster for the year 1876 are:—W.M. Bro. J. J. Dunn, who, following the Irish ceremony (per Constitutions) very Masonically installed his officers, viz.:—Bros. T. Dickenson, S.W.; T. Johnson, J.W.; W. He, P.M., Treas.; H. Wetherill, P.M., Sec.; Jas. Blair, S.D.; Geo. Saunders, J.O.; B. Brooker, I.G.; Dorrell, P.M., D.C.; and P. Flucker, P.M., Tyler. W. Bro. Dunn, in conclusion, fraternally for himself and his lodge, spoke of their indebtedness to P.M. Bro. He for the able manner he had discharged his duty. Bro. He's reply was pointed and brotherly. Both lodges were honoured by the presence of numerous visiting brethren, and the not least interesting feature of the night's labour was in the attendance of no less than ten Past Masters, "each racing with each" in fraternal fellowship and goodwill to make all things "square." The brethren adjourned, after formally closing, to Bro. J. Rane's "British Restaurant," by whom a banquet was prepared, consisting of every delicacy British taste and Eastern ingenuity could devise or cater for. W. Bro. Dunn, and in the lamented absence of W. Bro. Rand, P.M., Bro. McGill, for the nonce, occupied the chair in the E., while Bros. Dickenson and Noble ably assisted alternately in the S. The toasts from the first division were loyal, Masonic, and patriotic, while the other three quarters of the sphere, kindly and appropriately spoke of home, kindred, and the altars which our fathers worshipped at, regardless of creed, colour, or status. Perhaps in the annals of the Craft, when its history in the capital of the "Star" and the crescent shall be written by some wandering scion of a second "Old Mortality," ransacking and furbishing up from the archives of Scottish 489, or Irish 166, the not least interesting chapter in the Masonic tome, and dedicated to the "Imperial" occupants of the throne by the Marquis of Marmora's sweet waters, will be the union at the close of the year 1875 of the Thistle and the Shamrock in the Suburban District, Hasskieu, near to the once smokeless city.

MASONIC BANQUET AT MORLEY HALL.

Morley Hall, the seat of Bro. J. Bathurst Graver Browne, Esq., was on Tuesday evening the scene of a very novel and interesting gathering. Having been recently installed W.M. of the Doric Lodge, Bro. Browne, with that generosity and genial kindness for which he is distinguished in every relation of life, and in none more conspicuously than that of Masonry, gave a grand banquet to the brethren of the lodge. Held under such circumstances, a lodge without legal warrant and the doors of which were open wide, so that the uninitiated could peer within, necessity was made a virtue, and the mystic ceremonies of the Craft were dispensed with; but an ample compensation for them was found in the warm-hearted welcome accorded to all by the worthy host and his amiable lady, who were most solicitous for their pleasure and enjoyment, and in the dinner table being graced by the presence of Mrs. G. Browne, Lady Stracey, and one or two other ladies. The dining-room presented a charming appearance on the seats being all occupied, and the lodge banner was placed immediately behind the chair. Nothing could have been more highly successful in every point of view, and the pleasure of the evening will long be remembered by those present. The W.M. was supported by several visitors, including Bro. Sir H. J. Stracey, Bart., Bro. Lieut.-Col. Bignold, Bro. D. Stracey, Messrs. Charles, Reginald, and F. Bignold, and the other guests were as follows:—Bros. S. Barrell, S.W.; J. P. Plowman, J.W.; J. Parker, S.D.; J. Utting, I.G.; Rev. F. B. DeChair, Chap.; W. Standley, jun., Hon. Sec.; E. Beeston, P.M. and M.C.; Caudall Clarke, P.G.R.; D. W. Hughes, Rev. D'Arcy Preston, H. J. Martin (Cabbell), W. W. Clarke, A. Davey, H. Feltham, S. T. Cann, J. B. Pearce, W. Elliott, T. G. Colman, J. R. Wellington, J. Hare, A. Death, J. Ringer, C. Hipperson, T. W. Cross, W. Evans, J. Harrison, A. Hart, F. Winfield, W. Barker, C. H. Wright, H. Hipperson, J. Dickerson, F. Winfield, F. P. Atkins, W. Patrick, C. Cowell, and others. The Prov. G.M., the Hon. F. Walpole, M.P., and the D. Prov. G.M., Bro. A. M. F. Morgan, received invitations, but were unable to be present. After dinner, and the ladies having withdrawn, a few toasts were duly proposed and honoured, and interspersed with some vocal music.

The W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was drunk with true Masonic enthusiasm.

The W.M. said he had now to give "The Prov. Grand Master, the Hon. F. Walpole, M.P., and the Officers of the Grand Lodge of Norfolk."

Sir H. J. Stracey returned thanks.

Bro. the Rev. F. B. DeChair, in giving the toast of the evening, "The Worshipful Master of the Doric Lodge and the Kind and Hospitable Entertainer of this Evening," remarked that all who knew Bro. Graver Browne were well aware of his great amiability of disposition, and how he was renowned all the country round for his kindness of heart, and his unbounded hospitality. (Loud cheers.) This was not an occasion in which to trespass on their time by making a long speech, but they would allow him in their name to return their most sincere thanks to Bro. Graver Browne for the hospitality he had extended towards them, and for the opportunity he had afforded them of meeting under his roof; at the same time sincerely wishing him a long life of health and happiness, with a retention of the honoured name he now enjoyed for genial and unbounded kindness in every sense of the word. The toast was drunk with honours, which were led by Bro. De Chair.

The W.M., after a renewal of cheering, returned thanks.

Bro. Col. Bignold gave the next toast, "Prosperity to the Doric Lodge."

Responding to the toast, the W.M. said that the true spirit of Masonry animated the brethren of the Doric Lodge, and the best wish that he could express towards the Craft generally was that every lodge would emulate the Doric, and show the same high regard for the great aims and objects of the institution. (Cheers.)

The toast of "The Ladies" having been responded to in very effective terms by Bro. Charles Bignold, the W.M. said there was one toast which had been forgotten, but which he must propose, "The Press," because in those countries where the press was fettered there was an absence of that freedom among the people which was the proudest boast and most cherished heritage of Englishmen. A free press was the greatest safeguard against oppression and injustice; and it was in the truest sense a bulwark of the State. Indeed, he believed that had the press in France been free, the empire would not have been overthrown, but would have lived to this day, and that unhappy country have been saved the humiliation and internal strife which she had experienced within the last few years. (Hear, hear.) He had great pleasure in coupling with the toast the health of Bro. Martin, whom he was always pleased to welcome at Morley.

Bro. Martin having returned thanks, some time was spent in pleasant conversation, and the party broke up.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Influenza, Bronchitis, Asthma, and kindred complaints, too frequently present themselves as a fierce and pitiless plague at the fall of the year, and little less deplorable is the fact that with darkening days and changing temperatures the digestion becomes impaired, the liver disordered, and the mind despondent, unless the cause of the irregularity be expelled from the blood and body by an alternative like these Pills; they go directly to the source of the evil, thrust out all impurities from the circulation, rescue distempered organs to their natural state, and correct all defective or contaminated secretions. Such easy means of instituting health, strength, and cheerfulness should be instantly available to check the first symptoms of approaching illness.—ADVT.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

By a mistake of the telegram, Madras was substituted for Lahore in our last article. H.R.H. has been in the North Western Provinces, and has visited Lahore and Sealore. He has been well received by all classes of the gallant Sikhs, and has enjoyed a native reception and some hunting. He is very well, but has experienced benefit by the change from Delhi to the cooler atmosphere of Lahore. Some of his suite have been, as the French say, "un peu indisposé," but are now convalescent. His Royal progress continues to be a great success. He is now at Agra.

MONSIGNORE NARDI.

Monsignore Nardi, whom the "Times" terms, and probably justly, "one of the ablest men about the Court of Rome," has just devoted two columns of the "Voce della Verità" (is the name intended for a sarcasm?) to a highly laudatory sketch of our late Grand Master the Marquis of Ripon. We should have very little to do, indeed nothing, with this ornate apology for the last great "victim of papal fascinations" had it not been, that Monsignore Nardi, "thorough man of the world as he is," and knowing we feel sure much better, has made a thorough goose of himself when talking of the Freemasons, of whom, by the way, the Church of Rome professes to know all the secrets. Noticing Lord Ripon's connexion with Freemasonry, Monsignore Nardi, though detesting all secret societies, and the Masons above all, acknowledges that English Masons are quite different from Italian, German, Swiss, Spanish, and Brazilian. "As there is one species but many races of men, so it is with the Masons, who, it appears, in England are chiefly given to eating, drinking, and merry making, although they occasionally do harm and are in general enemies of our Church." If this is all Monsignor Nardi could say, we fancy many Roman Catholics will agree with us, that in this respect, as in many others in daily life, the old proverb is most true which declares the "least said is soonest mended." It appears as the "Times" puts it, "That the Marquis looks back regretfully to the Craft he has been obliged to renounce, and has a weakness to be treated with a gentle hand. This account of the brotherhood must have Lord Ripon's concurrence—indeed, by the expression 'it appears' one may almost suppose that his lordship has stated in equivalent terms the only business English Masons ever meet for. They meet, if we are to believe Monsignore Nardi and his informant, to eat, drink, and be merry in old English fashion; and it is only when they are sufficiently sober or sufficiently inebriated that they do a little harm, the Church of Rome being, of course their pet aversion. Monsignore Nardi thinks this the best apology he can make for certainly the greatest man, by common measure of human greatness, that Rome has acquired from us since the days of Henry VIII. and Elizabeth, he refers to. This man, whose advent is a sign of the conversion of England and the world, has, it seems, for the best part of his life, been rising step by step to the highest position in a society claiming all-important secrets and an unknown antiquity, but all the time doing nothing but eat and drink, and sometimes misbehaving themselves accordingly. This, it seems, is the best thing to be said for Lord Ripon, and the best recommendation Monsignor Nardi can give him to the regards of Roman society." And then the next question comes. Are these views Lord Ripon's real views? we will not ask are they worthy of him? We have heard him over and over again in eloquent language declare his belief in the noble purposes and great objects of Freemasonry. We cannot believe that he would thus libel an Order which trusted in him, and followed him with unwavering loyalty to the last. We prefer to believe that the opinions expressed are Monsignore Nardi's own, characteristic as they are of the real or helpless ignorance of the Roman Curia as regards Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, and not in any way Lord Ripon's. If they were we, should say at once with the "Times":—"If Lord Ripon allows Monsignore Nardi's account of Freemasonry to pass without any protest on his part, it will be fair to assume, not only that he regards it as true, but that it is the apology—the confession we should rather say—he made on entering his new Communion and presenting himself to its Chief. Outsiders in general will certainly attach this significance to the pompous eulogy in which the Marquis's arrival at the Court of Rome is trumpeted to the world. In this case it will devolve upon the English Freemasons, not to disclose any secret, but to assure the world that they do something more than eat, drink, and be merry, and are something more than a 'Goose Club'—the apology actually offered for them at Rome some years ago by a distinguished English Prelate of the Roman Church. What we read in our Roman contemporary sounds very like a betrayal of secrets—that is, a confession that there is no secret at all—inconsistent as that may seem with the devoted membership of a British statesman. If what the Monsignore says be true, then a bubble has burst, and it is the Marquis of Ripon's honesty, or self-reproach, which has told the world what it has so long suspected. It would, however, be interesting to know whether the Marquis has given the same account of the other bodies in which he has served, and over which he has presided. Has he been able to inform Monsignore Nardi that in the War Office, the India Office—nay, in Her Majesty's Privy Council—they do nothing but eat, drink, and make themselves merry? If he could say this of the Joint High Commission on the Alabama Claims, it might afford some clue to the results. If the Marquis is in a candid mood, perhaps he would throw some light on the mysteries of official administration which so often puzzle the world, and seemed to admit only of the sort of explanation given of the great Masonic mystery." Perhaps the best way to treat the last unjust and undeserved caricature of Monsignore Nardi will be either with a hearty laugh or with silent contempt. We are accustomed to the "chaff" of the "Times," we can well bear it, and we take it exactly at what it is worth—namely, the algebraic "unknown quantity." We may possibly recur to the subject of Monsignore Nardi's oration.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY.

Though in our humble opinion the time for writing a complete and true history of Freemasonry has not yet arrived, inasmuch as we are still only on the threshold of enquiry after all, we yet always gladly welcome all the "waifs and strays" cast up here and there from time to time on the great open shore of Masonic Archæology. We have recently congratulated our Masonic reading public on Bro. Fort's very interesting and scholarly work. We have properly praised Bros. Todd's and Cowling's unpretending but valuable history of the York Grand Lodge and the York Lodge, and we have now to record with appreciation and approval Bro. Kenneth Mackenzie's "Preliminary Sketch of the History of Freemasonry," which appeared in the columns of the "London and Provincial Newspaper" of the 8th January. Bro. Mackenzie's contribution is only a preliminary sketch, and can only be treated as such, but we heartily agree with the general outline he has thus limned for his readers of the true annals of our Order. Bro. Mackenzie adopts the "Guild Theory," as it is called, and which, having ourselves upheld for many years, "in season and out of season," and almost "totidem verbis," with Bro. W. J. Hughan, we are glad to see it submitted in its general proposition to Masonic students. Those of us who are most friendly to the Guild Theory, who may be said to have originated it practically in this country, at any rate of later years, are equally most sensible of many difficulties attendant on it. Indeed, no account or explanation of Freemasonry can be free from some objections, owing alike to its very "raison d'être" and its peculiar organisation and system. But in the choice of difficulties, the Guild System has always appeared to us the least objectionable, and the most easily defended. And when we have said this, we have nearly said all we can say about it critically. It is but fair to remark that those who advocate the Guild Theory are not all of one school. There are those who, like Bro. Findel, would limit the Guild Theory to the 12th century. There are those who admit the Guild Theory, but make the revival of 1717 an adaptation for speculative and social purposes of the terminology and customs of the operative guilds. While there are those again who look upon the Speculative Grand Lodge of 1717 as the lineal descendant of revived, and continuation of the Operative Grand Assembly. It appears to us that Bro. Mackenzie hardly set sufficient store by the evidence arising out of Elias Ashmole's Masonic Memoranda. It is quite clear to us that neither Nicolai's theory nor that of Lessing's, however ingenious, can meet the demands of accurate and exhaustive criticism. Nicolai's view that Freemasonry sprung from the author of the "Nova Atlantis," as an hermetical society with Ashmole and others, is no more tenable than that Sir Christopher Wren is the founder of modern Masonry. Both theories are very imaginative, but very unhistoric. The facts recorded by Ashmole, and especially when taken in conjunction with those mentioned by Dr. Plot in 1682, serve to shew, that in the 17th century a Masonic body identical with our own existed in England. Of its actual conditions or system we are at present unable distinctly to speak, but we do not despair of yet obtaining more light upon the subject. But this one thing is clear. The society of "Freemasons," to which E. Ashmole belonged, is not identical with the "Masons' Company of London," but is an organization "sui generis." And for this reason. The records of the Masons Company show us, that the meeting which Ashmole mentions in 1682 at Masons' Hall was not a meeting of the Masons' Company, whose meeting for that year is duly mentioned in minutes still extant, and that Elias Ashmole was not a member of the Masons' Company. All the names mentioned however by E. Ashmole—with, we believe one exception—have been found to be members of the Masons' Company. Hence, the meeting of March 10, 1682, was a meeting of a "Society of Freemasons." Robert Padgett, who declares himself "Clerk of the Worshipful Society of Freemasons, of the City of London, in 1686," four years later, was not Clerk to the Masons' Company. Hence, the "society" to which he belonged has yet to be verified. It has been suggested that the "society" or lodge, was the precursor of the Antiquity Lodge, but this, though a most ingenious surmise, is so far only a surmise. We have said enough to demonstrate the importance of further enquiry, before we can pronounce definitely on many points of Masonic archæology, the "vexata quæstio" of the grades or degrees among others, for instance. The whole 17th century English Freemasonry is practically still a "terra incognita" to us, and until we can throw a little more light upon it than we now possess it appears impossible to us to express any dogmatic opinion, or to come to a clear conclusion on many points upon which much has been written and said, but very little is known.

DISCUSSION ON THE BALLOT.

In answer to a brother who raises one or two important questions, we beg to say that the object of the ballot being clearly to ensure both freedom and secrecy of voting, all discussion in open lodge on the result of a ballot is, in our opinion, highly irregular, and ought to be stopped at once by the W.M. In many lodges, one of the bye-laws specially, forbids any discussion or disclosure, or attempted violation of the secrecy of the ballot, and such law ought to be, we think, in all lodge bye-laws. An enforced ballot is a very difficult question, as it is quite clear to us, that no bye-law of a private lodge can compel all the members to vote by ballot, "nolentes volentes," as any brother, we apprehend, has a right to decline to vote on some ground or reason sufficient and good to himself. There is no law possible, if not laid down by the Book of Constitutions, which can force a member to vote. But equally the very object of the ballot is done away with if any discussion is allowed upon it. We do not say that no circumstances will justify a discussion, but they must be, and are, happily, very rare indeed. We shall be glad to publish any temperate letter on the subject, as the matter is a very important one, in our opinion, for the best interests of lodges.

DEATH OF BRO. W. ROMAINE CALLENDER, M.P.

We regret to learn of the death of Bro. W. Romaine Callender, which sad event took place on Saturday last, at St. Leonards, where our popular and much-respected brother had been for some weeks, in the hope of regaining his health. Bro. Callender was a Past Grand Deacon, and Deputy Provincial Grand Master for East Lancashire; was also Deputy Grand Mark Master Mason for the Grand Mark Lodge of England, Intendant General Red Cross for the province of South Lancashire, and a member of the 31st. Bro. Callender, who was in his 51st year, was returned for Manchester at the general election of 1874, when he was second on the poll, with 19,649 votes, 314 over the number given for Sir Thomas Bazley, M.P., and 920 more than were recorded for Mr. Jacob Bright, whose seat he secured. The deceased gentleman was one of the most active promoters of the revival of Conservatism in Lancashire, and entertained Mr. Disraeli and the late Viscountess Beaconsfield when the present Premier visited Manchester in April, 1872.

BROS. TEW AND PERROT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to the questions put by "Fairplay" in your paper of 22nd inst., I state,

1. I know nothing more of the Report of the "Boys' School Investigation Committee of the Province of West Yorkshire" than is recorded in the report of the proceedings of the General Committee of Saturday, 1st inst., given in your issue of the 8th inst.

2. I have not been examined, neither has any "member of the House Committee," nor, so far as I am aware, has "any brother who knows anything really about the School at all."

It is true I received on 10th January a letter signed "J.

Quartermaster, Secretary of the W.Y. Committee," with a paper signed by nine brethren, "Life Governors of the Boys' School and members of the Committee of Investigation appointed by P.G.L. of W.Y.," asking for explanations under four heads. This communication I answered to the effect that I was precluded by the resolution of the General Committee from recognising the—so called—"West Yorkshire Committee of Investigation;" and that Bro. Quartermaster not being a contributor to our funds, I could not admit his right to demand information which would have been readily at his service had he been qualified to ask for it.

I am, dear Sir and brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
FREDERICK BINCKES,
Secretary R.M.I.B.

MASONIC CONGRESS AT LAUSANNE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I do not know if your attention was directed to the congress of deputies of all Masonic Grand Lodges, which was held in the month of September last year in Lausanne, in Switzerland, during three weeks. It published a manifesto against so many defamatory attacks which ignorant outsiders, and particularly Catholics and Jesuits, used to divulge from their hotbed of Rome. I found the manifesto in the "Augsberger Allgemeine Zeitung," and having translated it from German into English, I beg to send it to you for publication in your valuable "Freemason," if you have not done so already. I do this somewhat tardily, but I received the above mentioned newspaper only lately from Germany. At the same time I hope you will excuse if my English, is not quite right; being only two years in England and never having spoken English before, perhaps you will set it right. The manifesto says thus: "At the moment the congress examines most diligently and attentively the old Institutions of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, and wishes to preserve with piety and esteem the wise laws of this rite; at the moment the congress liberates Freemasonry of all its superfluous fetters, and wills that Freemasonry shall be permeated by the spirit of freedom which enlivens our age; at the moment the congress unites the Freemasons of the whole globe in a union which is based fundamentally never to be shaken—in such a moment the congress cannot separate without having answered by a plain and convincing manifesto to the calumnies and condemnations which were divulged against Freemasonry. Therefore the congress publishes officially the principles of Freemasonry proposed, accepted and represented by the congress as follows:—Freemasonry proclaims, as it has always done since its first origin, the existence of a creative being called by the name of the Great Architect of the Universe; it sets no limits to the investigation of truth; it guarantees all who join it this freedom, but it wants this freedom also for itself from all. Freemasonry, therefore, is attainable by men of every nation, rank, and confession; it forbids in all its lodges every political and religious discussion; it admits as member every free and honest man, and does not even care whatever his religious or political views may be; its goal is to fight against all intolerance, and it is a school for life founded on reciprocity, the programme of which is the following:—"To obey the laws of the country, to live according to the laws of honour, to exercise justice, to love one's neighbour and to work incessantly for the welfare of mankind."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours,

J. T. STRAUSS,
Member of the Harmony, 600, Bradford.

BRO. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I learn from Bro. Binckes's letter in the "Freemason" of Jan. 22 that my claim to be re-installed in the Mark Degree was not suppressed from the knowledge of the Mark Grand Lodge held on the 30th November last. Why Bro. Binckes has withheld this information from me until now I am at a loss to conceive; but the facts remain. 1st. That the Mark Grand Secretary's letter to me, dated the 3rd December, made no mention of my claim having been before Grand Lodge on the 30th November. 2nd. That the printed agenda paper of business for that day, sent to me by Bro. Binckes on 3rd December, contains no reference to my claim as part of the business for consideration. 3rd. That the published report of proceedings of 30th November likewise contains no such reference. 4th. That Bro. Binckes in his correspondence with me since 3rd December has neither directly nor indirectly informed me that my claim had come before Mark Grand Lodge. A day or two ago I casually met a brother who was present on 30th November, and then for the first time I learned privately that I was mistaken in supposing that my letter had been suppressed. I had written to you to state this, but as my communication was evidently too late to appear in that day's "Freemason," I did not send it on.

I fail to understand why my claim should have been referred to the General Board. It was Mark Grand Lodge which expelled me, and to the same body I addressed my appeal for re-installation. The claim should, I contend, have been then and there adjudicated on. To transfer its consideration to another body is not a fair way of dealing with it, because if a wrong has been done, proper manly feeling should actuate a desire to make immediate reparation, instead of continuing the wrong for another six months.

The General Board (to whom my letter was not addressed) now charges me with making in it accusations against "absent Mark Masters." Absent from what? The persons to whom I referred are members of Mark Grand Lodge, and it was their duty under the Constitutions to be present at its meeting. This new charge is the more remarkable because the pith of my claim for restoration is that, contrary to Article 13 of the Constitutions, I have been expelled in my absence, and without any opportunity of a hearing having been afforded to me.

The principles of the Temple seem to have obliterated all sense of fair play from "the rulers and executive" of the Mark Degree of Freemasonry; and it becomes doubtful whether it is worth while to fight for restoration to a body which has so evidently lost all self-respect and independence.

Faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Noticing the appeal of Bro. Fellowes for the Institution of Aged Masons and Widows, and the result of the appeal up to the present moment does not at all surprise me. Everybody knows we are a rich and influential body, and can carry out any scheme for charity we once commence to the perfect satisfaction of the Craft.

Bro. Fellowes has a good and large heart undoubtedly, but I consider our institutions and charities ought to depend on the Craft alone, and not to make appeals to outsiders. I say outsiders—Masons' wives, mothers, and daughters—do not confine the subscription list to themselves, but make applications among their friends. This is not what we want—anything started like the appeal of Bro. Fellowes. I am not surprised at its non-success, I know that Masons feel some pride that the excellent charities are supported by Masons only; we have done it, we can do it, and we will do it again, if the members of the family of a brother desire to contribute to any of charities they can do it through him. True Masons' widows and children feel the benefit of our institutions, but being outside of the Craft they do not feel so strong, perhaps, on the point, knowing as they do how well the charities are supported by the brethren, and been so well conducted hitherto.

The brethren ought to rejoice at the institutions being supported by the Craft alone, and with feelings of pride support them. Every appeal to the Craft has been nobly answered, and will be again to any motion brought forward in the proper course of business, and I consider the efforts of a single brother (noble and generous they may be) ought to be done through his lodge without appealing outside himself. Supposing there are six vacancies and 30 to fill them, we can do it, if it is thought proper by the officers to bring it forward for the benefit of the Craft. We can do anything if properly brought before us.

I think Bro. Fellowes will agree with me that we are strong, rich, numerous, and powerful enough to support our institutions and charities, without appealing to any but Masons themselves, all the more glory to us.—Yours most faithfully and fraternally,

A MASTER MASON.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

A special meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge was held in Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday, 18th of January, for the purpose of confirming the following resolutions passed at the meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Heywood on the 3rd November, 1875, viz. :—

1. "That an institution to be called 'The East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution' be and is hereby established in this Province."

2. "That the bye-laws and regulations now presented by the committee be and are hereby adopted as the bye-laws and regulations of the said institution."

There was a numerous attendance of the brethren, amongst others present being Bros. Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Prov. G. Master; J. L. Hine, P. Prov. G. Warden, as Dep. Prov. G. Master; J. T. Dugdale, Prov. S.G. Warden; C. H. Coates, Prov. J. G. Warden; T. G. Parker, P. Prov. G. Warden; Thos. Glaister, P. Prov. G. Warden; C. R. N. Beswick-Royds, P. Prov. G. Warden; Jno. W. Maclure, P. G. Treas.; John Barker, P. Prov. G. Treas.; Charles Heywood, P. Prov. G. Reg.; John Tunnah, Prov. G. Sec.; Peter Royle, M.D., Prov. S.G. Deacon; G. P. Brockbank, P. Prov. G.D.; Herod Turner, P. Prov. G.D.; W. H. Prince, P. Prov. G.D.; Jno. S. Vevers, P. Prov. G.D.; Isaac W. Petty, P. Prov. G.D.; Thos. Croxton, P. Prov. G.D.; Thos. Rose, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works; Thos. Entwisle, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works; Robt. Whitaker, P. Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.; Thos. Grime, Assist. Prov. G.D.C.; C. M. Jones, P. Assist. Prov. G.D.C.; Thos. Taylor, Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; Henry Maiden, P. Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; G. W. Barlow, P. Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; J. W. Taylor, P. Prov. G. Orgt.; and others.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form, after which, on the proposition of the R.W. Prov. G. Master, the resolutions as above stated were unanimously confirmed.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then duly closed, and the first general meeting of the new institution was held under the presidency of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master.

The objects of the institution are the education and advancement in life of children of indigent or deceased Freemasons of the Province of East Lancashire, and to afford relief or assistance, where considered desirable, in aid of Freemasons and their families in the said province, and generally to promote the cause of Masonic charity. The constitution of the society consists of a President (the Rev. Prov. G. Master, for the time being), Trustees, Patrons

Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, Honorary Secretary, Life Governors, and annual subscribers. A donation of fifty pounds by one payment, or in sums of not less than five pounds each, constitutes the donor a Patron, entitled to fifty votes at all elections of children. A donation of twenty pounds by one payment, or in sums of not less than five pounds each, constitutes the donor a Vice-President, entitled to twenty votes at all elections of children. A donation of five pounds constitutes the donor a Life Governor, entitled to five votes at all elections of children. An annual subscription of five shillings entitles the subscriber to one vote at all elections of children.

The business transacted at the meeting was the appointment of Bro. Wm. Birch, P. Prov. G. Warden, as a Trustee in addition to the K.W. Prov. G. Master and the W. Dep. Prov. G. Master; the appointment of Bro. Jas. A. Birch, P. Prov. G. Warden, as Treasurer; and of Bro. Chas. Heywood, P. Prov. G. Reg., as Honorary Secretary. The following fifteen subscribers were also appointed members of the General Committee, viz.:—Bros. J. L. Hine, George Mellor, R. H. Hutchinson, C. H. Coates, John Tunnah, John Barker, G. P. Brockbank, Isaac W. Petty, J. L. Barrett, Hy. Maiden, C. M. Jones, Edwin Haddon, T. J. Hooper, Thos. Blackburne, and Benj. Smith.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the Committee (appointed by Prov. Grand Lodge) for their services in preparing the bye-laws and in organizing the institution.

A subscription list was opened in the meeting for the purposes of the institution, the R.W. Prov. G. Master (Col. Starkie) heading the list with a donation of £100, and the total amount promised at the meeting exceeded £1000, thus evincing the zeal and energy with which the cause of the institution is being supported by the province.

CENTENARY OF THE LODGE OF PRUDENT BRETHREN, No. 145.

The centenary of this lodge was celebrated on Tuesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. So great an event as the attainment of the age of 100 years was not likely to be allowed to pass by without some especial notice, particularly by brethren so enthusiastic in the cause of Masonry as the Lodge of Prudent Brethren. Consequently they combined to make the event memorable in the annals of the Craft, and they gathered together, members and visitors, to the number of about 200. The original intention was to have many more, and for that purpose they endeavoured to secure the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern. But the Robert Burns festival always occupies that room on the 25th January, and the Crown-room only was at the service of the lodge. As this will only accommodate a couple of hundred persons, the arrangements had to be restricted to that number; but even with them there was no fear of the event being otherwise than successful. The arrangements had occupied several brethren's time and attention for a considerable period previously; but these brethren were well rewarded by the result.

Lodge was opened in the Zetland-room, which presented its ordinary appearance, there having been no attempt at any kind of decoration.

At half-past five lodge was opened by Bro. Geo. Purkess, W.M., assisted by Bro. E. H. Thielley, S.W.; Bro. Mould, J.W.; the other officers, Colonel Burdett, Bro. Joshua Nunn, Bro. Cottebrune, and others. Bro. Thomas Bull, P.M., acted as D.C.

Shortly after the opening of the lodge Bro. John Boyd presented to the W.M. the centenary warrant for the lodge, issued by Grand Lodge, and authorising the brethren so long as they were members of the lodge to wear a centenary jewel. After this Bro. John Boyd was deputed by the W.M. to take the chair and instal the incoming Master.

Bro. Boyd then took the chair, and Bro. Bull presented to him Bro. E. H. Thielley, Senior Warden, for installation, when Bro. Boyd installed him in due form. The following brethren were invested as officers:—Bros. Mould, S.W.; Haslett, J.W.; John Boyd, P.M., Treasurer; G. S. States, P.M., Secretary; Manby, Assistant Secretary; Hughes, S.D.; Leggett, J.D.; Lewis, I.G.; Lyster, D.C.; Wilkinson, A.D.C.; Torrie, W.S.; and Grant, Tyler. After the delivery of the addresses the lodge was called off, and the brethren adjourned to the tavern, where the Crown-room was beautifully and tastefully prepared for their reception. There was a nice show of flowers on the tables, and two of Rimmel's perpetual fountains. Every brother had had his place assigned to him previously, and as it was shown on a diagram before he entered the room he had no difficulty in finding his place, and thus all confusion was avoided. The brethren present were:—B. Swallow, W.M. City West; Pendlebury, P.M.; Pythian, P.M.; Welshman, P.M.; Swanborough, P.M.; C. A. Long, P.M. 25; J. Cox, W.M. Grosvenor; Smith; Venn, P.M. Gihon; J. Lewis Thomas, P.M. St. Thomas's; Thomas Lane, P.M. (of Eastbourne); Charles Martin, W.M. Globe; R. W. Little, P.M., Secretary Girls' Institution; Charles Duke, P.M. 40 (of Hastings); Dr. Trollope, P.M. 40 (of St. Leonards); the Rev. Dr. Thompson, Chaplain Girls' Institution; Herbert Dickets, P.G.S., P.M. 25, &c.; Frederick Binckes, P.M., G.S.L., Secretary Boys' Institution; Henry Norman, P.M., G.S.L.; Dr. Croucher, S.W. 40 (St. Leonards); H. Buss, P.M.; Colonel Peters, Bank of England Lodge, P.M. Thames Valley Lodge; J. Jermyn Boyd, 23; T. W. C. Lent, 23; Mills, Grosvenor; Amor; Douglas, 23; Kirkby, Matthews, Bellrage, F. Godfrey, Grosvenor; Moody, P.M. Great Northern and Great City; Rev. M. Holden, City of Westminster; H. Reed, P.M.; H. M. Levy, P.M. Joppa; H. Massey, P.M. ("Freemason"); David Jacobs, P.M. Egyptian; J. Terry, P.M., Provincial Grand Standard Bearer Herts; J. T. Moss, P.M.; F. Walters, P.M.; P. Naylor, C. States, Distin, Carter, P.M.; John Constable, P.M. 185; C. Hammerton, P.M.; George Kenning, P.M. Lion and Lamb, 192; Captain Phillips, 33; Major Shadwell Clerke, 33; Charles Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P.; Joshua Nunn,

P.G.S.B.; Colonel Creaton, P.G.D.; John Hervey, P.G.D., Grand Secretary; Colonel Francis Burdett, P.G.W., Prov. G.M. Middlesex; Charles Ashenden (M.R.B.S., Hastings).

Letters of apology for absence were received from Lord Carnarvon, Lord Shrewsbury, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Bros. E. J. McIntyre, Q.C., W. Digby Seymour, Q.C., and John Monckton, P.G.D. (Town Clerk). All these letters expressed the regret of the writers, and wished every success to the lodge.

At the conclusion of the banquet the toasts were proposed, and a selection of music was given in the intervals by Bros. Geo. Carter and Theo. Distin, Madam Osborne Williams, and Miss Matilda Scott. After the health of the Queen and the Grand Master had been given, that of "Pro Grand Master, &c.," was proposed, and Col. Burdett replied in a speech in which he revived the recollection of the brethren as to the Earl of Carnarvon's administrative powers, and the skill with which he managed the concerns of the Craft. As long as he was in the position which he now held Freemasonry would continue to flourish throughout the country. A similar compliment he paid to Lord Skelmersdale.

Bro. Hyde Pullen proposed "Prosperity to the Lodge," a toast which he said he felt almost unequal to give properly. He therefore claimed the brethren's special indulgence. The brethren were aware that this was the celebration of the 100th anniversary of its existence. The lodge had travelled for 100 years, and each year during its passage had been marked by some one kindly event doubtless in the working of the lodge. The lodge was one of the old Athole Lodges, and so worked until the Union in 1813, when it became the Prudent Brethren Lodge. The brethren worked it and carried it on thoroughly and well. He believed the first meetings were in the West End, but the lodge was afterwards removed to the East, to Bethnal Green. It was afterwards taken to Belgrave Square, when Belgrave Square was not what it is now. It was now held at Freemasons' Hall, and it had much changed during its existence. But there was this to be said, that whatever changes it had undergone the brethren had worked their way steadily, modestly, firmly. At one time they were very, very much reduced in numbers, but still they went on holding their meetings; there was no break or cessation. Therefore it was that they were now celebrating their centenary. It was mysterious to contemplate these many years. He could fancy the brethren showing many acts of kindness during that time, stretching out a helping hand to many a brother, and assisting him to overcome his difficulties. He could conceive the brethren never halting to render assistance, that the heart had been opened over and over again to receive the kind expressions, or the sympathetic feelings, which were exhibited when a brother had poured forth his distresses. In that time the kind hand must have been extended many and many a time, and much good must have been done. These were the qualities that he was sure had actuated members of that lodge years and years ago. But still there was no tale about it. Everything had been done modestly. The whole of the work had been to convey the lodge onwards, and the brethren had succeeded in doing so. He could well conceive many brethren having housed the wretched, visited the sick, administered comfort, relieved pain, and done all in their power to do to assuage suffering; and when a poor brother's spirit had been passing away into the valley of the shadow of death, had sat by his bedside and cheered his way, and afterwards assisted his widow. Many a time and oft must this have been the case in such an old lodge. Unless such had been the case the lodge could not have arrived at its present age, or to the position to which it had attained. It was by such acts as these the brethren had been held together. Such acts had united them as a lodge. They had banded themselves together for the performance of such deeds. There was one little record in the minutes he would refer to. There was a resolution passed in the old days of the lodge that every visitor should pay a fee of 2s. towards the general expenses. To him it had a most significant meaning. It told him most distinctly and absolutely that these brethren of the lodge were given to feelings of hospitality. They were always pleased to see visitors, and yet that the visitors were ready to help their cause. He trusted that the lodge might long go on and prosper, and that it might celebrate many more such events as the one it celebrated that day.

Col. Burdett proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said he had known Bro. Thielley from the commencement of his Masonic career. He had been through every office of the lodge, which he believed very few brethren could say of the lodge in which they had been initiated. He had always found him a most zealous and earnest Mason, doing his work thoroughly. He was confident that he would continue in that course, and he would not be surprised when Bro. Thielley left the chair that all the brethren would be satisfied with the efficiency which he had displayed.

The W.M. responded. He had been much impressed with the honour that had been conferred upon him by placing him in the dignified position of W.M. It was the crowning point of his Masonic aspirations to be the Master of his mother lodge. The Prudent Brethren Lodge was exemplary for its concord, and unsurpassed for its good fellowship and general harmony. He was deeply grateful for the confidence thus reposed in him, and he would give his best attention to the functions of his office. He might have some shortcomings, being of foreign origin, but the brethren would extend to him some consideration, and at the end of his term he hoped to resign his trust into the hands of his successor as pure and unsullied as he had that day received it from the I.P.M. He had now to perform a very pleasing duty. Although he felt his inability to do proper justice to his throne, he would give way to nobody in the esteem he had for Bro. Boyd. He could not attempt to relate the many good services rendered by that brother to the Craft; but he could say that Bro. Boyd had been a most active member of the lodge for upwards of a quarter of a century, holding office as W.M. for two successive years, and discharging the duties of Treasurer also for many years. The lodge was honoured by being associated with such a distinguished member of the Craft, who was also a Past Grand Officer. (Cheers.) In the name of every member of the lodge, he begged to present him with a silver service, as the oldest member of the lodge, as a token of their fervent esteem; and also a gold centenary jewel. (Cheers.) He might add that the ceremony of installation had been given by Bro. Boyd to the general satisfaction of the brethren, and that the arrangements for the festival, which had largely devolved upon Bro. Boyd, were also entirely satisfactory. He trusted Bro. Boyd would long live to enjoy these tokens of the brethren's esteem, and to remember that eventful day. He then read the inscription on the silver salver which formed part of the service, the aggregate weight of which was nearly 200 ozs.: "Presented to Bro. John Boyd, Past Grand Pursuivant, Past Master, Past Z., by the members of the Lodge of Prudent Brethren, as a token of their sincere regard, and as a mark of their great appreciation of the many services rendered by him to the lodge of which he is the Father, January 25th, 1876." The toast was drunk with the greatest enthusiasm.

Bro. Boyd, who was much affected, in replying said he might as well at once acknowledge that the brethren had placed him in considerable difficulty. He had had the honour of replying a good many times in various capacities, sometimes as a Grand Officer, sometimes as P.M., sometimes as Treasurer, sometimes as a Steward for the Charities. To-night he was placed in a different position, and it was very difficult for him to express fully his feelings in being presented with such a handsome silver service, and the centenary jewel. In the fulness of his heart he thanked them. He could only say, thank you. He hoped that it would have an effect both on the members and visitors, by proving to them that it was impossible for a lodge to deserve the name of Prudent Brethren, which this lodge most certainly did, unless they could keep a secret. Now this testimonial he found had been in agitation about a twelvemonth; but so strictly was it kept private, that it was only recently that any one of the brethren had opened their lips to him about it. He looked upon it as a gift doubly and trebly enhanced by that secrecy. By this it had a greater charm for him. The whole proceedings of the evening had been exceedingly pleasing to him.

Bro. Boyd then proposed "The Visitors," to which toast Bros. John Hervey, G.S., and Col. Creaton, P.G.D., responded; both however, very briefly, on account of the lateness of the hour.

Bro. Thomas Bull, P.M., proposed "The Masonic Charities," and referred to the support which the lodge had always extended to those institutions, and which he hoped and believed it would extend in the future.

Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, responded, and made special allusion to the fact of more than £30,000 having been collected during last year to the three charities. He also called attention to the circumstance of the greatly increasing number of candidates for relief, which he could not but feel would in future become larger instead of smaller. He advised every member of the Craft to give a small donation, which would then enable the managers of the institutions to relieve all candidates. 8000 additional Masons were made every year. He knew the charities had the sympathies of the brethren and their most cordial co-operation in this lodge. Bro. Purkess, I.P.M., was Steward for the Benevolent Institution, and he exhorted the brethren to give him hearty support and send him up with a good list.

The W.M. then proposed "Bro. Purkess' Health," and presented him with a Past Master's and centenary jewel.

Bro. Purkess, in reply, after thanking the brethren for the gift, also reminded the brethren of his Stewardship, and appealed to the brethren to support it.

The remaining toasts were afterwards given. Lodge was resumed and closed, and the brethren separated, after having spent a most delightful evening.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday at Freemasons' Hall. Col. Creaton, V.P., presided. There were also present Bros. Benj. Head, Thomas W. White, Raynham W. Stewart, H. A. Dubois, Thomas Massa, John Boyd, Henry Browne, A. H. Tattershall, S. Rawson, Magnus Ohren, W. Stephens, Robt. B. Webster, Collard Meutrie, Dr. Ramsay, Hyde Pullen, H. Massey ("Freemason"), W. Roebuck, A. H. Diaper, Dudley Rolls, W. H. Hemsworth, Major Finney, Robt. Kenyon, T. F. Peacock, and R. W. Little, Sec.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the Chairman said he was very glad that the Audit Committee had recommended to the General Committee that the salary of the Secretary (Bro. Little) should be raised £50 a year. The duties of the office had very much increased, and they had been discharged, as the brethren all knew, with zeal and fidelity. He therefore, gave notice that he would move at the next Quarterly Court, "That in consideration of the increased work in the office, and the large augmentation of the receipts of the institution, the salary of the Secretary be raised £50 per annum, commencing from 1st January, 1876." He further stated that on account of the above increase in the duties of the office, he gave notice that he would move that the salary of Bro. Hedge's, Bro. Little's clerk, be raised £20 a year.

Both these announcements were received with cheers. One petition was then received, one child was withdrawn from the list of candidates, and Bro. Matier's motion, similar to that given at the Boy's School, was read, prior to its being considered at the Special Joint Court of the two Institutions.

The committee then adjourned.

which balances are in the hands of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., bankers of the Grand Treasurer.

The Grand Chapter Committee beg to report that the Grand Scribe E. officially announced the lamented death of Comp. John Savage, P.S.B., their President, which intelligence was received with very deep and sincere regret.

The Grand Scribe E. further announced that the M.E. Prov. First Grand Principal had appointed Companion Lieut.-Colonel Creation, P.S.B., President, in the room of Companion Savage, deceased, and Companion Robert Second Assistant Sojourner, to fill the vacancy caused by his death.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

From Companions William Lawrence Twentyman, as Z.; William John Doveton, as H.; Richard Nathan Hubbersty, as J.; and ten others, for a chapter to be attached to the Lodge of the Rock, No. 260, Trinchinopoly, to be called "The Rock Chapter," and to meet at Trinchinopoly, Madras, East Indies.

From Companions Charles Godtschalk, as Z.; James Jackson Avery, as H.; Henry William Thomas, as J.; and ten others, for a chapter to be attached to the Dundas Lodge, No. 1255, Plymouth, to be called "The Dundas Chapter," and to meet at the Huyshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth, Devonshire.

From Comps. Henry Griffiths, as Z.; William Henry Lloyd, as H.; Thomas Waite, as J., and six others, for a chapter to be attached to the Kennard Lodge, No. 1258, Pontypool, to be called "The Kennard Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Pontypool, Monmouthshire.

From Comps. Percival Allyn Nairne, as Z.; William Viner Bedolfe, as H.; James Hadland Vockins, as J., and seven others, for a chapter to be attached to the Sphinx Lodge, No. 1329, Camberwell, to be called "The Sphinx Chapter," and to meet at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell.

The foregoing petitions, being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

The Committee have further to report that they have received petitions:—

From Comps. Richard Miles Roberts, as Z.; Richard William Hoskins Giddy, as H.; Francis Henry Samuel Orpen, as J.; and seven others, for a chapter to be attached to the Richard Giddy Lodge, No. 1574, Kimberley, South Africa, to be called "The Richard Giddy Chapter," and to meet at Kimberley, South Africa.

This petition is regular, excepting that the proposed J. is not yet registered as an Installed Master.

From Comps. Gabriel Joshua de Cordova, as Z.; Osmond Dilgado, as H.; David Barned, as J.; and nine others for a chapter to be attached to the Phoenix Lodge, No. 914, Port Royal, Jamaica, to be called "The Phoenix Chapter," and to meet at Port Royal, Jamaica.

This petition is also regular, excepting that the lodge recommendation is not attached thereto.

The Committee therefore recommend that, subject to the proof of the proposed J. being an Installed Master in the case of No. 1574, and the recommendation of the lodge in the case of No. 914, which have both been written for, being respectively received, the prayers of these petitions be granted.

It having come under the notice of the Committee at their meeting on the 20th October, 1875, that Comp. Price, who was one of the petitioners for a chapter to be attached to the Royal Lebanon Lodge, No. 493, Gloucester, and who had been exalted in the Foundation Chapter, No. 82, Cheltenham, as far back as the 10th October, 1866, had not been registered until October, 1875, the Committee directed the three Principals of the chapter to be summoned to account for the neglect, and to produce their books and charter, dispensing, however, in the first instance, with the personal attendance of the Principals.

The Committee regret to say that, on an investigation of the books and registry book of Grand Chapter, a most inexcusable amount of laxity appears to have prevailed in the registration of companions exalted in the Foundation Chapter, companions exalted in 1865-6 and 7 not being registered until 1869; one exalted in 1863 and one exalted in 1866 were not registered until 1870; three exalted in 1859, one in 1863, and one in 1865 were not registered until 1871; and, without going through the whole list, it would almost appear that no companion was registered until his certificate was required for some special purpose.

The Committee therefore, to mark their sense of the great irregularities which have prevailed in the Foundation

Chapter, and its total disregard of Art. 20, page 19, of the Royal Arch Regulations, Edition 1869, or Art. 64, page 21, Edition 1875, which requires a regular return from each chapter once in every year, have inflicted a fine on the chapter to the extent of three guineas.

The Committee hope and believe that the business of the chapter for the last year or two has been conducted with more regularity, so far as relates to the registration of its members."

(Signed) JOHN CREATION.
President.

"The Army, Navy, and Volunteers." The W.M., in proposing the toast of the evening, said it was with satisfaction that they viewed year after year the continued prosperity of the lodge. During the past year they had added to the roll twenty-four affiliated members. The income had been in excess of the expenditure, the latter having been during the past unusually heavy, owing to repairing and redecoration of the hall. With all that they had not been unmindful of those who by misfortune had been reduced in circumstances, and in all such cases the brethren had subscribed liberally. Referring to the proposed Masonic Benevolent Institution, he expressed the hope that by next year it would be in working order. Its objects were to provide halls in the Scottish Universities to receive and maintain, clothe and educate, the sons of Freemasons of every religious denomination, who were in needful circumstances; also to provide schools for girls in similar circumstances; and also to provide an asylum for destitute Freemasons and their widows, or annuities to maintain them. The Chairman concluded by saying that it must be with satisfaction that the members of St. Mirren's heard that Bro. Gilmour had tabled a motion for the increase of the funds payable to the benevolent funds from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d., and he expressed the hope that it would be carried. During the evening deputations were sent to Lodges Renfrew County Kilwinning, No. 370, Houston St. Johnstone, No. 242, and Renfrew Prince of Wales; and deputations were received from these lodges respectively, and also from Lodge Dalmuir St. John's, No. 543.

After minor business had been transacted, the W.M., Bro. Shaw, said it was now his duty to place his resignation in the hands of the P.M. of the lodge, and he begged to do so accordingly. Bro. A. Arrick Smith, P.M., said he had been very sorry to hear of Bro. Shaw's intention to resign the chair. He (Bro. Smith) should be very happy should he yet see fit to continue, but if not, it was his duty in the absence of the I.P.M., Bro. W. Montgomerie Neilson to accept of the resignation, which he did with deep regret, and he thought the least thing they could do was to minute a vote of thanks to him for his conduct in the chair for a period of two years and the portion of a third year. He had formally to move that Bro. Shaw's resignation be accepted. Bro. James Reid said that if it must be done, he had, with great reluctance to second the motion, which was accordingly passed. At seven o'clock the W.M. took the chair, supported on the right by Bro. John Barr, from New Zealand, and P.M. Jas. Anderson; and on the left by Bro. J. A. MacKean, P.M.; and Bro. Geo. Masson. There was a goodly attendance of members of the lodge, and representatives from Paisley St. Mirren's and St. John's, Greenock. The company partook of a substantial supper, served in his usual good style by Bro. Sinclair. After the cloth was removed, the Chairman and others gave the toasts, "The Queen," "The Craft," "The Prince and Princess of Wales," "The Grand Lodge of Scotland, England, and Ireland, with their respective Masters," "Provincial Lodge of Renfrewshire East," coupled with Colonel Campbell, Provincial Grand Master, replied to by Bro. R. McGibbon, which were all duly responded to, the toasts being intermingled with songs and recitations. The Chairman then referred to the financial state of the lodge, and said that it was in a pretty good condition, and hoped that in the ensuing year it would not be in a less prosperous condition. The W.M. then called upon Bro. Ex-Bailie Masson, who in a neat and appropriate speech presented a handsome silver tea-service with the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. James Anderson, P.M., by Lodge R.C.K., 370, 1876, as a token of respect, and in acknowledgment of his past services and good work for the benefit of the lodge in the various offices he had filled, and more especially during the past three years as W.M.," which was very feelingly replied to by Bro. James Anderson. Bro. John Barr, New Zealand, gave several pieces in prose and verse of his own composition, which were all exceedingly well received, especially "The Pedigree of the Clans," and "The Tinker's Wedding." Bro. McGibbon rendered effectively several sentimental songs. Bro. Lewis caused great laughter by the comic song, "The Ark." "The Auld, Auld Wife," from W.M., was also very well received. Before closing the lodge resolved to go on with good work, and not to stop "Till man to man, the world o'er, would brothers be and a' that."

MILLPORT.—Kelburne Lodge (No. 459).—The ancient festival was celebrated in the Cumbrac Hotel on Monday, 27th ult., by the brethren of this lodge. About half-past six o'clock a grand torchlight procession was formed, and marched through the burgh to the merry strains of the band of the 2nd Bute Artillery. At eight o'clock a large company sat down to an excellent supper in Mrs. King's hall. The chair was occupied by Bro. M. Swan, W.M., Bro. J. Cunningham, S.W., acting as Croupier. The usual loyal toasts were ably given from the chair, and heartily responded to. Dr. MacGowan, in a humorous speech, gave "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," which was acknowledged by Sergeant Gibb. The toast of "The Millport Bailies and Commissioners" was enthusiastically received, and ably responded to by Bailie Robertson. "The Press" was replied to by Bro. R. W. Brown, and "The Chair" by the W.M. Altogether a pleasant evening was spent, the proceedings being much enlivened by the music of the band and the singing of the brethren.

UDDINGSTON.—A large and influential meeting was held on Tuesday evening, the 18th inst., in Mr. Buce's schoolroom, Bro. McMurdo in the chair, when it was resolved to apply to the Grand Lodge of Scotland for a charter constituting a Masonic lodge, to be held in Uddingston, and dedicated to St. Bride, the patron saint of Bothwell. Twenty-four candidates having been enrolled for initiation, the meeting elected the following office-bearers, viz.:—Bros. Easton, W.M.; Wilson Walker, S.M.; Halkett, S.W.; J. Baird, jun., J.W.; Shoot, Treas.; Crawford, Sec.; J. Walker, S.D.; Robertson, J.D.; Bryden, S.S.; Watson, J.S.; Ruddoch, I.G.; and Wray, Tyler.

COCKBURN'S UNITED SERVICE AGENCY SOCIETY.—On several occasions reference has been made to the usefulness of the Cheque Bank system for small amounts, the origination of which system is claimed by Cockburn's United Agency Society, established 1871. After five years' experience, and in complete working order, special advantages are stated, viz., the allowance of 2½ per cent. annually, at Christmas, on the minimum monthly balance in even ten pounds of all accounts then open. COCKBURN'S GUARANTEED CHEQUE BOOKS are issued in amounts from £1, £3, £5 to £100; and the attention of officers of both services, travellers and residents at home, the Colonies, India, America, and Continental States, in addition to securing guaranteed cheques is directed to the society's undertaking the several duties of Agency business; offering to the members, at an economic rate, advantages unattainable by other medium. On application to the chief office, 41, Haymarket, S.W., every information is afforded.

HEALTH, comfort, and economy promoted. Gas superseded in day time, and daylight reflected in dark rooms by adopting Chappuis' Patent Daylight Reflectors. Manufactory, 69, Fleet-street, London.

Masonic and General Tidings.

A movement has been initiated among the Freemasons of East Lancashire, for establishing "a systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution." At a recent meeting held at the Masonic Hall, Cooper-street, Manchester, the Prov. G.M. (Bro. Le Gendre Starkie) introduced the subject to the brethren, and a code of regulations was considered and approved of. The objects of the institution were defined to be the "education and advancement in life of children of indigent or deceased Freemasons of the province, and to afford relief or assistance where considered desirable in aid of Freemasons and their families in the said province, and generally to promote the cause of Masonic charity." It was decided to elect annually, from the general committee, a certain number of members to act as an education committee, whose duty should be to supervise the education of all children elected on the institution, select schools for them, arrange terms, and require reports from schoolmasters, parents, and guardians. It is provided that in case of any child exhibiting peculiar talent for a particular branch of education calculated to be practically useful in after life, instruction shall be provided accordingly, and a sum of £20 awarded to any deserving pupil on finishing the educational course. There was a large attendance of Masters and Past Masters of the various lodges in the province, Bolton, Bury, Burnley, Accrington, and Preston being among the towns represented. The Prov. G.M. headed the subscription list with £100. It was also suggested that each brother in the province should, through his lodge, subscribe not less than 2s. 6d. per annum, to the fund.

For a number of years there has been a talk of forming a lodge in the neighbourhood of Neston and Parkgate, several miles from Birkenhead, for the convenience of numerous brethren resident in that district. Nothing definite, however, was done in the matter till last August, when a preliminary meeting was held in Bro. Acton's Union Hotel, Parkgate, with the view of establishing a Craft lodge in the neighbourhood. At a well attended meeting it was agreed upon to present the required petition to Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord de Tabley, R.W.P.G.M., for the purpose of obtaining the warrant to constitute the lodge, to be called the Dee Lodge. The warrant has been obtained, and it is expected the lodge will be consecrated next Thursday, 3rd February, by Lord de Tabley. The Master elect is Bro. T. Chesworth, P.M., and the Secretary Bro. N. J. Lewis, 193, Rothes Maryshire. The lodge will hold its meetings at the Union Hotel, Parkgate.

We ("Figaro") hear there is every likelihood that Sir N. M. de Rothschild, M.P. for Aylesbury, the heir of the late Sir A. de Rothschild, will, though a Liberal, be raised to the peerage by Mr. Disraeli. The same journal states that Sir Anthony de Rothschild's fortune, in realty and personality, nearly reaches ten millions sterling.

Bro. J. D. Allcroft, the treasurer of Christ's Hospital, has, at his own expense, leased, for the recreation of the Blue-coat boys, a field leading from Dulwich to Herne Hill.

A number of the citizens of Dublin have resolved to forward to the Queen a request that she might visit the Irish capital this year.

A telegram from Vienna announces that Bro. Alderman Stone, late Lord Mayor of London, has been made a Knight Commander of the Order of Francis Joseph, by the Emperor of Austria. Upon Bro. Vine, secretary to the Lord Mayor, the Gold Cross of Merit has been conferred.

It is stated that in consideration of the painful circumstances under which the late Commodore Goodenough, C.B., lost his life at Santa Cruz, while in the execution of his duty, the Treasury has sanctioned the award of a special pension of £300 per annum to the widow of this lamented officer.

THE PRINCESS OF WALES.—One of her Majesty's couriers passed through Dover on Wednesday, en route for Copenhagen, to make arrangements for the return of the Princess of Wales. Her Royal Highness is expected to arrive at Dover on or about Feb. 4.

The fifteen sections will be worked by Bro. Mark Gross, at the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, on Wednesday next, at 7 o'clock, at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston.

Bro. T. W. Boord, M.P. (320), for the Borough of Greenwich, has announced his intention of addressing his constituents at Woolwich on February 1st, and at New-cross, February 3rd.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked at the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction No. 1507, 269, Pentonville-road, on Monday, February 7th, at 6.30 p.m., by Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M. St. James's Union Lodge, Preceptor of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1056, and brethren from the lodge. The brethren of one lodge will thus visit the brethren of the other. The chair will be taken by Bro. T. A. Adams, P.M., P.G.P.

A Re-union of Knights Templar, we are informed by an official circular from the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania, will take place in the City of Philadelphia, on the 30th May, 31st May, and 1st June of this year. A Grand Templar parade will be announced on the latter date.

UNITED MARINERS' LODGE (No. 30).—

This lodge held its monthly meeting on Tuesday, 18th January, 1876, at the Guildhall Coffee House, Bro. H. Bethell, W.M., in the chair, assisted by his Wardens, Bros. Lefaux and T. Smith. The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Bailey was raised to the degree of M.M. A Board of Installed Masters was formed, consisting of Bros. R. E. Barnes, P.M. 15; J. Turner, P.M. 30; T. Johns, P.M. 30; W. Ansell, P.M.; G. T. C. Smith, P.M.; J. Harling, P.M. 30; J. Driscoll, P.M. 30; W. McDonald, P.M. 30; R. Sennett, P.M. 160; R. H. Williams, P.M. 1314; W. Manger, P.M. 1314; J. C. Cox, W.M. 1257, who, according to ancient usage, installed Bro. A. Lefaux to the chair of the lodge. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. T. Smith, as S.W.; A. Gladwell, as J.W.; J. Turner, P.M., as Treas.; R. E. Barnes, P.M., as Hon. Sec.; C. Davey, S.D.; J. Clark, J.D.; C. Cosedge, I.G.; J. Driscoll, W.S.; Grant, Tyler. Resolved—“That the thanks of the lodge be given to Bro. Joseph Driscoll, P.M., for the very efficient manner in which he discharged the duties of Installing Master.” The brethren adjourned to the banquet, prepared by “mine host” in his usual recherché style. The usual loyal toasts being given and responded to, Bro. Henry Bethell, P.M., proposed “The Health of the W.M., Bro. A. Lefaux.” He observed that the lodge had occasion to be delighted with the selection they had made in the choice of a Master to preside over them; his efficiency in the discharge of his duties was creditable in the highest degree, his punctuality of attendance, and the zeal he at all times manifested for the welfare of the lodge, was such as to merit their warmest approbation. Bro. Lefaux, W.M., in reply, assured them he felt highly honoured with the encomiums passed on him. As Master of the Lodge he should endeavour to promote its welfare, and during his year of office would use his utmost energies to merit the continuance of the esteem evinced towards him. The W.M., Bro. Lefaux, then craved the attention of the lodge for a short time. He said the period had arrived when the important feature of the proceedings, the presentation of a testimonial to Bro. H. Bethell, was to take place, and he (Bro. Lefaux) wished that it had fallen to the lot of some other brother who could have done greater justice to it. In the name of the brethren he presented to Bro. Bethell a handsome gold Past Master's jewel, for the zeal he had evinced for the welfare of the Craft during his Mastership, with every wish for his health, happiness, and prosperity. The testimonial bears the following inscription:—“Presented by the United Mariners' Lodge, No. 30, to Bro. H. Bethell, P.M., to mark the zeal evinced for the welfare of the lodge, and the very efficient manner in which he discharged the duties of W.M., January 18th, 1875.” Bro. Bethell, P.M., returned thanks in an appropriate speech, and assured the brethren that he should ever esteem it a great honour conferred on him by the lodge in which he was initiated; that when placed on his breast he would ever be reminded of the estimation in which he was held by his brethren in Masonry. He accepted with great pleasure the jewel presented to him, and which he should more highly prize as coming from his mother lodge. The toast of “The Visitors” was duly given and responded to; as also “The Health of the Officers of the Lodge.” The remaining toasts, amongst which was “The Treasurer and Hon. Secretary, Bros. Turner and Barnes,” were given from the chair, and the brethren parted, much gratified with their evening's entertainment.

LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 205).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Tuesday, 25th ult., Bro. Buckland, W.M., in the chair. After the ordinary lodge business, which included the raising of Bro. Da Costa, the ceremony of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. Lionel Jacobs, was very ably performed by Bro. Latour. The appointment of officers was as follows:—Bros. Cohen, S.W.; M. J. Emanuel, P.M.; J.W.; C. Coote, Treas.; A. M. Cohen, Sec.; Bassington, S.D.; J. Crosthwaite, J.D.; Phillips, I.G.; and Illogard, D.C. Among the visitors present were Bros. Sigismund Millar, 88; M. H. Stephens, 1049; Famber, 1158; Lazarus, 55 93, 355; Bowley, 148; Dodson, 188; L. Lazarus, 188; Ridler, 219; Asher, Tranquility; Musto, 1349; Rodger, 188; Rooks, 142; and Edmund C. Massey (“Freemason”). At the conclusion of the business the lodge was closed in perfect harmony, and the brethren, to the number of about fifty, sat down to an elegant repast, to which ample justice was done. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. Jacobs, W.M., rose and proposed “The Health of the Queen and the Craft,” observing that anything he could add would be superfluous, as Her Majesty the Queen was dear to the heart of every British subject. The toast was drunk with the usual Masonic honours. The W.M.: The next toast I have to propose is that of “H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master of Freemasons.” The Prince of Wales has endeared himself to every one of Her Majesty's subjects by his attention to every part of his duties as a Prince and a Mason over the four quarters of the globe; he has never neglected any duties he has been called on to perform. “The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; Earl Skelmersdale, the Deputy G.M., with the rest of the Grand Officers,” was then proposed, coupled with the name of Bro. Albert, who, in responding, observed that it was the duty of the Grand Officers to keep a zealous watch over the working of ordinary lodges, which duty they performed with credit to themselves and benefit to the Craft at large; and it gave him great pleasure to respond to this toast. Bro. Buckland, I.P.M.: I rise with great pleasure to perform for the first time the duty of proposing “The Health of our new W.M.” He is a thoroughly good working Mason; he has gone through the various offices in this lodge in a most efficient manner, and I have no doubt that he will perform the high functions he is now called upon to undertake in a very proper manner, and that he will thus reflect credit on your choice. I beg to propose “The Health of the W.M.” The W.M.: Brethren,—I have to return you my sincere thanks for the hearty manner in which you have responded to the toast proposed by Bro. Buckland. I shall not make a long speech, as I feel short of words, but I hope I may be able to perform the duties, and I shall only assure you that no endeavour shall be spared by me to have these duties fulfilled with becoming propriety. The W.M.: The next toast I have to propose is always welcome in the Lodge of Israel. It is “The Health of the Visitors.” There are among us many distinguished visitors, men whom we have known in the Craft for years, whom we cannot help admiring. Brethren, when the Lodge of Israel has the honour of entertaining visitors like these the least we can do is to show that we appreciate it, and I trust you will do so by the way in which you receive this toast. The toast was acknowledged by various visiting brethren in the name of the sister lodges, Joppa, Tranquillity, and Montefiore. The W.M.: The toast I have now to propose is one that I am sure will meet with your sympathy. It is “Prosperity to the Benevolent Fund” belonging to this lodge; it is available for any one of us who may be in want. We none of us know how soon misfortune may fall upon us, and it is right that all should contribute towards its support. Brethren, I am not able to speak as fully as I could wish, for I lack the words that express my feelings, but I am sure you will support the toast as it deserves. Brethren, “The Benevolent Fund.” Bro. Cohen, P.M., Sec.: As the representative of the Benevolent Fund of this lodge, I could tell a great deal as to the usefulness of the institutions, but on this occasion, as our numbers are so few, I will not attempt to do so in the few remarks I am now about to make. I beg, in the name of the lodge, to state that we do not take contributions from visitors; the fund is only for members of the Lodge of Israel, and I beg, therefore, that my visiting brethren will not attempt to give anything. But, I beg the members to further this fund as far as they can; I only make a strong plea to you once during the year; I have always been successful, and I beg you not allow me to be less successful this evening. A petition has come before the lodge this evening, which has been referred to the Benevolent Fund Committee; this shows the benefit of having such a fund. We have not had as much pleasure accorded to our appetites as we usually do, but I ask you whether any pleasures of the appetite can give so much pleasure as the pleasure derived from contributing to this fund. No matter how fortunate we may be, we may totter on the uneven paths of adversity. I say, while we can, let us contribute towards this fund, so that when brethren have to come to this fund we may have something like valuable relief to give, something that will do them good in a future career, and enable them to return to this fund, not only the money they take from it, but great interest upon it. You know, brethren, that there is no greater pleasure than to relieve your fellow creatures in distress. Brethren, that is the object of this fund. None know what may happen in course of time. Young or old may be compelled to come to this fund. We don't want to give with a niggard hand, and I therefore ask you to support this fund as freely as you can—that is, the members of the Lodge of Israel. The W.M.: Brethren the toast I have to propose is “The Health of the Immediate P.M.,” and this toast I ask you to receive with the cordiality it deserves. The P.M. has had many difficulties to contend with during his year of office. I am sure you will agree that he has discharged his duties in a most efficient manner in regard to the difficulties he has had to combat. Those difficulties were of no light order, and I give you Bro. Buckland's health, trusting that you will receive it with all the cordiality it deserves. Bro. Cohen, P.M.: Worshipful P.M. Buckland, I have been deputed as the Senior P.M. of this lodge to present you with this testimonial. It is a mere sign of the appreciation that the brethren have of your services, which appreciation must not be measured by the intrinsic value of this jewel. I only wish it was of far greater value. Bro. Buckland: I beg to thank you most sincerely for drinking my health, and for the kind sentiments that have been expressed towards me for performing the duties during the past year. I am afraid I have not done them very well, but no man can do more than his best. I shall always wear this jewel in kindly remembrance that it was presented by the brethren of the Lodge of Israel. “The Health of the Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge” was then proposed and duly honoured, and the company separated after a very pleasing evening's entertainment.

FITZ-ROY LODGE (No. 569).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 28th ult., at the headquarters of the Honourable Artillery Company, London. Bro. Griffiths Smith, W.M., presided, supported by his officers, Past Masters, and an immense array of visitors and members. On the 21st ult. Bro. Griffiths Smith held an emergency meeting, when he initiated Messrs. Robert Parker, Alexander McKenzie, Lewis Thomas Crook, William Parker Piggott, and John A. Hunt. At the installation meeting Bro. Griffiths Smith initiated Serjt. Major John S. Simmonds, Mr. Charles Stoddart, and Ensign Aug. M. Soule. The installation ceremony was performed by Bro. Peter Matthews, P.M., and Bro. J. Egles, P.M., who impressively rendered the ceremony, and placed Bro. Frederick Graves in the Worshipful Master's chair for the year 1876. Twenty-seven Past Masters formed the board, which number agrees with the number of years that the lodge has been in existence. The following brethren were invested by the W.M. as his officers for the year.—Bros. Griffiths Smith, I.P.M.; Spicer, S.W.; Webster, J.W.; Peter Matthews, P.M., Treas.; J. Egles, P.M., Sec.; Everingham, S.D.; Sanderson, J.D.; Stohwasser, I.G.; Jolliffe, D.C.; and T. Woodstock, Tyler. The W.M. at the conclusion of the ceremony placed a handsome P.M.'s jewel on the breast of Bro. Griffiths Smith, voted by the lodge in recognition of his services as W.M. for the past year. Three propositions for initiation and one proposition for joining were then presented, and the lodge was then closed. A nice banquet, accompanied by some choice wines from the cellar of the lodge, followed, and the toasts were afterwards proposed and drunk, interspersed, however, with solo and part songs by Bros. T. Baxter, Carter, Thornton, and Winn. After “The Health of the Queen and the Craft” had been duly honoured, the W.M., in proposing that of “The Grand Master,” referred to his journey to the East, where he was now assisting most materially in cementing that bond of union which ought to subsist between the natives and the whites. He was also doing more; he had attended lodges out there, and had helped by that means to make Masonry flourish in that distant part of our possessions. (Hear hear.) Bro. James Mason, P.G.S.B., responded for “The Pro G.M., the D.G.M., &c.,” and adverted to the very satisfactory manner in which Bros. Matthews and Egles had performed the ceremony of installation, who were intensely gratified with it, as well as with the initiations by the I.P.M., Bro. Griffiths Smith. He concluded by wishing the lodge as a regimental lodge, peace, plenty, and unanimity. Bro. Griffiths Smith proposed the “The Health of the W.M.” He was but speaking the truth when he said that Bro. Graves was one of the best men the brethren had had in the lodge for some time. He was a most worthy man, irrespective of being a Mason. He had been in the lodge longer than he (Bro. G. Smith) had. He had done his duty not only in the Artillery Company but in the lodge. He had worked his way through all the offices of the lodge, and when he came to perform the ceremonies of initiation, passing, and raising at next meeting the opinion they had been able to form of him from what he had done that evening would be confirmed. He (Bro. Griffiths Smith) would conclude by wishing him good health, and that the lodge might prosper under his care. (Cheers.) Bro. F. Graves, W.M., in acknowledging the toast, said it had been his ambition for a long time past to become Master of the Fitz-Roy Lodge, and having attained the summit of his ambition he should use his best endeavours to uphold the honour of the lodge in every respect during his year of office. (Cheers.) After this he proposed “The Initiates,” of whom there were eight, and Bros. Parker and McKenzie replied. The toast of “The Visitors” followed, and the W.M. remarked that there were forty-one present, a thing very rarely found in a lodge. He selected Bro. Loftus, P.P.G.J.W. Norfolk, P.M. 1193, to respond. It would be remembered that a year or two ago a detachment of the Hon. Artillery Company marched into Norfolk. On its reaching there Bro. Loftus entertained not only those of them who were Masons, but every member of the detachment, in the most hospitable manner. Consequently, he thought he was a fit brother to respond to the toast. (Applause.) Bro. Loftus, who was received with the greatest enthusiasm, in reply, said that this was the first Masonic lodge he had ever been present at in London, and he had come there with no idea that he would be called upon to respond to a toast, and especially he thought he should have been free from doing so when there were so many distinguished Masons who were visitors as well as himself. Still, he was old enough in Masonry to know that his duty towards the chair was to obey the W.M., and as he had been selected he would respond. As the W.M. had referred to the Hon. Artillery Company's march into Norfolk he might be excused for mentioning that he (Bro. Loftus) was at the time Grand Junior Warden of that province, and when he was told that so distinguished a corps, which included many distinguished Masons, were coming, he thought he would not be doing his duty as Provincial Junior Warden if he did not entertain them. He had looked forward to his visit to London with very great pleasure for many a day, but though he had been there three months he had not until that evening entered a Masonic Lodge, it being his sincere wish that he should visit the Fitz-Roy before any other. He would like to inform the brethren present that for what he did as Master of his lodge, and humbly representing the province of Norfolk, the Fitz-Roy Lodge presented the Doric with a handsome silver snuff-box, which was now in the lodge, and which was held up before the brethren every evening they met, and they were very proud of it. It was one of the most pleasing reflections he had in his Masonic life that he had been able to give a proof that he knew how to perform his duty, and he could assure the Hon. Artillery Company if they marched into Norfolk again they would be received with the same Masonic feeling as they were before. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Griffiths Smith," who, having gone now into the ranks of the P.M.'s of the lodge, would be found equally ready with the other P.M.'s to come to the assistance of the W.M. when he required help in the performance of any of the ceremonies. Bro. Griffiths Smith in reply said that along with the other P.M.'s of the Fitz-Roy Lodge he had always tried to promote its good. He had to thank the brethren for the assistance they had rendered him. Apart altogether from the lodge toast, he had to inform the brethren of a subject which they would like to hear. During the last month he was Master it was proposed that the ball should be given under the patronage of the Fitz-Roy Lodge; and he wished that the brethren should send in their applications for tickets at once; as the number was limited. The ball would be a private ball, but yet it would be under the patronage of the Fitz-Roy Lodge. W.M. proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary," both of whom had held these offices for many years. They had been annually chosen all that time, and that would not have been the case if they had not fulfilled their duties in a most able manner. Bro. Peter Matthews and Bro. Joseph Egles responded. The former said he had been 40 years in Masonry and had at all times felt great pleasure in it. The Fitz-Roy Lodge was now in its 27th year. It was prosperous and had fulfilled the expectations of those who started it. He then gave a history of its origin and progress. They had £135 in their Treasurer's hands besides a good stock of wine in the cellar, which they were very glad to dispense among visitors as well as themselves. As a proof of the prosperity of the lodge, 78 brethren had sat down to banquet that evening, and 27 P.M.'s were at the installation. There must be some good in Masonry for such a result. But in all they did at their lodge they never forgot the charities. In 27 years the lodge had collected about £1000 for these institutions, which last year received from the whole Masonic body more than £30,000. He concluded by begging of the brethren never to forget the boys and girls, the old men and the old women. Bro. Egles in his reply made special reference to the initiates, who he hoped would see in Masonry something which taught them to work harmoniously and with a friendly feeling together. Let them carry those feelings outside the lodge. All could do something in their time to produce kind feelings, and they might gather from Masonry much that was good. What Masonry was in years gone by it was to the present time. It reminded him of a few lines he had committed to memory about a lamplighter:

From lamp to lamp he hurries on Till he has lighted every one;
Behind he leaves a track of light;
In front, the shades of coming night;
The wayworn traveller hails from far
The kindling of each earthborn star.
Let us then, like the lamplighter,
Illuminate our little sphere,
To cheer where all is dark and dreary
To lend aid to careworn and weary,
That they who travel bear in mind
We leave a track of light behind.

The brethren shortly afterwards separated.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).—On Thursday, 26th ult., the installation meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. James Forbes, W.M., presiding. There was a large gathering of brethren on the occasion, and among the visitors present we observed Bros. Parsons, 180; Mackull, 134; Kingston, 862; Bartlett, 186; Pulling, 144; Busbridge, 1063; Koester, 438; Cutmore, Whewell, Foster, Trimsell, 1425; Arkell, 172; Dyer, 22; Standage, 241; J. Wright, 1158; Friswell, 1348; Turner, 157; and Edmund C. Massey ("Freemason"). The following gentlemen were ballotted for and initiated:—Mr. Richard Cane, Mr. John Jackson, and Mr. Charles Kempton, after which Bro. E. Lancaster, J.W., was presented to the W.M. for installation, and having been obligated in the customary form was presented to a Board of Installed Masters and inducted into the chair of K.S. The whole of the ceremonies were performed and the charges delivered by the W.M., Bro. Forbes, in a very able manner, although he was suffering much from a very severe cold. At the conclusion of the ceremony the W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Christie, S.W.; Jupe, J.W.; Webb, Treas.; Staton, P.M., Sec.; West, S.D.; Robinson, J.D.; Arkell, I.G.; Scherle, D.C. The lodge having been closed in perfect harmony, the brethren adjourned to a very elegant banquet at Freemasons' Tavern. When the cloth had been removed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the Worshipful Master, who, in proposing "The Health of the Prince of Wales," observed that by the journey he had undertaken to a far distant country he was doing more good than if he had remained in England, for by that visit he was bringing the two countries into closer union—that by making himself at home in India he was bringing India to the side of England and cementing it to the old country. He thought they had every reason to be proud of their M.W.G.M., and did not doubt that his visit to India would have a very beneficial effect upon Freemasonry in that distant province; what a pleasure too it must be to those brethren in the East, who otherwise in many cases would have no chance of seeing the head of the Craft. In proposing "The Health of the Deputy G.M., the Earl Skelmersdale," the W.M. coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Busbridge, 1063, who, on rising to respond, said that he did not know why the W.M. had associated his name with the toast of the Deputy G.M. of England, except that he was an underling Grand Officer. He had been Master of his lodge, and he might have had some influence in quarters where his opinions had not been unappreciated, but certainly he was not prepared that night to answer for the Deputy Grand Master of England. As, however, he had been called upon, and as all must bow to the wishes of the W.M., he trusted to the indulgence of his audience to help him over the difficulty of his position; if he should say anything he ought not to say, that they would forgive him; if he should omit something that he ought to say, that they would bear with him and accept the will for the deed. Freemasonry had among the principles of its existence the affording relief and assistance to those who needed them, and these principles affected Masons in their work in the Craft, as well as the affording relief and assistance to the needy in another sense. Thus the Deputy Grand Master's functions were to assist and act for the M.W.G.M. when that distinguished personage was unable by reason of those public and private calls upon his time to perform his Masonic duties in person. These duties the Deputy Grand Master performed with skill and ability. He was deservedly popular in the Craft, and he (Bro. Busbridge) felt it a great honour to be called upon to respond to the toast which had been so cordially proposed by the W.M. that evening. He tendered them his best thanks on behalf of the Deputy Grand Master, and trusted that he might at the same time be allowed to add his acknowledgments for the kindness with which he personally had been received on this occasion. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Three Initiates, Bros. Richard Cane, John Jackson, and Charles Kempton." It was always a pleasure to see a fresh stone added to the Temple of Freemasonry, and it was the duty as well as the interest of all to collect the materials, when they found them worthy, from far and wide. He had not himself as yet had the satisfaction of employing his working tools in laying any of these three stones, but he trusted that during his year of office he should have the pleasure not only of passing and raising them to their proper places, but also of adding many similar stones to the structure of the Great Northern Lodge, of which it was his happiness now to be the head. The three candidates, in replying, expressed themselves highly gratified with what they had that day seen of Freemasonry, and trusted that they would live to become worthy members of the Craft. Bro. Forbes, I.P.M.: Brethren, I have now a very pleasant duty to perform, but it is also a very important one. It is to propose the health of our W.M., but before calling upon you to drink it I wish to say a word or two. Brethren, you may congratulate yourselves on the choice you have made in selecting Bro. Lancaster to be your W.M. In the first place he is a true Englishman, faithful and just in the discharge of duties; secondly, he is an excellent Mason, whose working is as perfect as working possibly can be; and thirdly, he has risen to his present position from being an initiate in this lodge, and I am sure that you could not have chosen any one who could better discharge the duties of his high office either in the lodge or at the banquet table. I propose his health, wishing him all the success that you wished me a year ago. Bro. Lancaster, W.M.: I return you my most heartfelt thanks for the kind and cordial manner in which this toast has been proposed and received by you. It is a source of satisfaction to me that I am the first lay brother who has become Master of this lodge, and I beg to assure you that I shall use my best endeavours to carry on the work of the lodge as my predecessors have done before me, and with the able assistance of your Immediate Past Master, I have no doubt that I shall be able to do so. I have now to propose "The Health of the P.M.'s of this Lodge." You all know the debt of gratitude we owe them, and their willingness at all times to render aid in working the lodge, and their desire to raise the Great Northern Lodge to a high pitch of excellence. I, therefore, have much pleasure in proposing their health, and while doing so I have the very pleasing duty to perform of presenting your I.P.M., Bro. Forbes, with a P.M. jewel. It affords me great pleasure to place this on his breast, as the gift of the brethren of the Great Northern Lodge, as a mark of their appreciation of his services as Master of the lodge. Bro. Forbes thanked the brethren for their beautiful gift, and assured them he should always treasure it. He should always be ready to aid the Master with counsel and assistance, as others had assisted him during his term of office. The other P.M.'s having responded, the toasts of "The Visitors and Officers" were proposed and duly honoured. In the course of the evening some very good songs were sung, which our readers will readily understand when we say that Bro. Mackney was one of the brethren present.

IVY LODGE (No. 1447).—The January meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 18th ult., at the Windsor Castle Hotel, Southwark. The lodge was opened by the W.M. (Bro. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to raise Bro. Matthews to the degree of a M.M., and afterwards passed Bro. Chambers to the Degree of a F.C. Mr. Wadkinson was initiated. This being the night for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, the choice of the brethren fell upon Bro. Cantell, the S.W., who will be regularly installed into the chair of K.S. at the next meeting in March. A Past Master's jewel was then voted to Bro. Mattock, the outgoing W.M., who was also unanimously elected to the office of Treasurer to the lodge for the ensuing year. Bro. Fox, P.M. 73, the first and much respected Tyler of the lodge, was, without a single dissent, unanimously re-elected Tyler. Bros. Banquet followed, and in the course of the speeches which were afterwards delivered Bros. Willing and Middlemas gave very interesting and valuable advice to the younger brethren, impressing upon them the necessity of making themselves acquainted with the ceremonies and teachings of the Craft by diligent attendance at lodges of instruction. There was some very pleasant music and singing during the evening.

Bailey and Moon were then raised to the Degree of Master Mason, and Bro. Smyth p.a.s.d. The next proceeding was that of installing Bro. Thos. The lodge being opened in the First Degree, Mr. E. Dignam was initiated. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet, the serving of which reflected great credit upon the caterer, Bro. T. H. Prestage. Banquet over, the usual toasts followed, among them being "The Queen and the Craft;" "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.;" the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy G.M.; and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," each toast being given by the W.M. with the usual complimentary observations, the brethren receiving them in the customary manner. The next toast the W.M. proposed was that of "The Installing Master, the I.P.M., Bro. W. H. Lee," and in the course of his remarks he alluded to the very satisfactory manner in which Bro. Lee had discharged the duties of W.M. during his year of office, and that if he (Bro. Chapman) could do likewise, he would, at the expiration of his term, retire from the chair, which he had the honour of filling, perfectly satisfied. He then presented Bro. Lee with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, manufactured by Bro. George Kenning, which was much admired for its design and workmanship. Bro. Lee was also presented with a gold watch subscribed for by the members of the lodge and presented to him as a token of the great esteem in which he is held. The I.P.M. replied in a very feeling manner. The W.M. then proposed "The Initiate." "The Visitors" toast was then given, the W.M. expressing in very happy terms, the great pleasure he experienced in seeing so many present. This toast was acknowledged by Bros. Smeed and Copestick. The next toast on the list was that of "The Masonic Charities," on behalf of which Bro. Lee, I.P.M., and Steward for this lodge for the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, made a most feeling reply, urging upon the brethren to support the charities to their utmost. We believe a favourable result followed Bro. Lee's appeal. The several toasts were given by Bro. Chapman with excellent point and brevity. The Tyler's Toast brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Bro. W. Vaughan, the W.M. elect, was then presented by Bros. Shortis and Davison, P.M.'s of the Derby, to Bro. Ballard as the Installing Master. The work was excellently done by Bro. Ballard, whose maiden effort did him infinite credit, the addresses to the W.M., officers, and brethren being given in a way which must have impressed every one who was present. The following were the officers invested:—Bros. J. W. Ballard, I.P.M.; G. Beeken, S.W.; Asher Hart, J.W.; M. Chesworth, P.M., Treas. (eighth time); R. Crispe, Sec.; Maurice Hart, S.D.; H. DEPTFORD.—Royal Oak Lodge (No. 871).—At the White Swan Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford, on Thursday, the 27th ult., was held the regular meeting of this well-established lodge. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. S. A. Lewin (caused through urgent private business), Bro. George Andrews, P.M., took the chair. Bro. Alfred Rolington, 1326, was passed to the Second Degree. The bye-laws were revised. The by-laws were read; the elections were proceeded with. They were unanimous in favour of Bros. Henry James Tuson, S.W., as W.M.; William Andrews, P.M., re-elected Treasurer; and J. Bavin, P.M. 147, re-elected Tyler. The Auditors were elected. Three gentlemen were proposed for initiation. ST. DAY.—Lodge Tregulow (No. 1006).—The Festival of St. John the Evangelist took place on Tuesday, the 18th ult. The brethren met at the lodge-room at 2 p.m., when, after passing Bro. Edwards to the Second Degree, Bro. Theophilus Michell was installed as W.M. The ceremony was very impressively performed by Bro. George Michell, P.M. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Edmund Rogers, I.P.M.; F. Bartle, S.W.; J. H. Mayne, J.W.; Rev. J. Gillan, Chap.; G. Mitchell, Treas.; G. J. Gregor, Sec.; Joseph Pryor, Assist. Sec.; T. Provis, S.D.; George Bray, J.D.; Thomas R. Mills, I.G.; Piper and Dawe, Stewards; W. Pryor, D.C. The banquet took place in the evening at Bro. Bennett's Hotel.

LIVERPOOL.—The Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1035).—The members of this lodge met a few days ago at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, for the purpose of installing Bro. J. F. Newell, who had been re-elected W.M. for the ensuing year. There was a large assembly of brethren. Amongst others were Bros. M'Nab, P.M. 1035; George Morgan, P.M. 1035; J. Ellis, W.M. 1086; J. Lunt, P.M. 1086, P.E.D.C.; Ibbis, P.M. 594; M'Arthur, P.M. 1086; H. Wyatt, W.M. 1473; Hocken, P.M. 673, 1505; H. Ashmore, W.M. 1325; and Berry, S.W. 155. The I.M. was Bro. Fozzard, P.M. 1035. M'Wear, Sec.; R. R. Forshaw, A. Sec.; Donkin, S.D.; J. Wailes, J.D.; J. P. Bryan, S.S.; W. Forrester and R. Wilson, Stewards; and Fozzard, P.M., D.C. After the ceremony the brethren adjourned to the "Liverpool" dining-rooms, where a capital entertainment was provided by Bro. Ballard. After the dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed. Bro. Fozzard, in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," highly eulogised his policy during the past year, which had resulted in placing the lodge in such a prosperous condition, and expressed a hope that next year might see a still further progress under his rule. The W.M., in responding, said he had had but one aim, which he was determined to carry out in the face of all obstacles, and that was the welfare of the lodge. He referred to the former position of the lodge, some seven years ago, when it was among the foremost of the province, and hoped it would very shortly take the same position. After a most agreeable evening the brethren separated. The musical duties of the installation and banquet were efficiently performed by Bros. Bryan, C. E. Bryan, Queen, Rees, and Forrester.

HAMPTON COURT.—Burdett Lodge (No. 1293).—This lodge assembled in full strength at the celebrated Mitre Hotel, on Saturday, the 22nd January, it being the installation of the W.M. Bro. Keily, the outgoing Master, took the chair at three o'clock, and, being ably supported by the officers of the lodge, performed the ceremony of passing a brother to the Second Degree in a faultless manner. Bro. John Hervey, the G. Secretary, then assumed the chair for the purpose of installing the new Master, Bro. David W. Pearse, P.M. 657. Amongst the brethren were noticed the R.W. Bros. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M.; Raynham W. Stewart, P. Prov. D.G.M.; R. W. Little, Prov. G.S.W., Treas.; H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treas., Sec.; H. Phythian, Prov. G. Sec.; C. Coote, P. Prov. G.O.; Rev. The ceremony of installation was delivered by the Grand Secretary in a way so well known to those members of the Craft who have had the pleasure of witnessing the work of that V.W. brother. The W.M., Bro. Pearse, then appointed and invested the following brethren officers for the ensuing year, viz.: Bros. J. W. Berrie, S.W.; E. J. Southwell, J.W.; R. W. Little, Prov. G.S.W., Treas.; H. The W.M. then invested Bro. Keily, I.P.M., with a very elegant Past Master's jewel, voted to him by the lodge, and for which Bro. Keily expressed his acknowledgments in very graceful terms. The brethren then retired to an excellent banquet, provided by the host, Bro. Sadler, and after the cloth was cleared the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The visitors were Bros. O. H. Pearson, P. Prov. G.D. Middlesex; H. Braham, of 876; T. H. Edmonds, P.G. Steward 8; T. Allen, 65; J. Willcox, 975; J. Green, S.W. 27; Col. Peters, Prov. S.G.D. Middlesex; Major Shadwell Clarke, P. Prov. G.W. Devon; A. C. Lewis, 231; F. Binckes, Secretary Boys' School; A. McStellard Wix, 735, Nelson, N.Z.

FOREST HILL.—West Kent Lodge (No. 1297).—The members of this lodge met on Saturday at the Railway Hotel, Forest Hill. The lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. J. Allen, assisted by Bros. Stead, as S.W., and Crouch, as J.W., the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year was proceeded with. A ballot having been taken, the W.M. declared that Bro. Stead was elected as the incoming W.M. In him they would have a brother who would fill the chair with credit to the lodge and to himself. Bro. Stead, in thanking the brethren for electing him, said he did not expect to fulfil the duties of Master so well as those who had preceded him, especially the present W.M., but he could promise them to do his best to be worthy of his predecessors. Previous to the ballot for Treasurer, Bro. Warren, P.M., who had held that office since the establishment of the West Kent Lodge, requested the brethren not to re-elect him, as he was unable to attend to the duties of the office any longer. Much regret was expressed at the decision of Bro. Warren, and Bro. Leonard, the Secretary, was elected as Treasurer. Bro. Beckett was re-elected unanimously as Tyler, and after some other business had been transacted the lodge closed in perfect harmony. The banquet which followed labour being concluded, the W.M. proposed the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," and in so doing said there was no doubt that Her Majesty had the welfare of the Craft at heart, and this was shown by the fact that most of her sons were Freemasons. The toast was drunk with Masonic honours. The W.M., in proposing the next toast, said the Prince of Wales was also the Prince of Masons. (Cheers.) That he was both no one would dispute, and in his visit to the East His Royal Highness had never neglected an opportunity to do honour to the Craft, or to promote its interests. (Cheers.) They all wished him a safe and happy return to this country, as they wished him long life and prosperity, whether as the Prince of Wales or the Prince of Masons. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. The W.M. said that it was essential for the well-being of the Craft that the Grand Officers should be worthy of their position, and he was sure they would echo his words when he said that the Earl of Carnarvon had given immense satisfaction as Pro Grand Master. (Cheers.) Lord Skelmersdale, the Deputy Grand Master, also had always shown a great desire to promote the interest of the Craft, and there was no question that its interests would be well maintained by those who now ruled in Grand Lodge during the absence of our Grand Master. (Cheers.) He gave, in all sincerity, "The Healths of the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the other members of Grand Lodge." The toast was received with due honours. Bro. Kindon, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." He had conducted the ceremonies of the lodge and presided over their banquets like a gentleman and a good Mason. The W.M., in reply, said he was very sensible of their kindness in looking over any shortcomings on his part, and he felt they had not been few. He had always striven to earn their approbation and to conduct the business of the lodge well. Those who had gone before him had shown excellent examples of what W. Masters ought to be, and he felt that he had been well repaid if he had fulfilled the duties of the chair to the satisfaction of his brethren. He had perhaps had fewer opportunities than most Freemasons of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the Craft. There were some positions in life which men were compelled to hold, as in his own case, in which there was very little chance of cultivating Masonry, and under these circumstances if he had succeeded in maintaining the reputation of the lodge he felt that he had been most fortunate. He returned them his heartfelt thanks for the way in which they had supported him during his term of office; he should always remember with pleasure his 12 months in the chair, and his wish was that the West Kent Lodge would always flourish. "The Health of the W.M. Elect" was then proposed by the W.M., and was replied to by Bro. Stead, S.W. The other customary toasts brought the proceedings of a very pleasant evening to a happy close.

J. Willing, I.P.M., presiding, supported by Bros. J. J. Michael, W.M. 1507, in the chair of the I.P.M.; T. Williams, S.W. 1507, and Sec. 177; and C. J. Scales, J.D. 1507, as the other principal officers. Among the members and visitors present were Bros. W.M. Stiles, D.C., and Assist. Sec. 1507, Hon. Sec.; H. Stiles, Odell, W. Reade, F. Sainsbury, Child, Gilbert, sen., Simonn, Swaagman, Side, J. W. Berrie, J.W. 1293 and 1185; Gomm, H. Scales, Rogers, Ormiston, Liddell, Shanklin, VanCamp, Fenner, Fisher, Davis, Verdon, Gardner, Gilbert, H. M. Levy, Lewis, and E. C. Massey ("Freemason"). The banquet was prepared at the rooms of the Metropolitan Club, and reflected great credit on the chef, being of excellent quality, and admirably served. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. Willing rose and said that the first toast he had to propose was certainly of a routine character, but when a young lodge met at its first anniversary banquet it behoved them to show that they were not behind other lodges in that quality upon which all good Masons prided themselves, namely, loyalty; he had therefore the pleasant duty of proposing the first Masonic toast, "The Queen and the Craft," and he trusted that the brethren present would show by their reception of it what true and loyal Masons they were. In proposing "The Health of the M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales," Bro. Willing referred to his visit to India, and the interest which all of us take in watching his progress, and he remarked that it was extremely gratifying to feel that the Prince could take that long journey with perfect confidence in the love and loyalty of the people in this country, to whose care and protection he left those nearest and dearest to him. The other Masonic toasts having been duly proposed, Bro. J. J. Michael said that the W.M. had intrusted him with the gavel for a few minutes. He stood in the position that night of acting P.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, and he was very sorry to say the absence of their esteemed P.M., Bro. Adams, P.G.P., was due to domestic affliction. He knew how highly they all esteemed their instructor, Bro. Adams, and he was sure that all would sympathise with him upon the cause of his absence. He had now to propose "The Health of Bro. Willing, the Founder of their Mother Lodge," and he might likewise say the founder of this lodge of instruction. They had often heard him express his admiration of Bro. Willing's work; indeed, he might say that he did not think there was one thing in Craft Masonry that Bro. Willing could not do; and he was sure that there was nothing he could do for the benefit or comfort of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction which he was not willing to do. In fact, he was a very willing fellow altogether, and his ability as a Mason was equal to his good qualities as a man. After thanking Bro. Michael for the kind manner in which he had proposed his health, Bro. Willing proceeded to propose the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction," in doing which he said that he was very much pleased to be able at the end of their first year to be able to look with satisfaction at the results they had achieved. This lodge of instruction was held at the rooms of the Metropolitan Club in place of being held at a tavern. To become a member of the lodge it was necessary to become a member of the club. They had an able Club Committee and they were made very comfortable. He thought that the lodge of instruction had done very good work. They were sure to learn good working from their esteemed Preceptor, Bro. Adams; when they went into other lodges of instruction, and it happened that their working differed at all from the working prevailing there they had only to defend their mode by saying that that was Bro. Adams' method to be at once acknowledged correct. Bro. Adams was sure was the very best of instructors, always eager to impart knowledge, not for the purpose of airing his own acquirements, but for the most benevolent wish to make others as good workers as himself. And when he had to correct an error it was always done in so kind and courteous a manner as to make it a pleasure to receive his corrections. He was sure that they were very fortunate in possessing such an instructor. He knew that they had been spoken of out of the lodge as having made great progress in this their first year. They were under a certain obligation to the mother lodge for the privilege of working under its charter, but he thought that the parent was still more indebted to them, in the advantage that the members of that lodge had derived from the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Willing concluded by drinking "Prosperity to the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction," coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Stiles, their Honorary Secretary, who, in replying, confirmed the remarks made by Bro. Willing as to the acknowledgment in other lodges of instruction of the superior working of their instructor, Bro. Adams. The W.M. then proposed "The Parent Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. Michael, who, in replying, said that were he a good public speaker the subject Bro. Willing had furnished him with would last him till midnight. He could descant on the solemnity of Freemasonry, also of the cheerfulness and hilarity to be observed among its members; further, of the peculiar feeling which (speaking for himself) there was of their being something beyond us, something unattainable in Freemasonry. We were always learning but never altogether perfect. But passing by such questions as these he would confine himself to the toast that had been proposed "The Metropolitan Lodge." That lodge was undoubtedly a great success. During Bro. Willing's term of office he believed more candidates and joining members were added to them than perhaps had ever fallen to the lot of a W.M. They had had as many initiates night after night as the Book of Constitutions would allow—namely, five—and they had been obliged to call five lodges of emergency in consequence of the influx of initiates. And they had six ordinary meetings. He added that there was never before known such a thing in the annals of Freemasonry. He believed that Freemasonry was growing so fast that the world has come in upon us. He had succeeded to the W.M.'s chair, and had himself held one lodge of emergency, and they had now seven candidates waiting initiation. He thought no lodge could very well be in a more flourishing condition. There was, too, a great desire among them to carry out the tenets of Freemasonry, a marvellous desire to make themselves good, efficient working Masons, and in this direction the Metropolitan Lodge had been a valuable adjunct to the parent lodge. He was himself largely indebted to the lodge of instruction, if not for his position in the mother lodge, still for that fluency with which he was at all times able to work the ceremonies, and he felt it his duty on this its first anniversary to tender it his meed of praise. He concluded by thanking the brethren for their cordiality in receiving the toast of the mother lodge. "The Health of the Officers" was then proposed, and responded to by the Secretary and Senior and Junior Wardens. Before proposing the Tyler's toast the W.M. gave "The Health of the Lay Members of the Lodge," for the purpose of affording an opportunity to some of them of addressing the chair, which was responded to by several of the members present. The musical efforts of various brethren, who sang in the intervals between the speeches, were very successful, and rendered the occasion of the first anniversary banquet of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction a very pleasant evening.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—A meeting of this chapter was held on the 17th ult., at Anderson's Hotel. Present: Comps. Bolton, M.E.Z.; Hayward, H. Cottebrune, acting J.; Foulger, I.P.Z.; Buss, P.Z., Treas.; Payne, P.Z.; Sutton, P.Z.; Cubitt, P.Z.; Coutts, P.Z.; Hill, P.S.; Palmer, S.E.; Treadwell, A.S.; and others. The visitors were Comps. Walls, 185; Kent 192. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed the election of office-bearers then took place as follows:—Comps. Hayward, M.E.Z.; Scott, H.; Weaver, J.; Palmer, S.E.; Hill, S.N.; Treadwell, P.S.; Buss, P.Z., Treas. A vote of £5 was given to Comp. Foxcroft, who has kindly accepted the position of Steward to the festival of Aged Freemasons. A Past Principal's jewel having been unanimously voted to Comp. Bolton, the chapter was closed in ancient form, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual toasts were given by the M.E. slightly prefaced by a few well-chosen remarks. "The Health of the M.E.Z." was proposed by Comp. Buss, P.Z., who spoke of his (Comp. Bolton's) long connection with the lodge, and hope that he would be many years spared to wear the P.Z. jewel which had that evening been so justly voted to him. The M.E., in reply, thanked the Treasurer and the chapter for the very kind and hearty manner in which his health had been proposed and drank, and expressed how sorry he felt that certain untoward circumstances had prevented him from paying that attention to the chapter which the duties of his position as First Principal had demanded, but he hoped in future, in the character of a P.Z. of the chapter to be regularly present at their convocations, in order to render any assistance that might be required. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors" the M.E.Z. expressed his regret that they had not had an opportunity of witnessing any working that evening, but hoped that this visit had been in every way pleasing to them. This toast having been duly honoured, Comp. Walls, on behalf of Comp. Kent and himself, stated that although they had not had on this occasion an opportunity of participating in an exaltation yet he wished to assure his co-visitor and the chapter that on his last visit to the "Domatic" he witnessed the impressive ceremonial of exaltation, most ably carried out by two distinguished P.Z.'s of the chapter, viz., Comps. Adams and Cottebrune, who were most ably supported by the rest of the officers, and he felt confident if the younger members would only follow the guidance and accept the instructions of the many excellent P.Z.'s of the chapter, that the Domatic would continue to be what it has been for years past, one of the best working chapters in the City of London. "The Health of the M.E.Z. elect, and Comp. Scott, H.," was then proposed and drank, and responded to by Comps. Hayward and Cottebrune in the absence of Comp. Scott. "The Health of the P.Z.'s of the Chapter" was then proposed and ably responded to by Comps. Buss, Cottebrune and others. Some vocal effusions by Comps. Palmer, Foxcroft, Webb, and Wall then followed, and the M.E.Z. gave "The Health of the Officers of the Chapter," enumerating them by name. Comps. Palmer, Hill, Treadwell, and Buss replied. The former stated that with the assistance and instruction by Comp. Buss, their worthy Treasurer he had been enabled to discharge the duties of S.E. for five years, and by their favour and support he would continue to do so until the time should arrive when the companions might be in a position to honour him by promoting him to higher office, should they think that his conduct and services as S.E. deserved such a recognition. Previous to the departure of the companions, P.Z.'s Little and C. Horsley came, and were warmly received. The Janitor's toast terminated the proceedings. The installation of Comp. Hayward will take place on the fourth Thursday in March.

WINDSOR CASTLE CHAPTER (No. 771).

—The usual quarterly meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Windsor, on the 20th ult. Present: Comps. Hodges, Z.; Tolley, H.; Grisebrook, J.; Dixon, Scribe E.; Powell, Scribe N.; Flick, P.S.; Devereux, P.Z.; James Stevens, P.Z.; Reid Collins, Roberts, L. W. Carter, Goodwin, J. O. Carter, and others. After the M.E.Z. had opened the chapter, Comp. Stevens exalted Bro. W. R. Denne, W.M. of No. 209, into R.A.M., in his well known efficient and effective manner. Comp. Bryett, J. of 834 Chapter, was admitted as a joining member. A presentation of an interesting nature here took place. It was resolved at the last regular meeting in October to present Comp. James Stevens with a suitable token of the appreciation of the members of the chapter, for the admirable manner in which he has presided over them for the three years ending in October last. The actual presentation was made by Comp. Devereux, who said it was his pleasing duty to present to Comp. Stevens on behalf of the chapter a silver salver, and expressed his admiration of the manner in which the affairs of the chapter had been conducted under Comp. Stevens' long reign. He knew sometimes it was under considerable inconveniences that he attended. He also expressed the pleasure it afforded him to find the presentation was not of the ordinary kind, but something which he knew would be appreciated by Comp. Stevens's wife and family, not only at the present time but also in years to come, he concluded by gracefully wishing not only Comp. Stevens, but also his wife and family, every possible happiness and prosperity, a sentiment he knew would be endorsed by every member of the Windsor Castle Chapter.

Comp. Stevens, in reply, said the handsome present was of greater value than he knew his services had been to the chapter. He had always been pleased and proud to attend the meetings since he first joined. He greatly admired the propriety of departing from the usual rule instead of adding another to his numerous decorations. This was a present he should value indeed, as it was something of domestic utility, and would, he was sure, be highly appreciated by his wife and family. He thanked the companions for their kind expressions towards his wife and children. The salver, which is both costly and handsome, bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Comp. James Stevens, P.Z., by the Windsor Castle Chapter, No. 771, in recognition of past and invaluable services to the chapter, and in remembrance of the three successive years he so kindly and ably filled the F.P. chair as M.E.Z."

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Chapter (No. 1094).—The annual meeting of the members of this chapter for the installation of Principals and the transaction of other business was held on Tuesday, the 23rd ult., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool. Comp. W. Shortis, M.E.Z., opened the chapter, supported by Comps. J. Pemberton, P.Z.; Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.Z.; J. B. Robinson, P.M.; R. R. Martin, H.; P. Macmurdow, J.; R. Collings, S.E.; R. C. Yelland, S.N.; R. Washington, P.S.; J. W. Burgess, A.S.; D. Davies, A.S.; R. Ball, Jan.; H. P. Price, H. Dutton, F. J. Jeffrey, J. K. Cave, E. Hughes, J. Hayes, and T. Gray. The visitors were Comps. H. Ashmore, 823; and S. Haynes, P.Z. 823. The minutes having been read and confirmed, and an exaltation having been made, Comp. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.Z., proceeded to instal Comp. R. R. Martin in the chair of M.E.Z., a ceremony which he performed with rare efficiency. Comp. J. B. Robinson, P.Z., also installed Comp. P. Macmurdow as H., and Comp. R. Washington as J., and the other offices were filled as follows:—Comps. J. Pemberton, P.Z., Treas.; R. Collings, S.E.; J. Hayes, S.N.; and R. C. Yelland, P.S. Comp. Pemberton, P.Z., in name of the members of the chapter, presented a very chaste and beautiful P.Z.'s jewel to Comp. W. Shortis, I.P.Z., in a highly complimentary speech, in which he referred to the excellent work he had done in connection with the Temple Chapter. The jewel was supplied by Comp. G. Kenning, and was very generally admired. Comp. Shortis, in an appropriate and eloquent speech, thanked the members for their kindness. After the transaction of some further business, including several propositions for exaltation, the chapter was closed in due form, and the companions afterwards adjourned to banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the companions separated at an early hour.

LEICESTER.—Fowke Lodge (No. 19).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, January 27th. Amongst those present were R.W. Bros. W. Kelly, P.G.M.M.; G. Toller, jun., W.M.; J. M. M'Allister, I.P.M.; A. M. Duff, and S. S. Partridge, P.M.'s; C. Stretton, S.W.; W. Sculthorpe, J.W.; W. T. Rowlett, S.O.; G. W. Statham, Sec.; J. H. Garnar, Treas.; T. A. Wykes, Reg.; J. Young, J.D.; Robert, Biggs, Taylor, Dr. Meadows, Knight, Odell, Rushin, and others. Apologies for absence were received from most of the officers not present. After the confirmation of the minutes of the preceding meeting, the P.G.M. read the reply of the Grand Secretary to the invitation given by this province to the Grand Lodge to hold their next moveable meeting at Leicester in the autumn, from which it appeared that although the Grand Master could not definitely accept the invitation so long before hand, yet it is probable that he will ultimately do so. Bros. C. G. Woodcock, 1560, P.G. Reg., and F. L. Rolleston, J.D., 1560, being in attendance, were then advanced in due form to the Degree of Mark Mason, and ultimately to Mark Master. The ceremony was performed by the W.M., assisted by the P.G.M. and Bro. Partridge, P.M.; Bro. Duff, P.M., acting as M.O. This being the night for election of W.M., the ballot was taken, and Bro. C. Stretton, S.W., was found to be chosen to the post. In a few well-chosen words he thanked the lodge for the honour conferred on him. Bro. Garnar having resigned his office of Treasurer, Bro. Odell was unanimously elected in his stead. A joining member having been proposed the lodge was closed in due form. The Mark Degree having proved very successful in Leicester, it is not impossible that Grand Lodge at its forthcoming visit may be called on to consecrate a new lodge.

THE LIVERPOOL MASONIC HALL COMMITTEE.—The annual meeting for the election of the committee for the management of the Liverpool Masonic Hall, Hope-street, was held on Friday evening, the 28th ult., when there was an exceedingly large gathering of brethren. Bros. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, Prov. G. Reg., was elected Chairman of the Hall Committee; T. Armstrong, Prov. G. Treas., the Vice-Chairman; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C., the Treas.; and J. T. Callow, W.M. 1505, P.M. 673; the Secretary, as Bro. D.W. Winstanley, P.M. 1094, again declined to stand for re-election.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The annual meeting of this P.G. lodge was held on Thursday evening, 27th ult., in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street. The R.W.P.G. Master, Bro. Walter Montgomery Neilson, of Queenhill, presided, supported on the dais by Bros. Henry Inglis, of Torsonce, P.S.G.M. Grand Lodge of Scotland, and P.G.M. of Peebles and Selkirkshire; John Baird, S.P.G.M., and various other office-bearers of the P.G. lodge; Bros. George McDonald, R.W.M. 73, acting P.G.S.W.; James Booth, R.W.M. 87, acting P.G. J.W. The P.G. Lodge having been opened, and minutes read and adopted, the Chairman said he thought they should take the opportunity of having amongst them that night one of the oldest and best Masons in Edinburgh, Bro. H. Inglis, of Torsonce, to get him to install their office-bearers. The proposal was received with much approval, and cheerfully agreed to by Bro. Inglis. The following were duly installed and invested with the badges of their respective offices by Bro. Inglis:—Bros. James Gillies, P.G. Treas.; George Thallon, P.G.S.D.; John Miller, P.G.J.D.; J. Ritchie, P.G. Architect; R. Robb, P.G. Marshal; A. Allison, P.G. Jeweller; A. Bain, P.G.B.B.; James Balfour, P.G. Dir. of Ceremonies; A. Arrick Smith, P.G. Sword Bearer; David Reid, P.G.I.G.; and George Sinclair, Treas., and Convenor of the P.G. Benevolent Fund. The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Inglis for his kind offices in connection with the ceremony of installation that evening, which was done with universal acclamation. Thereafter it was moved by Bro. John Baird, S.P.G.M., that a hearty vote of thanks be awarded to Bro. J. B. Walker, late P.G. Treasurer, for his services rendered to P.G. Lodge in connection with the high and responsible and elective office. Bro. Baird spoke at some length in regard to Bro. Walker's discharge of duties both onerous and delicate, and complimented him on the conciliatory spirit in which he had met all the difficulties attaching to his position. The motion was seconded by Bro. J. Gillies (Bro. Walker's successor). The P.G. Lodge unanimously, and in the heartiest manner, endorsed the motion. The following brethren were then appointed Auditors of P.G.L., viz.: Bros. William Bell, I.P.M. 34; J. Morgan, W.M. 219; and J. Monro, W.M. 360. It was agreed to, that the P.G. Lodge Committee should consist of the office-bearers, commissioned and elective, together with the W.M. of each lodge within the province; Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M. 34, to be Convenor. The meeting was well attended by members of the P.G. Lodge and others. It may be mentioned that Bro. H. Inglis intimated that he received an invitation from Bro. John Monro, W.M. 360, to visit the Lodge Commercial, which he had accepted, and would be glad to see as many of the Glasgow brethren on that occasion as could conveniently attend. This concluded the business before the meeting. The lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Mungo (No. 27).—A meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Thursday evening, 20th ult., Bro. Dugald Butler, W.M., in the chair, Bro. Dr. J. Melnes, S.W.; and Bro. George McComb, J.W. The meeting was well attended by the members, and a large number of visiting brethren were present. The W.M. was supported on the dais by Bros. A. McTaggart, D.M., P.G.S. of Glasgow Province; David Dick, S.M.; Alex. Bain, P.M. 103. There were also present Bros. E. Arthur, Mother Kilwinning; G. W. Wheeler, 73; Wm. Morrison, P.M. 215; Wm. Ferguson ("Freemason"); A. C. Todd, 149; W. B. Paterson, 360; Robert Burns Thomson, 153; and Wm. Alexander, 441; and others. The lodge having been opened and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, Bros. James Dickie, Wm. McIntyre, Moses McGregor, Joseph Thomson, John Goldfinch, and Robt. Hontley, were passed, and Bros. James Kidd, Robert Speirs, James Dickie, John Goldfinch, Robert Huntley, Joseph Thomson, Moses McGregor, and Thomas Bell, were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. Both degrees were most impressively rendered by Bro. Alexander Bain, P.M. 103. The W.M. then took occasion to propose Bro. Robert Burns Thomson, M.M. of Lodge No. 153, Royal Arch Pollockshaws, who is a grandson of Bro. Robert Burns, the immortal Scottish bard, for honorary affiliation, which was received with applause, and after being obligated by Bro. Bain, returned thanks for the high honour conferred upon him. The lodge thereafter adjourned to refreshment, when a pleasant hour was spent in harmony; the meeting being much enlivened by some excellent songs sung by Bro. Burns Thomson, the more so they bring his own composing. On the lodge being called to labour it was closed in due form.

PORT GLASGOW.—Lodge Doric Kilwinning (No. 68).—The 119th anniversary of this lodge was celebrated in the hall, Church-street, on the 25th ult., Bro. Forgie, W.M., presiding, supported by Bros. James Kelly, P.M., and Andrew Dick, P.M., and others, and surrounded by his office-bearers. The lodge having been opened, the brethren partook of an excellent repast, provided at the expense of one of the most enthusiastic Masons in our midst, Bro. J. Kelly, P.M., and which was heartily enjoyed. After disposing of the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, Bro. A. Dick gave "Success to the Doric Kilwinning," which was received with all the honours. As usual, the day being the anniversary of the birth of the immortal poet, Burns, Bro. Kelly referred in most appropriate terms to his worth as a brother Mason and as Scotland's greatest bard, concluding by giving "The Memory of Burns," which was drunk in solemn silence. The W.M., as is customary at the anniversary of the Doric, in highly eulogistic terms, presented the Past Masters and the Past Wardens with tastefully elaborated goblets, as a mark of the respect and esteem in which they are held by their brethren, and in testimony of the highly satisfactory manner in which they had performed their duties as office-bearers during the past year. Bro. D. Brown, P.S.W., in name of himself and others, returned thanks. He said he did not require such a memento to keep him in mind of the honour they had conferred on him in electing him to the office, and the kindness and indulgence he had experienced from the brethren during the time he filled it. His memory would not be good if he at any time forgot that he was Senior Warden of the Doric. He expected on this occasion to have bid the brethren "good bye," but as fate had destined otherwise, he would still have the privilege and pleasure of going in and out and fraternising among them. Like the "chap" that got soft in the head of the old oak tree, he might say of the Doric—

"In youth it sheltered me,
And I'll protect it now."

A number of other toasts were given.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Star (No. 219).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Monday evening, the 24th ult., in their hall, at 12, Tron-gate, Bro. John Morgan, W.M. in the chair, Bro. James Horn, S.W., and Bro. David Mearns, J.W. Present: Bros. Jasper Martin, D.M.; W. Anderson, S.M.; Francis Dow, Sec.; Benj. Smart, Treas.; John Brown, S.D.; David Taylor, J.D.; and Robert Watson, Chap.; Alexander Bain, P.M. 103; David Reid, I.P.M. 465; William Bell, I.P.M. 34; Wm. Bilsland, S.W. 408; W. Ferguson ("Freemason"); D. McIntyre, 34; W. Dick, 34; George Dunn, 5; James Robertson, 87; M. W. Kirk, 250; James Reid, 354; Robert Fraser, 473; and Malcolm Stark, 419; and others. The lodge being opened and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, five candidates were initiated into the E.A. Degree by Bro. Morgan, W.M., viz.: Thomas E. Beatty, James McCoy, Charles Groel, William McDonald, and Robert W. Sherlock. Bro. John Brand was elected I.G. (Bro. Elliot, jun., having resigned), and Bro. Jamieson Coutts was elected Org., and presided at the new harmonium just purchased by the office-bearers and members of the lodge. After making further arrangements for holding the annual festival, the lodge was transferred to refreshment. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily responded to. Bro. William Bell, I.P.M. 34, replied on behalf of the P.G.L. of Glasgow. Bro. Bain, P.M. 103, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and paid him a very high compliment for the efficient manner in which he performed the ceremony of the First Degree in the former part of the evening, and the able manner he conducts the business of the lodge at all times. Bro. Morgan replied. After spending a short time in harmony, the lodge was called to labour and closed in due form.

DUNOON.—Lodge Dunoon Argyll (No. 335).—The annual conversazione, musical promenade, and assembly of this lodge took place in the Burgh Hall, Dunoon, on the 28th ult. The hall was beautifully decorated with evergreens, pot plants, and flowers, flags, &c. About 50 couples were present, including many of the elite of the town and neighbourhood. Bro. J. F. Muir, W.M., presided, and conducted the opening proceedings, assisted by Bros. J. Russell, S.W., and J. D. Smith, J.W. Deputations were present from the following lodges:—Greenock Kilwinning, No. 12; Port Glasgow Doric Kilwinning, No. 68; Greenock St. John, No. 175; and Rothesay St. John's, No. 292. In proposing a vote of thanks to the W.M. for the admirable manner in which he had conducted the opening proceedings, Bro. the Rev. J. Cameron made a brief but most excellent speech, in which he pointed out the principles on which Freemasonry was conducted, and expressed his belief that next to marriage the Masonic Order was the oldest institution in the world. While other orders had grown hoary with age, and many had died out altogether, Freemasonry was still in its youth, and he believed it would remain so for ages to come. Dancing was thereafter commenced, and was kept up with unabated vigour till an early hour in the morning. The refreshment department was presided over by Bro. A. Gunn, of the Argyll Hotel, in a manner which left nothing to be desired. Everything passed off most successfully, and altogether the gathering was one of the best that was ever held under the auspices of Lodge Dunoon Argyll.

RUTHERGLEN.—Lodge St. John's Operative (No. 347).—The regular monthly meeting of this flourishing lodge was held in St. John's Masonic Hall, Cathcart-street, Rutherglen, on Friday evening, 28th ult., Bro. David Smart, W.M., in the chair; Bro. John Murdoch, S.W.; Bro. Thos. Alston, J.W. The W.M. was supported by Bros. J. Cunningham, I.P.M.; Samuel Abbott, D.M.; Alex. Warnock, Sec.; William Gardner, Treas.; Wm. Young, S.D.; A. Robertson, J.D. There were also present Bros. John Hamilton, W.M. 116; John McInnes, S.W. 408; William Ferguson ("Freemason"); Thomas Dickson, 20; John W. McBrand, 21. On the lodge being opened the Secretary read minutes of last meetings, which were approved of. Messrs. George Allan, Hugh Morton, John Aitkenhead, William Miller, and Alex. Liddell were initiated by Bro. Smart, W.M. Two brethren were passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, and Bro. Samuel S. Armstrong and James Dempster were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason by Bro. Cunningham, I.P.M. After arranging to hold the annual festival on the 25th of February, the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Commercial (No. 360).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in their hall, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 21st ult., Bros. John Monro, W.M., in the chair; J. M. Olliver, S.W.; J. Graham, J.W.; D. Lamb, D.M.; William Finlay, S.M.; G. Scott, Treasurer; J. Smith, Secretary; William Keiller, S.D.; R. Brodie, D. of M.; and others. There was a large attendance of visitors and members of the lodge. Among the visitors were Bros.

James Booth, W.M. Lodge Thistle, No. 87; A. M. Wright, I.P.M. Lodge Union and Crown, No. 103; R. Monro, D.M. Lodge 103; David Murray, W.M. Lodge 103; W. Mc. G. Mason, W.M. 541. On the lodge being opened, the minutes were read and adopted. The business of the evening was the initiating of a candidate as an E.A. Freemason for Lodge Union and Crown, No. 103, and the raising of three brethren of Lodge Commercial to the Degree of M.M., the ceremony of initiation being performed by Bro. Olliver, S.W., and that of raising by Bro. Lamb, D.M.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Athole (No. 413).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 25th ult., in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Bro. James Louttit, W.M., presiding; Bros. Daniel Leeds, S.W.; Andrew Holms, J.W. The meeting was well attended by the members, and an unusual large number of visiting brethren present. Amongst those present we noticed Bros. W. Neilson, D.M.; J. Baikie, S.M.; R. Grahame, Sec.; G. Robertson, S.D.; Wm. Grindlay, J.W.; Wm. Bell, I.P.M. 34; J. Booth, W.M. 87; T. B. Bell, S.M. 34; Wm. Ferguson, I.P.M. 116; R. Jack, W.M. 128; J. Morgan, W.M. 219; Arch. McPhee, Sec. 87; Wm. Ferguson, I.P.M. 543 ("Freemason"); D. Hodge, 202; B. D. Scott, 335; Geo. Summers, 335; J. Colquhoun, 360; A. Graham, 360; J. Stewart, 360; G. McKenzie, 370; and others. The lodge was opened, and the minutes read and adopted. After disposing of business of minor importance, the lodge was called to harmony, and after spending a happy evening in song and sentiment, and honouring the usual loyal, Masonic, and patriotic toasts, the brethren separated after the Tyler's toast, happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again.

GOVAN.—Lodge Govandale (No. 437).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Portland Buildings, on Tuesday evening, 18th ult., Bros. John Miller, W.M., in the chair; Robert Muir, S.W.; and Alex. James, J.W. This being the night of installing the Master, and other office-bearers, a very large number of members and visiting brethren were present, viz., Bros. James Gillies, P.M. 103 (P.G.T. elect); Alexander Baird, P.M. 103; John Bain, D.M. No. 117; Wm. Borland, 117; Wm. Ferguson ("Freemason"); Wm. Urquhart, 190; Wm. Millar, 219; Robert Allan, 401; L. McDonald, 408; and Wm. H. Ross, 432; and others. The lodge having been opened, the Secretary, Bro. John Sutherland read minutes of last meeting, which were adopted. Messrs. Robert Webster, John Beaton, Wm. Currie, James Anderson, and John Robertson were initiated by Bro. J. Gillies, P.M. 103. The office-bearers, who were elected on the 21st December, were then installed into their respective places by Bro. Gillies, ably assisted by Bro. Bain, P.M. 103. Thereafter a Board of Installed Masters was formed in the adjoining hall, consisting of Bros. Gillies, Bain, and Ferguson, P.M. 543, and the installation ceremony conferred on Bro. Miller by Bro. Bain. On entering the lodge the brethren saluted the Master with the usual accustomed honours, and after a vote of thanks was passed to the three Past Masters for their kindness in being present from Glasgow, the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Dramatic (No. 571).—A meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Wednesday, 19th ult., at 3 p.m., Bro. W. J. E. Dobson, W.M., in the chair; Bros. H. W. Jackman, S.W.; and W. Sivewright, J.W. Present: Bros. W. Phillips, W.M. 556; J. Booth, W.M. 87; J. Fraser, P.M. 87; J. F. Mitchell, P.M. 102; O. McGregor, P.M. 156; W. Ferguson, P.M. 543 ("Freemason"); J. M. Oliver, S.W. 360; A. B. Ferguson, S.W. 354; and Henry Victor David, 392; and others. The lodge having been opened, Bros. Charles Paulo, Charles Green, and Donald Noble were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by Bro. Phillips, W.M. 556. The lodge was then closed.

NAIRN.—Lodge St. Ninian (No. 575).—The members of this lodge had a torchlight procession on Thursday evening, the 27th ult., which created a great deal of interest. The route of the procession through the town was illuminated with Bengal lights, which had a magnificent effect. The procession was led by the Nairn Volunteer Band. Amongst other lodges represented in deputies were Lodges Spey, 527, Kingussie; Operative, 152, Dunkeld; Trinity, 148, Elgin; St. Lawrence, 144, Forres; and St. Mary Caledonian Operative, 339, Inverness. A vast crowd assembled on the Links of Nairn to witness the march to the Marine Hotel, the bright light of the torches lighting up the street, and having a very picturesque effect. The brethren dined together in the evening in the Marine Hotel, and a presentation of jewels to the W.M., W. Bayne Pegler, on his departure for the South, took place. The lodge is only a few months in existence, it being the youngest lodge in Scotland, but it is a very strong body, and embraces many of the leading men of the town and county.

APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE, No. 357, OXFORD.

The attention of the Masonic world being now turned to this lodge, of which H.R.H. Prince Leopold is to be installed W.M. on the 22nd of February, it may be interesting to learn the amount of work done by the present W.M. during Michaelmas term. Two regular lodges were held, as usual, four lodges of emergency, and five lodges of instruction. Sixteen gentlemen were initiated, nineteen brethren passed to the Second Degree, and eighteen raised to the Third Degree. The Anniversary Festival will be held on the 22nd inst., and in consequence of the great demand for tickets for the dinner, it is absolutely necessary to apply as soon as possible to the Secretary, University Masonic Hall, Oxford.

All Communications, Advertisements, &c., intended for insertion in the Number of the following Saturday, must reach the Office not later than 12 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

We are requested to state, that by a regrettable error, H.R.H. Prince Leopold is described in the "Masonic Magazine" for February, Provincial Grand Warden instead of P.G.M. of Oxfordshire.

BRO. BURDETT YEOMAN.—We have decided upon to print no more poetry in the "Freemason," owing to press of matter, but will send it to the "Masonic Magazine" for March.

SUBSCRIBER.—Can a Past Master legitimately and correctly wear his Past Master's jewel presented to him by his lodge, suspended by a purple ribbon, instead of a light blue ribbon, he being a Provincial Grand Officer entitled to wear the purple clothing?—[In our opinion, no.]

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

Before we pass on and forget the striking incidents and geographical course of the Royal progress of the Prince of Wales, it is well, we think, to note that he paid a flying but successful visit to Chandernagore, a small French colony, not very far from Calcutta. "Vive le Prince des Galles" seems to have been as popular a cry amongst our Gallic friends as "God save the Prince of Wales" amid the European, Eurasian, and native population of Hindostan. The Prince has been, as we said before, to Lahore, and has also paid a visit to the Rajah of Cashmere, at Jummoo, by whom he was both hospitably and royally entertained. He passed through Sealkote and Wirgarabad. He visited the Rajah of Puttiala, and halted at Umritsur, where he witnessed the illumination of the Golden Temple. He reached Agra on the 25th, and, after much of State ceremony and a genial reception, went on the 28th for a day's shooting to Burhpore—a very successful expedition. He subsequently attended a great ball in the "Hall Achbar." His visit has greatly pleased the Chiefs of Rajpootana. Our W.G. Master has been to Gujior, and passed in review Scindiah's army, 8000 strong.

PROVINCE OF OXFORDSHIRE.

We understand that H.R.H. Prince Leopold will be installed Provincial Grand Master of this important province on Wednesday, the 23rd inst. The Curators of the Sheldonian Theatre, where the Commemoration of Founders and Benefactors is usually held, have allowed the brethren to use this building, which is as admirably adapted for the purpose as the Albert Hall was for the installation of the Grand Master. The Vice-Chancellor, who was Grand Warden of the Province in 1837, has allowed the adjacent buildings to be used as Robing Rooms. It is expected that the Pro Grand Master will be present if his ministerial duties permit, and the Deputy Grand Master and several officers of Grand Lodge have already signified their wish to attend. The doors will be opened at 12 o'clock, and closed at 1.30, and the ceremony will commence at 2 o'clock. The W.M. of the Apollo University Lodge has been requested to act the part which Sir Albert Woods took on the occasion of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The dinner will be held in the City Buildings, at 5 o'clock, in order to enable London brethren who must return the same evening to go back by the 9 o'clock train. All applications for tickets of admission to the ceremony should be addressed to the Secretary, Committee of Management, Masonic Hall, Alfred-street, Oxford.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL AND THE WEST YORKSHIRE COMMITTEE.

We have perused, with an astonishment and pain we can hardly describe, the published report of the West Yorkshire Committee of Enquiry, presented to the P.G. Lodge, and adopted by the same on the 26th, at Leeds. We feel bound to say at once what we believe will be also the opinion of all intelligent and impartial Freemasons, that a greater burlesque on every principle of Masonic fair play, equity, common sense, and justice, never was before exhibited in our good old Order. The Committee was practically nominated by the D.P.G.M., the vehement accuser of the School, the personal assailant of Bro. Binckes, he himself actually being a member of the Committee, and acting as censor, witness, and judge, all at the same time. We also deeply regret to have to add that this brother, who seems very fond of paper warfare, had, under the circumstances, the singular bad taste, to say nothing more, to print a private pamphlet, and term it The Report of the Committee, which contains some of the most astounding statements, incriminations, insinuations, and personal charges it has ever been our painful lot to peruse. We understand that this pamphlet has been withdrawn, but the mischief had been done, and the damning fact remains. In the report of the "Leeds Mercury" of the 17th, of the proceedings of the P.G. Lodge, and which we print in another column, the official report is based mainly on the evidence which Bro. Tew had previously presented, and which, under the circumstances, ought to have been received by the Committee with the greatest hesitation, as it is marked by a most personal and bitter feeling from first to last, and is full, as we, even in our cursory glance, can say, of childish and perverse misstatements, unfounded inferences, and unmasonic allegations. But the Committee has gravely accepted the evidence of one of their own body, without examining any brother who really could point out to them the gross fallacies involved in the arguments and assumptions of the D.P.G.M. for W. Yorkshire, especially as regards the statistics of other schools, which, originally furnished by Bro. C. Pegler, of Leeds, are, as have been already shown in the "Freemason," utterly deceptive as illustrations, and actually beside the question. We deeply deplore the fact that so distinguished a province as West Yorkshire has embarked in so mistaken a course. The Report of the Committee only shows how "facilis" still is the "descensus Avernii," and we hardly yet understand how the Committee can have made such a report on such prima facie unsatisfactory and untrustworthy evidence, coloured as it is by a "monomania" on the subject, and put together in utter forgetfulness of every attribute of fair play to others, whose good name and honourable dealings, whose actual prospects in life, are jeopardized by the evil impressions thus pertinaciously circulated. Indeed, legally speaking, as there can be no confidence in the question, and there is certainly, as has been held, no privilege under any circumstances in slander, it may be a grave question whether some of the statements publicly printed are not libellous and actionable. If the West Yorkshire Committee can for one moment suppose that a report based mainly on the personal feelings and theories of its D.P.G.M. can have any practical effect, it must be composed of a very sanguine body of men. For when it is known to the Craft at large that the report is mainly based on the D.P.G.M.'s evidence, which he had previously printed in a private pamphlet and termed it "The Report," many of the passages in the "Leeds Mercury" being verbatim identical with the pamphlet, which is said to be withdrawn, the D.P.G.M. assisting to draw up the report on his own evidence, it will appear to all almost too shocking to believe, and almost too ridiculous to narrate. Here we stop to-day, but it is quite clear that after the extraordinary report of the West Yorkshire Committee the matter cannot rest where it is, though, as we have before said, the report is in itself a nullity, and the action of the Province of West Yorkshire in the matter is in our humble opinion, utterly unconstitutional, unsound, and unmasonic from beginning to end. When we wrote these words we had not seen the official report. Now we have seen it, we beg to express our hope that the Committee will also publish the evidence on which they found their questionable statements, and ex parte views, views based apparently on no practical knowledge of the subject.

THE MANIFESTO OF THE MASONIC CONGRESS AT LAUSANNE.

Bro. Strauss, of Bradford, has called our attention to a translation which he has kindly made for us of the Manifesto of the Congress at Lausanne, and which appeared recently in the "Augsburger Allgemeine Zeitung," a well known paper in Germany. We thank him for it, and willingly reproduced it in our pages last week. We had seen it previously in French, but as there was nothing very novel in its statements, or special in its deliverance, being much pressed just now, we had put off its appearance to a more convenient season. At the time we expressed our general sympathy with the Congress on every principle of fraternal good feeling, though it was not a Masonic Congress proper, as we understand it, but a meeting of the Rite Ecossais, the A. and A. Rite practically. Both in its general propositions and formal utterances we heartily concur, though we confess that we do not quite understand how such cosmopolitan principles can be officially proclaimed by the High Grades which are limited in their symbolical teaching, just as Craft Masonry is universal. We could perfectly realize such a manifesto coming from a Grand Orient, or Grand Lodge, or Congress of Craft Masons, but we do not profess to be able to explain how it can truly represent the teaching of the "Rose Croix," for instance, or of the High Grades generally. We doubt very much whether it would be endorsed in this country, or the United States, or Canada—we mean by the A. and A. Rite. We quite enter into the true statement of what Freemasonry is, but we do not comprehend the proclamation of such principles by the "Rite Ecossais," as we just observed. And the truth is, there is no use shutting our eyes to the fact, such sentences, and such a manifesto, have a distinct meaning for us as Craft Masons, and all Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, which requires a little guarding and limitation. We accept, ex ungue cordi, all those leading principles, but we subjoin certain concurrent axioms, which are unknown or suppressed in much of foreign Freemasonry. We hold and proclaim a universal brotherhood (with two notable exceptions), inviolate liberty of conscience and worship, and free thought, and the avoidance of all religious and political discussions; but we base all our work and teaching on religion, and "notamment" on the authority of the Bible. It is this peculiar characteristic which gives its force and colouring to all Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry. Now some of our foreign brethren, in our humble opinion, have most unwisely let go this great landmark, this holy symbol, of Freemasonry, and the consequence is, that their words often sound as empty phrases, as unreal professions of Masonic faith. So the question naturally arises, on what do they found these very professions of brotherly love and Masonic duty? If not on a religious basis, on what? Is it a "morale indépendante?" is it "Positivism?" is it a mild Epicureanism? is it a benevolent Pantheism? Is it, in fact, on the absolute negation of the supernatural, or the denial of revelation?—on the rejection of the Word of God? Is it, in fact, based simply on humanitarianism? Now we must keep all this clearly before us, if we wish rightly to "envisager" the present condition of Masonic affairs, especially in some parts abroad. While we go with our brethren everywhere, who are honestly and temporarily striving to advance legally the principles of Freemasonry, we yet must bear in mind that in some countries the proceedings and addresses of some Freemasons have been most unwise and unmasonic, according to our view. While we reject the pretensions of the Church of Rome, while we deny its infallibility, and repudiate its right of interference, we yet think that Freemasons abroad have no claim to mix up social questions, such as that of education, with Freemasonry. As individuals and citizens they have clearly a right to do so, but not in the lodge. We have said all this, not with a wish to blame, but from a sincere regard to our Masonic brethren abroad. We believe in Freemasonry, and the older we grow the more we believe in it, despite earthly frailties and mortal shortcomings. We would say to them, one and all, phrases go for nothing, "acta non verba" are what we ask for, "the proof of the pudding is in the eating." And while we heartily go with the general propositions of the Congress at Lausanne we should feel more hopeful for the future if we could think that some bodies of foreign Freemasonry would revert to an older and better teaching, and take away a great stumbling block in the path of all Anglo-Saxon brethren and well wishers. At present, in our opinion, they are carrying on the contest on false principles of action and teaching, and we, in Great Britain and the United States, and Canada, can only look on as neutrals in the struggle, as while we are most anxious to assist our brethren everywhere, we should not be true to ourselves, or to our own great Order, if we did not express honestly our loyal opinion in the matter. We thank Bro. Strauss for his kind communication.

THE PROVINCE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

At a special meeting of this distinguished province, holden at Manchester on Tuesday, 18th January, the rules and regulations of the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution were finally approved of. The objects of the institution are the "education and advancement in life of children of indigent or deceased Freemasons of the Province of East Lancashire, and to afford relief or assistance where considered desirable in aid of Freemasons and their families in the said province, and generally to promote the cause of Masonic charity." We think the movement a very good one, and, knowing how zealous and energetic our brethren in East Lancashire are, we feel sure that it will eventually prove a success. Already £1000 have been raised, and there can be no doubt that the interests of Masonic charity will be greatly advanced if every province has a similar institution, not in opposition or rivalry to the great Metropolitan Institutions, but as preparatory to, and in addition to, their great and good work. We have long felt, that alike in our lodges and Provincial Grand Lodges, the work of charity must be more largely and systematically carried on. On one point we feel it, however, right to say a few words. We do not think that it is desirable on constitutional grounds, to mix up such movements too much with the work of Provincial Grand Lodge proper. We think it is quite right for Provincial Grand Lodge to appoint a certain number yearly of the council or committee to receive formally from time to time, notice of the proceedings, and if it grants a sum of money from its funds to lay down its own terms. But we confess we doubt the legality, on Masonic principles and precedent, of discussing in Provincial Grand Lodge, the general concerns of another body, even though it be Masonic. A Provincial Grand Lodge might say, as Grand Lodge has said to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, "I give you a certain sum of money out of my funds, and I claim the right in the interest of my subscribing members to keep a controlling power over your rules and regulations, to see practically that the amount I have voted, and will vote are properly expended." But there is a habit at our Provincial Lodges, when in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, to resolve themselves for the nonce into an Educational or Benevolent Masonic Society, to receive a report, or to appoint officers. Such a proceeding is in our humble opinion clearly illegal. We remember, years ago, being startled at finding a distinguished lodge we visited, had a custom once a year, in regular lodge meeting, to resolve itself into a general meeting of a benefit order attached to the lodge. We pointed out then to the proper authority the actual illegality of such a proceeding, and we believe our remonstrance had a good effect. We might just as well really and truly resolve ourselves into the Masonic Life Insurance Company, or, in fact, any other society. In the P.G. Lodge, as in private lodges, and as in Grand Lodge, nothing can properly be discussed or adjudicated on external to Freemasonry proper, and the object of the meeting itself. We, venture, therefore, to think that, subject to the limitations we have before pointed out, the P.G. Lodge of E. Lancashire will do well to be perfectly independent of this new and useful organization. We wish the new venture all success. We know some of its active promoters, we have worked with them in the cause of charity before, and hearty good fellows they are, and we feel sure that in all we say today, they will give us credit for being like themselves, only actuated by a desire to speed on the cause of Masonic benevolence, and to uphold the legal and constitutional principles of our great and valuable Order.

LODGE OF TRUTH, BOMBAY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

With reference to my letter in your issue of the 18th ult., regarding the irregularity which occurred in Lodge Truth, Bombay, during last year (my year of office as W.M.) of the Second and Third Degrees being conferred at one meeting on the same brother, I have to request that you will be so good as to republish in your columns the following extract from the "Masonic Record of Western India" for December, 1875, which has just come to hand.

I see, however, in the "Record" for October, 1875, at the meeting at which the irregularity in question was committed, the name of one well-known Past Master recorded as being present thereat, viz., Wor. Bro. H. W. Barrow, who had charge of Lodge Truth as W.M. and I.P.M. for the two years preceding my installation as W.M. Surely Wor. Bro. Rowe consulted Wor. Bro. Barrow before he took upon himself the responsibility he did. It should also be explained why Wor. Bro. Barrow did not preside as a P.M. of Lodge Truth in accordance with the Constitutions, instead of Wor. Bro. Rowe, who is not a P.M. of that lodge.

Yours fraternally, TUDOR TREVOR, I.P.M.

Lodge Truth, Bombay, No. 944, E.C., January 11th, 1876.

Extract from "Masonic Record" of Western India for December, 1875, page 324:—

THE RECENT IRREGULARITY IN LODGE "TRUTH."

We publish the following letter from W. Bro. W. C. Rowe, on the subject of the irregularity in Lodge Truth, in passing and raising a brother on the same evening. We admire the promptitude and candour with which Bro. Rowe has come forward to admit his mistake, and we feel sure all who peruse his letter will absolve him from blame, as he was so suddenly called upon to perform a duty for which he was so little prepared. The Senior Warden, who applied for the dispensation, should have consulted a Past Master before doing so; and as for the Deputy District Grand Master, he holds the same office under the Scotch Constitution, and did not consider it much harm, as candidates are frequently initiated, passed, and raised in one night under the Scottish Constitution.

We hope this will be a lesson for all concerned in the irregularity referred to.

"Parrell, 15th November, 1875.

"Dear Bro. Bease,—

"I noticed in the correspondence of the last number of your 'Record' the well-grounded objections to the proceedings of Lodge Truth in October last. In justice to myself as Presiding Officer, and for the information of your correspondent, I may state the circumstances below, under which the irregularities occurred:—

"The Master of the lodge being absent in England since March last, it has fallen to the lot of Past Masters of Truth to work the lodge, and on the evening in question it so happened that none of these worshipful brethren could be present, and on my arrival at the hall I received a note from the Senior Past Master requesting me to perform the work for him; it was rather late before the lodge was opened, and on hearing that a dispensation had been granted to the Senior Warden in charge for conferring the Second and Third Degrees on a brother, I confess it did not occur to me in the hurry of the moment that any irregularity had been or was to be committed, and the Second and Third Degrees were accordingly conferred.

"I may add that immediately on the error which had occurred being observed steps were taken at once to apply to the Most Worshipful the Grand Master for a special dispensation legalizing the passing and raising of the brethren who received these degrees in the one night.

"Yours faithfully and fraternally,

"W. C. ROWE,

Past Junior Warden of Lodge Truth, No. 944, and Wor. Master of Lodge Concord, No. 757."

THE LAST MEETING OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

What has been going on at the last Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire?

There are queer stories current in Leeds, of angry remonstrances and a Masonic scene, of a pamphlet suppressed, of a report presented, and a promise of withdrawal. In fact, as a worthy P.M. of one of the Leeds lodges said, it was all "Tew bad."

Can any one explain? Will any one speak the truth?

Yours fraternally, IGNOTUS.
Leeds, Jan. 27th, 1876.

PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Am I correct in supposing that a Past Master joining another lodge does not become a P.M. of that lodge, unless he actually pass the chair of the lodge?

Is there any difference in the case of a new lodge, when on the consecration a Past Master is appointed I.P.M. Does he become a P.M. of that lodge?

I should be much obliged if some one would answer the above, and quote an authority for his reply.

Yours fraternally, A PAST MASTER.

[1st question. Yes. He must pass through the chair, and question. No. He must pass through the chair.—Ed.]

BROS. TEW, PERROTT, AND BINCKES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I quite agree with Bro. Binckes in his view of the question, as the claim of West Yorkshire is an utterly impossible one to accede to, by all who care for our great charities, and the committee is an unconstitutional body, and its report must be a nullity. The committee contains some good names on it, but I am utterly astonished to find that Bro. Tew is a member of it, that he had the nomination of it, and that on his evidence the report is mainly based.

It seems that this zealous censor of his brethren previously published a report privately of the evidence given by himself at Pontefract in a pamphlet, and termed it "The Report," &c.

This, as it was understood at Leeds on the 26th, was suppressed or withdrawn.

Can this proof of absurdity or partizan feeling any further go?

It grieves me deeply as an old Freemason and a lover of FAIR PLAY.

THE ABBOT'S RIPTON RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me to say, in answer to numerous and repeated enquiries, both by letter and personal, that I am not the "Mr. Yeoman" who was in the smash up at Abbot's Ripton. So numerous are the visits and enquiries, both in the Craft and outside, that I do desire to express my warmest thanks for such marks of esteem. I was travelling that way, but was not in that horrible collision, for which I thank the Great Architect.

Very sincerely yours, and truly fraternally,

T. BURDETT YEOMAN.

ROYAL ARCH.

Dear Sir and Companion,—

I was sorry to read the report of the Special Provincial Grand Chapter, held at Newton Abbot on the 20th ult., to dedicate and consecrate the Devon Chapter. I fear that there must have been some other cause why the Second Principal did not attend besides the one stated in the report.

I wish the M.E.P.G. Superintendent would hold his chapters in the summer months instead of the winter, he would then get a much larger attendance.

Yours very fraternally,

I.T.S., M.E.Z.

The prayers of all the petitions for new chapters published by the "Freemason" in the agenda paper of Grand Chapter last week were granted.

On the motion of Comp. E. Snell, P.G.S.B., it was unanimously resolved that a record be made in the books of Grand Chapter of the great loss Grand Chapter felt that it and Masonry had sustained by the lamented death of Comp. John Savage, late President of the Committee of General Purposes.

The M.E.Z. said he was sure that this feeling must be entertained by the whole body of Masons.

Grand Chapter was thereupon closed.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

On Wednesday, 26th ult., the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire assembled at Leeds, to the number of upwards of three hundred brethren, under the banner of Philanthropic Lodge, 304, the W.M. and officers of which lodge opened the preliminary lodge in the three degrees.

Previous to the Provincial Grand Lodge entering a pleasing incident occurred, in the acceptance by the brethren of a beautifully-framed portrait of Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, of London, formerly of Swillington, near Leeds, and one of the old Past Masters of the lodge.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having entered, was presided over by the Rt. W. Prov. Grand Master (Sir E. Edwards, Bart.), who was assisted by his Deputy, Bro. Tew, J.P., of Pontefract, and the Provincial Grand Officers.

The brethren having saluted the Provincial Grand Master and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master with the greatest cordiality.

The Provincial Grand Master, in reply, said—Provincial Grand Officers, Worshipful Masters, and brethren of this Provincial Grand Lodge, your reception of me to-day is, I hope, a convincing proof that the loyalty and attachment the brethren of West Yorkshire have ever accorded to my distinguished predecessor have in no way, judging from the warmth of your salutation, been diminished with reference to myself. It is my great desire that on all occasions when the Provincial Grand Lodge is called together to be present amongst you. Permit me, on this, the first of our collective gatherings in the new year, to offer to brethren my sincere congratulations and hearty good wishes for the prosperity of the Craft in this important province. This new year opens, I trust, with gladness to ourselves, and as we live in sympathy with every brother throughout the world, it is thus we strive to promote on earth peace and good will towards men. Between the square and compasses our lives are pledged to charity and fellowship; and as in the year behind us, so in the year before us, I hope the brethren of West Yorkshire will strive to emulate the noble aspirations and the generous deeds which have so pre-eminently adorned the high character which Freemasonry in this province possesses. With reference to the gathering in Leeds, the Provincial Grand Master said he was glad to understand that the Leeds Lodges were promoting the system of inviting the Provincial Grand Lodge annually, under each lodge in rotation. He referred to the recent election for girls to their school, and congratulated West Yorkshire on their double success. Adverting to the recent Exhibition in Leeds, the Provincial Grand Master said he was present on the occasion of the opening of the Exhibition, and he regretted on that occasion that the then Mayor of Leeds was not a member of our ancient and honourable society. "Most deeply," he said, "do we all deplore that visitation of Providence which, on the 19th inst., unexpectedly deprived Leeds of one of her most public spirited officers in the person of the ex-Mayor." The noble Baronet then concluded by repeating the words of his predecessor, with reference to the increasing strength of the fraternity. "Brethren, remember the strength of our Order lies not in the increasing roll of our members, but in the fraternal spirit by which the members are animated, and which lives and breathes in our lodges."

Bro. Tew, Dep. Prov. G.M., having responded, Bro. Bentley Shaw entered, and was vociferously received. After he had been saluted he briefly returned thanks for their great warmth of feeling towards him. He felt that he could not, if he would, stay away from the meeting, and hoped to be able to attend many more.

After the ordinary routine business had been gone through, the attention of the brethren was called to the report of the Committee of Investigation into the management of the Royal Masonic Boys' School, which report was presented to the Prov. Grand Master by the chairman of the committee, Bro. Gill, Mayor of Wakefield. It was gathered from the report that the committee had extended their inquiry over six years—from January, 1869, to December, 1874. During that time the sum of £38,746 10s. 2d. had been expended, showing, for an average attendance of 123 boys per year, an average cost of £52 10s. 0½d. per annum, which, when added to the value of the farm produce, shows a total of £54 10s. 3d. During that time no charge was made for rent or as interest on expended capital. This expenditure contrasts unfavourably with that of the following institutions:—

	No. of Pupils.	Cost per Head.
London Orphan Asylum	491	31 6 3
Commercial Travellers	228	30 4 0
Ackworth School	290	31 10 6
Sidworth School	97	33 19 0
Yorkshire Boys' School	55	33 0 0
Royal Masonic Girls' School	146	36 16 11½
Clergy Orphan	110	45 18 0½

The report went on to state that the expense caused by the frequent changes of Masters and Assistant Masters was great, and had acted injuriously in the education of boys, as exemplified by the unsuccessful results at the Cambridge and Oxford local examinations. The committee brought their report to a close as follows:—"The great cost of the school pervades nearly every department of its management, and the committee strongly impresses upon the Provincial Grand Lodge the necessity for adopting such measures as will secure a material reduction of such cost, so that the institution may be placed in a position by which its usefulness may be largely extended, its benefits conferred upon a much greater number of recipients, and the sympathies of the Craft continued and extended in its favour."—This report was unanimously adopted, and such resolutions were passed as would carry out the objects of the committee.

Before the close of the Provincial Grand Lodge Bro. Gill, on behalf of the Committee of Investigation, handed to the Provincial Grand Master a very handsome Past Master's jewel, with the request that he would present it to Bro. Robert Craig, P.M. 304, for his courtesy, kindness, and great hospitality in entertaining that committee at all their meetings.

The Provincial Grand Master highly eulogised the character of Bro. Craig, and in handing him the present wished him long life to wear it. Bro. Craig feelingly and sincerely thanked the brethren.

After the business of the lodge was concluded, about 100 of the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet served by Bro. J. L. Oates, in the banqueting-room, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and honoured.

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. JAMES'S LODGE (No. 1579.)

On Friday, the 21st ult., at the Bell Hotel, Enfield Highway, a new lodge was consecrated, to be called the St. James's Lodge (No. 1579) (under the Province of Middlesex), the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Colonel Burdett, P.S.G.W. of England, presiding. The first half hour was spent by the brethren present in looking at the new lodge furniture, jewels, and regalia, supplied by Bro. George Kenning, of Little Britain, which seemed to be much approved of by the brethren. At about 3.30 p.m. it was announced that the R.W. Prov. Grand Master had arrived, which was a signal for the brethren to be clothed and take their places to receive the Prov. Grand Officers. Amongst those present were the R.W. Prov. G.M. of Middlesex, Colonel Burdett, P.G.S.W., &c.; W. Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, P.G.S.W.; W. Bro. James Terry, P.G.D.C. Herts; Bros. J. J. Wilson, P.P.G.J.W. Essex; T. Hastings Miller, P.G. Org. Middlesex; J. Tydeman, P.G.P. Essex; Thompson, P.G.D.C. Middlesex; Tyne, P.P.G.J.D. Middlesex; James Linzell, P.P.G.D.C., and W.M. designate; Edward Letchworth, S.W. designate; John Painter, J.W. designate; E. Clarke, Driscoll, Stevens, T. Cusworth, G. Jaffa, Verry, Collyer, Gabb, J. Maller, P.M.; W. Gilbert, W.M. 1327; Capt. Wiltshire, P.M.; Malcolm, Sec. 1327; Sheldon, P.G.S. Herts; Harvey, Pepper, Bradstock, Newman, Jewison, Yorke, Oddey, Muggleston, P.M.; and others, in all about sixty brethren.

The R.W. Prov. Grand Master having appointed the following brethren to assist him as officers pro tem., viz. W. Bro. R. W. Little, P.G.S.W. Middx., as D.G.M., and to act as Chaplain; W. Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, as Director of Ceremonies; Bro. J. J. Wilson, P.P.G.J.W. Essex, as Senior Warden; Bro. J. Tydeman, Prov. G. Purst. Essex, as Junior Warden; Bro. Thompson, Prov. G.D.C., as Inner Guard; and Bro. Verry, as Tyler. The Provincial Grand Organist, Bro. T. H. Miller presiding at the harmonium.

The lodge was opened in the three degrees.

The Grand Master then addressed the brethren on the nature of the meeting. Bro. R. W. Little then gave the prayer. After which the acting Secretary addressed the Grand Master, who replied, and gave directions to the brethren of the new lodge to form themselves in order in the body of the room.

The Secretary then read the petition, also the warrant from the Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the brethren appointed in the warrant as first Master and Wardens being Bros. James Linzell, P.M., as W.M.; Edward Letchworth, as first S.W.; and John Painter, as first J.W. The Grand Master having inquired of the brethren if they approved of the officers named, the brethren signified this approval in the usual way. After which Bro. R. W. Little gave an oration on the nature and principles of the institution in an eloquent and masterly manner, the same being listened to with the greatest attention by all present. The following hymn was sung by the brethren:—

Hail, Eternal, by whose aid
All created things were made,
Heav'n and earth Thy vast design,
Hear us, Architect divine.

May our work, begun in Thee,
Ever blest with order be,
And when we from labour cease,
Part in harmony and peace.

By Thy glorious Majesty,
By the trust we place in Thee,
By the lodge and mystic sign,
Hear us, Architect Divine.

After the first part of the dedication prayer, &c., the Chaplain read II. Chron., Chap. I. to XVI. verses. The lodge board being uncovered the Deputy Master and Wardens pro tem. carried the elements of consecration three times round the lodge. The Presiding Officer then dedicated the lodge, when the hymn was sung commencing

Our souls shall magnify the Lord;
In Him our spirits shall rejoice.

The Presiding Officer having constituted the lodge, the hymn was sung commencing

Now the evening shadows closing.

The consecration ceremony over the lodge was resumed to the Second Degree, when Bro. James Linzell was presented to the Grand Master for installation, and after the usual preliminaries were gone through, those brethren below the ranks of Installed Masters withdrew, while the remainder of the ceremony of installation was proceeded with in the presence of nineteen Past Masters. The brethren having been re-admitted, were called upon to salute the Worshipful Master in the three degrees. The W.M. appointed the officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Edward Letchworth, S.W.; John Painter, J.W.; E. Clark, Treas.; Driscoll, Sec.; Stevens, S.D.; T. Cusworth, J.D.; G. Jaffa, I.G.; Verry, Tyler. Bro. James Terry, P.G.D.C. Herts, then gave the addresses to the officers and brethren of the lodge in a very clear and impressive manner, which brought forth the applause of all present.

Votes of thanks were passed to Bro. the R.W. Colonel Burdett and others who assisted in the consecration ceremony.

Colonel Burdett, Bro. R. W. Little, Bro. James Terry, and Bro. T. H. Miller were proposed and unanimously accepted honorary members of the lodge.

The lodge having been closed to the First Degree, some brethren were proposed as joining members. The lodge was then closed in due form, after which about fifty brethren adjourned to the banquet-hall, where a sumptuous banquet awaited them, composed of every delicacy of the season, the arrangements being carried out in Bro. Jewison's very best style, which, with the excellent quality of the wines, reflected great credit to his establishment and satisfaction to all present. The following loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to:—"The Queen and the Craft;" "The M.W. Grand Master, the Prince of Wales;" "The Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon;" "The Deputy G.M., the Earl of Skelmersdale, and rest of Grand Officers;" "The Provincial Grand Master," to which Colonel Burdett replied, thanking the brethren for having made him an honorary member of their lodge, a lodge which, from what he had heard and seen, he expected would become one of the most important in the province. He congratulated them upon the choice they had made of a Master. He was one who had twice before held a similar position, and had creditably performed the duties of his high office.

The W.M. next proposed "The Deputy Grand Master and Grand Officers of the Province." Bro. Little replied in very appropriate terms.

Bros. J. J. Wilson, P.M., and P.P.G.J.W. Essex, then proposed "The Worshipful Master," and in doing so congratulated the lodge in getting one to preside over them so well up in Masonry and so popular with his brethren. Bros. Linzell, W.M., having replied, he proposed "The Health of the Visitors," which was responded to by Bros. Wilson, P.M.; Captain Wiltshire, P.M., and Dr. Muggleston, P.M., who in very pithy speeches expressed themselves highly delighted with the whole arrangements of the day. Bro. Wilson remarking that, although not one of the new lodge he wished them every success. He had a few years ago been the principal promoter of a new lodge in the same parish, and the time had now come when he did not see why another lodge should not be worked, and with the good wishes of the sister lodge. "The Officers" were next proposed, to which Bro. Letchworth, S.W., replied, thanking the brethren for the cordial manner in which his own and brother officers' healths had been drank, assuring them that he would endeavour to carry out the duties in a satisfactory way. Having so good a brother as W.M., whose kind and agreeable disposition would insure him the good feelings of those working with him, he looked for prosperity in their new undertaking.

"The Masonic Charities" was responded to by Bro. J. Terry, Secretary of the R.M.B.I. He congratulated the brethren upon the success of the day, and afterwards made a claim upon the charity of the brethren. He said that although a very large amount was annually subscribed by our fraternity for the charitable institutions (indeed, a sum to be proud of), yet they were unable to give the assistance to every case that they should like, but if every brother in the fraternity would only subscribe five shillings per year they would raise a sum by which every candidate could be relieved. He called upon the brethren very urgently to consider whether they were doing their duty in this respect, and thus carrying out the first principle of their profession. He was sorry to say there was a very large number of brethren connected with Masonry whose name never appeared as subscribers to the charities, although their motto should be loyalty and charity. He made a very powerful appeal to those present, and we sincerely hope that Bro. Terry's energy in working for the charities will be universally crowned with success.

It was announced during the evening that the new lodge have already decided to shew themselves not wanting in this virtue, as Bro. E. Letchworth, S.W., has consented to act as Steward at the next festival for the Girls' School, and is open to receive additions to his list of subscribers.

Some excellent singing was given by Bros. Malcolm, Pepper, Yorke, and others, which added to the pleasure of the evening.

The Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable meeting to a close, which, to use the words of Bro. Little, would be a red-letter day in the Masonic history of all present.

The whole affair proved a thorough success, and we have every reason to believe the St. James's Lodge will in time become one of the most popular in the Province of Middlesex. The members have done well in deciding to hold their meetings at the Bell Hotel, the accommodation for such meetings being excellent, as in addition to the capital lodge rooms, with comfortable retiring rooms and other accommodation adjoining, Mr. Jewison has recently had erected a spacious hall for banquets, dinners, entertainments, &c., which is near to the house, opening into the lawn and approach to the pleasure gardens of the establishment. Members of London lodges intending to hold summer banquets in the country should certainly visit here before deciding where to hold such meetings. Here are rooms for meetings, the large banquet hall, the extensive gardens and rosaries, and lawns for croquet parties, and other amusements, at a distance of only ten miles from London, good roads, and a pleasant drive.

Masonic and General Tidings.

A fire broke out in the town mansion of Bro. Sir William Watkin Wynn, Bart. (P.G.M. North Wales and Shrops.), St. James's-square, on Monday last but owing to the timely arrival of the engines the fire was subdued before any considerable amount of damage was done.

INSTRUCTION AND CHARITY.—The brethren of various lodges who attend the Lodge of Instruction on Friday at the Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, had a profitable evening last Friday, and the proceedings were largely attended, indeed, the spacious room was as crowded as possible for a Masonic gathering to be. Bro. Bingemann, W.M. of the Constitutional, presided, and the piece de resistance was to be the installation ceremony. Bro. Stacey was the Preceptor, and among the brethren present were Foulger, P.M.; While, W.M. 228 ("Freemason"); Griggs, W.M. elect, P.M.; Hogard, J. Hill, Abell, W.W. Snelling, and others. The third ceremony was first performed, Bro. J. Hill being the candidate, the Wardens' chairs having as occupants during this part of the proceedings Bros. While and Hogard. For the installation the Senior Warden was duly presented, and Bro. Bingemann went through the ceremony with great precision, all the work being done in full form, just as in ordinary work. The proclamations and addresses having been given, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Bingemann, upon whom the honours of honorary membership could not be conferred, as he has already achieved that distinction, and the presiding W.M. said that there was only one other pleasure the large gathering present could have, and that was an invitation to go en masse to see their Brother work the ceremony on the occasion when he attained the honourable position of I.P.M. The suggestion, it was explained, could not be acted upon, as the meeting place would be filled, and the lodge went on to other business. It was agreed to accept the invitation of the Metropolitan Club of Instruction for next Friday, at King's Cross, and therefore the meeting will not be held at the Portugal. It was announced that the association formed for the purpose of qualifying brothers to become life subscribers of the institutions by monthly payments of a shilling a week, was flourishing—several draws had been made, and new members were enrolled. Thus meetings which are shorn of "eating and merry making" have pleasures of which enemies to the Craft do not dream in the exercise of prudent charity.

Obituary.

BRO. THE REV. EDWIN THOMPSON, D.D.

We deeply lament having to record the decease of Bro. the Rev. Edwin Thompson, D.D., of St. John's, Wandsworth, Chaplain of the Grand Master's Lodge, No. 1, and also to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. Thompson expired at Worthing on the 2nd inst., after a very brief illness. Only a few days since we met him in apparent health and strength, and now he has gone to his rest. His demise will be deeply felt by his sorrowing family, and by all—especially his Masonic brethren—who had the privilege of his acquaintance and friendship.

THE LATE BRO. W. ROMAINE CALLENDER.—The following circular has been issued from Grand (Mark) Secretary's office:—"W. and Dear Sir and Brother, 'It is with extreme regret that I inform you that intelligence has this morning been received of the death of the R. W. Deputy G. Master, Bro. Wm. Romaine Callender, M.P., &c. An event so sad and unexpected demands, and will in due course receive, a more fitting notice than can be given in an official circular. It will suffice to state here, that the loss thus sustained will be felt most sincerely, not only by all the members of this degree, in which our lamented brother held so influential a position, but by other large and important interests with which he was actively and intimately associated. I have received the commands of the Most Worshipful Grand Master (of Mark Masons) that all lodges under his jurisdiction shall be suitably draped in mourning, and that all members thereof shall wear mourning for the space of six months as a token of esteem and respect for our late Deputy Grand (Mark) Master. I am, W. and dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally, FREDERICK BINCKES, (P.G.J.W.), G. Secretary (Mark G. Lodge)."

MASONIC CHARITABLE BALLS.

The annual Bootle Masonic ball, the proceeds of which will be given to the endowment fund of the Bootle Borough Hospital, took place on Thursday evening, the 27th ult., at the Town Hall, Bootle, near Liverpool.

These enjoyable assemblies have in previous years resulted successfully, and that given last evening was not less so than those which have preceded. The brethren of the "mystic tie" in the neighbourhood deserve much praise for thus having their chief element of existence in view, while providing a most pleasant gathering for those on pleasure bent.

The annual ball of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, No. 1182, also took place on Thursday night, the 27th ult., at the Philharmonic Hall, Liverpool, in aid of a Masonic charity, which was well attended. The festive gathering was an exceedingly pleasant one, great praise being due to Bros. T. B. Myers, W.M.; R. Martin, S.W.; and Bro. T. Davies, hon. sec., and other brethren for the excellent arrangements.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.
Craft Masonry.

FORTITUDE AND OLD CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 12).—On Monday afternoon last the annual meeting for installation of W.M. of this lodge was held at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street. Bro. Joseph Clever, W.M., presided, and, assisted by his officers, raised Bros. Elliott, Allen, and Kidder, and passed Bro. Thos. F. Cooper. Bro. William Joseph Clever, of the Amity Lodge, 171, was unanimously elected a joining member of the lodge. The bye-laws were then read, after which Bro. J. Clever proceeded to instal Bro. George Angold as W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was most impressively, yet withal quietly rendered, and obtained the hearty applause of the brethren at its conclusion. The brethren appointed to office by the W.M. were Bros. Joseph Clever, I.P.M.; L. Ruf, P.M., Treas.; Alfred Snellgrove, P.M., Sec.; W. B. Kidder, S.W.; W. H. Bateman, J.W.; H. Mower, S.D.; R. N. Coombs, J.D.; T. Kyffin, I.G.; W. Rutherford, D.C.; L. Ruf, W.S.; Gilchrist, Tyler. Afterwards the W.M. presented Bro. Joseph Clever, in the name of the lodge, with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, and in doing so said that he was sure that all the brethren would feel that it was nothing more than was his due for the heavy amount of work he had done during the year, and also for his excellent rendering of the installation. Bro. Clever, P.M., then said—I sincerely thank you for your very great kindness in having voted me this jewel. I can assure you I shall highly prize it. No jewel shall I wear on my breast that I shall prize more highly than that of Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge, and I sincerely thank you. If I have discharged my duties to your satisfaction during my year of office I am fully paid for any efforts I may have used. (Cheers.) Some other business was then transacted, and the brethren adjourned to one of Bro. Painter's choice banquets. Among the company present were besides the brethren named above, Past Masters A. H. Lilley, Raynham W. Stewart, Dudley Rolls, Sidney H. Rolls, and J. B. Lemaître; F. Binckes, Secretary Boys' School; R. W. Little, Secretary Girls' School; James Terry, Secretary Benevolent Institution; Chas. Atkins, 27; J. A. Barnard, 217; A. M. Thomas, 134; E. Francis, 403; A. J. Small, D. Cormack, 538; R. Peart, W. H. Dudgeon, 558; E. B. Grabham, S.W. 19; J. R. Gallant, S.W. 813; A. Perdes, 179; E. Power, 91; Mortimer Davis, P.M. 12; J. Torres, P.M. 715; J. W. South, P.M. 60; J. R. Glenn, 1491; H. Massey ("Freemason"); and R. Farquharson, 99. Altogether fifty-seven brethren sat down to banquet. When the toasts were proposed Bro. Raynham W. Stewart responded for "The Grand Officers." He, however, thought that when he sat down in the lodge as one of its Past Masters his rank in Grand Lodges should be sunk. But as he had been called upon to reply, he would say that the Grand Officers were proud to have the opportunity of coming to the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge to see how the brethren did things there, and how prosperous the lodge was. The lodge was exceedingly prosperous, and there was hardly room for another member. Although the W.M. was well up in his work he would not have the opportunity of making a Freemason until a vacancy occurred. On behalf of Lord Skelmersdale and the other Grand Officers, he begged to inform the brethren that they were all delighted at the progress that was being made by the Order. Bro. Clever proposed the toast of "The Health of the W.M.," and in doing so said that it was with very great pleasure that he did so. All the brethren were very much delighted to see that the W.M. had arrived at the proud position of presiding over the brethren of the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge. Many of the brethren present remembered his being initiated, and had watched over his progress through the different degrees till he attained his present rank. None of the brethren had seen anything in him but what was pleasing, and that they would be gratified to find in any brethren following him. (Applause.) The W.M., in reply, said, after thanking the brethren for their cordiality, that he did not set himself up as a pattern Master, but he hoped that he should do the work of the lodge properly during his year of office. (Loud cheers.) The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," whom the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge were always pleased to see. After this he proposed a special toast in favour of Bro. Painter, who had spread such a splendid repast for the brethren that evening. Bro. Mortimer Davis was the first to reply, and remarked on the magnificent hospitality which the lodge had displayed that evening to the visitors. The manner in which the work had been done, and the gorgeous hospitality of the lodge, had always won for it great renown. From first to last it had been splendid. (Hear, hear.) Bro. C. Painter, in replying, expressed his gratification that the brethren were satisfied with what the Ship and Turtle had done. The W.M. then gave "The P.M.'s," from whom he expected great assistance during his year of office. Bro. Clever replied. He was very proud at being enrolled that day among the ranks of the P.M.'s. The pleasure he felt at being so enrolled was only equalled by the pleasure in being installed twelve months ago as W.M. As a Past Master he would do the best he could for the benefit of the lodge, the same as he had done while he was W.M. If he was spared, which he hoped he should be, he should use his utmost endeavours to forward the interest of the brethren; and certainly he should always be ready to render any assistance in his power. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart proposed "The Charities," to which all three Secretaries responded, and the remaining toasts having been honoured, the brethren separated. The evening was enlivened by some beautiful singing by Bro. Farquharson.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—A meeting of this lodge took place at Anderson's Hotel on the 25th ult. The lodge was opened by Bro. Waygood, W.M.; Kennett, I.P.M.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., P.Z., &c., Sec.; Davis, S.W.; Mallett, J.W.; Darcy, J.D.; Bye, I.G.; Rumball, D.C. Amongst the P.M.'s were Bros. Peever, Hopwood, Taylor, Green, Themans. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Kennett, I.P.M., by permission of the W.M. raised Bros. Elverstone and Ormiston. The W.M. then passed Bros. Goldsmith, Tittle, Cohn, Robinson, and Ginz, and initiated Mr. George Goulden into Craft mysteries. A letter of resignation from Bro. D. Davis, W.S., having been read, in consequence of his going abroad, and several communications having been made by the Secretary, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. The visitors were Bros. Callingham (Domestic) and Cattle, S.W. (Jvy). Upon the removal of the cloth the toast of "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Earl of Carnarvon and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present," were given by the W.M. with a brief preface to each, and duly honoured. In proposing "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Kennett, I.P.M., spoke of the difficulties Bro. Waygood laboured under through business arrangements, which necessitated his residing for a time in the provinces, and that in order that day to be present in the chair of K.S. he had journeyed all the way from Manchester. He hoped that the brethren would join with him in drinking the W.M.'s very good health and a prosperous year of office. The W.M. having suitably acknowledged the compliment, proposed "The Health of the Initiate, Bro. Goulden," in a very cordial speech. The toast having been drunk, Bro. Goulden returned thanks. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and Bro. Cattle made a neat reply. In the intervals of the above toasts Bros. Bird and Robinson contributed some instrumental music, and Bros. Walls and Cattle sang several ballads.

ST. THOMAS'S LODGE (No. 142).—This lodge held its installation meeting on Saturday last, at the City Terminus Hotel. Bro. G. A. Rooks, W.M., presided, supported by Past Masters Huguenin, (representative of the Grand Lodge of Switzerland), H. Lloyd Thomas, F. T. Dubois, Cockcroft, Powell, and Scarth; Bros. Burnaby, Lambert, Beattie, H. A. Dubois, Battye, Levander, Lee, Carlisle, Hannan, and visitors, Dr. Lavies, E. Horne, 92; W. Stephen, 34; W. C. A. Roettger, 251; J. Stare, Celtic; J. Stoddart, 181; and H. Massey ("Freemason"). After the confirmation of the minutes of last regular lodge meeting, and of the emergency of the 21st of December, when the lodge celebrated its centenary, the W.M., Bro. Rooks, installed Bro. W. D. Burnaby in the Master's chair. The brethren appointed to office by the new W.M. were Bros. Lambert, S.W.; W. Beattie, J.W.; Battye, P.M., Treas.; H. C. Levander, P.M., Sec.; Macaulay, S.D.; Powell, J.D.; Lee, I.G.; Carlisle, D.C.; Hannan; W.S.; and Riley, Tyler. At the conclusion of the addresses, which were well delivered by Bro. Rooks, Bro. Levander read a very interesting report made by the Centenary Committee, in which it was shown that the Centenary Festival was very successful, and that the whole of the expenses had been defrayed. The adoption of the report, which was moved by Bro. H. Lloyd Thomas, P.M., and seconded by Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.M., was carried unanimously. The Treasurer informed the brethren that the W.M., Bro. Rooks, had presented £30 to the lodge towards the expenses of the centenary, a fact which he thought they ought to be all acquainted with. (Cheers.) The accounts were then read, and on the motion of Bro. H. A. Dubois, it was ordered that they be printed with the next lodge summons. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a choice banquet. When the toasts were proposed the W.M. called on Bro. Huguenin to respond for the Grand Officers, and Bro. Huguenin, as representative in Grand Lodge of the Grand Lodge of Switzerland, said he was glad to see St. Thomas's Lodge still following the path that had been laid out by its former Masters. The lodge had obtained for itself a high position, and on the occasion of the centenary festival this was appreciated by the large number of Grand Officers who were then present. He felt sure that the lodge would pursue its old course. He then passed a high compliment on Bro. Rooks' working during the whole of last year. (Cheers.) Bro. Rooks proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said that he was old enough to remember Bro. Burnaby coming to the lodge for initiation, and the first evening was not over before every brother was satisfied that he was animated by a truly Masonic spirit. It was his (Bro. Rooks') privilege when the brethren for the first time elected him to the chair, to place Bro. Burnaby in the first office he had filled in the lodge, and he felt determined with the assistance of the brethren to give him a higher position still. That determination had been carried out, for the brethren had now elected Bro. Burnaby as their W.M., and he had been installed that evening. That high position he would adorn, and the brethren would have the honour of being under the command of an excellent W.M. (Applause.) The W.M. in replying said (after thanking the brethren for their heartiness) that everything appertaining to Freemasonry was always present to his mind, and had a great interest or him, wherever he went. It was not, he said, by his own desire that he was elected and installed; but as it was with the concurrence and approbation of the whole lodge, he could not do otherwise than accept the office. He would then ask the brethren generously to look over any failings they might perceive in him. He could not hope to discharge his duties as well as the I.P.M.; his old age, his want of health, and his loss of memory would prevent him doing that; and it was in the full assurance that he would have the generous forbearance of the brethren that he consented to be their Master. All he could possibly do he would do; but he must remind them that he was often afflicted by a pertinacious old enemy called the gout, which might prevent his coming. If he lived his year of office throughout he would do in that time all in his power for the good of Freemasonry. (Cheers.) Bro. Horne, 92, and Bro. Dr. Lavies, replied for the visitors. Bro. Lavies wore his Scotch Masonic clothing, and in reference to it said, that although a member of the Apollo Lodge, Grand Lodge of Scotland was his Alma Mater in Freemasonry. As in his profession as a medical man he had found Scotch doctors well received in England, so had he found the same cordial reception for Scotch Masons in English lodges. Bro. Roettger, also replying for the visitors, and who wore the English apron, explained though a member of the Grand Lodge of Belgium before he was a member of our English lodge, he wore blue because the Belgium colours covered a number of degrees which had no status at all in a blue lodge. (Hear hear.) The W.M. afterwards proposed "The P.M.'s," and presented Bro. Rooks with a handsome gold jewel, in accordance with the wishes of the whole of the brethren, as a token of their acknowledgment of his services for two years as their W.M. It was with the most heartfelt pleasure he presented him with this jewel, and he wished him many years of life to enjoy the wearing of it. Bro. Rooks, after some preliminary observations, in which he adverted to his new position of P.M. requiring the same indulgence as the W.M. had asked for himself, thanked the brethren for the gift of the P.M.'s jewel. But to speak a word for the P.M.'s, he assured the brethren that during the time he held office as W.M. it would have been impossible for him to perform his duties unless he had had the support of the P.M.'s. He thanked the brethren for the unanimity with which they had received his directions in the lodge, and the readiness with which they had always supported him. He should never forget the assistance he had had from one and all during his two years of office. Bro. Cockcroft also responded, assuring the brethren that all the P.M.'s had the interest of the lodge at heart; they had all spent many, many happy hours together, and he hoped that St. Thomas's Lodge would never be wanting in that feeling. Bro. Levander, responding for the Treasurer and Secretary, read Bro. Binckes's circular asking for a Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys' festival. Bro. Lambert replied for "The Officers." They thanked the I.P.M. for having helped them on and supported them. Speaking for himself, he felt especially grateful to him for many acts of kindness. With regard to the working of the lodge he trusted that the officers would not fall short. He hoped they would not prove themselves unworthy of the high character which St. Thomas's Lodge bore, or unworthy successors of those who had gone before them. He hoped rather that they would strive to perpetuate the fame of the lodge for years to come. The endeavours of all the officers should be used to the best of their ability, supported by the W.M. and P.M.'s, to render the lodge efficient and worthy of the Grand Lodge of England. If there was no other member of the lodge who would take upon himself the duty of representing it as Steward at the Boys' School festival, this being the centenary year of the lodge, he would undertake that office himself. (Cheers.) The brethren shortly afterwards separated. During the evening Dr. Lavies, the W.M., and others, favoured the brethren with some excellent singing.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The installation meeting of this prosperous young lodge, now four years old, was held on Tuesday last at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, Bro. Saml. W. Gardner in the chair, when Bros. Collins and Andrews were raised, and Bro. Guinwade was passed to the Second Degree. After the conclusion of the ordinary business, Bro. Mann P.M., one of the founders of the lodge, took the chair as acting W.M., and Bro. George Everett was presented to the benefit of installation, and having been obligated and intrusted according to ancient form, was presented to a Board of Installed Masters, and installed W.M. of the Kennington Lodge for the ensuing year. The entire ceremony was performed by Bro. Mann in a very impressive style, the several charges being rendered with much point and feeling. The following brethren were appointed officers:—Bros. Higgins, S.W.; Reeve, J.W.; Walls, S.D. Kholer, J.D.; E. J. Page, P.M.; Treas.; H. W. Stuart, Hon. Sec.; Speedy, I.G.; D. C. Marsden, D.C.; and Longstaff, Tyler. The business of the lodge over, the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was laid in the large room of the club house, and was everything that could be desired, either in the way of excellence, elegance, or the care taken to provide for the comfort of the brethren. The manner in which the tables were provided and served reflects the greatest credit on Messrs. Trotman and Sons, the purveyors. On the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were proposed by Bro. Everett, W.M., and received by the brethren with the loyalty and good feeling usually displayed by Freemasons. In proposing the first toast, Bro. Everett said that the very sumptuous repast they had just partaken of having somewhat curtailed the time at their disposal, he should make the speeches as short as possible, and trusted the brethren would lend their assistance by giving their attention to what little he had to say. It was always a pleasure to propose the first toast of the evening, because as loyal subjects and Masons we hold in high esteem our Queen and the noble institution to which they all belonged, and it was an additional pleasure at the present time when she is about to re-appear in our midst and assume her proper place in the country from which she had so long withdrawn herself. The next toast, the W.M. said, was always a very popular one, "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of Masons." It was a great thing for Freemasonry when that very unexpected thing occurred which enabled them to elect as Grand Master the future ruler of this kingdom. And it was very satisfactory to find after having done so that His Royal Highness was a good Mason, and took a deep interest in everything connected with the Craft. His journey in the East too was all that could be desired. In every place he has visited the Freemasons had always been to the fore in giving him a true welcome. Proposing the next toast, he said they all knew that the Earl of Carnarvon was a very eminent statesman, and had done great things for his country, that Lord Skelmersdale was a very zealous young Mason, very proud of the position in which he had been placed, and that the rest of the Grand Officers were placed in very good hands. It was gratifying to know that in the absence of our M.W.G.M. the interest of the Craft did not suffer, as the officers he had mentioned were always ready to conduct the work of Grand Lodge. He would couple with "The Health of the Grand Officers" the name of Bro. Joseph Smith, of the Domatic, of which he was the father. Bro. Smith, in replying, said they all knew that the Earl of Carnarvon was a very hard-working Mason, and that the Craft under his guidance did not suffer through the absence of the Prince of Wales, because Lord Carnarvon does all that is required of him. The Grand Officers were open to the whole of the Craft, but as there were only seven Grand Officers there was a difficulty in rewarding deserving talent. As the Craft was spreading so widely he thought it would become necessary to return to the position of former times and have two Grand Lodges, so that there might be more offices to bestow. With regard to the Master they had that day installed, he believed that they would find he combined the qualities of firmness and gentleness, and that while he held his own in the lodge, and never allowed any one to trespass upon him he would, also conduct its affairs with true courtesy, and never himself trespass upon any one. Bro. Mann then said—Brethren, I rise on this occasion with two conflicting sentiments, one of great pleasure, and one of pain and difficulty. The cause of my now occupying the position of I.P.M. is that the real I.P.M. has suddenly and mysteriously disappeared. I have been looking round for him and really do not know where he has gone to. [It appeared afterwards that Bro. Gardner had been called out, expecting to return in a few minutes, but had been detained unexpectedly, and in fact did not make his appearance until a late period in the evening.] Well, then, brethren, I have great pleasure in proposing "The Health of our W.M." I do not know that I can say anything in his favour after the speech that Bro. J. Smith has made. He is a great authority; being the father of the Domatic, he may be looked upon as the grandfather of the Kennington. I think with Bro. Smith that we shall find in Bro. Everett a Master who will hold his own. We have not been progressing so favourably as could be wished, but I feel sure we shall do better in the coming year, and then Bro. Everett will have, what I am sure we all desire for him, a happy and prosperous year, many, many joining members and many initiates, and that at the end of his term of office next year we may every one of us respect him as we do at present. In reply, Bro. Everett said—Brethren, what I have to say at this particular moment will occupy but a very short time indeed. For the kind manner in which this toast has been proposed and responded to I wish to thank you. I do not know yet how I may be able to acquit myself, neither do you. I can only say I take this chair with the intention of looking to the interests of the lodge. If I succeed in doing that, and have your approval, I shall have met my reward, and while stating my intention to do my duty to the lodge, and to support the dignity of the chair, I will appeal to you all to extend to me that indulgence which will enable me as Master to do my duty properly. I am determined to go through my year of office, if Providence allows, with credit to myself and credit to the lodge. If you will support me I think I can guarantee a very happy and prosperous year. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and in doing so said—Brethren the next toast I have to propose is one that is always well received in every lodge, no matter when or where. It is "The Visitors." We have got eighteen visitors to the Kennington Lodge this evening; some have already left us, for as you are aware, our Bro. Adams gives his annual ball to-night, and several brethren have departed to attend it, as they have made an annual practice of doing. I bid our visitors a very hearty welcome, on behalf of the Kennington Lodge. The practice of visiting one another's lodges is both pleasant and beneficial form the interchange of thought and friendly feeling derived from it, and also it is desirable to see how the working is performed in other lodges than those we ourselves belong to. When they come to us we do our best to make them happy, and are always ready to hold out the right hand of fellowship to them. Among the more distinguished brethren visiting us to-night I may mention Bro. Mortlock, who performed the raising in the lodge in a manner that must have made a deep impression on the brethren present. We have also Bro. Starland and Bro. J. Smith, Grand Officers. We cannot ask all to reply, and therefore I shall couple the toast with the names of Bro. Gladwood and Bro. Treadwell. This toast was duly responded to, and "The Health of the Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge" was proposed and responded to in the usual course. Bro. Everett: Brethren, I have rather an unexpected duty to perform at this late hour of the evening. It is one that I expected earlier in the evening, but in the absence of the person to whom it applied I was unable then to do it. The lost sheep has returned to the flock. Our Immediate Past Master was called away unexpectedly; he believed he would only be absent half an hour, but has been detained two or three hours. I have to propose "The Health of the I.P.M." If ever there was a man doomed to appear at the wrong time, our brother Gardner is that man. He became Master of the lodge unexpectedly, and before his time, and he was not very successful in the working of the lodge. I am not going to insult Bro. Gardner by saying that he did things which he did not do—that he sincerely desires the success of the Kennington Lodge I know—but he came into the chair before he was prepared, and he did as well as he could under the circumstances, and I am bound to say that he did not receive that assistance and support from officers and his I.P.M. that he was entitled to expect, and if ever any man deserved sympathy our Bro. Gardner did. Now having so far cleared up matters I am going to present him with the P.M.'s jewel which has been unanimously voted to him, and I daresay he will make a very good P.M. Bro. Gardner in pinning this jewel on your breast let me inform you that it is a token of the hearty good will of the brethren, and that we all sympathise with you very much for what you have had to contend with. Bro. Gardner thanked the brethren for their gift, and assured them that his forced absence in the earlier part of the evening had been a great deprivation to him. Bro. Everett's remarks had been somewhat graphic, some indulgent, some severe, but the severe ones he knew were not intended personally, and he received them as they were given. This brought the speeches to a close, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to an end. Among the visitors present we noticed Bros. G. L. Everett, W. Palmer, John Kent, and Treadwell, of the Domatic Lodge; J. Ungent, P. Jubilee; P. Parsons, Belgrave; John Sharland, P.P.G. Treas.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; A. G. Bragg, St. Mark; R. Whitley, Strawberry Hill; F. G. Potter, Enoch; W. F. Page, Upton; Mortlock, Industry; C. F. Poupard, Mount Edgecumbe; W. Henke and Whiteway, Metropolitan; A. Wilkins, St. Paul's; J. Burford, Phoenix; and E. C. Massey ("Freemason"), who, in responding to the toast of "The Masonic Press," thanked not only the W.M. and the lodge for their kindly remembrance, but also the Craft generally for their support of the paper he represented. Fifteen P.M.'s were present at the Board of Installed Masters.

BURTON-UPON-TRENT.—Abbey Lodge (No. 624).—The twenty-second anniversary of this prosperous lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, January 11th. For many years past the fame of the Abbey Lodge has been increasing, and it now ranks high for its efficient and uniform working, and for the correct rendering of those beautiful and imposing ceremonies so peculiar to Masonry. This lodge, numbering nearly 100 members, has reached the proud position of being the largest lodge in the province, and has frequently received the highest encomiums from the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, the Right Hon. the Earl of Shrewsbury, and from his Deputy, Bro. F. James. The lodge during the past year has lost none of its prestige, but under the benign and statesmanlike behests of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. Auty, it has gained further laurels to its fame. Punctually at two o'clock the lodge was opened, when, after the dispatch of some formal business, the installation of Bro. C. Graham as Worshipful Master of the Abbey Lodge for the ensuing year took place. The duties of the Installing Master were most efficiently performed by Bro. R. H. Auty. The W.M. then appointed as his officers Bros. S. Briggs, S.W.; K. Macrae, J.W.; W. J. Gothard, Treas.; J. Robertson, Chaplain; W. H. Bailey, Sec.; T. Martin, S.D.; Halliday, J.D.; J. Borwell, I.G.; and Lane, Tyler. Precisely at half-past four the brethren sat down to a sumptuous dinner, Miss Whittingham being the purveyor. After grace had been said, the Worshipful Master, in eloquent terms, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily responded to in true Masonic style. The R.W.D.P.G.M., Bro. F. James, responded to the toast of "The R.W.P.G.M. for Staffordshire," and in doing so paid a high tribute of praise to the officers of the Abbey Lodge. "The Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge" was proposed in a neat and appropriate speech by Bro. G. Allsopp, to which each of the following brethren responded, viz.: Past Masters Stareye Meredith, Gothard, Anderson, and Day. The W.M. then gave "The R.W.P.G. Masters of Derbyshire, Warwickshire, Leicestershire, and Nottinghamshire, also the officers of the several Provincial Grand Lodges," when Bros. Hillam, Merry and Want responded. "The Health of the Worshipful Master, Bro. C. Graham," was next proposed in highly complimentary terms by the retiring W.M., Bro. Auty. This toast was enthusiastically received and drank with musical honours. Bro. P.M. Stareye gave "The Masonic Charities," which was duly honoured. Past Master Anderson in a humorous speech proposed "The Visitors," which was responded to by the brethren from neighbouring lodges. "The Health of Bro. Auty, Installing Master," was proposed by the W.M. and drank with musical honours. "The Officers of the Abbey Lodge" was next proposed by Bro. Meredith, P.M., and responded to by Bros. Briggs, Martin, Macrae, Bailey, Day, Borwell, Gothard, and Lane. During the evening, which was a very pleasant one, the vocal powers of the following brethren added considerably to the harmony and pleasure of all present: Bros. Martin, Hillam, Meredith, Howe, Ball, Bailey, Anderson and Hales. Subjoined is a list of the visiting brethren and the brethren of the Abbey Lodge present on the occasion:—Bros. Frank James, D.P.G.M.; C. Trigg, P.G.S.W. Derbyshire; M. A. Bass, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; E. Stareye, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; W. P. Want, P.M. 761, P.P.G.J.W. Gloucestershire; J. Bodenham, P.M., 726, 751, P.G.T.; J. H. Meredith, P.M., P.P.G.R.; W. J. Gothard, P.M., P.P.G.S. of W.; W. Jones, P.M. 460, and W.M. 1520, P.G.S. of W.; J. C. Merry, W.M. 731, P.G.D. of C., Derbyshire; J. Anderson, P.M., P.P.G.P.; J. G. McLean, P.P.G.P.; J. Bedmore, W.M. 1030; P.G.O.; L. F. Day, P.P.G.O.; H. Woodhouse, P.M. 726; T. F. Hale, W.M. 781; R. Auty, P.M.; C. F. Graham, W.M.; S. Briggs, S.W.; K. Macrae, J.W.; W. H. Bailey, Sec.; T. Martin, S.D.; T. Halliday, J.D.; J. Borwell, I.G.; E. Hodson, W. Boden, R. Howe, G. Douglas, F. Hallam, C. Adams, G. H. Allsopp, R. R. Bellamy, P.S.W. 625; W. Drewry, P.M. 353; G. A. Taverner, W.M. elect 353; W. L. Ball, 353; J. L. Spooner, 353.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—The last meeting of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, Hampton, on Thursday, the 20th ult. There were present Bros. Hopwood, P.M. 141, W.M.; W. Hammond, I.P.M., P.J.G.D. Middlesex, &c.; Raw, P.M., Treasurer; J. Hammond, P.M., Secretary; Hill, P.M., P.Z., &c., S. W.; Hurst, J.W.; Fox, J.D.; Jessett, I.G.; Ockenden, D.C. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, initiated Mr. W. Messenger, passed Bros. Moody and H. Tagg, and raised Bro. B. R. Aston. The whole of the three ceremonies were carefully carried out by the W.M. Upon the motion of the I.P.M., Bro. Hopwood, the W.M., was recommended by the lodge for the honour of P.G.S. of the Province; and Bro. Ockenden, D.C., was also recommended to fill the office of Steward for the Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows. Bro. Walls then proposed, which was seconded by Bro. Hammond, I.P.M., that Bro. E. T. Barrett, of No. 1503, should become a joining member. Some minor business having been transacted, which included the appointment of Bro. Tagg, a founder of the lodge, to the vacant office of A.W.S., the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to a cold collation, catered for by Bro. Hixcox. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Wilson, P.M. (Etonia); Knight, (574); Kruchler, (1303); Clarke, (1503). Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M., in consequence of the lateness of the hour, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts with great brevity. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," Bro. Hammond, I.P.M., congratulated the lodge upon having so zealous and old a worker as Bro. Hopwood in the chair of K.S., who he felt sure would at the conclusion of his year of office carry with him the good wishes of every member of the lodge. This toast having been duly honoured, the W.M. briefly acknowledged the compliment, and immediately proposed "The Health of the Initiate." Bro. Messenger, in reply, thanked the brethren, in which he stated that from the little he had seen of Freemasonry that evening he was sure he should like it when he became thoroughly acquainted with its mysteries. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. expressed how gratified he felt at having had a visit from two old friends and brothers of his that evening, namely, Bros. Wilson and Knight, both of whom had come some distance to see him. With regard to the other visitors, he hoped that their visit to the Hemming had been in every way satisfactory. The toast having been duly honoured, and responded to by Bros. Knight, Kruchler, and Clarke, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the I.P.M." in very cordial terms. In his speech he stated that notwithstanding the very complimentary manner in which Bro. Hammond had spoken of him and his services to the lodge that evening, he must differ with him in one important particular, and that was "that the success of the lodge was mainly owing to his (the W.M.'s) personal efforts." He could assure the brethren that although he had taken, and should continue to take, a very great interest in its welfare, yet the hard work hitherto had been cheerfully undertaken and successfully carried out by their Immediate Past Master, and, in conclusion, he hoped that Bro. Hammond would be spared many years to come to assist by his valuable advice and instruction the junior officers and any members of the lodge who might be desirous of holding the proud position of W.M. of the Hemming. This toast having been warmly drunk, Bro. Hammond replied in a short but pertinent speech, in which he modestly acknowledged the high commendation of the W.M., but at the same time stated that his individual efforts would have been unavailing had they not been assisted by the W.M. and the rest of the working founders of the lodge. The toast of "The Officers of the Lodge" followed, in giving which the W.M. spoke at length upon the great services rendered by Bros. Raw, Treasurer; J. Hammond, Secretary; and the rest of the working staff. Bros. Hill, Raw, Hurst, and Jesset severally replied. Between the toasts Bros. W.

Hammond, Raw, Hurst, and Walls vocally amused the brethren, who separated shortly after the Tyler's toast had been given. The next meeting of the lodge will take place on the third Thursday in the present month.

INSTRUCTION.

UNITED PILGRIMS LODGE (No. 507).—This lodge held its regular weekly meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall on the 28th ult. The officers were Bros. R. N. Field, W.M.; Harvey, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Watts, S.D.; Thurston, J.D.; Terry, I.G.; Geiter, Tyler; Larham, Preceptor; Francis, Secretary; and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. As it is optional with the W.M. what he will do on the fourth Friday in the month, Bro. Field decided on this occasion to work the Installation Ceremony, which he accordingly did to the satisfaction of all present, the addresses being delivered in a very impressive manner, at the conclusion of which the thanks of the brethren were accorded to Bro. Field for the able manner in which he had performed the beautiful ceremony. The Second Section in the First Lecture was worked by Bro. Larham, assisted by Bro. J. W. Watts. The lodge was then closed, and adjourned till the following Friday at 7.30 p.m.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. W. ROMAINE CALLENDER.

A few brief words of sincere regret for the untimely death of this most excellent of Masons may not be out of place. It is our earnest desire to express our sorrow for this melancholy event, which has removed from our midst one whom to know was to love, and whose usefulness to his fellow man was apparently only just begun. The Province of East Lancashire, with which he was more immediately connected in his Masonic career, can scarcely realize the loss it has sustained, nor can it tell where to look for one to take the place of our lamented brother, whose ear was ever ready to listen to the brother in affliction, and whose liberal and generous efforts in the cause of our Masonic charities have made his name a household word. Bro. Callender was initiated in the Social Lodge, No. 62, at Manchester, in 1850, and in due time filled the chair of W.M. He was the first Master and founder of the Callender Lodge, 1052, and of the Travellers' Lodge, 1253. In the Provincial Grand Lodge of East Lancashire he was elected, by the unanimous voice of the brethren, Provincial Grand Treasurer, and was afterwards appointed by the late Bro. Stephen Blair, P.G.M., to the office of Prov. G.S.W., and on the death of Bro. Lawrence Newall to the Deputy Provincial Grand Mastership, which he filled up to the time of his death, having been re-appointed by his present P.G.M., Bro. Col. Starkie. Bro. Callender also filled the position of Prov. G.H. in the Royal Arch Chapter of East Lancashire, and was a P.G.D. of England, and a P.G.A.S. in the Supreme Royal Arch Chapter. It is, however, in connection with the Mark Degree that our lamented brother deservedly reaped the fullest honours that could be bestowed on him. It will be in the recollection of every member of the Mark Degree that it was entirely through the personal popularity and esteem in which Bro. Callender was held by all that the union of the English and Scottish Mark Lodges was happily effected, and when therefore, Bro. Lord Limerick, the G.M.M., appointed him to the office of Deputy Grand Master of Mark Masons in England, it was acknowledged by all to be peculiarly appropriate. As the Prov. Grand Mark Master of Lancashire, Bro. Callender took a deep interest in the degree, and presided at every Provincial Grand Lodge. He was a member of the 31st, a P.E.C. of the Jerusalem Encampment of K.T., a member of the Rosicrucian College of the Northern Counties, a P.M.P.S. and Intendant General of the Red Cross of Constantine, and M.V. Grand President of the Order of High Priesthood for England. The Provincial Grand Lodge and Chapter of the Royal Order of Scotland for Lancashire and Cheshire have also to mourn the loss of their chief. His remains were interred at Heaton Mersey Church on Saturday, 29th January, and amongst all the floral tributes of affection which were placed on the coffin lid, none were offered with more genuine sympathy or more lasting regrets than the sprigs of acacia which fell from the hands of his brother Masons. Peace to his ashes. He rests from his labours, and his works do follow him.

BRO. G. B. ADAMS.

We deeply lament having to record the death of Bro. G. B. Adams, who expired at the Western Royal Infirmary, Glasgow, after a brief illness. His demise will be deeply felt by the Masonic brethren who knew him, and had the privilege of his acquaintance.

Most of those present at 30° Chapter remained for the ceremony of consecration, and to see the thirteen candidates afterwards advanced to the 18°. H.R.H. Prince Leopold staying to see Mr. Collins, his Equerry receive the degree. The musical part of the ceremony was very finely executed under the direction of Bros. C. E. Some further business was afterwards transacted, and a dinner was subsequently partaken of at Willis's Room, to which about fifty sat down. The whole of the ceremonies of the day were splendidly conducted, and were very impressive.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this institution was held on Tuesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Lieut.-Col. Creaton in the chair. Among the other members present were Bros. S. Rawson, Charles Lacey, Benj. Head, L. Stean, Capt. Wordsworth, John Constable, William Hilton, A. H. Tattershall, J. Newton, James Brett, J. Ebenezer Saunders, C. F. Hogard, Thos. Cubitt, H. M. Levy, Raynham W. Stewart, A. Lemaitre, Griffiths Smith, H. Massey ("Freemason") and James Terry, (Secretary).

The Secretary announced the death of three annuitants who had long been in the receipt of the benefits of the institution; also that there were 21 male and 33 female candidates for next election. The receipts for the female fund during 1875 were £4,131 and the expenditure £3,792 3s. 1d.; leaving a balance of £338 16s. 11d. The receipts for the male fund had been £5,668 3s. 9d.; and the disbursements £5,543 17s. 8d.; leaving a balance of £124 5s. 1d.

The committee then declared vacancies for 17 males and 10 females; and on the motion of the Chairman, it was resolved to put 10 more females on the fund.

The Finance Committee having recommended that £50 a year be added to the Secretary's salary, Bro. Terry left the room after the foregoing business had been transacted; and

The Chairman rose and said that in consequence of this recommendation, and that the matter might be brought on in order, he now begged to move it. He had very great pleasure in doing so, because he thought no one round the table saw more of the working of the Secretary's office than himself. Having seen so much he could say truthfully that since Bro. Terry had been Secretary he had done the work of the institution well. Not only had he increased the work of the office, but he had greatly added to the income of the institution. The income now was one third more than it was when Bro. Terry took the office of Secretary. It was not necessary to go further into the matter; and he would therefore move "That the salary of the Secretary be increased £50 per annum." (Cheers.)

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., seconded the motion. He also knew a great deal of the management of this institution, and he could say that they all owed a great deal to Bro. Terry for the proud position in which the institution now stood. A proof of this position lay in the fact of their having been that day able to put 10 additional women on the funds. That at least showed that there had been a great deal of ability on the part of Bro. Terry. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Terry, he was sure, had done the best that he could for the institution. When he (Bro. Stewart) served his first Stewardship it was thought a very poor thing if £500 was collected at a festival. Last year it was £8000 odd. He had now stood 27 Stewardships, and none knew better than he the working of the institution. He was very proud indeed to second the motion, because he felt that it was Bro. Terry who had so raised it. That brother had given his best support to the institution, and the brethren would all shew that they would support those who did good to the Masonic institutions. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. S. Rawson, Past District Grand Master, China, put the motion, which was then carried unanimously.

Bro. Terry having been called into the committee room, the Chairman, addressing him, said he had very great pleasure in informing him that the Committee had unanimously agreed to raise his salary £50 a year. The vote was quite unanimous, and he was sure Bro. Terry would appreciate it the more for being unanimous. He congratulated Bro. Terry on the event.

Bro. Terry said it was exceedingly gratifying to him that the vote had been passed unanimously. That certainly added to its value. If by any increased efforts on his part he could further the objects of the institution more than he had done already, the brethren might rely on his using increased efforts. (Cheers.)

Bro. Benjamin Head, P.G.D., said that though he did not happen to be present at the time the vote was passed, he heartily concurred in it, for he thought that Bro. Terry was well deserving of it. (Hear, hear.)

The brethren then separated.

In the Dublin Court of Exchequer, on Saturday, judgment was given in the cause "Attorney-General v. the Roman Catholic Bishop of Cork." It was decided by this judgment that bequests for masses for the repose of one's soul, to be celebrated in private, were not charitable, and that therefore legacy duty must be paid upon such bequests.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Common humanity suggests and public interests demand that the knowledge of the surest, safest, and quickest method of renewing soundness to the sick should be forced upon all unfortunate sufferers. For bad legs, bad breasts, and scrofulous or scrofulous sores, Holloway's medicines are specific. The grateful and earnest testimony of thousands who have experienced their unrivalled power over these complaints, and who have been raised from prostrate helplessness, and a condition loathsome to themselves and others, renders it quite unnecessary to enlarge in this place upon their extraordinary virtues. The affected part should be bathed with luke-warm water, and when the pores are opened the Ointment should be rubbed in twice a day all round the complaining parts.—ADVT.

Masonic and General Tidings.

Brighton maintains its pre-eminence as being the most healthy of the 20 English towns of which the Registrar-General now takes cognisance in his returns. Last week the rate in Brighton was 14, whilst at Manchester and Bradford it was as high as 34 per thousand.

The total receipts of revenue from April 1st, 1875, to February 5, 1876, were £62,379,697, against £61,133,635 in the corresponding period of the last financial year. The expenditure was £65,028,442, against £63,681,489 last year. The balance in the Bank of England on Saturday last was £1,672,839.

Preparations are being made at Malta on an extensive scale for the reception of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who will pay a visit to that place on his way home in the Serapis. A grand ball will be given in the Governor's palace to His Royal Highness, and another will be given by the officers of the fleet and the garrison. There will also be a ball on a very large scale given by the officers of the 42nd Royal Highlanders (the Black Watch). As their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Edinburgh and the Duke of Connaught will be present, the island will present a scene never before witnessed in that part of the world.

VALENTINES.—The Postmaster-General desires it to be known that the public would greatly assist the operations of the Post Office if they would be good enough to post their newspapers, letters, and valentines intended for despatch from London on Saturday earlier in the day than usual, to ensure their being forwarded by the night mails.

A sum of £84 2s. has been collected by Bro. Boord, 31°, M.P. for the Borough of Greenwich, in aid of the fund for the wives and families of the two arsenal workmen, named Young and Walstow, recently killed in the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich, by the explosion of a 9-inch Palliser shell.

A somewhat serious accident occurred on Monday last to Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Hardwicke, Master of the Queen's St. Hounds, and Prov. Grand Master for Cambridgeshire. The meet, which generally takes place on Tuesday, had been altered to Monday, as Lord Hardwicke was to have been in attendance on Her Majesty at the opening of Parliament. The hounds were at Maidenhead, and the deer on being uncared made in the direction of Winkfield. Soon after the hounds had been put on Lord Hardwicke, in jumping a fence, wrenched the muscles of his left thigh. At first he did not think that much was amiss, but the pain increased, and he had great difficulty in keeping on his horse. He managed, however, to get back to Slough Station, and returned to London by the 2.55 train.

We have been given to understand that H.M.S. Sultan, 9000 tons, one of the largest and most modern of our ironclads, is to immediately prepare for commission under the command of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, her present officers and crew being previously paid off at Portsmouth. Bro. Lord Charles Beresford, M.P., Prov. S.G.W. Devon, now with the Prince of Wales in India, who served with the Duke as lieutenant in the Galatea when she went to Australia, will be the commander. The Sultan ordinarily belongs to the Channel Squadron, but will cruise further afield under her Royal captain.

We are in a position to state, by a letter from a trustworthy source, that the story of Lord Ripon's gift of £10,000 to the Pope is without foundation. At least, neither His Holiness nor Lord Ripon would appear to have any knowledge of the affair.

The first meeting of the Board of Grand Stewards, in connection with the approaching Annual Grand Festival, was held at Freemasons' Hall on Thursday 3rd inst., when the following brethren were unanimously elected as officers, viz.:—Bros. G. N. Johnson, Lodge No. 1, President; G. R. Shervill, Lodge No. 23, Treasurer; C. J. Morgan, Lodge No. 8, Hon. Sec. At its close the meeting adjourned until Thursday, 17th inst.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, No. 548, at the White Swan, Deptford, on Monday, the 21st inst., when Bro. Govan Macdonald, S.W. 1158, will preside. Lodge will be opened at 7 o'clock precisely.

The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be rehearsed in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street, on Wednesday next, by Bros. Terry, G.D.C. Herts, and John Constable, P.M. 185.

SPECIAL JOINT COURT OF THE MASONIC SCHOOLS.

On Saturday last a Special Joint Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, was held in the Board room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Lieut. Col. Creton, P.G.D., Vice Patron of both institutions, was voted to the chair. The other brethren who were present were Bros. J. Symonds, H. Browne, John Wordsworth, Hyde Pullen, F. H. Ebsworth, S. Rawson, H. Massey ("Freemason"), Benj. Head, Raynham W. Stewart, Jesse Turner, W. Roebuck, Robert B. Webster, H. W. Hemsworth, W. Mann, H. A. Dubois, W. F. C. Moutrie, A. A. Richards, F. Binckes (Secretary Boys' School), and R. Wentworth Little (Secretary Girls' School).

The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the following notice of motion, by Bro. C. F. Matier:—"That any brother not serving the office of Steward, who may collect for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys the sum of fifty guineas, shall, when that sum is completed, be made a life subscriber, and have one vote for life, and should he collect a further sum of fifty guineas, shall, on the completion thereof, receive an additional vote, and so on for every fifty guineas he may collect."

Bro. Matier not being present to make the motion, it was moved formally by Bro. H. Browne, P.G.D., and seconded by Bro. S. Rawson, Past District G.M. of China.

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., urged several objections to the proposition, though he did not wish to move an amendment. He was afraid that brethren in the provinces collecting subscriptions though not Stewards, would be thrown into competition with those brethren who were acting as Stewards. He thought that before entering upon his duties as collector of fifty guineas, a brother should put himself into communication with the committee of either school. If he had been going to move an amendment he would have suggested that the following words be added as a clause to Law 75 of the two institutions:—"The committee may grant to any brother not serving the office of Steward who may collect and pay over the sum of fifty guineas the privilege of a life subscriber, with one vote at all elections for boys or girls, and an additional vote for any further sum of fifty guineas so collected and paid over." In the larger provinces perhaps, like Bro. Matier's province, it might not cause any inconvenience having two brethren collecting; but in the smaller provinces he thought that considerable inconvenience would arise. If the matter were placed first in the hands of the committees they would take care that justice was done to all parties.

Bro. H. Browne thought that if two brethren ran counter to each other in a province it was a matter personal to themselves, and they must set it right. It would be very much better to leave brethren wishing to collect subscriptions perfectly free and unfettered, and not to hamper them by placing them first in the hands of the committees. He could not see his way in putting Bro. Symonds's proposition in.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., was afraid that Bro. Symonds's suggestions if agreed to would fetter intending collectors, who ought to be perfectly free.

Bro. H. W. Hemsworth suggested, and at first introduced as an amendment, that instead of giving a brother collecting 50 guineas a vote at each election during his life, ten votes should be given him for the next election following his collection, and let the matter end there.

Bro. Jesse Turner seconded the amendment.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart thought this would be a most fatal mistake. All that was proposed to be done by the original motion was to give one vote at each election, and the brother who took the trouble to collect 50 guineas well deserved one vote at each election for that trouble. The Institution would be lowering themselves very much if they offered ten votes at one election only for 50 guineas collected.

Bro. John Symonds said he preferred the original motion to Bro. Hemsworth's amendment, although he himself had suggested an amendment. A vote for life was better than ten votes for one election.

Bro. H. Browne was opposed to hampering brethren collecting by reference to committees.

Bro. Hemsworth having stated that if Bro. Symonds would move his suggestion as an amendment he would second it, Bro. Symonds did so, and after it had been seconded by Bro. Hemsworth it was put by the Chairman and lost. The original motion was then put and carried, and a vote of thanks to Colonel Creton for presiding closed the proceedings.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., presided, and was supported by Bros. A. H. Diaper, W. Roebuck, Benj. Head, S. Rosenthal, H. Browne, John Symonds, Hyde Pullen, John W. Dennison, John Wordsworth, S. Rawson, W. Mann, Jesse Turner, Robert B. Webster, W. F. C. Moutrie, H. A. Dubois, W. Clifton Crick, J. W. Dosell, F. Adlard, J. G. Chancellor, A. A. Richards, F. H. Ebsworth, H. Massey ("Freemason"), and F. Binckes, Secretary.

After the formal business of reading and confirming minutes had been transacted, it was found there were no petitions from the friends of intending candidates, and no applications for outfits.

The matter of the purchase of the lease of Kent House, opposite the institution at Wood Green, for a sanitary and convalescent home for the pupils, was then mentioned for sanction, and the Chairman stated that the object of proposing to buy the lease of the house and grounds, and not the freehold, was that when the freehold came into the market the institution might purchase it at its proper value, which would be about twenty years' purchase. In consequence of the age of the freeholder, the property would probably soon come into the market, and the institution had a written offer that if they took the lease they should have the first offer of the freehold. If they had not the lease they would not have the refusal of the freehold; and when it was known that they wanted it the market price would go up considerably. The brethren must bear in mind that the property adjoined the Boys' School, and there was no property but their own close by. The house was well adapted for the purpose for which it was proposed it should be taken, as he and Bro. Browne, who had inspected it, could testify. It was just the sort of house that was required; it would be exceedingly useful, and would be at all times worth the money proposed to be given.

Bro. Robt. B. Webster proposed, and Bro. W. F. Clifton Moutrie seconded, the adoption of the recommendation of the House Committee that Kent House should be purchased.

Bro. Jesse Turner, notwithstanding the statement that by taking the lease the institution would at the proper time be able to get the freehold at a proper market price, could not help thinking that the price would go up. It was hardly reasonable to look forward to a time when the price would be cheaper than now. He quite concurred in the opinion of the Chairman that the building was most eligible and suitable for the proposed purpose; but he thought it would be a wise thing to purchase the freehold at once.

Bro. Binckes, in answer to enquiries, said the price of the freehold was £2000. Mr. Hall, the medical officer, had reported most favourably on the property.

The motion was carried unanimously, and the brethren separated.

A Special Court of this Institution's Governor's and Subscribers was held on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., V.P., presiding. The brethren present were Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, A. H. Diaper, W. Roebuck, Benjamin Head, John Boyd, Herbert Dicketts, F. Adlard, S. Rosenthal, H. Browne, Hyde Pullen, S. Rawson, W. F. C. Moutrie, W. Mann, H. A. Dubois, W. Clifton Crick, Robert B. Webster, A. A. Richards, John W. Dennison, J. G. Chancellor, J. W. Dosell, John Wordsworth, F. H. Ebsworth, Jesse Turner, H. Massey ("Freemason"), and F. Binckes (Secretary).

The meeting was called in compliance with a requisition addressed to the Secretary by a Trustee of the Institution, to consider a recommendation of the House Committee under a reference made to them by the General Committee:—"That with a view to provide the requisite sanitary and convalescent accommodation, the lease of the house and premises known as Kent House, situated opposite the Institution (an unexpired term of 88 years at £100 per annum), be purchased at a cost not exceeding £500."

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., moved the resolution.

Bro. H. Browne, P.G.D., seconded it, observing that obtaining Kent House as a sanitarium would be beneficial to the Institution.

The motion was carried, with the rider that the solicitors be instructed to act on behalf of the Institution.

Bro. Symonds observed that the place would now be taken as from Christmas last, the rent to commence from that term.

It was not deemed necessary to enter into any discussion with reference to the purchase of the lease, as the subject had been fully gone into at the General Committee which sat a short time previously to the Special Court.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman, and the brethren separated.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF HAMPSHIRE.

There was a numerous gathering of Royal Arch Freemasons at the Masonic Hall, Portsmouth, on Monday, the occasion being the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter. In the unavoidable absence of the Prov. Grand Superintendent, Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P.,—who was compelled to attend a special board meeting of the South Western Railway Company, of which he is a director—Comp. W. Hickman presided as Z., supported by Comps. J. E. Le Feuvre, E.; Lillywhite, Prin. Soj.; Frost, Treasurer; A. Cudlipp, Asst. Soj.; Cecil, D.C. The Principals present included Comps. Captain Hooper, Furber, H. Coles, Hare, and J. R. Weston, of Southampton; H. M. Emanuel, H. Cawte, T. Batchelor, E. Wells, G. Wilkins, E. G. Holbrook, Utdell, G. F. Lancaster, E. S. Main, S. R. Ellis, W. H. Ford, Craven, Tuohy, and Maltby; Loveland, Hillman (Havant). Among the other companions present were Warren and Stroud (Southampton); J. Wallingford, H. J. Guy, A. Riddell, Turney, Dr. Knott, J. S. Dyer, G. E. Lancaster, G. Norris, R. Newland, R. Barber, Gunnell, Yearworth, Willmott, Johns, Payne, Salter (Royal Sussex Chapter); James Collins and Cole (Chapter of Friendship); W. Tuck, G. Johnson, R. J. Rastwick, Gamblen, Osborne, W. Dance (Portsmouth Chapter), and others.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer's accounts for the past year were submitted, shewing—Receipts (including balance from 1874), £47 12s. 9d.; expenditure, £4 4s. 6d.; balance in hand, £43 8s. 3d. On the motion of Comp. E. G. Holbrook, seconded by Comp. W. H. Ford, the accounts were received, and Comp. Frost was subsequently unanimously re-elected Treasurer, for which he thanked the brethren. On the motion of Comp. Booth, seconded by Comp. T. Batchelor, a vote of thanks was accorded to Comp. Frost for his past services as Treasurer of the Provincial Grand Chapter.

The Acting Superintendent (Comp. Hickman) then announced that he had been requested by the Provincial Grand Superintendent to take the office of Second Principal, which request, he need hardly say, he had much pleasure in complying with.

The other officers were appointed as follows:—Comps. H. M. Emanuel, 342, J.; J. E. Le Feuvre, 130, S. E.; H. Coles, 359, S. N.; G. Wilkins, 342, P.S.; S. R. Ellis, 342, Past Asst. S.; R. J. Rastwick, 487, S. Asst. Soj.; M. E. Frost, 487, Treas.; R. Newland, 342, Reg.; G. F. Lancaster, 342, Swd. B.; German, 487, Std. Bearer; Forbes, P.Z., Dir. of Cers.; Osborne, 487, Org.; Biggs and Exell, Janitors.

The chapter having been closed with the usual ceremonies, about fifty of the companions adjourned to the banquetting-room, where a most recherche banquet was served by Bro. Sherman, of the Hard, Portsea. Comp. Hickman presided, and proposed the following toasts:—"The Queen, and Royal Arch Masonry;" "Three Grand Principals of the Supreme Grand Chapter of England;" and "The Grand Superintendent of the Province (Comp. Beach, M.P.)."

In giving the latter toast, Comp. Hickman said that the services of Comp. Beach were always at the disposal of the Provincial Grand Chapter, and of every lodge and chapter in the province. The fact of having so worthy a Mason to preside over its deliberations was a distinguished honour for the province, and he was sure they all regretted that another important engagement prevented Comp. Beach being present that day.

Comp. Forbes proposed "Comp. Hickman, Second Grand Principal of the Province."

Comp. G. F. Lancaster proposed "Comp. Emanuel, Third Grand Principal, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Chapter." Comp. Wilkins acknowledged the compliment.

Comp. M. E. Frost gave "The Past Officers of the Provincial Grand Chapter," and Comp. E. M. Wells responded.

"The Chapter of Friendship, 257" was acknowledged by Comp. Lillywhite; "The Chapter of Harmony, 309," by Comp. E. G. Holbrook; "The Royal Sussex Chapter, 342," by Comp. Main; and the Portsmouth Chapter, 487," by Comp. Cudlipp.

RECEPTION OF SIR W. W. WYNN, BART., M.P., PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER FOR NORTH WALES AND SHROPSHIRE, IN MALTA.

The regular meeting of the Lodge of St. John and St. Paul, No. 349, E.C., was held in the Masonic Hall, Valletta, on Monday, the 3rd January, 1876. Present: Bros. the Hon. W. Hylton Jolliffe, W.M.; Major H. Lyon Campbell, 30°, I.P.M.; Holmes, S.W.; Buckle, J.W.; Rosenbusch, P.M., Treas.; Cromey, Sec.; Watt, S.D.; Paulson, J.D.; Read, I.G.; Beck, Tyler; and the following brethren:—Bros. W. Kingston, D.G.M.; the Rev. M. C. Odell, D.D.G.M.; Col. A. Macdonald, P.M. 255, E.C.; J. Buchanan, P.M. 515, E.C.; J. Doherty, P.M., W. Rotherham, P.M., T. Bond, D.M., W. F. Taylor, P.M., Union Lodge, 407, E.C.; J. Bowers, W.M. Leinster Lodge, 387, J.C.

The lodge was opened in due and ancient form.

The W.M., officers, and brethren then received the R.W. D.G.M. of Malta with great honours.

The R.W.D.G.M. having assumed the chair, called upon the brethren to receive the R.W.P.G.M. for North Wales and Shropshire with grand honours—having entered, and on the Rev. Bro. Kingston's offering him the gavel, he courteously declined the same, and signified his wish that the business for which the lodge met might be proceeded with. Whereon the R.W.D.G.M. of Malta called upon W. Bro. Hon. Jolliffe, the W.M., to resume his chair, when Bro. Capt. H. Hamilton Beamish, R.N., H.M.S. "Pallas," was duly passed to the Second Degree, after which ceremony the lodge was reduced and closed.

At the banquet which followed, and after the usual loyal toasts, the D.G.M. for Malta, in proposing "The Health of the P.G.M. for Wales and Shropshire," expressed the pleasure he experienced by the attendance that evening of such a distinguished member of the Craft, and after wishing him a pleasant sojourn in Malta, concluded by calling on the brethren to drink the health of the R.W.P.G.M. for N. Wales and Shropshire with grand honours.

Bro. Sir W. Wynn, in returning thanks for the handsome manner in which the toast of his health had been proposed and received, assured the D.G.M. and brethren, that it afforded him infinite pleasure in attending and witnessing the admirable manner in which the ceremony had been performed by the W.M. that evening, and concluded by again thanking the brethren for the hearty welcome he received.

Bro. Sir W. Wynn then rose, and in a most flattering manner proposed "The Health of the R.W. the D.G.M. for Malta," congratulating him on the high position which his district held in the Craft, and bearing testimony to the fact that it was amongst the foremost in disseminating the true principles of the Order, besides being noted for the excellence of the working in the several degrees, and he concluded by wishing him personally, as well as the whole of the Masonic bodies in Malta, every success and prosperity.

The R.W.D.G.M., in returning thanks to Bro. Sir W. Wynn for proposing his health in such eulogistic terms, and the brethren for responding to the toast in such a cordial manner, said it was highly gratifying to hear his district spoken of in such high terms, especially by such a distinguished member of the Craft, and further, that during his twenty years' association with the Masonic bodies in the island he was proud to say that although his district could not claim to be a very influential one, yet he considered it second to none either in working or disseminating the genuine tenets of the system.

After "The Healths of the P.M.'s of the Lodge," with which was coupled the name of Bro. Major Lyon Campbell, 30°, and "The Visitors," coupled with the names of Bros. Col. Macdonald and Major Mounsey, were drank and duly responded to, the brethren separated.

RE-OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

As Freemasons, though we have nothing to do with the mere passing shadows of political complication, we are alike citizens and patriots, and have a right to express our opinions temperately on all matters affecting our common country, especially from a social point of view, and in respect of the first duty of all loyal subjects; for our Queen, our "Mater Patrie" is not only the sovereign of our native land, and, as such, claims our loyal attachment and obedience, on the great and unchanging principles of Freemasonry at all times and all circumstances, but she is to us the daughter of a brother of our Order,—the only representative in herself of an old Grand Master. We therefore, as a brotherhood, always peaceful and submissive to the laws, feel the warmest interest in all that appertains to her and her children, and her Royal House. Her opening of Parliament on Tuesday last was a subject of sincere rejoicing to all classes in the this vast metropolis, and, despite occasional sleet and a cold east wind, her greeting was as warm as if it had been veritable sunny Queen's weather. H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, the wife of our august Grand Master, was associated by a happy idea in this Royal and triumphant progress through the crowded streets, and the warm welcome of her faithful people will, we feel sure, have deeply gratified and cheered the Queen. Surrounded by her Royal "kith and kin," and amid the most brilliant assemblage in the world, she has opened the new session of Parliament, and in the words of that most simple, yet effective speech, we shall hope and pray that the deliberations of our great "Wittenagemot" may result, under God's blessing, in the happiness and contentment of her people.

MASONIC MEMENTOES.

That life is chequered we are taught in our lodge symbolism, that it has many mutations and reminders who of us can venture to deny? Hardly a week leaves us but old friends drop off, and familiar faces are missing in our lodges, and we look in vain for the "pleasant presence," the "stout heart," or the unwavering friend. The "Freemason" in its weekly annals of our Order tells us how brethren and companions pass away from time and Masonry, from their duties and their responsibilities. Their place on earth knows them no more; even the lodge of which they were such faithful members, the high office they so ably filled, all have no more interest for them. Their race is over, their work is done! Such thoughts as these, never inappropriate, seem to us specially seasonable just now amid our lodge assemblies and our charitable gatherings. The glare of the banquet, the fascination of things material, the sounds of music, the gaiety of the festive scene, all have a tendency to make us often only say, "carpe diem," often lead us to forget, which we never should do, even amid the pleasant flow of life's charms and courtesies, the "seria mista joci." When Longfellow sang of old "It is not always May," he set forth poetically a truth which lies deep in the personality of human life. Indeed, it is, so to say, an undying verity of humanity. Clouds and darkness sometimes dim the scene, the blue sky disappears, and the smiling hours of prosperity and happiness are exchanged for the gloomy moments of adversity and regret. Especially is this true as regards the almost weekly loss we have to note of old friends and good brethren. Death neither spares Freemasonry nor any other institution of earth, and often have we to deplore the departure of some well-known and valuable brother, the missing from our active assemblies of the high prestige, of the honourable name of social worth, of Masonic excellence. We have to lament as an Order generally, and our Lancashire brethren specially, the demise of our very zealous and esteemed Bro. Romaine Calender. He was well known in Masonry, and has long stood high in the opinion of those who best knew him, and saw the most of him. He had taken a warm interest in our brotherhood and our charities, and filled distinguished posts in our Order, and we are bound to notice the loss of one who had so far earned in the opinion of his fellow-citizens as to represent Manchester in Parliament, and who had gained the regard and affection of all his brother Masons. His funeral, we are told, was a very striking and a very impressive one, and we feel sure we are echoing the universal feeling of our Order when we say that his premature loss to public life and to Freemasonry is greatly to be lamented on our account, though we would hope, religiously or reverently, not on his own. But such, sooner or later, is the end of life for us all. We pass from our countinghouses and our clubs, our homes and our hospitality, our lodges and our labours, one by one, as the Grand Master of us all calls us hence. When our work is over, when our earthly lodge is closed, let us trust that there yet remains for us, and for all faithful Craftsmen, a better Grand Lodge above, where the "Great Architect who lives and reigns for ever," will admit us to its glories, and His own Divine presence.

THE POSITION AND PREROGATIVES OF PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGES.

In a very memorable pamphlet, to which reference was made in our last leader anent the Boys' School and the Province of West Yorkshire's so called "Investigation Committee," the writer takes up this peculiar position in respect of his province, that it is a "corporate body." We beg to say, in reply, that no Provincial Grand Lodge is, or can be, in any true sense of the words a "corporate body," except only as it is an aggregation, pro hac vice, of all provincial subscribing and duly qualified Freemasons. Constitutionally it is only an emanation, so to say, from the P.G.M. for the time being; just as the P.G.M. is only an emanation from the G.M., and the Provincial Grand Lodge only exists "bene placito" the P.G.M.; it lives with his life and will, it dies with his death and resignation. If the P.G.M. resigns or dies there is no provincial authority that can summon together the Provincial Grand Lodge; and as the powers of the D.P.G.M. have absolutely ceased under such circumstances, it can only be convened and ruled, if convened and ruled at all, in the interregnum, either by the Grand Registrar, or by a temporary and special appointment of a P.G.M. by the Grand Master. As we said before, the powers of the D.P.G.M. actually fall with the death or resignation of his Principal. There being no P.G.M. there can be no D.G.M. and there can be no meeting of the P.G. Lodge, which is thus rendered dormant and becomes defunct for the time, unless called into life again by a fresh appointment of a P.G.M., whether temporary or permanent, or by the Grand Registrar, who has received authority from the Grand Master to take charge of the province in the interim. That certain districts are called provinces, and known as such, is true, but that they only can meet and act pleno jure as Provincial Grand Lodges, under a P.G.M. or the Grand Registrar is incontestable. And though under the rule of the Grand Registrar the work of the province can go on, and the officers be annually elected, yet a province is not complete, neither is a Provincial Grand Lodge in full life, until it has a Provincial Grand Master. Thus the P.G.M. is practically the centre and the source of all provincial Masonic authority, work, and life. The theory, therefore, of the writer of the pamphlet, that a Provincial Grand Lodge is a "corporate body," is entirely an erroneous one, and destitute of any Masonic reality or constitutional foundation. Another proposition of the same writer is, that the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire could make a representation to the Grand Secretary and the Board of General Purposes, in reference to a dispute between it and the Committee of the Boys' School. Such a theory is almost really too absurd to deal with, though, as it has been gravely put forth, it requires we think noting and refutation here. The section of the Book of Constitutions referred to in support of such a supposed possibility of procedure is evidently sec. 18, page 25, though incorrectly given in the Pamphlet, but the construction placed on this section is perfectly puerile. It refers as text and context: then to a dispute between bona fide brethren, and can in no possible way be strained so as to refer to a Provincial Grand Lodge on the one hand, or a body like the Boys' School on the other, which is not, we may observe "en passant," purely Masonic, Ladies and Lewises being among its subscribing members. As we have previously pointed out neither a Provincial Grand Lodge, nor even Grand Lodge itself, on Lord Zetland dictum, possesses any rights as regards the Boys' School which subscribers have not! For all sums given, votes have been allowed, and even Grand Lodge itself we hold can only inquire into the proper appropriation of its annual vote. If the Province of West Yorkshire, which no doubt in times past has done great things for the school, and we are inclined to believe will still energetically support it, has any grievances, real or imaginary to ventilate, it must do so before the Quarterly Court, or at a General Committee meeting, or a special meeting of the institution. If West Yorkshire really believes in the wonderful report of its own committee, the appointment of which originally was unconstitutional, and we are quite sure would never have been allowed to take place in Lord Ripon's time, it must by its financial members, who are life governors, either move a direct vote of want of confidence in the executive, or for a special committee of enquiry, in the way pointed out by the rules and bye-laws of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys! We leave out of the question the actual legality of the committee itself according to the resolution of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, holden at Sheffield, though we are inclined to believe its whole proceedings are practically null and void owing to its absolutely illegal formation. A letter on the subject appears in our columns elsewhere, and if it be correct in its statement it raises a most serious question as to the legality of the committee "ab initio." But this by the way. Let West Yorkshire manfully make those allegations where they can be fully answered, and in the mean time in the interest of Freemasonry, of fair play, of gentlemanly feeling, and brotherly love, let these libellous pamphlets be suppressed by the proper provincial authority.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA.

We call attention to the circular in another column relative to this forthcoming work, as well as to a quasi specimen page. By this it will appear that this work will be published July 1st this year, and that the subscription list will close June 1st. The goodly list of subscribers we publish shows that there is an increasing interest in our Order for purely archaeological Masonic works, and we feel sure, that such publications will tend more than anything else to advance Masonic studies and correct Masonic errors.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We congratulate the Craft most sincerely on the result of the first great Masonic charitable gathering for 1876, under our most popular Deputy Grand Master Lord Skelmersdale. The amount reached £9174 10s. 6d., of this over £1500 came from Lord Skelmersdale's own province. We sincerely congratulate Bro. Terry. We shall recur to the subject in our next.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As all Masons are, or ought to be, fond of the ladies, I suppose you will have no objection to allow me to make use of your paper as a medium to expose the very great grievance under which they suffer, and which causes many an angry word and unkind thought in homes where love only should dwell. If we attend to the duties of the institution to which we belong we are compelled to desert our firesides of an evening, and leave our wives and daughters many weary hours, especially the former, anxiously awaiting our return. Being a convivial body, we seldom meet without a social glass, and generally a supper or banquet. Now this is all very well; but surely we owe something to our better halves to requite them for their patience; we should make some return, and not keep all the good things to ourselves. We are ready enough to put our hands in our pockets for an extra feed for ourselves, or indeed to help in a case of distress, but we quite forget that our wives are as fond of the good things of the world as we are, and would doubly appreciate any pleasure we could give them, especially when shared with their husbands. Therefore I say let us drop this very selfish manner of keeping all the enjoyments to ourselves, and give them a ball, a picnic, or a garden party now and then, and I am sure we should find one and all of us with happier hearths and kinder words to greet us; and last, not least, we should find the funds of our several institutions increase immensely, the more thought, care, and consideration we bestowed on those nearest and dearest to us. I will heartily make one to place these small matters on a right footing, and my name can be obtained from you.

Believe me, yours fraternally,

SINCERITY.

WAS THE INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE OF WEST YORKSHIRE LEGALLY APPOINTED?

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It appears to me that the so-called Investigation Committee which has recently made its report at Leeds is altogether an illegal body, and has no proper or constitutional existence. The original resolution of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, at Sheffield, was that the Provincial Grand Lodge appoint a Committee of twelve, six from Charity Committee, and six from Provincial Grand Officers, if I remember right, or from the Provincial Grand Lodge generally. It matters not which.

But this committee of 12 has been practically appointed by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in the name of the P.G.M.

He says in his pamphlet that it was "understood" in Provincial Grand Lodge that the Provincial Grand Master should appoint. But an understanding is not a resolution and I beg to express my opinion, that according to all Masonic usage, this nominated committee is a non-lawfully appointed body, without any constitutional authority, without even a rightful basis.

Consequently all its acts are valueless, and it has no power to meet or make a report, and its report ought never to have been adopted by Provincial Grand Lodge.

I notice another point in the printed minutes which appear in the pamphlet. The committee is represented as passing a resolution to remunerate the Secretary for his services. The committee has no such power except by way of recommendation, the Provincial Grand Lodge being the sole judge of what is for the "honour and dignity of the Provincial Grand Lodge," and any payments made without the sanction of Provincial Grand Lodge are ipso facto illegal and unwarranted.

I hope somebody will clear up all this "Embroglio," and please many others as well as yours fraternally and obediently,

FAIR PLAY.

MASTER MASONS' JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A short time ago a correspondence took place through the medium of your valuable paper upon a jewel called the "five-pointed star." The opinions of some brethren held that it was a "correct jewel" for a M.M. to wear in a Craft lodge, should he feel inclined to do so; others that it was "incorrect." Now which side is right in their views? The subject subsided without the point being finally settled one way or the other, thus leaving an open doubt upon the minds of hundreds of the brethren who would not like to wear an "incorrect" jewel, but who would have no hesitation to wear it if "correct."

A few days ago a catalogue from one of the Masonic depôts came into my hands, and amongst the items appears the following—

JEWELS FOR MASTER MASONS.

Crystal Square and Compasses	£	s.	d.
	0	18	6

Will you kindly inform me if this jewel is one which a Master Mason may correctly append to his breast, and wear in his Craft lodge, or whether there is the same doubt attached to the jewel of the "square and compasses" as the "five-pointed star," or whether "there is" or "is not" a jewel attached to or appertaining to the Sublime Degree of a M.M.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

A MASTER MASON.

[We have already expressed our humble opinion that according to the Book of Constitutions a jewel appertaining to the Master Mason Degree can lawfully be worn in lodge.—Ed.]

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

We are being repeatedly reminded that although the subscriptions to our Charities amount to a total to be proud of, yet they are not sufficient to give immediate relief to every deserving case. The thought has just occurred to me that as we have several talented brethren amongst us, would not some of them volunteer to give a benefit for the Masonic Charities? If this was done I think an entertainment could be arranged which would again fill the Albert Hall. I have no doubt that if some influential brother or brethren would take the matter up that such gentlemen as Bro. F. Burgess of the Moore and Burgess minstrels, and other noted professionals, would heartily give it their support, and a further attraction might be added by getting permission for the Masonic brethren who may attend to wear their Masonic clothing. Having given the subject vent, I trust that other brethren will take the matter up, or suggest some other plan for increasing the funds of our charitable institutions.

P.M. 1437.

BYE-LAWS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A certain Royal Arch Chapter, in England, has amongst its bye-laws the following:—"That no companion shall be proposed to become a member of the chapter, unless he be at the time of his proposition a member of the lodge (to which this chapter is attached), and when any brother shall be admitted a member of the lodge, he shall, if he be at the time of his admission a Royal Arch Mason, be considered a member of the chapter without further proposition or ballot."

Another bye-law provides that the resignation in the lodge shall, to all intents and purposes, carry resignation in the chapter."

Is not such a bye-law, as first quoted, a violation of the regulation of Grand Chapter, No. 22, p.p. 19 and 20 which enacts that, "candidates for admission into a chapter must be duly proposed, approved, and balloted for; and no one shall be admitted, if, on the ballot, there appear more than two negatives." Therefore, Grand Chapter says, "there shall be a ballot." A private chapter says "it is unnecessary."

This same chapter says, "That all donations, profit, or income accruing to this chapter, shall, after paying all fees and expenses, be paid to the Treasurer of the lodge, to be carried to the funds of the said lodge." How far is this with unison with Grand Chapter regulations, No. 12, (p. 18). "The cash or Treasurer's accounts of the chapter shall be kept distinct and separate from that of the lodge to which the chapter is attached."

Of course this regulation does not say what shall be done with the balance or profit of a private chapter; but would it not be more in accordance with the spirit of Grand Chapter for a private chapter to transfer its balance by a regular open vote, from time to time, as it may be so disposed. Grand Chapter clearly means a chapter to be distinct from the lodge, yet this particular chapter mixes them and binds its bye-laws with those of the lodge. Rather singular to say, the printed copy of these bye-laws does not indicate that they were ever officially "approved."

The lodge (referred to) issues its summonses per half-penny post—open at ends—for inspection. Post Office officials are in duty bound to examine (more or less) such packets. Is not this publishing with a vengeance?—notwithstanding Grand Lodge Constitutions (art. 3, p. 80), which never anticipated such a publication.

Another remark, and I am done, throughout the book by-law is rendered bye-law. Does not this suggest the whole production to belong to the fossil age? Possibly this gives a clue, I should like your opinion. Kindly give it, and oblige. "Gy." P.S. "Happy thought," try bye-law at a Spelling Bee.

FRATER.

[We agree with our "Frater." The bye-law is unconstitutional. With regard to by or bye-law, doctors differ.—Ed.]

AFFILIATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

In the case of a brother holding a certificate from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, (but having been initiated, passed, and raised in a single night, an irregularity still practised in some Scotch Lodges) wishing to be affiliated to an English lodge, does the article in the Constitutions referring to this irregularity debar him from being affiliated. Yours fraternally,

ENFANT D'HIRAN.

Corrections of a paragraph in the "Freemason," of December 18th, 1875, under the heading of the "Urban Club." The name of the owner of St. John's Gate is Sir Edmund Lechmere, not Sir Edmund Lechmere. He has no "Steward" there, but pending some arrangements being now made for letting the tavern, the business is managed by Mr. Gay. Sir Edmund Lechmere is not "Master of the Knights of St. John," nor is there any such office. The Duke of Manchester is the head of the Order, under the title of Lord Prior.

CONSECRATION OF THE NEW CROSS LODGE, No. 1559.

On the pleasant High-road between London and the fields which indicate the entrance of the sojourner into the "Garden of England" a new lodge, named after the locality in which it is situated, was consecrated on the 2nd inst. by our Bro. James Terry, who exercised to the utmost that precision of ritual for which he has been now for many years famous. The home of the new lodge is not at a tavern, but at a hall, and, with the advantages of a lodge meeting at a hall, those who were present at this gathering had, as might be expected, a few inconveniences arising from dining in a hostless hall—for landlords have made themselves so necessary, that many people feel like lost sheep without them. The hall is called the "New Cross Public Hall," and is on the Upper Lewisham-road, New Cross, near to the spot to which the thirsty legions of the Roman Emperor traced the raven in its morning flight, and gave the newly-found stream which now flows muddily by the name of "The Ravensbourne." The new hall itself is a fine place, but the little hall which was consecrated to the purposes of a lodge is dwarfed in comparison, and was quite unadorned, so that the handsome furniture from Bro. G. Kenning was welcomed by the eye as a necessary garniture to the apartment, filled as it was, too, by officers of many Provincial Grand Lodges, who had come to do honour to the new birth, and the rich colours of the clothing needed the solid workmanship of the lodge furniture to break the contrast between the jewelled brethren and the unfinished walls of the room.

The first new officer designate was Bro. W. B. Woodman, who was to have been S.W., but with great spirit took the first Mastership, when Bro. Thiclay, the present W.M. of the Prudent Brethren, found his election to the chair in his brother lodge would preclude his occupying the chair at New Cross. Bro. Thiclay took the position of S.W. designate, thus giving an example, showing that rulers in the Craft can become the ruled. The J.W. designate was Bro. W. A. Simmons, a young and promising Mason. Frederick Walters, of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, was the Treasurer designate, and H. Keeble the Secretary. The S.D. was Bro. Louis Beck, whose sleepless London Scottish band aroused the sleepers of the volunteer camp on Wimbledon Common many a July morning with the wild scream of northern "music," and soothed the nerves of the shooters in the afternoon siesta with the sweet strains, under the "bell tent," of those instruments congenial to southern ears. Bro. H. J. Green was J.D.; Bro. W. Kipps, Org.; and Bro. Wm. Hardman, I.G. The usual formalities were gone through, and the brethren of the new lodge signified their acceptance of these officers. The ceremony of consecration was performed in Bro. Terry's most eloquent and impressive manner, and Bro. Kipps presided at the organ with excellent effect. The experienced Masons who were sharing in the ceremony lent their aid—Bro. Sabine, P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, as Director of the Ceremonies; Bro. Colles, P. Prov. Grand Chaplain of Oxfordshire, as Chaplain; and Bro. Hubback and C. Hogg, P.G.S., assisting in the work. It is unnecessary to describe the ceremony, for those who have seen Bro. Terry work this ceremony do not want to be told about it; those who have not, should see it, and those who are not qualified to see it cannot be told the details through these columns. It will suffice to say that all the parts were perfectly rendered.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. P. Colles delivered the oration, and from this excellent discourse we give a few excerpts. He said,—To all whom I see around, assembled in your several Orders, and attired according to your different degrees and offices, I now rise at the command of our Installing Master, to deliver the customary oration at the solemn dedication of a new Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. This dedication and consecration ought not to be looked upon by any of you as a mere lifeless Form, but as a living Reality. The scene in which we have been engaged is like those in which the leaders of old Israel engaged the people. We read in the volume of the Sacred Law how Joshua "made a covenant with the people . . . and set them a statute, and an ordinance in Shechem." That covenant was, as you all know, to serve the Lord. Joshua said,—"As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord," and the people answered and said, "God forbid that we should forsake the Lord." In confirmation of this covenant Joshua not only "wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God," but "took a great stone and set it up there under an oak that was by the sanctuary of the Lord." He said, moreover, "This stone shall be a witness unto us." Here, then, we have the principle of Masonic union symbolised by a Masonic sign. The first stone of a Masonic lodge is laid on a Masonic principle, and in witness of a belief in God, of a willing service to that God. The principles of Freemasonry are universal and eternal. As the Great Architect of the Universe "spreadeth out the heavens like a curtain," and "layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters," who "hath founded the earth upon the seas and prepared it upon the floods," so he hath built the soul of each man of the whole human race on principles which are everywhere accepted as far as those heavens and seas and lands do stretch. If the principles of Freemasonry were only accepted in England or France, or even in Europe generally, they could not be called universal; if they had only been discovered by sages or philosophers of certain countries at a late time of the world's history they could not be called eternal. But I say that there is no country and no time where or when these principles are not and have not been acknowledged. Ahab, King of Israel, though an evil king, yet on one most notable occasion, was moved by a truly Masonic principle to show mercy to his enemy. When Benhadad, King of Syria was in the power of Ahab, he sent messengers to Ahab, saying, "Thy servant Benhadad saith, I pray thee let me live." Ahab said "Is he yet alive? He is my brother." The men caught at the words "my brother"—they proved the meaning of them on the heart of him who uttered them, and they said "Thy Brother, Benhadad." The words were enough, and the captive monarch was sent away in safety after he had made suitable terms with Ahab. This story shows the power of the principles of Freemasonry. Brotherly love, relief, and truth, are eternal, universal principles. But it may be said—if this is so, what is the use of a system like ours? I reply to this by another question. If the earth is blessed by its Great Architect where is the use of the farmer or the gardener? The answer is easy; as in the latter case the qualities of the earth need to be shaped, and moulded, and applied, so the principles of good in the human heart need to be directed and shaped in proper form. The object of the Masonic art is to do this. As the material Mason carves the stone, and enriches the hewn stone, so the speculative Mason adorns the human race, not by making new principles, but by exhibiting that which is hidden in the breasts of all men, and needs only the tools of the Master to be brought to light. The stone exists in the mountain, but it must be quarried out for use and ornament. To remove suspicion and jealousy is another duty of the Mason. The great Lord Bacon, the father of modern philosophy, hath well said "A crowd is not company; and faces are but a gallery of pictures; and talk but a tinkling cymbal, where there is no love. The Latin adage meeteth it—Magna civitas magna solitudo—because in a great town friends are scattered, so that there is not that fellowship which, for the most part, is in less populous neighbourhoods. But we may go further and affirm most truly that it is a mere and miserable solitude to want true friends, without which the world is but a wilderness; and even in this sense also of solitude, whosoever in the frame of his nature and affection is unfit for friendship he taketh it of the beast and not from humanity." You will all admit the truth of these words. So we as Masons have to strip ourselves of all unreasonable suspicion of other men, and be ever ready to give the right hand of fellowship to all other human beings, especially to those who, like ourselves, are, as Masons, trying to discover the principles of that architecture according to which the great human temple is built. But we must erect this temple with solid material. When we lay the foundation of the lodge we must not, like a dishonest contractor, do it with rubbish, but with good stone. True knowledge will be necessary to adorn your position as living stones of this great temple, of which we are both the workmen and materials. The reverend brother enforced his views at greater length, and sat down amid marks of warm approbation.

Bro. Terry then proceeded with the ceremony, and the lodge being opened in the higher degrees, Bro. Woodman was installed and proclaimed, the whole work being performed by the Installing Master. The brethren designated as the officers were then appointed in the order given above, and the addresses having been given, the lodge proceeded to its first business. Thanks and honorary membership were voted unanimously to Bros. Terry, Colles, Sabine, and Kipps, for their services that day, and thanks to Bros. Hubback and Hogg.

The lodge being closed the brethren dined together, in greatly diminished numbers, for the hour was late, and trains are few from this interesting suburb. Amongst those who stayed were the brothers whose names have been mentioned, and Bro. Keeble, sen., a Mason of more than half-a-century, Bro. H. Francis, P.G.S.D. of Surrey; J. T. Moss, P.G.S. Middlesex; W. Smeed, P.G.J.W. Middlesex; John While, W.M. 228 ("Freemason"); Levy, P.M. 188, and H. Hyman, J. Wright, P.M. 1158; and others. The eloquence of the evening had to be shortened very considerably, and the proceedings were enlivened with music by Bro. Kipps, and singing by Bro. Louis Beck, who possesses the grace of a Scotchman, the vivacity of a Frenchman, and the humour of an Irishman. "The Master's Health" was warmly toasted, as were the healths of the officers and visitors, and the evening closed just too late for the last train to London.

CONSECRATION OF THE DEE LODGE, PARKGATE.

The astonishing progress of Freemasonry is a well-established fact in every province in England, and Cheshire, which enjoys the Masonic rule of Bro. the R.H. Lord De Tabley, the R.W.P.G.M., has done its best to maintain its proper place in the onward march, and this with the most abundant success. The consecration of the Dee Lodge, No. 1576, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., added another stone to the already substantial Masonic structure raised by the province of Cheshire, and as it is placed in the centre of a large district, where there are many good men and true Masons, it has every prospect of maintaining the credit and standing of the ancient and honourable Order. The consecration ceremony, which took place at the Union Hotel, Parkgate, about midway between Chester and Birkenhead, where it is intended the usual meetings will be held, is always an interesting one to the Fraternity, but it was specially so on this occasion by reason of the presence of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W.P.G.M., who is honoured by every brother in the extensive province of Cheshire. The presence of his lordship as consecrating officer naturally attracted a distinguished attendance of Prov. G.L. Officers, amongst whom were Bros. J. S. Darvell, P.G.C.; G. W. Latham, P.G. Reg., acting P.D.G.M.; J. Platt, P.P.G.J.W.; E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Sec.; C. Dutton, P.P.G.S.W.; T. Platt, P.P.G.J.D.; E. Friend, P.P.G.J.D.; J. W. Eardley, P.G.D.C.; J. Travis, P.G.O.; W. Goodacre, P.P.G.P.; S. Spratley, P.P.G.S.D.; H. A. Bennett, P.G.J.W.; M. H. Bradley, P.G.S.; G. Hesketh, P.G.S.; J. Salmon, P.P.G.S.D.; R. T. Bowden, P.G.S. of W.; J. E. Williams, P.G.S.D.; and P. Hadswoth, P.G.A.D.C. There was also a numerous attendance of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, officers, and members of lodges in Cheshire and West Lancashire, amongst whom were Bros. W. Vaughan, W.M. 724; W. Vines, P.M. 220; W. Shortis, P.M. 724; W. Cottrell, P.M. 823; T. Shaw, W.M. 823; J. S. Cuthbert, J.D. 823; J. G. Adam, W.M. 477; P. Armstrong, I.G. 724; F. L. Bolton, W.M. 1289; M. McNeerney, W.M. 605; J. Thompson, 477; W. Simmons, 477; A. Mitchell, 477; W. M. Asher, 477; N. Dumville, P.M. 152; W. Grocott, 605; J. Dutton, J.W. 477; T. Leighton, P.M., Sec. 605; J. Penin, 477; J. H. Hollaway, 477; W. J. Lewis, 193; E. Burns, 1219; J. Barrow, 1289; F. Smith, P.M. 201; G. Cook, 477; W. Lownsbrough, 823; F. Cumelle, 667; L. Ellis, P.M. 1289; E. Kerr, 191; M. Stafford, 361; R. Ellison, 721; W. Williams, 1276; the Rev. W. H. Harpur, 944; and others. The lodge room at the "Union" is exceedingly compact and chaste decorated, and the furnishing of the lodge, part of which was done by Bro. George Kenning, was in excellent keeping with the room.

The brethren assembled in the lodge room shortly after one o'clock, when the chair was taken by Bro. Thomas Chesworth, P.M., Treasurer 724, the W.M. designate, Bro. L. Ellis occupying the S.W.'s chair, and Bro. J. Adam that of the J.W. The lodge was then duly opened in the Three Degrees, and the P.G.L. was then received with solemn music, the P.G.M. (Lord De Tabley) being greeted with the usual honours. The invocation and consecration prayers were offered by the Rev. J. Sydney Darvell, and the petition and warrant having been read by the P.G. Secretary, Bro. H. E. Griffiths, the P.G.M. proceeded to consecrate the lodge according to ancient custom. The corn, wine, oil, and salt were respectively carried by Bros. W. Shortis, P.M. 724; T. Shaw, W.M. 823; W. Vines, P.M. 220; and W. Cottrell, P.M. 823. Bro. Travis presided at the harmonium, and the musical portion of the ceremony was performed by Bro. Dumville, P.M. 152, and others. Bro. Latham, P.G. Registrar, acting as D.P.G.M., also assisted in the ceremony.

After this portion of the proceedings, Bro. W. Goodacre proceeded to instal Bro. Thomas Chesworth, P.M., Treas.

724, as the first W.M. of the Dee Lodge, a ceremony which he performed in a most impressive manner. The following were the officers invested:—Bros. the Rev. W. H. Harpur, S.W.; T. Field, J.W. (by proxy); F. Needham, Treas. and S.D.; N. J. Lewis, Sec.; W. Carr, J.D.; A. Lawrence, I.G.; and M. Williamson, Tyler pro. tem.

Bro. Lord De Tabley, addressing the brethren, said it gave him great gratification to be present that day to assist at the consecration of the Dee Lodge. He trusted it would have a prosperous career, that the members would enjoy a continuance of the success which had marked the beginning of their existence, and that the lodge would be an honour to the great phalanx of Masonic lodges all over the world. From what he had seen that day he had no doubt that the lodge would have a long and prosperous existence, and, as he had done on former occasions, he counselled the brethren to be exceedingly careful as to the men they admitted to their ranks. He had every faith that this would be done, and he trusted the Supreme Architect might counsel and direct them in all their lawful undertakings.

A large number of propositions for joining and initiation were subsequently made, and hearty good wishes were expressed for the W.M. by every lodge represented. The lodge was then closed in solemn form.

An excellent banquet was subsequently served in the Assembly Rooms, Parkgate, the catering of Bro. Acton, of the Union Hotel, giving complete satisfaction. The room was chaste decorated with flags and banners, and amongst the inscriptions on the walls were—"Welcome to Lord De Tabley," "Success to the Dee Lodge," "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." The W.M., Bro. Chesworth, presided, and amongst those present were Bro. Lord De Tabley and nearly all the Provincial Grand Lodge Officers who assisted at the ceremony of the afternoon. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and cordially responded to.

The W.M., Bro. Chesworth, in proposing "Lord De Tabley, R.W.P.G.M. for Cheshire," said he gave that toast with the greatest pleasure, because he was sure every one must have felt that day that his lordship had conferred a great honour by personally consecrating the lodge. (Applause.) They knew he took the greatest interest in Freemasonry, and sometimes at great inconvenience attended on occasions like that to perform his Masonic duties. The toast was honoured with great enthusiasm.

Bro. Lord De Tabley, who was received with renewed enthusiasm, said that after the words he had made use of in the lodge he would not trouble them with any long address. He was happy to be in a position to renew his thanks for the kind reception he had met with, and to thank the W.M. and officers of the Dee Lodge for the munificent and hospitable way in which they had received him and the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge. He again wished the lodge the greatest prosperity. It was an honour for him to preside over a province like Cheshire, where there were so many loyal and worthy Masons, and he therefore tried at all times to do his duty to the best of his skill and ability. (Loud cheers.)

Amongst the remaining toasts were "The Installing Master," responded to by Bro. W. Goodacre; and "The Clergy," which was acknowledged by Bro. the Rev. W. H. Harpur, S.W., formerly Chap. to the Grand Lodge of India. He spoke of the magnificent reception given to the M.W.G.M. in that vast country, and expressed his opinion that Masonry was doing quite as much for the people there as that achieved by the missionaries. When he as a clergyman, and they as Masonic brethren, could sit down at the same table with Hindoos, Parsees, and Mussulmen in a social way, thereby breaking down the divisions in a manner which the missionaries had never done, he thought he was right in the assertion which he had made. (Hear, hear.)

"Bro. Cornwall Leigh, M.P., D.P.G.M., and the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," was responded to by Bro. Darvell, P.G.C., and Bro. F. Friend, P. Prov. G.J.D. "The Visitors" was acknowledged by Bros. Bolton, Vaughan, Vines, Shortis, Cottrell, and others, "The Worshipful Master," proposed by Bro. Platt, and responded to in an excellent speech by Bro. Chesworth. "The Officers," acknowledged by Bro. Needham, Treas. and S.D.; "The Masonic Charities," responded to by the J. P. Platt, Vines, Vaughan, and Needham; and the Tyler's toast completed the list.

OMAGH.—Lodge Concord (No. 332) met at the Masonic Hall on Thursday evening, 3rd inst. Bro. A. C. Buchanan, W.M., in the chair, and presented a valuable jewel to the late Treasurer and Secretary of the lodge, Bro. W. J. Palmer, P.M., P.G.S.D. Kent, on his removal to Armagh. Bro. T. C. Dickie, P.M., proposed, and Bro. F. J. West, P.M., P.Z., P.G.S. of Works Tyrone and Fermanagh, seconded a resolution recording on the minutes the valuable services rendered to the lodge by the late Secretary, and the regret of the brethren at his departure from the county. The brethren afterwards entertained Bro. Palmer at dinner at the White Hart Hotel, which was served in host Bro. W. Mullin's best style. The W.M. presided, and Bro. W. F. Black, P.M., P.Z., P.G. Treas. Tyrone and Fermanagh, occupied the vice-chair. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, "The Health of Bro. Palmer" was proposed by the W.M. in very flattering terms, and acknowledged in a most appropriate manner. That of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bro. French, of Cappagh Lodge, No. 350, who conveyed to Concord Lodge the best wishes of Bro. Commander C. Scott, R.N., P.M., P.Z. 33, also Bro. Scott's regret at being unable to attend. "The Tyler's" toast was generously responded to, and the brethren separated at an early hour, having spent a most agreeable evening.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FOR AGED FREEMASONS AND WIDOWS OF FREEMASONS, CROYDON.

The annual festival of this Institution was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Tavern. Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and Prov. G.M. for West Lancashire, presided. From an early period of the evening there were indications of the festival being a great success, the gallery filling with ladies soon after it was opened. The Stewards were very numerous, and lined all the passages from Freemasons' Hall to the banqueting-room. When the visitors were admitted the dining hall was soon filled, and when his lordship took the chair, which he did, accompanied by the Stewards, shortly after six o'clock the hall was full. Excepting when the Prince of Wales took the chair for this institution there has never been so large an assemblage at this first festival of the year, and the brethren who were present predicted an unrivalled result for Bro. Terry. They did not, however, anticipate such a result as was ultimately found to be the case, and when the announcement was made, as will be seen below, the brethren were fairly astonished. To give a complete list of the brethren present would be impossible, but as nearly as we could ascertain, the following were among the brethren present:—Rev. J. Edmund Cox, D.D., P.G.C.; Rev. C. J. Martyn, J.G.C.; Benjamin Head, P.G.D.; F. P. Morrell, P.G.D.; Robert Grey, J.G.D.; Henry Grissell, P.G.D.; Thomas Fenn, P.G.D.; Thomas Jowitt, P.G.M. Hertfordshire; J. M. P. Montagu, D.P.G.M. Dorset; Andrew Hay, P.D.D.G.M. Bombay; E. J. Morris, D.P.G.M. South Wales Eastern Division; Dr. Strong, Hon. Surgeon to the Institution; John Herve, Lieut.-Col.-Creton, S. L. Tomkins, P.G.D.; Lieut.-Gen. Sir Edward Green, K.C.B.; Raynham W. Stewart, R. J. Spiers, P.G.S.B.; J. D. Moore, M.D., P.G.S.B.; Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P.; John Coutts, P.G.P.; W. H. Lucia, P.G. Secretary Suffolk; Rev. R. Evans, Lieut.-Col. T Birchall, Prescott, H. L. Alpass, Major Wilson, Deeley, Charles Fryer, Clement Stretton, P.P.G.W. Leicester; H. C. Toombs, P.G. Secretary Wilts; F. Binckes, R. W. Little, James Terry.

Most of the Stewards, whose names were given by us last week, were also present. Altogether about 400 brethren were present, and over 200 ladies.

The Chairman, in proposing "The Health of the Queen," said—"The first toast that I have to give you this evening is 'The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen,' the patroness of our Order. This is a toast that is never more loyally drunk than at an assembly of the brethren. I am sure all here present must rejoice that Her Majesty has thought fit once more to appear among us, and I am sure you will re-echo the wish that she may continue to do so year by year. All of us who had the privilege of seeing her yesterday in health, and also surrounded as she was by her daughters and daughter-in-law, certainly had this wish.

The toast was followed by "God Save the Queen."

The Chairman said—"The next toast I have the honour to propose is 'The Health of the M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales,' not only as G.M., but also as Patron and President of the Institution whose festival we are keeping this day; also 'The Health of the Princess of Wales and the other members of the Royal Family.' I am sure that we must all look forward to the day on which our M.W.G.M. will return to this country. After the glorious success of his visit to India anything that we can do will seem but poor in comparison with the splendour that he has seen there; but as far as a hearty welcome goes, what he will receive from the brethren especially will be far greater than any he has hitherto had. We must all admire the way in which he has gone through the heavy, the hard, the arduous task that he has set himself. Thank God, he has had good health throughout, and thank God, our future King has such a constitution as has enabled him to withstand that terrible climate. Brethren, I need not speak to you of the Prince of Wales as a Mason, for we all know how thoroughly, how deeply, he has the interests of the Craft at heart. Long may he continue to rule over us; long may that lovely Princess live to rule with him. We saw her yesterday in the ceremony, having travelled a long distance simply with the idea of appearing in company with Her Majesty the Queen, to show that though the Prince of Wales was away from us her heart was with us still, and that though he might be away she was there to represent him. (The speech, which was frequently interrupted by loud applause, was followed by "God Bless the Prince of Wales.")

The Chairman: The next toast I have the honour to propose to you is "The Health of the M.W. Pro G. Master, the Earl of Carnarvon." (Cheers.) I need say but few words to commend him to your notice. He is well known among you. We all know how he came forward last year in a time of grief to perform that duty which he so ably fulfilled in the Albert Hall. Brethren, without saying more I give you "The Health of the Pro G.M." (Applause.)

The Rev. J. Edmund Cox, D.D., P.G.C.: As the senior Past Grand Officer of the Grand Lodge present to-night, the duty devolves upon me to propose a toast for your consideration which I feel persuaded will meet with the utmost enthusiasm by one and all of the brethren whom I see before me. I have only to name that it is "The Health of the Right Hon. the noble Lord who this night presides over the Festival of the Institution, the D.G.M. of this country," to insure a hearty response from yourselves. (Great cheering.) Firmly do I believe, and I am sure that you yourselves are as strong in that belief as I am myself, that had H.R.H. the Prince of Wales sought throughout the whole length and breadth of this country, throughout every province of the country, he could not have put his hand upon a brother more suited for that office than the nobleman who so thoroughly and Masonically fulfils its duties. His lordship possesses, as all who know him must be aware, the great essentials for the office he holds, for he has wisdom to comprehend, he has judgment to define, and he has ability to execute our Masonic laws. We know also that in every respect he is true and trusty, most thoroughly easy of address, steady and firm in principle, able and willing to undertake the management of whatever Masonic work he is called upon to undertake; and we know full well that in no respect is he behind those who have preceded him in that chair in inculcating and acting upon that inculcation of the highest principles of our Order, brotherly love, relief, and truth. It is not long that I have had the distinguished privilege of being acquainted with that worthy and esteemed brother; but the more I know of him the more reason have I to respect and love him, the more reason have I to believe he is indeed suited thoroughly to the office he fills with so much dignity, and yet with so much kindness and condescension, and the more am I persuaded that never in the annals of the Craft have we had one to whom we could look next to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the Earl of Carnarvon, our Pro G.M., better able to fulfil his duties, or more desirous to win the love and esteem of us all. We thank him from "our heart of hearts" for coming here to-night to do suit and service in the cause of "melting charity." We thank him heartily for taking into consideration the wants of the aged and the infirm; and we thank him also for having in previous years remembered the young, rising into life. As he strove to promote their welfare and their interest, so now does he strive to give solace and peace to those who are in the decline of years; and he will succeed, I am sure, to-night, and when he retires from this hall he will have the satisfaction of hearing that a more successful festival for this Institution has never been held within this great city. My lord, with every feeling of fraternal regard and esteem for yourself, I now propose your health. May your possession of that chair be long, happy, and prosperous, and may we live to see Masonry flourish more and more under your banner, so that in time to come you may be handed down as one of the greatest worthies of the Craft, a man who has followed others who have brought Masonry by their acts and conduct to its present dignified and proud position. (Great cheering.)

The Chairman: Brethren and Dr. Cox, I thank you most heartily for the extremely kind way in which you have proposed and received this toast. I only hope that I deserve, and that I may in the future deserve, all the encomiums that Bro. Cox has passed upon me. I can assure you, brethren, that it will be my endeavour to do so; and that it is a very great pleasure to me to be here this night I can also assure you. I have once before, as Bro. Cox has reminded you, presided in this hall. I then had the satisfaction of hearing that the largest sum was then collected that had ever been collected for the charity. I only hope that the same may be the case to-night. I shall then have no reason to repent having come here, and I only hope that if it is so, the sum may go on increasing from year to year, and that in some future year a long way hence I may be again called upon to double it. (Hear hear.) Before sitting down, I will propose the next toast; it is "The Health of the Present and Past Officers." I give it you with all heartiness, and I couple with it the name of Bro. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain.

Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C.: My lords, ladies and brethren, it is at all times a most pleasing duty to be asked to return thanks for the toast of the Present and Past Grand Officers of England, but on the present occasion I must say it affords me a great deal of pleasure to be called upon to respond to this toast, inasmuch as I see so large an assembly of brethren present whom I am exceedingly glad to thank. For, brethren, I believe that this Institution which we have met to advance the cause of to-day is one deserving of our most hearty and warm support. At the same time it is most pleasing to return thanks for the Grand Officers to-day, for it is the first time since Lord Skelmersdale was appointed Deputy G.M. that he has presided at our festivals. A better appointment could not have been made by the Prince of Wales. I myself, as having watched the career of Lord Skelmersdale—for he was first initiated now more years ago than he and I care to remember—and say it really is a most pleasing thing to see him in the position he now occupies; and I know he will most ably and nobly fulfil the duties of his high office; and I can assure you on the part of all the officers, and the Craft, that he will find wherever he leads we will follow him, for he has a most devoted band of followers among the Freemasons of England. (Hear; hear.)

The Chairman: Brethren, I now have to propose to you the toast of the evening, "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons." (Cheers.) I think I can say without any one contradicting me that during my Masonic career I have steadily upheld the Masonic charities (Hear hear), and that in advocating them I plead with the voice of one who acts up to what he preaches. I can only say that I am deeply gratified to-day to see so large an assembly of Stewards and brethren meeting here to help the excellent Institution whose festival we are celebrating this day. I thank all most heartily. This long list of Stewards is most gratifying to me, as it must be to the Secretary and Governors of the Institution. But, without being invidious, may I especially thank the brethren from West Lancashire. I thank them from my heart. They have done credit to the province; and I can do no more than thank them again and again. But, brethren, when I look back to the annals of this Institution and see that in the year 1847 the subscriptions at festivals amounted to some hundreds, and when I think—a little bird has whispered in my ear, that we may count by thousands where we counted by hundreds then—I think, brethren, it shows that our great brotherhood is increasing in the works it professes to uphold, that the work of charity is gaining ground in this country: Long may it continue to do so, long may we find at each of these annual festivals that the subscriptions increase and increase, and that instead of, as I believe to have been the case heretofore, when about—what shall I say—one in five or one in six of the brethren throughout the country upheld them, let us see them all do it, one and all; then we shall have grand institutions, well supported, without any begging lists. And that is what I should like to see. I should like to see our three great Institutions supported voluntarily (I do not say they are not so now), but without begging lists, let them come forward at once; announce a year beforehand what they promise to bring up; and then we shall not hear anything about "the Secretaries coming begging here and begging there; they are always bothering us." (I have heard it, brethren.) Let us have the subscriptions well announced beforehand; let it be an annual thing, a well understood thing, that the sum subscribed one year shall not be diminished the next year; then I think we shall fairly say we uphold the Masonic charities. (Hear, hear.) I give you "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons."

The toast was enthusiastically received.

Bro. S. Leith Tomkins, P.G.D., replied. He was sorry to say that the Grand Treasurer had been confined to the house for several days with a severe cold; but it was a very great trouble to him that he was not able to be present at this festival. He had long been the Treasurer of the Institution, five-and-twenty years, and all the while he had watched with pride and satisfaction the great progress the Benevolent Institution had made. He (Bro. S. L. Tomkins) remembered himself, twenty years ago, a list of Stewards and subscriptions, and the former amounted to twenty or twenty-five, and the latter, which were considered very good indeed, to £1500 or £1600. But last year the subscriptions came up to over £7000, and the stewards were about 200. The object of the officers of the Institution was to do all they could for the relief of the suffering old members of the Craft, and the brethren would be pleased to know that at a meeting of the committee held on Tuesday last it was resolved to take on ten additional widows—making 110 widows receiving annuities, 130 men also receiving annuities, and also sixteen widows receiving half the annuities of their late husbands. This, he thought, was very gratifying, and that the brethren would all agree that it was their bounden duty and warmest pleasure to do their utmost to make the Institution live and prosper.

Bro. Terry then read the following list of subscriptions:—

There are other lists to come in.

Immense cheering followed the announcement of this amount by the Chairman.

The Chairman then proposed "The Other Masonic Institutions." I think, said his lordship, I cannot do better than wish them equal, if not better, success than that which has been achieved to-day by this Institution. I thank you all again, brethren, for the hearty way in which you have come forward to support the Institution whose festival we are holding. Bro. Little, who will respond to this toast, will tell you that he hopes you will support quite as well, if not better. I heartily re-echo that, but as I have already expressed my views on the subject of the Masonic charities, I will not do more than propose the toast.

Bro. Little replied, and said: I take it the first duty I shall have to discharge this evening is one which must lead to an echo in your hearts. It is to congratulate our R.W. Presiding Officer upon the magnificent success which has been achieved this day. Most heartily, most cordially, and most ungrudgingly do I own that that deed of success has been well deserved by the Institution over which the noble lord presides this evening. Most heartily has it merited the support it has obtained. It is said of one who was condemned for his sins to roll a stone up a hill that his work should be incessant, and his work unprofitable. That is not the case with us in the Masonic charities. We know that we are training our children in the Schools of Masonry, we are doing the utmost credit to the Craft to which we belong. This evening you have done your utmost for the aged, an utmost which has not been exceeded, but which I hope will be exceeded in future. I plead with you now for the young of both sexes for those that have been under your charge in institutions which have existed for seventy, eighty, or ninety years. The Girls' School Festival will take place on the 10th May, and the Boys' on the 28th June, and I ask you to support both as liberally as you have supported this institution to-night. Allow me to congratulate Bro. Terry on the result of this evening's meeting. (Cheers.)

There were loud calls for Bro. Binckes, who, after a little delay, rose to speak, when he was received with hearty applause. He said: There is the understanding amongst us that you should not have an infliction made upon you of two speeches for this toast. I thought our Bro. Little had said all he could on behalf of the two festivals. I do not want to intrude myself upon you over and over again. I am quite prepared to admit that you appreciate the poor services made by us from time to time, and that you do honestly support us in all that we do to maintain our various institutions in a state of efficiency and prosperity. I have worn you out year after year, but I am delighted to find that I still am welcome amongst you. Do not let me wear out that welcome this evening, because I have not a word to address you more than this, how greatly I appreciate all the services you have rendered during a long past; how nobly our appeals made to you now, and how thoroughly I know you and your survivors will respond to any appeals in the future. Our institutions are growing day by day, week by week, month by month, and year by year, and we must have your kind support, we must have your kind sympathy, and we must have your substantial (here Bro. Binckes created great laughter by tapping his right hand trousers pocket). You have made to-night a glorious success; but what is that? What do I interpret that? It is an augury of still greater success in the future. I never could spell the word "finality." Of all the spelling bees I never attended one, but if ever I did I should break down over the word "finality." Go on then and do more and more, and take your highest gratification from this, that whatever you do in connection with Freemasonry your highest, holiest duty is to go on more largely and more liberally on behalf of these admirably managed institutions.

Bro. F. P. Morrell, J.G.D., proposed "The Ladies," and Dr. Cox replied for "The Stewards," after which the brethren joined the ladies in the Temple, where a concert was held, in which Madame Liebhart, Mrs. Seymour Smith, Miss Marian Severn, Bro. A. Lester, Bro. G. T. Carter, Bro. G. W. Farmer, Bro. Seymour Smith, Bro. Chaplin Henry, Bro. Lazarus, and Mr. Michael Watson took part. The whole was under the direction of Bro. Seymour Smith. Bro. Hawkes was toastmaster.

The following brethren from Liverpool and West Lancashire came up especially to support their Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master of England:—Bros. W. P. Witter, 667; J. K. Smith, P. G. Reg.; H. S. Allpass, P.G. Sec.; Robert Wilson, P.P.G.S.D.; Robert Wylie, P.P.G.S.D.; Wm. Laidlaw, P.P.G.S. of W.; B. W. Rowson, P.P.G.S. of W.; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D. of C.; H. RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

A RAILWAY ACCIDENT to any particular person is a (theoretically) remote contingency; but as it may happen, as a matter of fact, the very next journey undertaken, and as the sum at which it will be seen the risk (in a pecuniary sense) may be extinguished FOR LIFE is almost absurdly small, it is not too much to say that the insurance is an OBVIOUS DUTY in the case of most travellers. £1000 if killed, with liberal allowances if injured, for a single payment of £3, covering the whole life. REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

EGYPTIAN LODGE (No. 27).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 3rd inst., at Anderton's Hotel. Bro. S. Lambie, W.M., presided, and passed Bro. W. A. Patison to the Second Degree. There was no other work to be performed besides the installation, and for this ceremony the W.M. vacated his seat in favour of Bro. John Coutts, P.G.P. and P.M., who installed Bro. John Green, S.W., and W.M. elect, as W.M. for the present year. The Board of Installed Masters to whom Bro. Green was presented comprised no less than 37 brethren who had filled or were now filling the chair. Among these the following brethren were present:—Dr. Hogg, P.G.D.; H. G. Buss, Prov. G.T. Middlesex; W. T. Howe, Prov. G.P. Middlesex; Thomas Wright, G.P.; C. P. Albert, A.G.P.; W. Ough; P.G.P.; W. Watson, P.G.S. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P.; James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts; F. Poole announced that it was the intention of the brethren to petition for a charter in connection with this lodge. On the motion of Bro. Lambie, seconded by Bro. Hales, S.W., £5 was voted to the widow of a deceased brother. After this the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, about sixty being present. When the toasts were proposed, Dr. Hogg, P.G.D., responded for "The Visitors," and complimented the lodge on having so admirable a worker as Bro. John Coutts, P.G.D., who had installed the W.M. that evening. He assured the brethren that the Grand Officers took great interest in all that concerned the Craft, and concluded by commending the working of Bro. Coutts to the attention and consideration of all the visitors. Bro. W. T. Howe was also called upon to respond, and in doing so he said, after thanking the lodge for its hospitality, that the W.M. was an old friend of his, and from what he knew of his Masonic abilities he was convinced the Egyptian Lodge would lose nothing of its former lustre. Bro. Lambie, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in acknowledgment the W.M. expressed his great pleasure at being placed in that proud position. It was on one of the installation days that he had himself been initiated, so that it was on the anniversary of that event that he had attained the crowning point of his ambition. He was "green" in the office, and consequently trusted that the brethren would bear with any of his defects. He hoped by next meeting to be more matured. A special toast was proposed for "The Installing Master, Bro. Coutts," to which that worthy brother responded, saying that all the brethren would join with him in regretting the loss of Bro. Savage, who was the regular Installing Master of the lodge. It could not be expected that he (Bro. Coutts) would be so well up to the ceremony as the late Bro. Savage, who had for thirty-three years performed it in the lodge, except on the occasion of Bro. Buss's installation; but he hoped that with a few repetitions he should be no less able an Installing Master than Bro. Savage. Bro. Coutts concluded by acknowledging the many kindnesses he had received at the hands of the brethren of the Egyptian Lodge. "The I.P.M." was the next toast, and Bro. Lambie was presented with a Past Master's jewel. Bro. Lambie, in thanking the brethren, remarked upon the great beauty of the jewel, as well as of the installation commemorative jewel, with both of which the lodge had presented him. Bro. Lambie, as Junior Past Master, replied for "The Past Masters," and Bro. Terry for "The Masonic Charities," in a very able speech, wherein he narrated what the Egyptian Lodge had done for the charities. He trusted that this year it would continue in its useful course, and be enabled for years and years to come to tell the rising generation what it had done, and how nobly it had always tried to do its duty. The S.W. and all the officers replied to the toast of "The Officers," and the brethren shortly afterwards separated. The following report of the permanent Committee, which was appended to the summons, is highly interesting:—"The Committee beg to report that at a meeting of the Auditors, held at the Elephant Tavern, Kingsland, on Tuesday, the 18th January, the Treasurer's accounts for the past year (1875) for the General Lodge Account and for the Egyptian Lodge Benevolent Fund were examined, compared with the several vouchers, and found correct. They have appended hereto a summary of the receipts and disbursements, showing a balance in the hands of the Treasurer, in respect of the General Lodge Account, of £37 2s. 5d., which is liable to a grant of £10 to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, voted in December last, and to a sum of £2 2s., voted at the same meeting to the widow of a brother, but not yet claimed. The arrears due to the lodge amount to £56 7s., and the committee recommend that some steps be taken to collect in this large amount of arrears, or that the brethren who do not pay after due notice should be erased from the list of members. The committee beg to recommend that the sum of five guineas be granted to provide the usual complimentary Past Master's jewel, to be presented to Bro. Samuel R. Lambie, who has so efficiently performed the duties of W.M. during the past year, which sum is included in the present account. The committee, in presenting the annual accounts for the first year since the alteration of the bye-laws and the establishment of the Egyptian Lodge Benevolent Fund, cannot but congratulate the lodge on the great success which has attended the new system, and enabled the committee to produce balance sheets showing such satisfactory results, but more particularly in respect to the Benevolent Fund, which, in the first year of its existence, has accumulated the large sum of £179 16s. 3d. without in any way distressing the General Lodge funds. This great success is, however, in a great measure, to be attributed to the very generous and spontaneous manner in which so many members of the lodge have made themselves Vice-Presidents of this fund, by a contribution of five guineas each, thus giving the fund an impetus which could not have been anticipated in so short a space of time. It is, however, hoped that the rules and regulations, which have been carefully arranged for its maintenance and support, are such as to insure its continued increase and permanent success, and to prove its active usefulness, and still further tend to advance the high character which the lodge has already attained by various donations from the permanent fund, which for some years was attached to this lodge, of over £360, thereby constituting the Master, for the time being, a Vice-Patron of two of our most excellent Masonic institutions and a Vice-President of the third."

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—Another numerously attended meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 11th inst., at Anderton's Hotel. Bro. A. Treadwell, W.M., presided. After the usual formalities had been observed, the W.M. resigned his emblem of power to Bro. G. Everett, I.P.M., who raised Bros. Jennings and Friend. The W.M. then resumed his authority and passed Bros. Gwynn, Cook, and Abrams. He afterwards initiated Messrs. J. P. Killingback, Moss, Jewell, and James Jennings into Freemasonry. Two motions of which notice had been given were withdrawn, but a motion of Bro. J. R. Foulger, P.M., "That the initiation fee be raised to ten guineas," was carried. The brethren then adjourned to banquet where the customary proceedings were observed. The toasts were given afterwards with considerable ability by the W.M., who paid the time-honoured compliments to the Queen and the Craft, the Grand Master, and the Grand Officers. He also replied in excellent terms to the toast of "The W.M.," and gave "The Visitors," and "Initiates," in the heartiest style possible. One of the initiates in responding said that he, who had been hitherto of the outer world had often been struck with the great hold which Masonry seemed to have in the world, and the mysterious influence it possessed. He had that evening just had a glance at it; but though it was still to him enveloped in wonder, he hoped soon to see further into it, and to bear his part in making its influence felt. The W.M. gave "The Past Masters," about whom the W.M. was always expected to make an interesting speech. If he did not say what was kind, agreeable, and sociable of them, it would be said of him when he went out of the chair how stupid a Master he had been. Now, he could not say anything unkind of them. He had seen nineteen of them since he had been a member of the lodge, and they were all such good fellows, that it was really an honour to be permitted to touch the hem of their garments. They had done their work well, and they had augmented and increased the Domatic Lodge. If it had had bad Masters and bad officers it would not have been now in its good position. The Past Masters were able to do anything in Masonry, and consequently the lodge stood high in the ranks at Grand Lodge. Among the members of the Domatic Lodge were three Past Grand Officers. Bro. Adams, through the death of his daughter was unable to attend. Bro. Brett had been present, but had been obliged to leave. But Bro. Joseph Smith, the Treasurer, was present. It was a great honour to a lodge to have so many Past Grand Officers among its members; the fact stamped the lodge as being something more than a common lodge, and the brethren ought to be very proud of this position. The lodge had become very numerous, and it had even been suggested that they should take in no more initiates. He hoped, however, that this would never be the case in the Domatic Lodge; but that the outer world who wished to join it should be allowed to do so. He would call on the I.P.M., Bro. Everett, to respond to the toast. He had known that brother 25 years and more, and he never knew a Master of the Domatic Lodge who did his duty better, who was so well received, or who gave more satisfaction. All the brethren could testify that not only had he performed the Master's duties well, but he was a distinguished linguist, and his excellent chairmanship was unsurpassed in the history of Masonry. (Cheers.) Bro. George Everett replied. The W.M. had praised him very highly, and he felt in his new position of I.P.M. rather puzzled at what he should say. Having to reply for a large number of distinguished and old Past Masters was rather an arduous task for a young member of the body, and in replying he wished to do it with becoming modesty. Before he became a P.M. he looked forward to the honour with anticipations of pleasure. In his younger days in Freemasonry he walked with pleasure for that toast coming round, because they always then heard something that was entertaining, nice, and enjoyable. There were among the Past Master many distinguished brethren who were able speakers; but his predecessor so determinedly stuck to his privilege of calling on one brother to respond that the brethren during his year of office never had an opportunity of hearing any other voices. He hoped that this was the last time the brethren would be troubled with his voice on behalf of the Past Masters for some time to come. He had done his share of the work, and he did not care about speaking for those who had preceded him, although he was always happy to obey the W.M.'s commands. He hoped that in future the brethren would have an opportunity of hearing some of the other P.M.'s speak. Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., also replied, and told the brethren that since the last time they met Bro. Everett had become the Master of the Kennington Lodge. Now, he took great credit to the Domatic Lodge for having brought Bro. Everett up to the point of perfection, and he appealed to the lodge to say whether at Bro. Everett's installation he did not fairly astonish the brethren by the way in which he performed his duties. The drilling he had had in the Domatic chair had rubbed off all little imperfections, and turned him out a perfect Master. Therefore there was an advantage in going through the Domatic. They schooled him, taught him, and brought him up to the state in which he now was. It was a great thing to have presided well over so large a lodge as the Domatic; and when he brought the knowledge he had acquired in it to the presidency over another lodge he would be able to bring that lodge, if not in a good state before, to a condition in which none of its members need be other than proud of it. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Walford also responded, and referred particularly to the working of Bro. Treadwell, who he was pleased to see in the Master's chair, and who there could be no doubt would fill it with honour. The brethren had had a very good sample of what he could do, and his efforts would undoubtedly keep the lodge in its flourishing state. As to the P.M.'s they were always at the service of the brethren, and happy to assist the Master whenever called upon. To the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary" Bros. Joseph Smith and Willing respectively replied. "The W.M. gave a toast for 'The Masonic Press,' and in an able speech explained to the brethren what it did for Freemasonry, how it informed the brethren of everything that took place in Masonry, how much the institutions were indebted to it for the support they received, and what claims it had on the encouragement of the brethren. He advised the brethren to support it, and add to the large circulation it at present enjoyed. Bro. H. Massey ("Freemason") acknowledged the compliment briefly, and the Tyler's toast having been given, the brethren separated. The following brethren were among those present:—A. Treadwell, W.M.; J. Willing, S.W.; W. Palmer, J.W.; J. Smith, P.G.P., Treasurer; (T. Williams, Secretary, absent through illness); I. Buscall, S.D.; G. Clarke, J.D.; E. White, I.G.; H. Spink, D.C.; P.M.'s Everett, I.P.M.; Foulger, Tims, Walford, and Brett, P.G.P. Visitors: Hollis, 167, P.M.; Rowe, 167, J.W.; Mendly, 101; Radmall, 95; Atkins, 511; Cruikshank, 144; Turner, 705; Beavis, 1168; White, 1205, W.M.; Harper, 1319; Walls, 1381, S.D.; Phillips, P.G.P., I.P.M. 1488; Graham, 1540.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—The installation meeting of this lodge, whose jewel bears the illustration of the fable of the "Bundle of Sticks," was held on the 8th inst., at the Gate of St. John of Jerusalem, Clerkenwell. There was a full attendance of the officers and brethren, and among the visitors were Bros. A. Bagshawe, P.M. 1235, and P.G.C. of Derbyshire; Good, J.W. 1288; Rev. Darby Reade, Chaplain of the Urban; Coleman, 475; John Allen, W.M. 1297; Holt, 1260; Baldwin, W.M. 1423; Fairfax, 1540; Lewis, 87; Cole, P.M. 421; Trewton, P.M. 17; Fallett, P.M. 45; and Loverdo, 1196. The W.M., Bro. John White ("Freemason"), opened the lodge, assisted by his officers, Bros. Robert Griggs, W.M. elect, as S.W.; J. Hill, J.W.; Snare, S.D.; Halford, J.D.; Percy, as I.G. The minutes were unanimously confirmed, and the ballot having been taken for six gentlemen as initiates, and one for Bro. Hartly as a joining member—all unanimously elected—the W.M. proceeded to the last act of his year of office—installing his successor. Bro. Griggs was presented by Bro. P.M. Hillhouse, and having expressed his willingness to accept the office under the qualifications placed before him, the ceremony was proceeded with in regular form, and the Board of Installed Masters was composed of Bros. Bagshawe, Davies, Joseph Crump (Secretary), Winsland (Treasurer), Robards, and Hillhouse. The W.M. then installed his successor, Bro. Bagshawe acting as Chap. The work assigned to the different degrees was then regularly gone through; and the officers invested by the new W.M., each with an appropriate speech, were Bros. J. Hill, as S.W.; Snare, J.W.; Winsland, as Treas.; Crump (amid cheers), as Sec.; Halford, as S.D.; Percy, as J.D.; Todd, as I.G.; Flaws, as D.C.; and Hickman, as A.W.S. Bro. Hartly kindly accepted the post of Organist. It was intended to invest Bro. James Terry as W.S., but the collar had to be kept over, as that energetic brother was engaged as Secretary for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in preparing for the festival of the next night, and could not be present until later. The addresses over, the new W.M. proceeded with his work, and initiated five gentlemen, the first his own brother, into the Order, and the work was done in a manner which proved to the brethren that the name of the lodge for good work would be fully sustained. Before the lodge closed the brethren voted a sum of money to make up the difference between that which Bro. White, the Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, hoped to obtain as private donations from the brethren, and the sum necessary to make the lodge a Vice-President of the institution, in token of appreciation of their Bro. Terry's noble labours in all good causes. In appreciation of the I.P.M. having filled the office of Steward on the installation of the Prince of Wales, the lodge unanimously voted that the sum paid for the installation jewel should be refunded to Bro. While. The brethren then sat down to an excellent banquet, upwards of seventy sitting down in the cramped space of the "banqueting hall." The dinner over, the W.M. gave the loyal toasts with excellent point, as he did the toasts of the Grand Officers. The I.P.M. then gave the toast of "The W.M.," and said he was sure Bro. Griggs would fully justify the choice the brethren had made, and it was to be hoped that when the W.M. had reached the eminence in his profession of architect which he was likely to attain he would not regard among all the honours of life the position of W.M. of United Strength as the least worthy of remembrance. The W.M. had won his position solely by merit, for his industry in the offices of the lodge had won him the esteem of the brethren in past years, and their suffrages this. The toast having been acknowledged in a few graceful words, the toast of "The Initiates" was given and responded to. On the toast of "The Past Masters" being given the W.M. presented Bro. While with the handsome jewel of the lodge as its P.M., remarking that that was a token that as Master and I.P.M. he had worked the Three Degrees, and installed his successor to the satisfaction of the brethren. He also presented Bro. While with a collar and silver P.M. pendant, beautifully engraved, as a mark of appreciation of the brethren. The jewel bore the inscription: "Presented by the Lodge of United Strength, No. 128, to Bro. While, P.M., in appreciation of his abilities as its W.M. during the year 1875. February 8th, 1876." The silver pendant bore the same inscription, with the exception of the word "brethren" for lodge. The I.P.M. expressed his acknowledgment in all the words he could muster, and then Bro. Terry spoke at length upon the merits of the Past Masters generally. Bro. Hartly presided at the pianoforte in the hours of ease, and at the organ during the time of work. From the organ he extracted a beautiful accompaniment to the work, though, truth to tell, the instrument has defects from use and misuse.

ST. CLEMENT'S DANES LODGE (No. 1351).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Head Hotel, Strand, on the 3rd inst., when, as usual, there was a good attendance of the brethren. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. Steward, Bro. W. Hilton, P.M., occupied the chair of K.S., and raised Bros. Edwin Gaze and Alfred Hutton to the Sublime Degree. The working was quite up to the usual form of this lodge, and the following officers were in their positions:—Bros. E. J. Livett, S.W.; G. Wilson, J.W.; H. Porter, S.D.; J. Wigg, J.D.; J. Butler, I.G.; W. H. Perryman, D.C.; and E. Barnes, Org. After the working the brethren sat down to an excellent repast, provided by Bro. Cair, and amongst those present were Bro. Gardiner, W.M. of 780, and Bro. Sawyer, 957. Visitors: Bros. Hutton, 2; Duncan Harrison, Arthur Betts, Hepburn, Wiseman, J. Branham, William H. Hall, Gr. Little, Deighton, Thornley, Tedbury, Jeffries, Hamilton, P.M.; Hale, P.M.; Gayes, 3; John Smith, and others. After the usual lodge, patriotic, and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured, the enjoyability of the evening was much enhanced by some excellent recitations and singing, in the former of which the newly-made Masters proved themselves efficient, and in the latter Bro. Smith's genial face and excellent vocalisation gave a fillip to the whole evening's entertainment.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—A meeting of this Lodge was held on Saturday last, at the City Terminus Hotel, Bro. J. Hamilton Townend, W.M., in the chair. Bros. Shore, Lawson, and Ginders were raised; Bros. Royd, Roberts, Boote, Sampson White, and De Leliva passed, and Mr. Stephens was initiated. The brethren partook of slight refreshment in the course of the evening.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—The ordinary meeting of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge No. 1489, was held on the 4th inst. at the Metropolitan Societies Asylum, Balls Pond Road, which has a most convenient hall for the purpose. Bro. W. J. Murlis, W.M., presided, and was supported by his officers, Bros. Thos. Jessett, S.W.; J. Walford, J.W.; W. Stephens, I.P.M., Treas.; W. Jones, P.M., Sec.; John High, J.D.; and H. Miller, G. Org., Middlesex, I.G. Bro. Gilchrist was Tyler. There was a capital attendance of brethren, both members of the lodge and visitors, among the latter of whom were Bros. Barfield, P.M.; Penn and Parkhouse, of the Zetland, and others from the Metropolitan and Royal Alfred Lodges. The W.M. having opened the lodge, and the preliminary business having been disposed of, four initiates were balloted for, and unanimously approved of. None of them however were present; and the brethren proceeded with the raisings. Two brethren were in attendance for this degree, and as the I.P.M., Bro. W. Stephens, had initiated them during his year of office, the W.M. requested him to perform the third ceremony. This he did, and as there was no other business before the lodge, the whole ceremony of raising was gone through. The traditional history and explanation of the degree were given in full, also the lengthened explanation of the points of fellowship, so seldom narrated but yet so necessary to be fully understood by every candidate submitted to this Sublime Degree. When the ceremony was concluded the W.M. again took the chair, and finished the business of the day. Bro. Hastings Miller was appointed Steward to the festival of the Institution for Girls in May, on which occasion the lodge will therefore again be represented. A vote of condolence with the widow of a deceased brother was passed, after which lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to one of their famous banquets. The W.M. presided with his usual ability and geniality, and proposed the customary toasts. Speaking of "The Visitors," he hoped always to be honoured by the attendance of as large and influential a body of those brethren as were then before him. Bro. Barfield responded, and congratulated the members of the lodge, not only on its working, and the hearty welcome it had given the visitors, but also on the great attention it had paid to the Masonic Institutions, and the large amounts which its members had subscribed for the benefit of the aged and the young of both sexes.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—On Thursday, Feb. 3rd, was held the 143rd anniversary of this ancient lodge, when all other business was suspended, giving way for the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year. The lodge was opened at quarter to four by Bro. Clark, W.M., assisted by the following as officers:—Bros. Major Preston, I.P.M.; Brown, S.W.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M., acting as J.W.; Ashley, Treas.; Falkner, Sec.; C. Wilkinson, S.D.; Braham, J.D.; Denham, I.G.; Gummer and Hunt, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler. Bro. Ashley, P.M., acted as D.C. till the arrival of the proper officer, Bro. Wilton, P.M. There were also present the following Past Masters of 41:—White, Maggs, Capt. Floyd, Cooper, Moutrie, Mann, Mitchell, R. Cook; and the following brethren:—Major Bousfield, M.P.; Cater, Radway, Jacob Smith, Hladwell, E. Wilkinson. The following W.M.'s and P.M.'s attended as visitors:—Sparrow, 906; Trevor, 944; Bombay; G. C. Cooke, 379; Genl. Doherty, 906; Keene, 906; Little, 335; Martin, 53; Dr. Tunstall, 53; Col. Ford, 53; Scott, 906; and Bros. Howes, Dill, Dudfield, Pinkett, Dingle, Freeman, all members of 906; and Salter, 53; Bush, 379. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. It having been announced that V.W. Bro. Else, D.P.G.M., was in attendance and demanded admission, a deputation was sent out with the D.C., and he was duly escorted to his seat at the right of the W.M. with the customary salute. A ballot was taken for three candidates for initiation at the next meeting, which proved unanimous in their favour. The D.P.G.M. then took the chair and opened the lodge in the Second Degree. P.M.'s Mann and Moutrie presented Bro. Brown for installation, and after the usual preliminaries and obligation of W.M. elect, the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. The brethren below the chair were dismissed, and a large board of more than twenty P.M.'s was constituted, in whose presence Bro. F. J. Brown was duly installed in the chair of K.S. Of the remainder of the ceremony after the admission of the brethren it is sufficient to say that every part was well and duly performed according to ancient custom. The lodge was resumed in the Second and afterwards in the First Degree. The following were appointed and invested as officers:—Clark, I.P.M.; F. Wilkinson, S.W.; Falkner, J.W.; Ashley, P.M., Treas.; C. Wilkinson, Sec.; Wilton, P.M., D.C.; Braham, S.D.; Denham, J.D.; Gummer, I.G.; Hunt and Radway, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler. Votes of thanks were passed to the D.P.G.M. for his valuable aid as Installing Master; to Bro. Clark for his services as W.M. during the past year; and to the W.M.'s of the other Bath lodges, and the brethren who accompanied them, for the sanction of their presence on the occasion, a suitable response being made in each case. The lodge was closed at quarter to six, and the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel for the annual banquet, the arrangements of which were in every way satisfactory, including those for good vocal and instrumental performances between the toasts, which were well carried out by Bros. Falkner, Cater, Braham, and, though last, not least, Pycne, the Organist at the Abbey. It is right to add that Bro. Major Bousfield, M.P., proposed the toast of "Success to the Masonic Charities," on which he spoke at some length, and proved his earnestness in the cause by presenting £5 towards their support in the name of the lodge. He also suggested that a collection should be made round the table with the same object, which was carried out.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—This lodge held an emergency meeting on Wednesday, January 26th, at 7 p.m. Mr. Moses Mills and Mr. J. B. Howard were candidates. The ballot being favourable to Mr. Howard, he was admitted in ancient form. Bro. J. Wood, P.M., D.C., then proceeded (by request of the W.M., Bro. D. Reid) to initiate the candidate in the E.A. Degree. The charge was given by the W.M., and the lodge was closed at 9 p.m. The initiation of Mr. Mills was allowed to stand over till the regular meeting of the lodge, which took place the following evening, January 27th, and was opened at 5 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. D. Reid. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed, together with the minutes of the emergency meeting of the previous evening. The brethren then proceeded to ballot for Messrs. J. Bradshaw, H. Wilson, and A. Swallow, each proposed by the W.M. The report of the committee of enquiry and the result of the ballot being unanimous in each case, the W.M. initiated Messrs. Bradshaw and Wilson. Bro. Wood, P.M., D.C., by command of the W.M., then received into Masonry Mr. Albert Swallow. The initiation of Mr. Moses Mills then followed, which was ably rendered by Bro. W. H. Kershaw, I.P.M. The initiations occupied a considerable portion of the evening, and were aided by the musical abilities of Bro. J. Crompton, J.W. Chorlton Lodge, 1387, who kindly occupied the position of Organist for the evening. Bro. John Wood, P.M., D.C., was proposed by Bro. W. H. Kershaw, I.P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. Garlick, P.M., to represent the Imperial George Lodge with respect to the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution. The proposition received an unanimous support. The Masonic element, charity, was then exercised, after which the lodge was closed, and the brethren retired from labour to refreshment. Owing to the excessive amount of labour, and the Middleton Lodge being one that without exception closes early, the social meal had to be somewhat hastily partaken of; after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The Great Architect of the Universe, the Author and Finisher of our course, in His wisdom, has seen fit to remove from this earthly tenement of clay one whose health had always been thought of in our Masonic toasts. Death had sent up higher our late and true Masonic brother, W. R. Callender, Esq., M.P., V.W. D.P.G.M.E.L.; it was therefore the wish of the W.M. that one and all should recall in silence "The Memory" of our deceased P.G. Officer, which request was carried out with a marked and deserving solemnity, a solemnity that brought time's avenger uppermost in each heart. "The Health of the Initiates" was then proposed by the W.M., who spoke of each in suitable terms; owing to shortness of time, their response was allowed to remain over till the next meeting. To the toast of "The Visitors," Bros. Studd, P.M., 375, and Johnson, D.C. 993, replied, expressing their admiration and delight in the way in which Bro. D. Reid had performed the duties of W.M. for the first time, it being a good earnest for the future. The Tyler's toast was then given and enthusiastically received; the city brethren returning to Manchester by the 10 p.m. train.

KENDAL.—Union Lodge (No. 129).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge took place at the Masonic Rooms, Stramougate, on the 27th ult. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. Talbot, P.P.G.W. Immediately after Bro. Lieut.-Col. Whitwell, R.W.D.P. G.M., entered the lodge, and was saluted according to ancient custom. Bro. Whitwell proposed that a vote of condolence be sent to the relatives of the late Bro. Savage, P.G.D. of England, and that the same be entered on the minutes. The chair of K.S. was then assumed by Bro. Henry Rauthmell, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., when the retiring Master, Bro. Talbot, presented the W.M. elect, Bro. F. C. Grayson, for the benefit of installation. Bro. Grayson was installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom, the ceremony of installation being most ably and impressively performed by W. Bro. Henry Rauthmell in a faultless manner, which elicited the warm approval of the brethren, the addresses to the W.M. and officers being very impressively given by the I.P.M., Bro. J. Talbot. The W.M. invested his officers as follows:—I.P. M., J. Talbot; S.W., R. J. Nelson; J.W., W. Cranston; Chap., T. Edge Wright; Treas., W. Double-day, Sec., George J. McKay; S.D., W. H. Akerigg; J.D., F. J. Thorner; I.G., R. B. Hunter. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Commercial Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was served by Mr. and Mrs. Barrow, the arrangements of which were excellently carried out by the Stewards, and to which over fifty sat down. The W.M. presided, and proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in particularly felicitous and graceful terms, one toast, which is worthy of the lodge and the brethren, being that of "The Masonic Charities," which was proposed by Bro. G. J. McKay, Hon. Secretary, who urged upon all the brethren to subscribe liberally to the fund which the I.P.M., Bro. Talbot, was collecting to make the lodge a Vice-President of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, one brother alone having contributed the very handsome sum of £52 10s. and another brother ten guineas. Our worthy Bro. Talbot found he had a sum considerably over one hundred guineas to be devoted to the purchase of votes in the charities. The Tyler's toast brought a very happy evening to a close, when the brethren separated at nine p.m. The musical arrangements were eminently carried out by the Organist of the lodge, Bro. Godfrey, S.W. 1074.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—This lodge held its usual monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, the 1st inst. The W.M., Bro. W. R. Denne, presided, supported by Bros. J. Wilson, P.M., Treas., acting S.W.; Hume, J.W.; Carter, Sec.; Roberts, S.D.; W. S. Nicholes, I.G.; Strange, P.M., P.P.G.D.; D. C. Dixon, P.M., P.G.D.C.; Reid, P.M.; Cousins, Crouchurst, Legg, Ferry, &c. Visitors: Bros. Tolley, P.M. 771, P.G.D.; Chorley, S.W. 865; Targett, 170 and 1037; Whittaker, 73, I.C.; Beer, 1100, Emulation, Bombay; Green, 951, Perseverance, Bombay; Johnson, 771; Ashby, 771; Tyler, 771. The W.M. passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. Day, Waterson, and Blizard, in a most creditable manner. The W.M. in the name of the lodge presented to Bro. Strange, P.M., P.P.G.D., the complete Regalia of Provincial Grand Deacon in appreciation of the services rendered to the lodge as Sec., extending over some years, an office the worthy brother has just vacated. A candidate for joining having been proposed, the lodge was after some routine business, closed in due form.

LANCASTER.—Fortitude Lodge (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening at the Athenæum, Bro. T. Atkinson, the W.M., presiding. There was a good attendance of members. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was afterwards raised, when Bro. Stanton was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, and Bro. Aldous passed to that of a Fellow Craftsman, the working being ably gone through by the recently installed W.M. After the transaction of some formal business, the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony. The Lancaster Lodges (three) subscribed twenty-five guineas in aid of the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and this amount was further enhanced by private donations from individual members. The contributions were presented at the festival on Wednesday by Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B.E., who is a Steward of the Benevolent Institution.

ANTIGUA.—St. John's Lodge (No. 402) celebrated the anniversary of their patron saint on Monday with more than ordinary eclat. Although the streets were very wet, and the condition of things overhead was such as to compel foot-passengers to have occasional recourse to umbrellas, the brethren assembled early in the forenoon at the lodge rooms in Church-street, and at eleven o'clock marched in procession to the Cathedral, where their Chaplain, Bro. Archdeacon Read, preached to them an excellent discourse from Psalm xcvi., former clause of the 9th verse. At the close of the service a collection was taken up as usual for charitable purposes, and the brethren reforming in procession returned to lodge. Luncheon, which was served in an outer apartment, being over, the brethren re-assembled in open lodge for the purpose of installing the Master-elect. The retiring Master, Bro. David Robinson, first delivered a brief address, expressive of his gratitude to the brethren for the support which they had uniformly extended to him during the two years that he had been in office, after which the Master elect, Bro. Thomas Buckley, was presented by Bro. James A. H. Hill, and installed with all the ancient and impressive ceremonies of the Order. The new W.M. in a few earnest words bespoke the support of the brethren, and then appointed the following officers (of course with the exception of himself and the Treasurer, who were elected by the lodge, for the year 1876):—Bros. Thomas Buckley, W.M.; James Roche, S.W.; S. C. Edgchill, J.W.; Archdeacon Read, M.A., Chaplain; J. T. Thibou, Treas.; S. L. Athill, Sec.; C. M. Goodwin, Recorder; J. D. West, S.D.; W. B. Pilkington, J.D.; John C. Este, Dir. of Cer.; Robert Potter, I.G.; C. M. Madgwick and J. Hodge Hill, Stewards; Michael O'Brien, Tyler. After the appointment of the officers the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, and the brethren separated until evening. At half-past eight o'clock the brethren re-assembled to partake of a banquet. Covers were laid for sixty; but owing to the inclemency of the weather, which had been on the increase with occasional lulls since early afternoon, not more than thirty-two sat down to supper. The arrangements reflected great credit upon the Stewards, Bros. Halliday, Athill, and Nibbs, to whose zeal the banquet chiefly owed its origination, and who laboured with unflagging energy to ensure its success. The room was handsomely decorated with flags and evergreens, and overhead hung elegant chandeliers which not only cast all over the apartment a brilliant radiance like that of the noonday sun, but lighted up the streets and the faces of the passers by in the immediate vicinity of the building. Immediately over the centre table there was also suspended a large placard in letters of gold, setting forth that the banquet was given in honour of Bro. David Robinson, I.P.M. After the cloth was withdrawn the toasting commenced. The speeches, which were, for the most part, comparatively brief and epigrammatic, were well received. The utmost good feeling and cordiality prevailed throughout, and by half-past eleven o'clock the last adieu had been said, and all save the Stewards and their assistants had retired.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The popularity of the above lodge and its W.M. was fully evinced on Wednesday, 10th ultimo, the occasion being the usual monthly meeting and the half-yearly banquet. The M.H. in William-street, where the meeting was held, was densely crowded (there being above 120 brethren present), and presented a most gratifying sight, the various jewels in possession of and worn by the various brethren showing that the brethren of this locality not only muster a great number in the higher ranks of Masonic art, but work hard in charitable causes. The ceremonies of passing and initiation were worked in the usual manner, Bro. G. Mitchell receiving the benefit of the former, and Messrs. Bryson and Virgo the latter. On the termination of the regular proceedings a magnificent harmonium was presented to the W.M. for use of the lodge, this splendid instrument having been given by a number of the members. The W.M. took occasion to speak of the great kindness of Bro. Chas. W. Hotson, to whom the whole of the credit of conducting the proceedings in connection with the purchase of this instrument was due. Bro. Cook, of 913, was elected an honorary member, and appointed Organist to the lodge. This brother performed most ably during the ceremonies, which was most justly appreciated by the brethren present. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to the new Masonic hall, Plumstead, lately erected by Bro. B. Plaisted, where a splendidly served banquet awaited them. The W.M., Bro. Thomas Ward, occupied the chair, and amongst a long list of visitors were Bros. Spent, R.A., and P.G.S.B. Essex; C. Andrews, P. Prov. G.P. for Kent, and P.M. 77; J. Smith, P. Prov. G.P. Kent, and P.M. 829, 913; C. Coupland, P.G.S. Kent, and P.M. 913; C. Phillips, R.A., and P.M. 13 and 1536; E. Denton, 706, 13, 913; J. McDougall, P.M. 913; J. H. Edley, P.M. 913; R. Croisdale, 706; F. G. Pownall, W.M. 1536; A. Penfold, W.M. 913; Santi, W.M. 706; T. Hastings, S.W. 829; W. Weston, S.W. 1536; H. J. Butter, J.W. 913; G. Spinks, J.W. 1536; W. Murphy, Treas. 1536; A. Scally, 413; R. Hill, 1536; H. Carlin, 1536; W. B. Lloyd, 913; G. Kennedy, 1536; E. Palmer, 913; R. Stone, 299; C. Jolly, 913. The Past Masters and officers supporting the W.M. were P.M.'s Richey, I.P.M.; Rowland, Crawford, Dawson, Goddard, Bowles, Graham, Norman, Hotson; Officers, Butt, S.W.; Waters, J.W.; Dawson, P.M. and Treas.; Henderson, P.M. and Sec.; Woodley, S.D.; Warren, J.D.; Wilkins, I.G.; E. Hotson, D.C. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given and duly honoured, Bro. P.M. Richey rose to propose "The Health of the W.M." In doing so he alluded to the efficient and satisfactory manner in which he had carried out his duties and certainly fulfilled his promise of keeping up the prestige of the lodge. In reply, the W.M. thanked them for their hearty response to the toast, and would ever recollect the manner in which he had been met that evening. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. stated that it was gratifying to see so many distinguished members of the Craft amongst them, and a happy omen indeed for the popularity of the lodge. He coupled with the toast the name of Bros. P.M. Coupland and W.M. Pownall, both of whom, in very able speeches, alluded to the duties of Masons, their relations to each other, and the great good that could be done by assisting in the works of charity. Both brethren were most attentively listened to, and highly applauded when they resumed their seats. Bro. Richey responded on behalf of the Past Masters, and was supplemented by Bro. P.M. Rowland, who, being rather humourously inclined, kept the brethren in constant roars of laughter. The next toast was that of "The Officers of the Lodge." It met with a most hearty reception, and was briefly but ably replied to by Bro. Thos. Butt, S.W. This meeting will long be remembered by the brethren who attended it, not only as the largest gathering ever known at Woolwich, but also as one which brought together many who had been parted throughout the world for years, and enabled them once more to relate the pleasing incidents of bygone days.

WOOLWICH.—Florence Nightingale Lodge (No. 706).—This lodge held its monthly meeting at the F.H., Woolwich, on Friday evening, Feb. 4th. Present: Bros. Santi, W.M.; Tapp, S.W.; Gamble, J.W.; Croisdale, P.M.; and other officers. Also present Bros. P.M. Clark, D.M.; Denton, Dr. Pupe, Mutch, Donnelly, Nugent, and several others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Cook, Coulson, Ward, W.M. Nelson Lodge, Woolwich; and Young, S.W. Camden Lodge, 704, London. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Nugent was passed to the Second Degree, the ceremony having been most ably rehearsed by the W.M. The brethren adjourned to Bro. De Gray's, the Freemasons Hotel, where an excellent supper was served, and a most agreeable evening passed, Bro. Gamble, as J.W., ably assisting his superior officers in their endeavours to please all.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—This lodge held its monthly meeting at the Lord Raglan, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., the W.M., Bro. A. Penfold, in the chair, supported by the following officers:—Bros. J. McDougall, I.P.M.; C. Coupland, P.M., and P.G.P. for Kent; W. Tongue, P.M., and P.P.G.J.W. for Kent; T. Smith, P.M., and P.P.G.P. for Kent; T. W. Knight, P.M. of 1107; W. T. Vincent, S.W.; H. W. Butter, J.W.; A. Jessup, Treas.; E. Denton, P.M. and Sec.; J. D. Hayes, S.D.; W. B. Lloyd, J.D.; J. Chapman, I.G.; R. Lester, Tyler; and R. G. Cook, D.C. Among the visitors were J. Cowell, P.M. 147; J. Lightfoot, P.M. 147; F. Pownall, W.M. 1536, and S.W. 13; R. Croisdale, P.M. 706; J. Rowland, P.M. 700; T. W. Butt, S.W. 700; J. Waters, J.W. 700; S.W. Gibson, 341; E. Tappenden, 700 and 781; F. A. Wallis, 901; G. Smith, 1536; C. Beard, 700; E. W. Fisher, 700; W. Topp, 819; W. Harwood, 1107; and G. Tedder, 1107. The minutes and accounts having been duly read and passed, Messrs. T. J. Anderson, T. Read, and S. Long were initiated, and Bro. A. Wallis passed to the Second Degree, both ceremonies being worked by the W.M. After the proposal of one candidate and five joining members for admission, and an additional ten guineas to the regular yearly ten provided for in the bye-laws for both the Boys' and Girls' Schools had been voted for Bro. P.M. Coupland's list, he being Steward for the Boys' charity this year, the lodge was closed, and the brethren and visitors adjourned for refreshment. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and the brethren responded heartily. His own health, proposed by the I.P.M., was drunk most enthusiastically. On that of "The Visitors" being proposed, Bro. Pownall, W.M. of the United Military Lodge, with whose name the toast was coupled, thanked the W.M. for the kind expressions with which his name was coupled. The truly Masonic feeling displayed by the W.M. of the Pattison Lodge, and, in fact, the W. Master and brethren of all the lodges, during his late long and painful illness, he should never forget, and if he had not taken an earlier opportunity of visiting that lodge, and thanking them for it, it was because he was unable to do so, and not because he was unwilling. The hospitality of the Pattison Lodge was proverbial, and the manner in which the work was done made the visiting of it a real pleasure. He then spoke of the monument about to be erected to commemorate the Masonic labours of our late lamented brother, J. Gaden, for which upwards of £150 had been subscribed by the lodges, chapters, and brethren of the district, and said the work of the committee would soon be at an end, and he and they trusted that their efforts would give satisfaction to all. He thanked the W.M. and brethren for the honour paid him, and resumed his seat amid applause. The Initiates were, of course, toasted, and Bro. Long made a very pleasing reply. The Past Masters' toast was replied to by Bros. McDougall and Coupland. The W.M. paid a well-merited tribute to the good working of "The Officers of the Lodge," and spoke of the pleasure it gave him, and, he felt sure, the whole of the lodge, to see Bro. Hayes among them again after a long and dangerous illness. Bros. Vincent and Hayes replied, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the pleasures of the evening. We had almost forgotten to mention that an earnest appeal was made by Bro. Harwood on behalf of Bro. G. Tedder, once so well known in the musical world as composer to Sims Reeves, but who through total deafness, is incapable of following his profession, and whose grand annual concert takes place at Erith in the course of next month. A number of tickets were taken by the brethren after the appeal.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Room at the Athenaeum, on Monday, the 7th inst. Bro. H. Longman, the W.M., occupied the Master's chair, and there was a fair attendance of members and visiting brethren present. The lodge was opened with solemn prayer in the First Degree, when a gift of £5 5s. was unanimously voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The lodge was then raised, and Bro. Hudspeth was passed to the Second Degree, the working being efficiently performed by the W.M. Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.

S.B. of England, in a very able manner described the Second Tracing Board, at the conclusion of which a cordial vote of thanks was passed to him. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony.

The tables were beautifully decorated, and were specially adorned with numerous choice flowers, ferns, &c., from the conservatories of Chatsworth—including profuse displays of acacia, arums, cyclamens, camelias, orchids, &c.—kindly given by Bro. the Marquis of Hartington, P.G.M. There were more present than were expected, so the tables were a little crowded, but this was better than a beggarly array of empty seats, and contributed much to the whole proceedings going off with spirit and éclat. The dinner was served under the supervision of Bro. J. H. Lawson. When "The Health of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. William Smith," was proposed by the Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, his important and constant services to the lodge, both before his elevation to the chair and since, and the long distances he had frequently travelled in order to fulfil his duties, were mentioned as they deserved to be; he was presented with a very elegant Past Master's jewel, in recognition of his services, from the brethren of the lodge. It may be added that it was the most numerously attended anniversary since the establishment of the lodge.

ROSS (New Zealand).—Totara Lodge (No. 1241).—Freemasons, like all other rational beings have their seasons of rejoicing, and these generally occur when a change of officers is made. Such an event took place at the Exchange Hotel, on Wednesday, November the 3rd, 1875, when the officers of Totara Lodge were installed for the ensuing twelve months. The delegates from the District Grand Lodge were the W.D.G.M., Bro. Lazar, and Bros. Hudson, Hill, and Hyams. The ceremony was performed by District Grand Master Bro. Lazar, assisted by U.G.S.W. Bro. Hudson, who installed the W.M. elect, Bro. A. Groves Duff; S.W., Bro. Louis Guerin; J.W., Bro. F. W. Morgan; S.D., Bro. John McGaffin; J.D., Bro. W. Emmerson; Secretary, Bro. Peter Johnston; Treasurer, Bro. Camille Malfroy; I.G., Bro. Frank Brady; and Tyler, Bro. J. Joseph. The impressive manner in which the proceedings were conducted it is impossible to describe. W.D.G.M. Bro. Lazar displayed a touching earnestness in the wise counsels he gave to the several officers relative to the performance of their respective duties. The lodge was closed in peace and harmony at half-past 11 o'clock, and about midnight the brethren sat down to as well appointed a banquet as ever was laid in Ross. Bro. Duff occupied the chair, with Bro. Lazar in the place of honour on his right, while Bro. Guerin occupied the vice-chair. Ample justice having been done to the supper, hilarity and mirth became the order of the night. The following toasts were proposed, and duly honoured: "The Queen and Craft," "The Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Grand Masters of Scotland and Ireland," "The District Grand Master, Bro. Lazar," "The W.M. of the Totara Lodge," "The Officers and Past Masters of the Totara Lodge," "Sister Lodges," and "Poor and Distressed Masons." Songs were given by Bros. Frew, Hill, Curle, Morgan, Johnston, and last, though not least by Bro. Lazar, who convulsed the room with the Tyler's song, "The Queen's Anthem" was then sung, and the festivities terminated about 2 a.m. It would be unfair to close our remarks without paying tribute to the comely hostess of the Exchange Hotel, Mrs. Miller, for the really excellent banquet she provided, which reflected the utmost credit upon her as a caterer. W.D.G.M. Bro. Lazar and Bros. Hudson, Hill, and Hyams, left for Hokitika on Thursday forenoon, with, we hope, pleasant recollections of their visit to Ross.

WATERLOO.—Skelmersdale Lodge (No. 1380).—The brethren of this lodge, of which Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of England, and R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, was the first W.M., and is still a member, assembled at the Queen's Hotel, Waterloo, a few miles from Liverpool, on Monday, the 7th inst., for the purpose of celebrating their annual installation festival. There was a good and influential attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was opened at four o'clock by Bro. T. Bark, W.M., supported afterwards by Bros. J. Cobham, P.M.; Dr. C. Swaby Smith, S.W.; Rev. T. W. Richardson, J.W.; R. Brown, W.M. 241, Treasurer; E. Ford, jun., Secretary; Dr. W. S. Limerick, S.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., D.C.; J. B. Roose, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members of the Skelmersdale present were Bros. F. W. Bennett, R. H. Exton, F. E. Smith, L. Warner, P. W. Hickson, J. Mawdsley, P.P.G. Reg.; J. A. Greenleaves, J. Brown, G. O. Marsden, T. Balshaw, H. Davis, B. W. Birney, F. A. Fry, J. Thompson, J. Evans, P.M. 220; W. Barker, and others. The visitors' list included the names of Bros. P. E. S. Smith, 474 (S.C.); Rev. D. After the minutes had been confirmed and a joining member balloted for, Bro. T. G. Bark proceeded to install his successor, Bro. Dr. C. Swaby Smith, into the chair of W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was performed in a highly satisfactory manner by Bro. Bark, who also gave the charges to the following officers who were appointed with the greatest impressiveness:—Bro. T. C. Bark, I.P.M.; the Rev. T. W. Richardson, S.W.; E. Ford, jun., J.W.; R. Brown, W.M. 241, Treasurer; Dr. W. S. Limerick, Secretary; R. H. Exton, S.D.; R. W. Barnes, J.D.; J. B. Roose, Organist; J. Brown, I.G.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., D.C.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The balance sheet, read by Bro. Brown, Treasurer, showed that the funds of the lodge were in a most satisfactory condition. At the conclusion of the business an excellent banquet was served under the presidency of Bro. Dr. C. Swaby Smith, W.M. The catering of Bro. G. Chapman, 823, who was assisted by Bro. Eve, 667, gave universal satisfaction. The W.M. gave "The Queen" and "H.R.H. Bro. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of England R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, first W.M. of the Lodge." In giving the latter toast, the W.M. said they were all proud of the position which Lord Skelmersdale occupied in Masonry, and very proud indeed of the honour of being named after him. Bro. I. Mawdsley, P.P.G. Registrar, responded to the toast of "The Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," and "Bro. R. Brown, Hon. Sec. to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, acknowledged the toast of "The West Lancashire Masonic Charitable Institutions," sketching at some length the rise, progress, present position, and prospects of the charity which he represented. "The W.M." was given by Bro. T. G. Bark, I.P.M.; and in giving "The Installing Master," (Bro. T. G. Bark), the W.M. took occasion to present him with a very handsome P.M.'s jewel in recognition of his valuable services and admirable manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of the chair. "The Officers" and "The Visitors" were amongst the other toasts. Several excellent songs were given during the evening by Bros. Hutchins, Broadbridge, and others.

CLAYTON-LE-MOORS.—Albert Edward Lodge (No. 1519).—The members of this lodge met on Monday, the 7th inst., at the Albion Hotel. Present: Bros. E. Heywood, W.M.; J. Tennant, S.W.; L. Wilkinson, J.W.; W. C. Hamer, Sec.; R. H. Catterall, J.D.; J. Sharples and T. Hargraves, Stwds.; A. Heywood,

The lodge having been opened in due form by Bro. E. Heywood, the minutes of the meeting held on January 3rd, the festival of St. John the Evangelist, were read and confirmed. During the evening Bros. Wareing and J. T. Moore were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, and Bro. J. Calverley was passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, the ceremonies being rendered by the W.M. in a commendable manner. The solemnity of the ceremony for the Third Degree was greatly enhanced by the appearance of the lodge, which had been placed in mourning as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late R.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. W. Romaine Callender. The accounts were presented and passed, and Bros. Sharples and Catterall were appointed Auditors for the ensuing twelve months. The brethren adjourned to refreshment. The accustomed toasts were proposed and suitably responded to. The assembled brethren drank to "The Memory of the late R.W. D. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. W. Romaine Callender, deceased," in solemn silence. Bro. L. Wilkinson, J.W., alluded in graceful terms to the irreplaceable loss which the Craft has sustained by the death of Bro. Callender, who, by his devotion to duty, whether as a politician, a citizen, or a distinguished member of the Craft, had left a pattern worthy the imitation of every Mason. "The Visiting Brethren" having been proposed by Bro. Tennant, and responded to by Bro. Tunks, the brethren separated.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—At the last monthly meeting of this lodge held on Friday, the 11th inst., at Bro. B. Plaisted's new Masonic Hall, Plumstead, nearly a hundred of the brethren of the lodge and visitors assembled to support the W.M., Bro. F. G. Pownall, and to enjoy the excellent working for which he and his officers are distinguished. Besides the W.M., the officers present were Bros. R. Croisdale, I.P.M. and P.M. of 706; Captain Phillips, R.A. and P.M. 13; W. Weston, S.W.; G. Spinks, J.W.; Cooper, Sec.; J. Murphy, Treas.; H. G. Picken, S.D.; H. Shaw, J.D.; J. McCaffery, Steward; Lapham, I.G.; and J. Lackland, O.G. The visitors were Bros. T. R. McIlwham, P.M. 946 and P.P.G.S.B. for Middlesex; T. Ward, P.M. 700; G. B. Davies, P.M. 13; C. Hosgood, P.M. 192; T. B. Butt, S.W. 700; T. Hutton, J.D. 13; Hayes, S.D. 913; C. Cook, Org. 700; O. Hutton, 13; A. M. Pinky, 1424; D. C. Capon, 913; J. Coombes, 182; C. Morris, 1331; C. Brooks, Quarter-Master Serjeant, A.S.C., was affiliated to the lodge. Bros. J. W. Young, and C. Webb were passed to the Second Degree, the ceremony having to be repeated on account of the late arrival of one of the candidates. Bro. C. Cook kindly acted as Organist, and by his valuable assistance the ceremony was rendered doubly impressive. Before the lodge was closed, the W.M. spoke of the claim he was about to make on their charity on behalf of a poor widow whose husband had been over two years a good hard working Mason in this district, who, although, thanks to the kindness of Bro. Ward, the W.M. of the Nelson Lodge and others she had received valuable assistance from the Grand Lodge of Benevolence, yet was thoroughly incapacitated both by age and illness from supporting herself. He had been successful in obtaining for her a candidature for the Masonic Institution, and he asked them kindly to give him their proxies on her behalf. Bro. McIlwham immediately placed his votes at the disposal of the W.M., as did Bro. Hayes, and both received the thanks of the W.M. for their sympathy and assistance. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, during which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. In response to the toast of "The Visitors," Bro. McIlwham strongly urged upon the brethren present the advisability of forming a sort of Benevolent Fund, whereby each member who paid in but one shilling per week for four years, would be entitled to a life governorship for one of the charities. He spoke highly of the excellent work done in the lodge, and gave the brethren all a general invitation, either to the Strawberry Hill, or the Etonian, should they at any time be travelling that way. Bro. Hosgood fully endorsed every word that had fallen from the previous speaker, and recited a few stirring lines, composed by himself on the occasion of the last festival. He was greatly applauded both for the sentiment and delivery of the poem. Bro. Hayes as well returned thanks in excellent terms. Of course the Masters and officers were well and worthily toasted, and after the Tyler's toast, the whole of the brethren joined in the "National Anthem," and then separated in brotherly love and charity.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The regular monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 1st inst., at Bro. West's, the Three Crowns, there being a good attendance of both brethren and visitors. The business before the lodge was the raising of Bros. Plume and Carter. Bro. J. Ives was then unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. Geller, Secretary. The former brother replied feelingly for the great trust reposed in him, and earnestly hoped to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor. It was then unanimously carried, that a Past Master's jewel of the value of ten guineas should be presented to the retiring W.M., Bro. B. Brayshaw, as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the lodge and to mark their sense of his earnest endeavours for its prosperity during his term of office. Bro. Brayshaw returned thanks in a few choice sentences. The lodge was then duly closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. The other officers present were Bros. W. Steele, J.W.; J. Silver, S.D.; A. Manning, I.G.; B. Turner, Assist. Sec.; Steadman, P.M., and Tyler; and last though not least H.

Crompton, Smith, Hebdon, Lorking, and Swain, and proved favourable in each case. Messrs. Smith, Hebdon, Lorking, and Swain were then initiated into Ancient Freemasonry. Bro. Kent, W.M., was unanimously elected to represent the lodge on the Committee of the East Lancashire Benevolent and Educational Institution. A letter having been read from Bro. Barrett to the Third Degree. The whole of the impressive and solemn ceremony was most ably carried out by the W.M. Bro. Sugg, the A.O., also rendered certain portions of the ritual very effective by his instrumental accompaniments. Three notices of motion respecting the increasing of the initiation and the joining fees and the annual subscription having fallen to the ground in consequence of the absence of the mover, Bro. Saunders, the S.W., gave notice of motion that at the next meeting the advisability of raising the annual subscription only should be fully considered. Bros. Sugg and Palmer then proposed the names of two gentlemen for initiation next meeting. Bros. King, Dobid; and Sanders, 1293, were the only visitors.

LEICESTER.—Albert Edward Lodge (No. 1560).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Tuesday, the 8th inst., but unfortunately from various causes, several of the officers were unavoidably absent. Toller were raised to the Third Degree by the acting W.M., the traditional history being given by Bro. Thorp. A grant of £5 from the charity fund was voted to Bro. Stretton's list for the Benevolent Institution. The acting W.M. expressed the thanks of the lodge to the visitors for their efficient assistance, and announced that all the absent officers had given timely notice of their inability to be present. The lodge was closed in due form and in harmony.

He saw around him brethren in position in the Order, who had, he felt proud to say, learned their work in that lodge, and under his guidance; they were a credit to it, and he hoped to see many more rise from its ranks to the position that one of their number, Bro. Ancient and Accepted Rite.

TRURO.—Cornwall Rose Croix Chapter.—The annual assembly of this new and flourishing chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, New Public Rooms, Truro, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., at 2 p.m., Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart, M.P.S., 32, the M.W.S. in the chair. There were also present William James Hughan, 30, P.M.W.S.; Rev. George Ross, 18, High Prelate; Colonel J. W. Huyshe Chapter, Plymouth, was present as a visitor, and Bro. George Brown, of the Shakespeare Chapter, Warwick. Sir Frederick M. Williams conferred the degree on Bro. Smith, of St. Austell, presided until resigning the chair to Ill. Bro. Rodda, who had kindly attended as Installing Sovereign, and most efficiently conducted that ceremony, to the great delight of all the members, and especially to the satisfaction of the new M.W.S. of the chapter, Colonel John Whitehead Peard. The thanks of the chapter were voted to E. and P. Bro. Rodda for his valuable services, and ordered to be entered on the minutes, and our illustrious brother was invited to attend all the meetings of the chapter hereafter, as their honoured guest. The M.W.S. appointed as his officers for the ensuing year Sir Frederick M. Williams, Bart, M.P., 32, P.M.W.S.; Rev. George Ross, M.A., H.P.; Nicholas J. The banquet was provided at Bro. Bray's, Red Lion Hotel, at 5 p.m., and was a very fine entertainment. The various toasts were well honoured, and several interesting speeches were delivered respecting the origin and the character of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite," by Bros. Hughan and Rodda. Your correspondent had intended to have taken down these addresses, but quite forgot so to do, because of paying such attention to the speakers. Nothing could exceed the warm reception vouchsafed to the Installing S., Richard Rodda, P.M.W.S., and as usual the members were most enthusiastic in their admiration for Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart, M.P., 32, when his health was proposed by Colonel Peard. The worthy baronet has not been absent a single meeting since the chapter was founded, and in his speech took occasion to commend the beautiful ceremonies of the Ancient and Accepted Rite to the careful attention and practice of the members. A more pleasant and happy meeting has never been held in Truro, since when the chapter was honoured at its inauguration with the presence of the Secretary, General Major Shadwell H. Clerke, whose absence this time was much regretted.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF CHINA.

The District Grand Lodge of China recently held its annual meeting and festival at the Masonic Hall, Zetland street, Hong Kong. The lodge met at three o'clock in the afternoon, when there was a large attendance of the brethren of the Order. Following the ancient attended Divine service at St. John's Cathedral in a body. The procession, which was under the direction of Bro. J. M. Emanuel, D.C., who acted as Dir. of Cer., assisted by Bro. Wilberforce Wilson and Bro. R. Lyall, was formed just behind the Masonic Hall shortly after three o'clock.

The brethren were all attired in evening dress with white gloves, those belonging to either service appearing in proper uniform. No regalia except that appertaining to the District Grand Lodge and its subordinate bodies was worn. Members of lodges appeared in their aprons, officers of lodges in aprons and collars, and members and officers of District Grand Lodge in D.G. Lodge regalia. The jewels worn appertained to the first three degrees of Masonry and the Order of the Royal Arch. The procession proceeded to the Cathedral by the road leading along the back of St. Paul's Cathedral and round by the Government offices, and there was a large number of spectators along the route. On arriving at the door of the Cathedral the column halted, opened ranks, and faced inward, and the Deputy District Grand Master and his staff passed up the line and entered the building. The remainder of the procession then doubled in from the rear and followed. The nave was reserved for Masons. His Excellency the Governor, Miss Kennedy, and Captain O'Callaghan occupied seats in the chancel, as also did Sir John and Lady Smale, and a number of ladies and gentlemen. The cathedral otherwise was well filled with the general public.

The Grand Chaplain offered prayer.

The Grand Chaplain preached the sermon from 1 Chronicles xxix. 9—"Then the people rejoiced for that they offered willingly, because with perfect heart they offered willingly to the Lord; and David the King also rejoiced with great joy."

The banquet took place in the Masonic Hall in the evening. The toasts of "Mystic," "The Queen and the Craft," and "H.R.H. the Grand Master, and the United Grand Lodge of England," were proposed from the chair, and duly responded to. Bro. Kingsmill proposed, "The Deputy District Grand Master and the District Grand Lodge of China," which was responded to by the Deputy District Grand Master. Bro. Blakeman gave "The Lodges of the District," which was suitably acknowledged. Bro. Denny proposed "The District Grand Chaplain," who responded. "The Wives, Sisters, and Daughters of Masons" was given by Bro. Baynes, and acknowledged by Bro. Eitel. The Tyler's toast, the last upon the list, was proposed by the D.G. Tyler. Songs and glees were interspersed with the toasts, and the company did not separate till a late hour.

MASONIC BALL IN BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

The fourth annual Masonic ball took place on Jan. 27th, 1876, in the Town Hall. It was held, as usual, under the auspices of the local Craft lodges, and the management was undertaken by a joint committee as follows:—Bros. Bagot, P.M. 1021; McKnight, S.D.; R. S. White, Wheddon, C. P. Richards, Bland, J. C. Hunter, W.M. 1225; Morgan, junior, S.S.; E. Ludlam, Kershaw, J. Bell, Stables, Haslam, W.M. 1021; Huartson, J.W. 1021; W. Gradwell, junior, Bennett, junior, Coulthurst, Pickavance, T. Roberts, Hon. Sec. 1225; Morgan, S.W.; Nalder, S.D.; Klyne, M.C. The ball was in aid of the Masonic charities, and was under the distinguished patronage of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the R.W.D.G. Master and P.G. Master for West Lancashire; the Right Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, M.P., the R.W.P.G. Master for Derbyshire; the Hon. F. A. Stanley, M.P., D.P.G. Master for West Lancashire; Sir J. Ramsden, P.M. 1021, P.P.G.S.W.; His Worship the Mayor of Barrow, H. W. Schneider, Esq., P.M. 995, P.P.G.J.W.; W. C. Deceley, Esq., P.M., P.G.J.W.; J. T. Smith, Esq., P.M. 1021; H. Cook, Esq., P.M. 119 and 1021, P.P.G.R.; Aymer Ainslie, Esq., P.M. 995; and the officers and brethren of the neighbouring lodges, and of the Royal Arch Chapter, No. 995. The committee wisely determined this year not to expend a great sum of money in decorating the hall, as in former years this item consumed a great portion of the funds realised; but although no attempt was made to make an elaborate display of decoration the committee succeeded at a moderate outlay in producing a fine effect, and the hall when opened for dancing presented a very pretty sight. At the head of the room, surmounted with trophies of flags, was a splendid portrait of the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England, which was recently presented to the Hindpool Lodge, 1021, by the Worshipful Master, Bro. K. T. Taylor. There were also the shields of Lord Cardigan, the Hon. F. A. Stanley, M.P., and Sir James Ramsden, while at the foot of the hall were to be seen the shields of the Mayor and ex-Mayor of Barrow. The buffet occupied the whole of a large platform, which extended to the end of the private boxes. Bros. Bagot and Roberts acted as Secretaries, and their duties were performed with credit to themselves. Bros. W. Gradwell, jun., and H. J. Klyne officiated as Masters of Ceremonies, while the Stewards were Bros. Wheddon, Richards, Ludlam, Nalder, and E. Morgan. The music was supplied by Norwood's celebrated string band from Preston, and they gave every satisfaction. Dancing commenced soon after nine o'clock, and the appearance of the gentlemen, wearing the insignia of their rank and office in Masonry, and of the ladies, who, without a single exception, were gorgeously attired, was a scene on which the eye loved to linger. The ball was a great success, and certainly it proved to be one of the best ever held in the town.

GRAND LODGE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

On December 27th the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania held its eighty-ninth annual communication in the Masonic Temple, Broad and Filbert Streets, Bro. Alfred R. Potter, Grand Master, presided. The proceedings were of a very interesting character to the Craft, and were marked by the usual harmony and fraternal courtesy.

It was stated that official notice had been received of the constitution of Grand Lodges in the territory of Wyoming and in Indian territory, and in the provinces of Manitoba and Prince Edward's Island.

Grand Master Potter, in retiring from office, delivered an appropriate address, showing that the Grand Lodge is in a most prosperous condition, and in communication with some eighty similar grand bodies, among them the new United Grand Lodge, Three Globes, of the German Empire.

The following officers, elected December 1st, were duly installed to serve for the year:—Grand Master, R. Clark; D.G.M., J. M. Porter; S.G.W., M. Nisbet; J.G.W., S. B. Dick; Grand Treasurer, F. R. Patton; Grand Secretary, J. Thomson.

G.M. Clark delivered a brief address, in which he alluded to the arrangements for the reception of the thousands of brethren from abroad who will visit the city next year.

A letter was read from William J. Hughan, the antiquary, of Truro, England, showing that Philadelphia was the "Mother city of Freemasonry on this continent," a lodge having been warranted and constituted here by Provincial Deputy Grand Master Daniel Cox, under a patent from the Grand Lodge of England, in 1730, and known and recognised in the registry of London as The Hoop, in Water-street, No. 79. Heretofore Boston has claimed the honour of having the first Masonic Lodge—that constituted by Provincial Grand Master Henry Price in 1733.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—No remedial measures can equal the celerity and certainty with which Holloway's twin medicaments relieve, reduce and banish muscular and nervous pains. Colds, winds, excessive humidity, sudden storms and chilly mornings and evenings will provoke these tortures in constitutions predisposed to gout, rheumatic gout, acute or chronic rheumatism and neuralgia. Its sufferers should know that nothing affords as much relief as Holloway's Ointment, well rubbed upon the skin, after repeated warm fomentations. Thousands of testimonials bear witness to the wonderful comfort obtained from the safe and simple treatment which all can adopt. Holloway's Ointment, assisted by the judicious use of his Pills, is especially serviceable in assuaging the sufferings from cramp and other muscular pains.—ADVT.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER IN INDIA.

In the "Times" of Saturday, the 12th, the telegraphic message appeared of date Feb. 11th from Calcutta—that the Serapis and Osborne has left that place for Bombay, in order to be in readiness for the embarkation of the Prince of Wales on his return to England. A hearty welcome awaits him from all classes here. The last account is as follows, from Shafia Khana, Feb. 16th, in the "Times" of 17th:—"The Prince of Wales, who is now on a shooting tour in Kumaon and the Nepaul Terai, camped last night at Nuggla Kumaon. The Royal party are advancing by easy stages towards Nepaul, striking camp daily. There has been fair sport in deer and other game, but only one tiger has been seen. Yesterday his Royal Highness shot a fine bear, and Lord Aylesford another. All the party are in excellent health." We call attention to our Grand Master's kindness to his brethren in India, mentioned in another page.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We congratulate our Order, the Managing Committee, and not the least, Bro. Terry, on the remarkable result of the anniversary and gathering for 1876 of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The sum total is a very large one, unprecedented in the annals of the Institution itself, and one that does all credit to the efforts of the Stewards, and the great and charitable impulses of our friendly and benevolent brotherhood. West Lancashire with its £1500 is a striking commentary in itself on the active charity of our good brethren in Liverpool especially, and on the popularity of our distinguished Deputy Grand Master! For this is the first Masonic charitable "Grand Assembly" of this year of grace and light, and if Bros. Little and Binckes are equally successful, which from Bro. Binckes' symbolical action at the festival we are inclined to augur and to hope, we shall have given to Masonic charity this year the interest at three per cent. of probably over a million of money. We therefore, trust that this first great gathering of 1876 is but the omen of and prelude to equal, nay, greater results to be obtained as the months roll on, and the Girls' and Boys' Schools each in turn appeal to a sympathetic and true-hearted brotherhood. And yet, despite a not unnatural and reasonable "pæan" of success we feel bound to "improve the occasion," and point out to our readers one or two truths and considerations alike pressing and important. Despite so much that has been done, is doing, and will be done in this year for Masonic charity, much remains to be done. Many lodges subscribe widely, many districts do grandly, many individuals make most genuine and striking efforts, but yet a large number of our lodges do nothing at all! We have before said, that in our opinion no lodge has really done its duty by the charities or to Masonic Benevolence, until it is a Vice-President if possible—at any rate a Life Governor, of the four Masonic Charities. Were we founding a new lodge to-day we should say "Make your first great rule the practice of your own Masonic principles, and make everything else subordinate to them. Curtail all unavoidable expenses, restrict your banquets, be content to work, so to say, on 'short commons,' until you are in a position to declare that your lodge, as representing your little brotherhood, was in possession of ten votes in perpetuity for each of the charities." If some think this too high a standard of Lodge Charity to inculcate or arrive at, let them remember that we are laying down first principles. We admit that it is impossible to form a rule applicable to all lodges, inasmuch as the position of the metropolitan lodges, and provincial lodges widely differs in one respect. In London the banquets are paid for out of the lodge subscriptions, in the provinces as a rule they are not. Hence the subscriptions in London represent the maximum, so to say, in the provinces the minimum, and London lodges, with some notable exceptions, deal with larger sums annually than the provincial lodges. But still we think much more may be done by the lodges on a general system than is done, and we therefore feel bound, as a "Masonic Mentor," to call the attention of our good brethren to the subject. We think that each lodge ought to have its Benevolent Fund created by special donations, and that from this grants should be made to the charities and individual brethren. And, throwing out respectfully these hints for the consideration of the Craft, we beg to close, as we commenced this article, with congratulations to all concerned for the signal success of the Festival of the 12th, and with earnest hope for an equal satisfactory return from the Girls' School and Boys' School anniversary gatherings.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

The East has always a charm for every thinking person. It lies still before us in its mystic grandeur, shrouded like Isis of old in all but impenetrable wonder and awe, silent and weird in its glamour and desolation like the stately and majestic Sphinx. It is still a land of marvels and strange contrasts, of moving memories and captivating realities. We wander in its crowded cities, or move amidst its isolated ruins, spell-bound, fascinated, awe struck! The genius of the land still seems to enthrall us and surround us at every step we take, at every sight we pause, with a magic and subduing influence. Go where we will our minds perforce recur to those oriental tales which delighted us so much in happier years. In Cairo especially, the memories of the "Arabian Nights" still cling to us, and though perhaps we do not find "cream tarts with or without pepper," we can still see a veiled lady on a shopping excursion, we still can realize the existence of those lively personages who crowd the pleasant pages of that delightful book, we still see the scar on Amine's cheek, and listen to the sagacious but somewhat voluble Zobeide, and admire the silent, and discreet, and listening Sultan. How unlike modern husbands! Smith of to-day says to Robinson of to-day, "Fine weather, old boy. My wife has lost her voice, and can't talk. Just suits me, old fellow." Painful contrast! "But revenons a nos moutons." And the East has ever, too, a lasting interest for Freemasons, for Freemasonry came from the East, remember. In saying this we do not forget the great principles of cause and effect, of origin and development, of historical accuracy, of archaeological truth. Freemasonry is no doubt lineally and directly from the Operative Guilds, but the guilds had through Roman, through Ecurian, through Hebrew, through Grecian, through Phœnician Confraternities, after all, we believe, a purely Eastern origin. And if that ancestry of ours be in the remote ages of the past, it is still our ancestry, and one of which we may all be proud. Egypt especially has historic claims for us, is perhaps for us the "missing link," inasmuch as there can be no doubt but that a portion at any rate of the Egyptian initiatory system was grafted at a very early period into the "secreta receptio" of the building sodalities. Masons' marks can still be seen on the interior walls of the Pyramids, identical with those in use elsewhere, and with those in use in much later epochs. We have, then, as Freemasons, a deep and abiding interest in all that relates to the East, and not the least to Egypt. Without entering upon political disquisitions, or discussing affairs of state, always forbidden to Freemasons, we may we think be permitted to rejoice that by a wise and enlightened decision the Government of our country has acquired national rights and vested interests in that remarkable undertaking, the Suez Canal. Independently of the absolute necessity of preserving at any cost our highway to India, and of maintaining our prestige in the Mediterranean, we think that all that tends to bring nations closer to each other under the guarantees of law, of order, of civilization, of good government, constitutes a fresh pledge for the preservation of the peace of the world, and is therefore a true blessing to humanity. In, therefore, the interests of brotherly goodwill and cosmopolitan unity, we hail this, in our humble opinion, judicious step of Her Majesty's constitutional advisers, and we trust, as we believe, that it will tend more and more to the welfare of Egypt, the extension of commerce, to the benign and elevating influences of civilizing progress and general intercourse. We think that M. Lesseps has deserved well of all who, looking beyond the somewhat narrow limits of local prejudices and even national interests, can regard with approval the onward march of that great army of the human race, on whose banners are inscribed the pleasant words, Toleration, Improvement, Goodwill; "whose victories are ever victories of peaceful enthusiasm, whose successes are ever successes of humanitarian sympathy and fraternal concord." We therefore, not as politicians but as Freemasons, rejoice in the acquisition by this country of active interests in that most important and striking enterprise, the Suez Canal.

MASONIC PUFFERY.

It has been said that we live in an age of "puffing," and that the "To Kalon" of the day is to advertise. Well in business we think that advertising is so to say the guarantee of success, inasmuch, as by the common law of the world, if you can only persuade people to take you at your own valuation, or to believe in what you have to say, to offer, or to sell, you are fully sure to succeed! Hence advertising, though no doubt in its enlarged use a specialité of our own days, is after all, but a development of the world's normal theories of progress and success. And no one can object to business advertisements, quâ business advertisements, they constitute in fact part of the capital and paraphernalia of trade! Harmless puffs of this or that commodity, prosaic or poetic recommendations of this or that "superior article," are in themselves not only allowable but useful, as many no doubt are led to discover wants of which they were not previously sensible, and to make purchases of what is so indispensable, whether for use or ornament. So that necessities become luxuries and luxuries become necessities, and all this is for the good of trade! As Mr. Weller observed of old, even the undertakers must live! But puffing and advertising degenerate into a nuisance, whenever they are used for personal pretensions, or for individual notoriety. Here it is, that as far as advertising is concerned, the legitimate, becomes illegitimate, and the reasonable ridiculous! The obtrusion of individual excellencies, however great, and the unseasonable reminder of special enterprises may be made not only a nuisance, but an impertinence! There are times and seasons for all things here, and we are all influenced every now and then perhaps more than at other times by the awakened memory of the merits of persons and things. But when without rhyme or reason such claims and reminders are thrust upon our notice, "no- lentes volentes," they are apt to miss their mark, and we are ourselves certain to resent the intrusion. They then become, as we ventured before to think, a bore, and even a discourtesy. There are moments when we wish to be free, even from the thralldom of business, the cares of the office, the tricks of trade, and the commonplace routine of the counting house, the shop, the warehouse. Puffery may, as we pointed out, be quite legitimate within certain limits, but Masonic puffery is to be seriously deprecated! If our neighbours will not believe in us, without soft and sedative puffs, we fear that we are likely not to be believed in at all! Let us therefore try to keep out of Masonic personality and individuality, the art of puffery, praise made easy, and commendation rendered ludicrous. Though there is nothing so easy as to blame, remember there is equally nothing so facile as to praise, and overpraise, puffery of any kind, Masonic puffery "surtout," are sure in the long run to leave us stranded like disconsolate whales high and dry on the great shore of Masonic ridicule and profane contempt.

INCREASE OF ANNUITANTS.

We are very happy in being permitted to announce that ten additional widows will be placed on the Fund of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. We feel sure this will be good news to many, and will be deeply appreciated by the Craft at large. Might we venture to suggest to the committee and Bro. Terry, the zealous and hard working Secretary, (whose salary we were glad to see had been very properly augmented) that the time has come, when the men's annuities should be raised to £45, and the women's to £32 annually? This would be equally, we are sure, hailed by the Order as a step in the right direction.

THE WILSON MS.

I am happy to state that this MS., whose whereabouts has long been sought for, is now proved to be extant.

It is alluded to by Hutchinson and Preston, and is said by the latter in his famous "Manifesto" to be of the reign of Henry VIII.

It was then said to be in the hands of Mr. Wilson, of Broomhead, near Sheffield, Yorkshire.

But as it appeared on due enquiry that the Wilson Charter or MS. was sold to the well-known collector of MS., Sir Thomas Phillips some years back, it became necessary to find out what was their subsequent fate.

They still exist in the possession of his son-in-law.

The MS. is described as "an old MS. on vellum, a book by itself." There is also in the same collection an Italian MS., which is in all probability the original of some books printed at Venice, on Masonry, about 1780 or 1784.

I hope before long to obtain a transcript of the MS., which will be a great addition to our archaeological evidences, and to ascertain its exact date.

WELCOME OF OUR GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

When our Grand Master returns, could there not be a Masonic welcome of him? Why should not our Annual Grand Festival be made special, and held, say at the Alexandra Palace?

If the authorities at the Grand Lodge would take the matter up, we might have I do not hesitate to say, one of the noblest gatherings this country has ever seen, and one in which our entire Craft would gladly take part.

I am so bold as to add, that I would admit our fair sisters.

It is just possible that the charming and august wife of our Grand Master would deign to be present.

Here is an idea—is it good for anything? Can it be worked out?—Yours fraternally,

AN OLD-ENGLISH MASON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I shall be glad to know if any project is on foot to give our Royal Grand Master a Masonic welcome on his return to this country.

I beg to suggest a grand Masonic ball, and that the proceeds over and above expenses be divided between the Masonic Charities.

Should the idea meet with the views of the Craft, I shall be glad to contribute my mite towards preliminary expenses.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

E. J. WATFORD.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As it may gratify the brethren in England to hear that His Royal Highness our Grand Master is not forgetting the Craft in the far East on his journey up country from Calcutta, he called here at Bankipore, the civil station of Patna, the capital of Bihar, and held a Grand Durbar, where he received some of the oldest and most noted of our Indian dependencies. Lodge True Brothers, No. 1210, of Dinapore (the military station seven miles distant), headed by their Master in full regalia, were the first to receive him at the entrance to the ceremony. He was highly pleased, but before the presentations were over we had somewhat more reason to be gratified. Our Grand Master had not forgotten us, for in front of the whole assembly he called for the Freemasons, who were marshalled in double file right up the centre of the platform by the W.M., and severally presented by name as Brother A., B., &c. We were most graciously received. It was a great honour to us personally, and a credit to the Craft generally.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

MASTER MASON'S JEWELS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

I am glad that a Master Mason has again opened the question of jewels for Master Masons, as I cannot find the slightest authority for such, but (with all deference to your editorial dictum) a distinct prohibition, a prohibition so marked that I should certainly protest against their being worn in a lodge in which I presided. I trust that these repeated letters will call the attention of the Grand Lodge to the question, so that the matter may be definitely settled.—I am, yours fraternally,

ONE WHO OCCUPIES THE CHAIR OF K.S. FOR THE FOURTH TIME.

[We should like to try the question with the W.M. before the Board of General Purposes. The "onus probandi" rests upon him to prove that the five pointed star, worn by Master Masons is "inconsistent" with any of the degrees recognised by the Grand Lodge.—Ed.]

CENTENARY FESTIVAL OF THE ST. ANDREW'S LODGE, No. 231.

This distinguished lodge met at the Freemasons' Hall Great Queen-street, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., on an occasion of more than ordinary interest, it being not only appointed for the installation of the Worshipful Master, but for the celebration of the centenary of the foundation of the lodge. The W. Bro. John Messent having taken the chair, installed Bro. J. H. Paul, P.M., as Worshipful Master, in the presence of a Board of Installed Masters, numbering twenty-four brethren.

The following brethren, all of whom are Past Masters, were invested by the W.M. as the officers for the ensuing year:—W. Bros. Ibbetson, I.P.M.; Alfred Richards, as S.W.; C. J. Curtis, J.W.; John Messent, Treas.; Henry Cutler, Hon. Sec.; W. S. Webster, S.D.; John Robbins, J.D.; Henry Bridger, I.G.; Charles Harding, D. of C.; Western, Assist. D. of C.; Longstaff, Tyler.

After the investment of officers, Bro. Messent, in a very impressive manner, delivered the customary addresses to the Master, Wardens and brethren, after which a procession, formed by the following officers of the Grand Lodge of England, preceded by Stewards, entered the lodge-room, the brethren rising to receive them, and Bro. W. Ganz, P.G.O., playing a grand march during the procession and until the brethren were again seated.

The following Grand Officers were also present:—Rt. Hon. Earl of Limerick, P.G.M. for Bristol; Lieut.-General Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.M. for Surrey; Colonel Arthur Cole, C.B., P.G.M. for Surrey; Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter, P.G.W.; Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; John B. Monckton, President of Board of General Purposes; John Hervey, Grand Secretary; H. P. Dumas, P.G.D.; F. A. Woodman, G.P.; Wilhelm Ganz, P.G.O.; Peter de Lande Long, V.P. of Board General Purposes; Clavius Hansard, P.G.S.; Major Shadwell Clerke, P.P.G.S. for North Devon; Dr. Rhys Williams, P.G.S.; F. J. Corder, P.G.S.

The W.M. having handed the gavel to Bro. the Earl of Limerick, who gracefully returned the same, called upon the Secretary to read the letters he had received from those brethren who were prevented from joining the lodge, and Bro. Cutler, Hon. Sec., read letters from several distinguished brethren.

The Director of Ceremonies, Bro. Charles Harding, P.M., by command of the W.M., read from a list the names and titles of those present, and bade the visitors hearty welcome to the lodge.

The warrant of the Grand Lodge, authorizing the members of the lodge to wear a commemorative jewel, was read by the Secretary.

The W.M. then called on Bro. John Messent, P.M., to read his paper on the history of St. Andrew's Lodge from its formation to the present time. This was listened to with great interest by the brethren, and Bro. Messent was warmly greeted at its conclusion.

From this paper (which, by the wish of the lodge, we understand will be printed) we have been kindly permitted by Bro. Messent to extract the following account of the migrations, &c., of the lodge since its foundation:—

"Founded in 1776, its first meetings were held at the Coach and Horses, Queen Anne-street (the number of the lodge at that time being 490).

"The original warrant having been lost or destroyed, a warrant of confirmation was obtained on the first of June, 1829, under which the lodge now acts. The first Master was one Bro. William Shepherd; the S.W. Bro. James Hamilton; and the J.W., Bro. James Wilson. Bro. Shepherd was re-elected Master in 1777 and 1781, was succeeded by Bro. Peter Lacon; the number of the lodge was now changed to 396. In 1788, the Master was one Bro. Charles Stewart."

"For some time prior to the year 1805 the meetings were held at the Black Dog, St. James's; after which the lodge was removed to St. James's Tavern, Great Marylebone-street. In 1806, Joseph Grimaldi was initiated in the lodge; from 1807, the lodge was held successively at the Wheatsheaf, in the Strand; The Freemasons' Tavern; the White Lion, Oxford-street; King's Head, Cumberland-street; Union Tavern, New Bridge-street; Three Tuns; Fetter-lane; Cannon Coffee House, Cockspur-street; Betty's Coffee House, Strand; Piazza Hotel, Covent Garden; and from 1847, again at the Freemasons' Tavern."

The R.W. Bro. the Earl of Limerick expressed the happiness he felt in being present, and the pleasure with which he had listened to Bro. Messent's paper, and concluded by wishing the lodge God speed for the future.

"Hearty Good Wishes" having been expressed by the brethren, on behalf of their respective provinces and lodges, the lodge was closed, and the brethren, to the number of 112, sat down to an elegant banquet (à la Russe) prepared under the direction of Bro. Francatelli, the able chef of the Freemasons' Tavern.

On the removal of the cloth, Grace from the Laudi Spirituali was sung by Mesdames Sinclair and Belval, and Bros. George Perren and F. Penna, accompanied by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, P.G.O., on the pianoforte. In proposing "The Health of the Queen" the W.M. said it did not require any eloquence on his part to insure a most cordial reception of the toast, one always warmly received by Masons; it was well-known that three out of her four sons were Masons, and it was only to be regretted she could not be one herself. In order therefore to receive this toast with Masonic honours, it is necessary to couple the name of Her Majesty with the Craft. Brethren, I give you "The Queen and the Craft."

After the National Anthem, in which the brethren joined, had been sung.

The W.M. said: The next toast is that of our "Most Worshipful Grand Master." I call on you to greet this toast with all cordiality and fervour, not only because the Prince of Wales is our Masonic Sovereign, but also on account of the personal regard and affection in which every Freemason holds his Royal Highness. He is, as we all know, now in India, where, whenever he has an opportunity of acting in his capacity of Grand Master, he is always present. Every one here wishes him a prosperous journey, and I ask you to drink his health, wishing him a safe return to his native land.

National song, "God save the Prince of Wales," composed by Bro. W. Ganz, P.G.O., and sung by Bro. George Perren.

The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. Grand Master," and said: We all know how popular he is amongst us, and how, in spite of his onerous duties as one of Her Majesty's Secretaries of State, he still makes time to fulfil thoroughly the duties of Pro. Grand Master.

Glee, "In this hour of softened splendour."

W.M.: Brethren, the last toasts have been in some respects toasts of ceremony, though I am sure we have drunk them with all our hearts, but the toast I now propose is not only one of ceremony, but one that refers to brethren with whom many of us are more or less acquainted. The toast of "The Health of the Right Worshipful Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the Present and Past Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of England." There are here present this evening many Grand Officers, who without exception are daily doing good service to Masonry, have done much in time past, and quite ready and willing to do much more again. Time will not allow me to-night to mention the especial manner in which many of the Grand Officers here are deserving of our thanks, but I am sure you will agree with me they merit our warmest approbation and our most cordial greeting. In connection with this toast I especially mention the name of Bro. the Earl of Limerick, whom I am pleased to see at my right hand to-night, and I call on his lordship to acknowledge the toast.

The R.W. Bro. Earl of Limerick replied,

Worshipful Master and brethren—I must say I never felt myself to be on any occasion more than I do on the present one in the wrong place. When I see our Grand Secretary's smiling face, and when I see the two officers here who contributed so much to the success of the installation of His Royal Highness, I must say I am not the person who ought to return thanks on this occasion; there are many who would do it in words I am incapable of making use of, still I can say I feel deeply your kindness in proposing this toast, and I am only interpreting the feelings of the Grand Officers when I thank you for your kindness in asking us to the magnificent hospitality of St. Andrew's Lodge; it will never be forgotten by any now here, and will be regretted by those who have not been here. I express the wish that this lodge may go on and prosper "till time shall be no more."

R. W. Bro. Lieut.-General Brownrigg, C.B.: Experience has taught me that old age in Masonry has its privileges as well as its penalties; it rarely happens to the lot of a visitor to have the privilege of proposing a toast. The toast is "The Health of the Worshipful Master, and success to the Lodge of St. Andrew." It would be an impertinence in me if I ventured to speak of the Worshipful Master; unfortunately for acquaintance with him is slight, but he is well known to many of the visitors of this lodge from the fact of his being installed Master of this lodge for the second time; my toast is made much more difficult, but I think we all must have been delighted at the opportunity given us to attend this meeting; as Masons we are all charmed to see how the Craft flourishes, and after the lapse of a hundred years to find this old lodge flourishing. Here are the great grandchildren of the old members of this old lodge; nothing could be more interesting than such a celebration as this, and extremely interesting was the traditional history which the Brother Treasurer read to us this evening. After all this, what does it go to prove? It proves the excellence of our Craft, and how we hang together, and I hope, Worshipful Master and brethren, should time last so long, that in 1976 your descendants, great grandchildren and great great grandchildren, will be here to celebrate a second centenary. We drink to "The Health of the Worshipful Master and to the prosperity of the St. Andrew's Lodge," and, as we find in the song written for this occasion,

Be bright its future history,

So let the goblet flow,

We'll drink the toast our fathers drank

One hundred years ago.

The W.M. replied: I feel embarrassed in returning thanks for the very great compliment the brethren of the St. Andrew's Lodge have paid me by placing me in this position. It is very many years since I first joined this lodge, and the brethren have always given me the greatest consideration. I have reached the culminating point of my ambition to-night in being installed for the second time its Master. This lodge is very near and dear to me, and I feel the compliments paid it by General Brownrigg are not undeserved. I trust it will for many, very many years, continue to go on and flourish, and be equal to any in the Craft. I am very proud to see so many distinguished visitors around this table, and grateful to them for joining so cordially with you in this toast. I will not now detain you longer than to say, once more, brethren, I thank you. Solo pianoforte "Fantasia," Bro. Wilhelm Ganz.

W.M.: The celebration of the centenary of our lodge has been the means of introducing to us many visitors, and I doubt if any one of my predecessors in the chair of this lodge has seen so goodly and so illustrious an array of guests as we are honoured with this evening. I am glad they are too numerous to be separately named, and I will not attempt to recite their titles and dignities, but I call upon you to drink their health most heartily. I am very pleased to see them, and I trust they will all understand that through me the St. Andrew's Lodge bids them a hearty welcome, that through me the St. Andrew's Lodge thanks them for their presence and co-operation on this great day for the lodge, and that we one and all sincerely hope they will carry away with them agreeable reminiscences of St. Andrew's Lodge. I call on Bro. Col. Lowry Cole to return thanks.

Bro. Col. Lowry Cole, C.B.: I can only say I am not the person who should return thanks for the visitors; there are those here who stand higher in your affections in every way. I have enjoyed myself as much as anybody, by the kind way in which we have been received. I speak for men of almost every profession, and almost every country, and I cannot possibly know what every man thinks, but on the common ground attached to our Craft. We have been asked here, and cannot but be grateful for it in every sense. Our creature comforts have been attended to on every side, and what is a great deal more, we have had a warm-hearted welcome, making the invitation doubly valuable. On this point I know every one will join with me. I am only sorry we are not likely to see another centenary, otherwise we should be delighted to look forward to it, but we must remember that we shall ere then be realising the great truth in our debt to the Great Architect of the Universe. I thank you, Worshipful Master, for the way in which you have spoken of the visitors.

Song, "By the Sad Sea Waves" (Benedict), Madame Belval, who, on being recalled, sang "She Wore a Wreath of Roses."

W. Bro. Philbrick, Q.C.: After the delightful strains of the vocalist it is difficult to bring you back from the young lady with the "wreaths on her brow;" at the same time, as one of the guests you have honoured to-night, I feel I should not discharge the duties which your hospitality has imposed on me if I did not ask you to drink the health of a body of brethren who might be included in two distinct toasts, for all the officers of the lodge are Past Masters also. I ask you to drink "The Health of the Past Masters." The Past Masters of all lodges constitute the strength of the lodge, it is they who hand down the traditions of the lodge, it is to them that the members look for encouragement and support in the duties of their respective lodges. Past Master Messent, in that able paper which we listened to with so much interest (I think), stated that in the year 1803 or 4, their lodge was possessed of only eight or nine members. We who are visitors here to-night know how flourishing is the state of the lodge now: the present occasion, however, is like the flowering of the aloe, which only blooms once in a hundred years, and although we cannot hope, like the sanguine youth who was tempted to wish to be present on the second centenary, we trust (whenever may be Masons at that period) the St. Andrew's Lodge will be going on prosperously. In asking you to recognise the services of the Past Masters I shall carry with me your best wishes, although they are now in subordinate offices in the lodge. I shall call upon you, Bro. Richards, the Senior Warden, to respond to this toast.

W. Bro. Richards, Brethren of the Grand Lodge, Worshipful Master, and Brethren: I assure you I experience great difficulty in responding to this toast after the eloquent speech of my old friend, Bro. Philbrick. It is not the first time that he and I have met, nor is it the first time I have had the pleasure of listening to his eloquence. I return thanks for "The Past Masters"—they have done their duty in presenting the petition to the Grand Master, and one of them read the excellent paper we heard this evening; every Past Master has stepped forward so that this day might pass off with that éclat which all were anxious it should do. The thanks of this lodge are also specially due to the late officers for the brotherly manner in which they have so kindly given up their immediate promotion by vacating their positions for the present year. From Bro. Messent's paper we find that the name of the first Master of this lodge was Shepherd. He must have been a good shepherd to have watched over it for one hundred years, and I am sure that my old friend and Worshipful Master who now presides over the lodge, and with whom I have been closely associated in many ways for a long time past, will prove to be an equally faithful guardian of the interests and welfare of the St. Andrew's Lodge. I can only say I thank you on behalf of the Past Masters, and can assure you that, as regards the wish that has been expressed to be present at the second centenary, if it be in the power of the Past Masters, they give you the invitation.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge," including in the toast the names of Bros. Messent, Cutler, and Harding.

W. Bro. Messent: I have much pleasure in responding to the toast you have kindly given, and beg to assure the Grand Officers and visitors that if they have had any cause to be pleased, the officers of the lodge themselves have double cause to be so, and to highly appreciate their position. For the honour and credit of the lodge and of those who are its members, I feel exceedingly pleased they have appreciated the small part I have taken to-night. I am glad to find that two of my brother officers will also respond, and their labours will be more appreciated than mine. (No, no). I feel great pleasure in being here to-night and in witnessing the success which has attended this meeting. Bros. Cutler and Harding having also spoken in reply, the Tyler's toast was called for, and thus terminated the proceedings of the centenary festival of St. Andrew's Lodge.

The committee appointed at last meeting to make arrangements for holding the annual festival reported that it was to be held in Maxwell's Arms, on Friday, the 3rd March. Mr. N. FITZROY LODGE, No. 569, BALL.

The Fitzroy Lodge, No. 569, which is attached to the Hon. Artillery Company, gave their first ball, on Wednesday evening, at the Armoury House, Finsbury. Although the Hon. Artillery Company have for several years given a similar entertainment, the lodge has not, and when it was proposed by W. H. Hamilton to the brethren towards the close of 1875, it was first doubted whether it would be a success, and a few members raised their voices against it. They, however, soon adopted the views of the proposer and numerous other brethren, and heartily co-operated with them in arranging details and contributing to the success of all the arrangements. With such harmony it was impossible that anything but success could attend the event, and the result will no doubt encourage the brethren to repeat in future years an experiment which afforded the greatest satisfaction to over 200 ladies and gentlemen.

The brethren who formed the committee were Bros. H. J. Adams, P.M. of the lodge; Quarter-Master Brighton, J. C. Daniel, M.A., P.M. of the lodge; J. Dyer, Captain Egglese, P.M. and Sec. of the lodge; H. Hamilton, Captain R. Helsham, P.M. of the lodge; Lieutenant Holt, G. S. Potter, Griffiths Smith, P.M. of the lodge; Ensign Spicer, S.W. of the lodge; and Ensign Stohwasser.

The Stewards were Bros. W. J. Ansell, H. C. Barker, W. Birdseye, G. Blundell, Major C. J. Burgess, R. C. Cumberland, L. J. Drew, A. D. Everingham, R. B. Fastedge, Surgeon-Major P. J. Gowland, P.M.; F. Graves, W.M.; Captain J. M. Garrard, J. Glaskin, T. A. Henderson, W. H. Honey, P.M.; Captain W. C. Jay, W. Jolliffe, G. W. Lay, J. W. Long, P.M.; A. R. Louch, W. H. Main, P. Matthews, P.M. and Treas.; H. Mercer, W. Perrin, J. C. Sanderson, J. Smith, P. Watson, P.M.; K. G. Webster, Sergeant I. J. H. Wilkins, T. Wilson, P.M.; Sergeant G. F. Wilson, W. J. Worthington, J. Hutchinson. Bro. F. J. Stohwasser, was Hon. Sec.

The company began to assemble shortly after eight o'clock, when the carriages drove into the grounds up to the main entrance of the Armoury House, at which a brilliant star double fronted, was displayed, one face looking towards Finsbury, and the other towards Bunhill-row. On entering, visitors found "cannon to right of them, cannon to left of them," with trophies of arms between every two guns; and a liberal supply of beautiful evergreens. Over head were a number of flags and banners, which added a considerable appearance of gaiety to the scene. Before passing the fine old staircase which will accommodate five men abreast, every lady was presented by Sergeant-Major Andrews, who took tickets, with a programme.

The lodge-room, which is on the same floor as the ball-room, was cleared of furniture, so that all the company had a good opportunity of inspecting the old pictures and engravings which adorn the walls, and are so very interesting not only as works of art, but as historical reminders. The ball-room presented a very pleasant appearance. It had been laid with a handsome light-coloured pattern flooring, and was lighted by five handsome gaseliers. The room had been artistically arranged by the armourers from the Tower of London, who certainly had performed their task in a most masterly manner. At one end of the room stood that fine figure in full armour, which is considered the most perfect suit of armour in the kingdom, while the lance he bore, from its enormous length, was the surprise of all who viewed it. Every compartment between the windows, which look out on to the exercise ground, was filled with trophies of ancient arms and regimental flags of ancient date, many of which hung in tatters. The effect produced by these was much increased by the show of old armour belonging to the Honourable Artillery Company, which has been recently hanged on the walls. Flags and other military surroundings, including arms, were also placed on the opposite wall; and at the orchestra end of the room the orchestra was erected so as to extend right across. It was draped, and adorned with shields, the centre one having upon it the words "Fitzroy Lodge, 569," the shield on the left bearing the motto, "Loyalty and Fidelity," and that on the right, "Brotherhood and Benevolence." The band of the regiment furnished the music, and was conducted by Bro. Signor Tamplini, the master of the band.

On the northern wall, between the two paintings, one of the late Prince Consort, and the other of the Prince of Wales, Captain General of the corps, was the beautiful Milton shield, which represents passages in "Paradise Lost," and around the medallion representing those passages exhibits the names of the winners of His Royal Highness's annual prize of £20, since the year 1864. This handsome shield, which was manufactured by Messrs. Elkington, was presented to the corps by Bro. H. Hamilton, and is an object well deserving careful attention.

The usual appearance of a ball-room, with the magnificent and elegant dresses of the ladies is so well known, that if this had been an ordinary ball, it would have been unnecessary to give a full description of it; but being held in anything but an ordinary building, and the gentlemen being in full military costume, the details we give may be interesting. All the members of the lodge, and all the members of the Hon. Artillery Company, who are not members of the lodge, attended in uniform, as did also those visitors who belonged to other regiments. The scarlet uniform, and the blue uniform, therefore, one of which was to be found by the side of every lady, added, however elegantly the lady might be dressed, very much to the impressive effect created by herself, and whatever charms she possessed were heightened by the costume of her partner. The programmes before mentioned, were of themselves a testimony to the good taste of the Stewards and committee, their outside colours being that of the Artillery Company, scarlet and gold; and the inside being blue and white, the colours of Freemasonry. The programme consisted of twenty-four dances divided into two parts of twelve each: quadrille, waltz, galop, Lancers, Waltz, quadrille, galop, Caledonians, waltz, quadrille, Schottische and galop, formed the first part; while the second was composed of waltz, quadrille, galop, Caledonian, waltz, galop, quadrille, waltz, Lancers, quadrille, waltz and galop. The music to which these were danced was, Princess of Trebizonde, Alberta, Neck and Neck, Varsity, Soldaten Lieder, Girofle-Girofla, Always Jolly, New Corps Tanze, La Vie Parisienne, Fashionable Fantasia, Manolo, Fille de Madam Angot, Princes Maria, Scotch Young Gentlemen, Now Here Now There, Blue Beard, New Vienna, Original, La Reine de Saba, Blue Danube, Up and Off. Between the two parts, which was about half-past twelve o'clock, the company adjourned to supper, which was provided by Mr. W. Day, of Southampton Row, Holborn, whose experience in these matters is very great, and who for more than thirty years has supplied the refreshments of the Hon. Artillery Company's annual ball. More than 200 ladies and gentlemen sat down, but the arrangements were so excellent that there was no crowding, and no lack of refreshments. The supper was in fact splendidly supplied. A portion of the drill shed was enclosed within canvas walls elegantly decorated. Across one end was the principal table where Bro. Graves, W.M., sat, and four tables were ranged at right angles with it. Over the Master's table were the words "Honourable Artillery Company," and Peace and Prosperity to the Fitzroy Lodge." On the wall on the right were the words "All Honour to Her Majesty the Queen, Patroness of the Craft;" and on the opposite wall, "All Honour to the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." Flowers and fruit were elegantly disposed on the tables, and the room was brilliantly lighted by candelabra and gas. After a hearty meal, in which there was great enjoyment and much fun, the W.M. gave the loyal toasts and the toasts of "The Ladies" and "Visitors," which having been replied to by Sir E. Lee and Bro. Stohwasser, the company returned to the ball room and kept the amusements going till a late hour. The greatest praise is due to all concerned in the arrangements, which attained their end of making every one happy and comfortable.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. John M. Clabon, P.G.D., President of the Board, presided; Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice President; and Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice President. There were also present Bros. R. J. Spiers, P.G.S.B.; Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; John Boyd, P.G.P.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Thos. Cubitt, P.G.P.; E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; Thos. Wright, G.P.; W. T. Howe, S. Poynter, H. Bartlett, C. F. Hogard, W. Koch, T. J. Sabine, Peter Matthews, F. Binckes, J. Bingemann, W. M. Levy, J. Thomas, B. H. Swallow, J. M. Stedwell, M. S. Larkham, H. Marsh, R. Marsh, H. Massey, ("Freemason"), Samuel May, W. H. Lee, Geo. Bolton, Clarence Harcourt, J. Wilcocks, Dr. Moore, Geo. Everett, W. H. Myers, W. H. Stevens, W. J. Murlis, W. Mann, R. Wentworth Little, and W. Dodd.

Bro. John Hervey, G.S., also attended, and was assisted by Bros. H. G. Buss and A. A. Pendlebury. Bro. C. B. Payne was at his post as G. Tyler.

The Board of Masters was first held, when the paper of business for next meeting of Grand Lodge was settled. The grants of last Board, which required confirmation, amounting to £130, were then confirmed; and the brethren proceeded with the consideration of the new cases, of which there were no less than twenty-eight. The majority of them were of the most distressing and heartrending character, and their number, as well as the distress they exhibited, confirmed the assertion we have often given expression to, that the boasted large and rapid increase of the Order must throw on the whole Craft duties and responsibilities to which its great success has in the moment of prosperity caused them to shut their eyes.

Month by month are the grants made by the Board increased, till at last the brethren have begun to say, Where will it end, and where are the funds ultimately to come from? Fortunately these funds are now large, and at present the Board is able to be liberal. They were not less liberal than usual on Wednesday evening, when, happily for the recipients of their bounty, the amount of distress, and not the services in Masonry, was the measure of liberality. £700 were voted; and this amount was composed of three sums of £75 each, two £50, two £40, one £25, five £30, four £15, and eleven £10.

The lodge was then closed, the brethren having sat four hours.

We are glad to be able to state that there is no foundation for the rumour to which a Dublin newspaper has given currency that His Grace the Duke of Abercorn (M.W.G.M., Ireland), is about to resign the Lord Lieutenancy of Ireland.

An emergency meeting of the Royal Oak Lodge, No. 871, will be held at the White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford, on Monday next, at 7 o'clock.

THE ROSICRUCIAN AND MASONIC RECORD.—This quarterly magazine which has been for nearly eight years, the organ of the Rosicrucian Society, will henceforth be published with the view of enlisting the support of those brethren of the Masonic Fraternity, who are associated with the Christian and Philosophical Degrees. The field of general Masonic literature being already well occupied, the "Rosicrucian and Masonic Record," will be devoted mainly to the examination and elucidation of Freemasonry in its more æsthetic relation with symbolism, science, and thought. Facts and occurrences of an interesting character will, however, be duly noticed, and meetings of Rosicrucians and Philosophical Masons regularly recorded. Several brethren of literary attainments have promised cordial co-operation, and the magazine will continue to be edited by Bros. R. Wentworth Little, and William Robert Woodman, M.D. The publisher is prepared to enlarge the magazine to 48 pages, for the price of one shilling, the numbers to be published in January, April, July, and October.

Bro. C. Horsley presided at an "At Home" of the Urban Club last week.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY (No. 185).—Installation meeting in this lodge was held on Monday, at the City Terminus Hotel, Bro. J. H. Ross, W.M., presiding. There was a very large attendance of brethren, including a long list of Past Masters. Past Master Harris initiated his son; and Bro. John Constable, P.M., in splendid style, installed Bro. Joseph D. Barnett, S.W., as W.M. The following brethren were appointed to office: Bros. Peartree, S.W.; D. Posener, J.W.; Peartree, Treas.; Philip Levi, Sec.; Pare, S.D.; Bayley, J.D.; Croaker, I.G.; A. Posener, D.C.; Barber and Sadler, W.S.; Bilby, P.M., Org.; and Rawles, Tyler. The services of Bro. J. H. Ross, to the lodge while he was W.M., were acknowledged by the presentation of a seven guineas jewel, and a splendid time-piece and two vases in ormolu and china. The new W.M. accompanied the presentation with a highly flattering speech, and read to the brethren the following inscription on the clock:—"Presented by the brethren of the Lodge of Tranquillity, No. 185, to Bro. J. H. Ross, Worshipful Master, in recognition of his services as W.M. during the past year. Given in open lodge, 21st, February, 1876." Bro. Ross, in replying, said:—"Brethren: I have often had occasion to regret the want of power to express myself, and you may readily believe me when I say that I never felt that want greater than at the present moment—the diffidence which has hitherto characterised me is intensified by the circumstances in which I find myself placed this evening. Our W.M. has been pleased to refer to me in terms of great praise, perhaps somewhat undeserved; reference has been made to my work during the past year, and probably some may enquire why I am to be the recipient of this mark of bounty and respect. For their information I may add that I have not introduced any new blood to the lodge, simply because the majority of my friends are Masons. That I have performed the duties to the best of my ability no one will deny; but brethren, something more has been accomplished in fulfilling one of our watchwords, viz., Charity, by serving the Stewardships of our Masonic institutions, and thereby adding some amount of credit to our dignified and proud position. Having thus explained the course of my proceedings, I can only now thank you in the most profound and grateful manner for your appreciation of my efforts, made substantial in these handsome testimonials which, believe me, will be as heartily appreciated by the partner of my life as by myself. Again I thank you most sincerely. This speech was received with great applause, and the other lodge business which remained having been transacted, the brethren were called off for refreshment, where an elegant banquet awaited them. The toasts were afterwards proposed. In giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. said the toast was never received anywhere with greater enthusiasm than in the Lodge of Tranquillity. She had endeared herself to all her subjects and had shown herself worthy to be our Queen. To the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," the W.M. said that although the Prince of Wales had not been in Grand Lodge since his installation, as H.R.H. would have wished, yet when he returned it was hoped he would be seen performing those duties which it was known he was well able to perform. H.R.H. had always taken great interest in Freemasonry since he had belonged to the Order, and in his position of G.M. Masons would rejoice to find him again presiding in Grand Lodge. This toast having been drunk, was succeeded by the toast of "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," which called forth from the W.M. the expression of great gratification at the way his lordship performed his duties and discharged all the offices of the Grand Master in H.R.H.'s absence. The W.M. afterwards gave "The D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," coupling with it the name of Bro. E. P. Albert, A.G.P. Bro. E. P. Albert replied, and assured the brethren that he had been delighted at the lodge working, both as regarded the initiation and the installation. The way in which the ceremonies had been performed that evening proved to him that the lodge was a good working lodge, and the report which he had heard read as to the funds showed him how the funds were bestowed in charity. Grand Lodge of England was always ready to assist brethren who were in distress, but the course adopted by the Lodge of Tranquillity would relieve them of some portion of their responsibilities. The W.M. next gave "The Initiative," who judging from the source for which he came, they might fairly expect would follow in his father's footsteps. In connection with the lodge Bro. Harris, senior, had done much, and if his son did as much for the lodge he would be doing a great deal of good for Freemasonry, and also for himself and to all those with whom he was connected. Addressing the initiate, the W.M. told that brother that at present he knew very little of Freemasonry, but he trusted that when he became better acquainted with it, its objects, its working, and its tenets, he would become as great an ornament to the Order as his father was. Bro. Harris (initiate) replied, and said that he had long wanted to become a member of the Craft, and now that he had joined it he would strive to become a worthy member. The W.M. gave "The Visitors." He found among them many of his oldest, and most esteemed, and loved friends, and therefore his pleasure at receiving them was far greater than perhaps otherwise it might have been. For the rest of the visitors he could say this, that on all occasions the Lodge of Tranquillity would be happy to receive as many visitors as would come among them. We were cemented together by visiting lodges; no matter what our little differences might be in our positions outside the door of the lodge, when we got inside we met as brothers and fellows. He was happy to say with respect to the Lodge of Tranquillity that there was no lodge where visitors were more heartily received. Bros. Dodson, W.M. 188; Blum, W.M. 1017; and Cohen, W.M. 205, replied; and Bro. Ross, I.P.M., then proposed "The Worshipful Master's Health," and said that no words of his would convey to the brethren an adequate idea of the great respect in which the W.M. was held by all who knew him, and of the high opinion they had of the great determination there was on his part to perform his duty as Master of this lodge. While calling on the brethren to drink his health, he requested them to wish him life and health to perform his duties as admirably as he had begun. The W.M. said he had now to do the most difficult part of his work, to return thanks for himself. He could only say that although in his position he might not be able to add so much lustre as many of the P.M.'s had added to the lodge, yet he hoped that no circumstances would prevent his adding some. At the least he would strive to do so; he would do all in his power, the brethren having placed him in his responsible position, to perform his duties properly, and when he left it he hoped they would say he was worthy to take his place among the P.M.'s. He would not say more. If he spoke for hours he could only add words, and they could but express the feelings he had already exhibited (hear, hear) those of truthful and heartfelt thanks to the brethren for the warmth with which they had received him. When the applause which followed this speech had subsided, the W.M. proposed "The Health of Bro. J. H. Ross, I.P.M.," and in the course of his remarks said that Bro. Ross's work in the lodge had told the brethren what he was, and what had taken place in lodge that day would testify to the brethren the amount of esteem in which he was held. He had done all he could for the lodge and for the charities, the noblest and greatest effort of Freemasonry. (Cheers.) Bro. Ross said in reply that having already spoken he would not take up more time in addressing the brethren. He could but thank the brethren. As the W.M. had mentioned the charities in connection with his name, he would reply that he had felt much pleasure in representing the lodge as its Steward at the different festivals. (Hear, hear.) "The Tranquillity Lodge Benevolent Fund" was the next toast, and the W.M. in giving it said the fund was, every brother must feel, one of the great mainstays of the lodge. The fund was large, and it had been doing a great deal of good, which with the co-operation of the brethren he hoped it would continue to do. Bro. Saul Solomon, Treasurer of the fund, replied, and mentioned a few of the instances wherein the Fund had conferred great benefits on brethren who required its assistance. He also mentioned one of its great features—the name of the brother assisted at any time was not made known. The contributions to the fund were then taken, and the amount of £15 10s. 6d. was collected. The toast of "The P.M.'s" followed. "The Treasurer and Secretary," and "The Officers" were next given, and Bro. Bilby, Organist, replied at great length, shortly after which the lodge was resumed and then closed, and the brethren separated. During the evening Bros. C. S. Jekyll, Perry, Child, Moss, Hubbard, and Ross contributed some beautiful harmony to the evening's pleasures. Bro. Massey represented the "Freemason."

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188).—This lodge held its meeting at the Albion Tavern on the 7th inst. Present: Bros. Dodson, W.M.; L. Lazarus, S.W.; Millar, J.W.; P.M.'s L. Alexander, M. L. Alexander, H. M. Levy, J. Abraham, and E. P. Albert, A.G.P., Hon. Sec., all the officers, and several members. Bros. J. Creamer, Petchell, and Emanuel were passed to the Second Degree. Bro. Lavy was raised to the Third Degree in a very able manner by the W.M. Messrs. J. R. West, J. Clark, and Smith were initiated into the Order. Each of them contributed to the Benevolent Fund. After the conclusion of business, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-hall, where excellent refreshment was provided. The W.M., after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk, proposed "The Prosperity of Joppa Benevolent Fund," coupling with the toast "The Health of Bro. L. Alexander, P.M. and President. The visitors were not so numerous as usual. Present: Bros. Ross, W.M. Tranquillity; Cheesewright, Royal Alfred; and Emanuel.

GRANITE LODGE (No. 1328).—The installation of Bro. W. Henry Muggeridge as W.M. of this lodge, took place on Saturday, the 12th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. All the officers of the lodge were in attendance. Amongst the visitors, who numbered about 50 brethren, were the following:—Bros. J. Boyd, P.G.P.; Colonel Peters, P.M.; W. Dyott Burnaby, W.M. 142; G. A. Rooks, P.M. 142; H. C. Levander, P.M. 142; Muggeridge, P.G.W.; Galt, P.G.J.W. Isle of Wight; J. H. Vockins, P.M. 1329; Larham, W.M. Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge; R. W. Little,

P.G.S.W. Middx.; H. G. Bass, P.G.T. Middx.; Middlemass, 1329; Ibbetson, W.M. St. Andrew's Lodge; and many other distinguished brethren. Letters of regret for unavoidable absence were read from Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, P.G.M. Middx., and Bro. John Hervey, G. Sec. Before the installation Bro. W. Holliday and Bro. Rhodes Fellow Crafts, were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. Bros. A. C. Shelley and J. H. Outhwaite were passed to the Second Degree; and Messrs. T. W. Rowe, C. Jenkin Jones, J. B. Lee, Edgerton James Pain, Edward Finnis Clark, and George Henry Chapman, were duly initiated, and Bro. Emmanuel Edward Gefiowski, of No. 249, was unanimously elected a joining member of the lodge. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Cottebrune, P.G.P., in a very impressive and masterly manner, assisted by the Retiring W.M., and the W.M. was duly saluted by the brethren in the Three Degrees. The W.M. appointed as his officers for the ensuing year Bros. F. West, S.W.; R. C. Mount, J.W.; G. Hackford, P.M., Treas.; J. Lewis Thomas, P.M., and Sec.; R. Payne, S.D.; J. Rhodes, J.D.; B. Turner, P.G. Supt. of Wks. Middx. Afterwards the W.M., Bro. John Oliver, was duly presented with a Past Master's jewel for his eminent services in the chair during his term of office, besides his having in the earlier part of the year, been presented with the jewel commemorative of the installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master. The brethren then proceeded to the banquet at the Freemasons' Tavern, which was of the most successful and satisfactory character, the wine department being under the care of Bro. Septimus Baker, who proceeds to Beaumaris, Anglesey, where he has taken the Williams Bulkeley Arms Hotel. During the banquet Bro. Dan Godfrey's Band performed several popular airs, principally composed by himself. After the cloth was drawn, the W.M. gave the usual Masonic toasts. "The Health of the Queen and the Craft," was drunk enthusiastically, the National Anthem being sung. The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the Grand Master," said, every one who had had the pleasure of meeting him could bear testimony to the genial, kind, and hearty way in which he met one and all. He had undertaken a perilous voyage to a mighty empire, from which nothing but good would result to the Craft. The fact that he was Grand Master would ensure him great and additional respect. Bro. Boyd responded for the Grand Officers. Bro. Oliver, P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M." The W.M., in responding, said it was with pride that he occupied the chair. Some years ago, when initiated into Freemasonry, he did what he could for the lodge, which had grown from a pebble to a huge rock. Other lodges ought to be proud if they could shew similar results. (Hear, hear.) During the few brief years of its existence it had contributed to the charities. (Hear, hear.) That was the duty of every lodge. For the honour they had done him he would endeavour to perform his duty well, and he thanked them all for the kindnesses shewn to him during the time he had been a brother. All the duties he had performed had been pleasing ones. He had been preceded by a Master whose term of office had been remarkable. He had initiated no less than thirty members during the year, and every initiate or any one who had visited the lodge had experienced great satisfaction and pleasure at his hands. He proposed his health, and said he had a still more pleasing duty to perform, which was to present him, on behalf of the lodge, with the Past Master's jewel. Bro. Oliver, W.M., in acknowledging the compliment paid him, thanked them with all his heart for the way they had received his health. It gave him great pleasure to fill the office. He again thanked them sincerely for having presented him with the great installation jewel of Grand Lodge, and also for the Past Master's jewel. He should wear both with a feeling of pride, for his year of office had given him a good deal of anxiety. He had done it in a way that he was sure would meet with the approval of all. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the New Members," remarked that he was sure they would never feel sorry for the step taken, and he felt confident that they would be proud of being invested in a society which boasts so many eminent names. For the future their object ought to be not so much to enjoy themselves, but to help and aid their fellow men. The new members severally acknowledged the great pleasure they felt at being made one amongst a multitude. The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Visitors," and in doing so said that if the lodge met together without visitors he was sure they would not enjoy themselves half so much as when they had visitors to participate in the hospitality. One visit brought about another, and it tended therefore to make them know and understand each other, and to find out what peculiarities may exist, and virtues that may lie dormant. There were present the extraordinary number of forty-five visitors, and he hoped their health would be drunk, and a hearty welcome promised them, and he coupled with the toast the names of Bros. Boyd and Middlemas. Bro. Boyd, P.G.P., in responding, said it was not the first time he had visited their lodge. He congratulated the lodge on having such a worthy Master. On the last occasion of visiting the lodge the hospitality was second to none, and he was sure the visitors of the present evening had had all that they could possibly wish for. There were many visitors present who were higher up in Freemasonry than what he himself was but when they saw around them so many P.M.'s as visitors, he was sure it must be a source of high consolation to every one. Bro. Middlemas, 1329, delivered a most amusing and telling after-dinner speech on the subject of Freemasonry, and its incidental pleasures and pastimes, and received a hearty burst of applause on resuming his seat. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the P.M.'s of the Lodge," coupling with it the name of Bro. Charles Sendy. Bro. Sendy, in acknowledging it, said the number of initiates during the past year had entailed much work upon the officers. There were few lodges that could boast such success of the Granite. The reason was that it had afforded every facility to those appreciating Freemasonry, and those who feel that in the Craft they have something solid to look forward to. He thanked them sincerely. The W.M. then gave "The Past Masters' Health," coupling with it the name of Bro. Cottebrune, who suitably replied. The W.M. said the lodge was in a state of unexampled affluence, having more than was wanted, and were enabled out of their funds to give to those having nothing. That spoke volumes for the Treasurer and the Secretary, both of whose healths he cordially proposed. Bro. Hackford, Treasurer, in reply, said the lodge had, under the wise care and judgment of the P.W.M., prospered, and it was a matter for congratulation, more especially as during the last year there had arrived amongst them so many very worthy men. The lodge could afford to be charitable not only to Masonic bodies, but other institutions besides; they ought to look around the world and see in what way they could alleviate distress, whether belonging to the Craft or not. Sometimes he was afraid Freemasons missed the opportunity of doing that good which was placed within their reach. They were a powerful body, well organized, and possessed great resources, and he did think, sometimes with a blush of shame, that they failed to reach that high standard of brotherly love towards each other, and towards all the world, which they ought to exhibit. Bro. J. Lewis Thomas, Secretary, thanked them for coupling his name with the toast, and as there was a "chief among them taking notes," and eager to hand down, as Bro. Middlemas had said, what he should one morning wake up and blush to find fame, he would only say that he was always prepared to discharge his duties to the satisfaction of all, and in furtherance of the views of the brethren. He would say, however, that the members numbered eighty. The lodge had only been in existence four and a half years, and for one year they actually "hung fire," having no initiates. The great addition to their ranks was due to the influence of P.M. Oliver. The W.M. proposed "The Health of his Officers." Bro. Frederick West, on behalf of the officers of the lodge, acknowledged the kind way in which the toast had been proposed. For himself, as S.W., he returned his sincere thanks. When the occupants entered the lodge there were few initiates, but by steady progress the vessel had steered over the troubled waters, and had reached the haven of prosperity at last. Bros. R. C. Mount, J.W.; R. Payne, S.D.; and B. Turner, I.G., having acknowledged the toast, the brethren separated. Bro. Geo. De Maid, founder of the lodge, was present. The evening was passed in the most pleasing manner, the interlude between the speeches being filled with the soul of music, Bros. F. Cambridge, J. Rhodes, G. T. Carter, Dawson and Lawler giving, by their vocal powers, a charming filip to the several toasts of the evening.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—A meeting of this young lodge was held on the 17th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville-road. Bro. J. J. Michael, W.M., presided, and there were also present Bros. James Willing, I.P.M.; T. Williams, S.W.; R. Kingham, J.W.; G. Tims, P.M., Secretary; Scales, S.W.; Side, J.D.; Wm. Stiles, I.G.; Colls, D.C.; Read, Solomon H. Stiles, Gilbert, Easy, J. Tims, Erwood, Clarke, Cavett, Raney, Ormiston, Van Camp, Cadett, Berric, J.W. 1285; Jordan (Zetland), Pinkey, 177; and Harris, 177. Bros. G. and P. Vanderpump and H. Scales were raised, and Bros. Edwards, Owens, Morgan, Raney, G. Clark, and Greenslade were passed. Afterwards Messrs. W. Brooker, T. P. Robins, Edward Van Camp, Joseph Iriuth, and J. J. Bosshart were initiated. All the ceremonies were fluently and impressively performed. The brethren at the close of the lodge work adjourned to an excellent banquet.

CITY OF WESTMINSTER LODGE (No. 1563).—The regular February meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst. at the Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street, when Bro. B. H. Swallow, W.M., presided, having the assistance of Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.M., P.G.P., and Treasurer, as S.W.; White, J.W.; Scott, P.M., Sec.; Turner, J.D.; W. C. Parsons, P.M., I.G.; Shand, D.C.; Hutchinson, W.S.; and Bros. Swaagman, Waugh, Emmanuel, Gardner, and Turner. There were also present Bros. W. W. Stiles, D.C. 1507; Sorrell, S.D. 176; Townley, 1351; Reeves, S.W. 1381; Lakin, 180; and Scott, 135. Altogether about forty brethren attended. Bros. Pratt, 1446, and Shepherd, J.W. 945, were elected joining members of the lodge. Mr. Irving was afterwards initiated in a very able manner by the W.M., who subsequently, and as efficiently, raised Bros. Turner and Gardner to the Third Degree. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous repast. After banquet the brethren honoured the usual toasts. In giving that of "The Grand Officers," he congratulated the lodge on having one of these brethren as a member, Bro. Cottebrune, who excelled in Freemasonry, and of whom they were all justly proud. Bro. Cottebrune replied, assuring the brethren in his happy style of his warm appreciation of the kind words used concerning him by the W.M. He was also proud to belong to a lodge composed of such excellent hardworking Masons as those whom he saw around him. Bro. Cottebrune then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and referred to the length of time he had known him, and to the zealous and hard work which he had performed to bring this lodge into its present prosperous state. He was sure no Master could possibly have started and conducted a lodge in a more creditable manner than Bro. Swallow had done. (Hear hear.) The W.M., in thanking Bro. Cottebrune and the brethren for the kind and cordial manner in which the toast had been proposed and received, said that he was indeed pleased to preside over so prosperous and harmonious a lodge, and the little pains he had taken to make it so were amply repaid by the effect produced. The toast of "The Visitors," which was the next in order, was one, he said he had peculiar pleasure in proposing. He recognised among those brethren some distinguished Masons whom he had the pleasure of knowing personally, and so knowing them he could say they were ornaments and patterns not only to their own, but any lodges visited. Bro. Sorrell, in his reply, included acknowledgments of the hospitality of the lodge, expressions of the pleasure of his visit, and admiration of the working. Bro. W. W. Stiles, in his reply, said that having met with such a cordial reception, and experienced such an intellectual treat in the perfect working of the W.M. and his officers, he should be happy if some of the members of the City of Westminster Lodge would pay a visit to his, the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, when he was sure they would be desirous of doing so again. And this was the feeling he had himself as a visitor to the City of Westminster Lodge. On his right were Bros. Shand and Swaagman, both of whom were members of the two lodges, and one of whom (Bro. Shand) was D.C. of the City of Westminster Lodge. It would be impossible to find two lodges where the working was carried out more efficiently, and where the brethren were more attentive and courteous to their visitors. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Townley also responded, and added his expression of his favourable opinion of the lodge, in proof of which he would ask Bro. Shand to propose him as a joining member. The other visitors likewise replied in the same strain. The initiate ably responded to the toast of his health, and the W.M. then gave "The Officers," and after expressing his regret at Bro. the Rev. P.M. Holden's absence, said that no better officers than those of this lodge were to be found. He was quite satisfied with them, and he considered the great success of the lodge was due to the efficient officers he had chosen. The officers severally replied, and thanked the W.M. for the support and encouragement they had received. After the Tyler's toast, most of the brethren repaired to Freemasons' Tavern, where the St. James's Union Lodge (No. 180) ball was being held, under the presidency of Bro. W. C. Parsons, P.M., assisted by several energetic and worthy Stewards.

MANCHESTER.—St. David's Lodge (No. 147).—The ninth annual meeting of this lodge (the motto of which is "Y addraig goch, y ddry gychwyn") was held on Thursday, the 10th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, at 3 p.m. After the minutes of the previous regular meeting were read and confirmed, Mr. James Buckley Peel was balloted for, and afterwards duly initiated by Bro. Thomas Gibson, P.M. Bro. Thomas Nichols, and Bro. John Roberts were respectively admitted as joining members. Bro. Thomas Robert Peel, W.M. elect, was then presented by Bro. Thomas Richard Williams, P.M., and duly installed by Bro. George Frederick East, Past Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies for East Lancashire, which ceremony was performed in an able and impressive manner. The following brethren were likewise invested with the collar and jewel of their respective offices—namely, Bros. Edward Williams, S.W.; Thomas Elliott, J.W.; Frederick Coupe, Treas.; Ishmael Davies, Sec.; James Maclean, S.D.; John Taylor, J.D.; John Oliver Evans, I.G.; Isaac Wolstone and James Pickford Howarth, Stewards; James Sly, Tyler. The business of the lodge being concluded, the brethren adjourned to the Queen's Hotel, where a most sumptuous banquet was prepared, after which the loyal toasts were proposed and received by the brethren with that loyalty which characterises Freemasons. Being founded, as the name suggests, by Welsh brethren, the toasts of "Success to the Lodges in Wales" was proposed by Thomas Richard Williams, P.M., and responded to by Bro. John Peters, Provincial Grand Senior Warden for North Wales and Shropshire, who gave a very interesting account of the progress of Freemasonry in Wales. Bro. Ellis Jones, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," reviewing his past career in the lodge, and remarked that the energy and perseverance which he had displayed in the fulfilment of the various offices, to which he had been from time to time elected was due to the fact that he had the Anglo-Saxon and Celtic blood running in his veins. He wished him health and long life to continue as a member of the lodge, and was sure that the W.M. would prove himself worthy of the high position in which he was now placed by the unanimous vote of the brethren. The toast was received by the brethren with immense enthusiasm. The W.M. replied that he was deeply impressed, and at the same time gratified, with the honour which had that day been conferred upon him; he felt that it was a great responsibility, but would endeavour to uphold the dignity and intellectual vigour of the lodge, so that its working and moral tone should be second to none in the province. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," and stated that out of six in number they might always count upon five being present at every meeting, ready and able to perform the duty pertaining to any office. The toast was warmly received by the brethren, and responded to by Bro. John Unsworth, P.M. "The Health of the Visiting Brethren" was proposed by Bro. Ishmael Davies, Secretary, and severally responded to. Bro. Charles Holmes Evans, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Newly-Invested Officers," which was responded to by Bro. John Oliver Evans, I.G. The remaining toasts were given and duly honoured; foremost amongst these were "The Masonic Charities," proposed by Bro. Thomas Gibson, P.M., and responded to by Bro. Thomas Wilson. The former remarked that the lodge had not only tided over its difficulties but presented 50 guineas to the Boys' School, and were now about to present thirty pounds to the Systematic Educational and Benevolent Fund for East Lancashire. Among the visiting brethren present were Bros. G. F. East, P.G.D.C.E.F.; John Peters, P.G.S.W. North Wales and Shropshire; L. Taylor, P.M. 1387; H. Elliott, 1387; R. W. Braithwaite, 1476, Blackpool; G. S. Ballard, 1345; Thomas-Fallows, 1161; Fred Cooper, 999; P. H. Holt, 654; G. P. Griffith, W.M. 597; James Spence, 163; Lieutenant Holmes Poulton. The harmony of the evening was much enhanced by the Masonic brethren present, who sang Welsh and English ballads and anthems.

An emergency meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Saturday afternoon, the 19th inst., at three o'clock, when five brethren presented themselves for raising. The W.M., Bro. Thos. Robt. Peel, raised Bros. Jas. Kilner and Robt. Ruttle; Bro. Ellis Jones, P.M., raised Bro. John Alker; and Bro. John Unsworth, P.M., raised Bros. Jas. Ireland and F. Brown. There was a good muster of the brethren for a Saturday afternoon. The lodge was duly closed at 6.30 p.m. The brethren adjourned to refreshment, and spent a pleasant evening until 8 p.m., when they returned to their own firesides.

MELTHAM.—Lodge of Peace (No. 149).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Saturday evening, February 12th, 1876, in the Masonic Rooms. Present: Bros. Rayner, W.M.; N. Earnshaw, S.W.; D. Cairns, J.W.; C. H. Redfearn, Secretary; D. Wood, Treas.; H. W. Wrigley, as S.D.; J. Ellis, as J.D.; W. Sugg, I.G.; H. Buckley, Tyler. Past Masters: Bro. G. Heywood, T. A. Haigh, P.P.G.D.; W. Haigh, W. Myers, and several other brethren. The minutes of last lodge meeting were read and confirmed, when the W.M. rose and said: Brethren, having been placed in the position which I have now the honour of occupying in this lodge, it falls to my lot this evening to have to discharge a very pleasant duty, and although I feel very conscious of my inability to do that justice to it which it so much deserves, yet I feel sure that you will all agree with me when I say that no brother could help but both experience very great pleasure and feel very proud of having the privilege of discharging such a duty. The duty to which I allude, brethren, is that of having on behalf of the lodge to present to Brother C. H. Redfearn, P.M., a Past Master's jewel as a token of esteem and regard for the long, faithful, and valuable services which he has rendered to the lodge, and as a mark of the high estimation in which he is held by the brethren. You are all aware from the minutes which have just been read and confirmed that at our last lodge meeting a resolution was passed to present him with this jewel, and I can assure you, brethren, that in the passing of that resolution a spontaneous unanimity was displayed such as is seldom to be met with anywhere; and I must also add that in making the proposition, Bro. P.M. Wood, with his usual tact, very accurately gauged the feelings of the brethren on the subject, as did also Bro. P.M. Dr. Haigh when he so promptly seconded the proposition. The jewel has now been purchased, and an inscription engraved upon it, which I will read to you: "Presented by the Lodge of Peace, 149, to Bro. C. H. Redfearn, P.M., for faithful services. February, 1876." Bro. P.M. Redfearn then advanced to the pedestal, and the W.M. in a very impressive manner addressed him as follows, viz.: Bro. P.M. Redfearn, by referring to the books I find that you have been a member of this lodge 18 years. You have been a P.M. of the lodge 15 years. You have acted as Secretary of the lodge 10 years. During the time that you have been a member of the lodge you have acted as purveyor for a great number of years in addition to performing your duties as Secretary. I believe that at a very early period of your Masonic career you embraced the opportunity of making yourself thoroughly acquainted with the ceremonies; and I also believe that for the last 10 or 12 years each succeeding new W.M. who has passed through this chair has been more or less indebted to you for the instruction which you have been enabled to give them in the ceremonies, and for your advice and guidance in the conducting of the practical business of the lodge. The officers of a lower degree have also been much indebted to you for the instruction they have received from you. Your usefulness to the lodge has not ended even here, but, as all the brethren very well know, whenever any work has had to be done for the lodge, no matter of what kind, you have always been found ready to put your shoulder to the wheel, and to work for the good of the lodge with a zeal which has been altogether unsurpassable. It is on account of these great and valuable services which you have so freely rendered to the lodge that the brethren have agreed so unanimously to present you with this jewel, and I, in their name, have now the pleasure of handing it to you. I do so with the fullest confidence that it will be highly prized by you; that it will be treasured up in your family as an heirloom, not for its intrinsic value, but for the warm and kind feelings which it will ever have the effect of calling to your remembrance. And when you are gone hence and are no more—when your spirit has ascended to that magnificent mansion above not made with hands—it will no doubt be handed down to your children and to your children's children for many generations, who, in their turn, will look upon it with feelings of satisfaction and pride at the thought of having had an ancestor in the olden time who was held in such high estimation among the Masonic brethren with whom it was his lot to associate. The W.M. (shaking hands with him) then said with great fervency: Bro. P.M. Redfearn, allow me to congratulate you, and may the Great Architect of the Universe give you a long and a happy life to wear the jewel which has now been presented to you by the brethren of this lodge. Bro. P.M. Redfearn in a very feeling manner then thanked the W.M. for the very flattering terms in which he had spoken of him and of what he had done for the lodge; he also thanked the brethren for their very handsome present, assuring them that the jewel would be highly prized by him as long as he lived. It had always been his earnest desire to do all he could for the benefit of the old Lodge of Peace, and he trusted that he should ever merit a continuance of their good wishes.

SHEFFIELD.—The Royal Brunswick Lodge (No. 296) held its regular meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, Surrey-street, Sheffield, at 6 p.m., on Monday, the 14th inst., Bro. Henry Scroby, W.M., in the chair.

He was ably supported by his Wardens (Bros. Ridal and Nicholson), and assisted by Bros. Henry William Pawson, I.P.M., and William Roddewig, Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies West Yorks. The first business of the evening was to ballot for Bro. Edward Mills (Captain and Adjutant Hallamshire Rifles), of St. George's Lodge, Liverpool, as a joining member, and he was declared duly elected. The Worshipful Master then initiated two gentlemen into the First Degree (Messrs. William Fisher Tasker and Robert Colver), and raised two Fellow Craftsmen (Bros. Hugh Neville and Joseph Pickering, jun.) to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons. Supper was afterwards served, Bro. Ecroyd presiding. This will be the last Masonic gathering in the present building, as it will be immediately pulled down to make way for a more substantial and convenient edifice. After supper the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, "The Health of the Visitors" being responded to by a brother from the far west of America (near to the Mexican frontier). He stated that it is no unusual thing in his mother lodge for them to have the company of visiting brethren from a dozen lodges, representing a dozen distinct nationalities. During the evening the W.M. called the attention of those of his brethren who were present in the Royal Albert Hall on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, to the interesting pictorial record of that event which is now being engraved in London, and he recommended those who have not already done so to send their cartes to Bro. Edward T. Harty, 213, Regent-street, who will see that their portraits are included in the engraving. Each portrait is intended to be a likeness, whilst its position will be easily recognisable by means of the key which will accompany each copy. As a work of art, as well as an historical souvenir, the engraving promises to become especially interesting in future years to those who were present, and whose likenesses are included in this pictorial record of what must be an ever memorable event in the annals of English Freemasonry.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The monthly meeting was held on Monday, February 14th. The lodge was opened by Bro. Cooke, W.M., supported by Bros. Dr. Hopkins, acting as I.P.M.; Gore, S.W.; H. C. Hopkins, J.W.; Dickinson, Sec.; Dill, as S.D.; Bright, as J.D.; H. G. Bush, as I.G.; Pinkett, as Tyler. As visitors there were Bros. Moutrie, P.M. 41; Williamson, S.D.; Davis, Glover, Packer, all members of 906; and Knott, of the Phoenix Lodge. The minutes having been read and confirmed, a communication from the Secretary of No. 41 was read, and after some discussion the J.W. and Secretary were deputed to meet committees of the other two Bath lodges, to discuss proposals for a new organ, and report thereon at the next meeting. The W.M. presented to the lodge a handsomely bound book containing the scripture extracts, which are read at every meeting, for which a vote of thanks was passed. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Dr. Hopkins gave a lecture on the Third Degree, for which, and his constant services to 379, a vote of thanks was passed and recorded on the minutes. The Secretary proposed a candidate for initiation.

The lodge was opened at 6.30 p.m. The summons convening the meeting was read. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. Several letters were read from W. brothers and brethren excusing their non-attendance through unavoidable circumstances. The acting Wor. Master said that the next business was to install the Wor. Master elect, Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, W.M. of Lodge Concord, No. 757, E.C., and P.J.W. of Lodge Truth, No. 944, E.C., and informed the brethren that he had been requested to act as the installing officer for the evening, which he had great pleasure in doing, and requested the Secretary to read the dispensation from the D.G.M. of Bombay, sanctioning Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe to be installed as their W.M. for the ensuing year, he having a few days to remain in his present office as W.M. of Lodge Concord, which elicited the applause of all the brethren present. The acting Wor. Master then requested Wor. Bros. Hussey and McKenzie, P.M., to present their W.M. elect, Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, who, after assenting to the ancient charges, was duly installed, and proclaimed and saluted Wor. Master of Lodge of Truth, No. 944, E.C., for the ensuing year, the whole of the installation ceremony having been performed in a most able manner by the installing officer, Wor. Bro. H. W. Barrow. The Wor. Master then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Wor. Bro. C. E. Mitchell (the oldest P.M. of the lodge), I.P.M., the late W.M., Bro. Tudor George Trevor, being absent in England on medical certificate for 20 months' leave; Bro. C. Tudball, S.W.; J. O. Weeks, J.W.; Wor. Bro. Alex. McKenzie, Treasurer; Captain S. Babington, Secretary; J. L. Madden, S.D.; H. Stead, J.D.; P. Bellillie, D.C. and Steward; and J. W. Seager, Tyler for the time, nominated; Bro. Simkins, as I.G.; and informed the brethren that he would invest him at the next meeting. Three members were elected to serve on the Permanent Committee, viz., Bros. P. Bellillie, J. L. Madden, and H. Stead. Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, the newly-installed Master, then rose and said: Past Masters, officers, and brethren of Lodge Truth, before I return my thanks to you I shall ask you to join with me in thanking our visitors for the kindness they have shown us this evening by attending in such large numbers to assist in the ceremony of the installation of your W.M. To you, Wor. Past Masters, officers, and brethren of this lodge, I again beg to tender you my sincere and heartfelt thanks for the great honour you have done me in appointing me to the Mastership of this my mother lodge, the badge of which I look upon as the emblem of the highest honour the Craft can give or a lodge bestow on any of its members. Feeling this, I earnestly trust that you on your parts will give me that support which is so essential for the proper performance of the duty of a Master; that to the best of your power you will be punctual in your attendance at our meetings, and afford me the advice and assistance, which, as your Master, I may hope to look for; and now brethren, allow me to say a few words with reference to the officers whom I have selected to assist me in the working of the lodge. I am sure the Worshipful and Past Masters present will hear me out in saying it is really a difficult task for a Master elect to choose his officers in a lodge like this, where there are so many members qualified to fill any position it to which they may be appointed, but, brethren, I do hope you know enough of me to give me credit for having done my best to secure the interests of "Truth" in the choice I have made. I have appointed Bro. Tudball to the office of Senior Warden because I consider a Secretary has the best claim to the post, especially when during the past year he has performed his work so admirably, and that during a time peculiarly unfavourable to the lodge, and I hope I may add that I do not think there will be two opinions on this selection. Bro. Weeks, the Junior Warden, is one of the oldest of our members, and at different times has worthily filled the posts entrusted to him, namely, those of Inner Guard, Junior and Senior Deacon, and two years as Director of Ceremonies; and I am sure by the able manner in which he carried out the duties of these offices, he will not neglect the post which I have now entrusted to him during the ensuing year. But for the strong claims of these brethren, I should have asked Bro. Captain Babington's acceptance of one of the Warden's chairs. To this worthy brother my best thanks are due for his kindness in consenting to accept the troublesome and responsible post of Secretary, but I must add that I do hope the lodge will so flourish and extend during the ensuing twelve months as to make his post rather heavier than usual even. The Director of Ceremonies, and in addition to these duties that of Steward, has been kindly accepted by another old member of our lodge, who also worthily filled the posts of Junior and Senior Deacon in former years, and carried out the duties of those offices with credit to himself and the lodge. I mean Bro. Bellillie, and I am sure that this brother will also join us heart and hand in carrying out the duties of the offices entrusted to his care during the ensuing year. The S.D., Bro. Madden, is another very old member of the lodge, he having been initiated with Wor. Bro. Walton and myself seven years ago, but up to the present time has not held office in the lodge, although he has not been so regular in his attendance as we should have wished on account of heavy pressure of business; but I trust now he will consider it a matter of duty, and endeavour to attend our meetings regularly to assist us in working his mother lodge up to that high standing it is my wish for her to attain. The J.D., Bro. Stead, is well known to many of the brethren here for his excellent working in other degrees in Masonry, and I am sure he will also join us in the zealous work which I think I may say it is our intention of carrying out in this lodge during the ensuing year, so that the brethren may find it a pleasure to attend our meetings, so that we may say old Lodge Truth is herself once again. These brethren are so well known to you one and all that I need not say anything more in their favour to you. The post of Inner Guard has been kindly undertaken by Bro. Simkins, and I really feel that my best thanks are due to him, for although the post is a very honourable and responsible one, there is often an objection to accepting it in the minds of some brethren. Brethren, again I thank you, and assure you of my earnest intention to do my best for my old mother lodge, now entrusted to my care. The resignation of Wor. Bros. Anderson and Morris and Bro. J. Adams were read and accepted. The Treasurer stated that their dues were all paid, and the Wor. Master ordered clearance certificates to be made out and sent to these brethren. The W.M. then proposed a vote of thanks to the Installing Officer, Wor. Bro. Barrow, for the able way he had performed the ceremony of the installation, which was seconded by W. Bro. McKenzie, and carried by acclamation. Wor. Bro. Barrow thanked the brethren for the vote of thanks just accorded to him, and said that it gave him very great pleasure to be able to instal Wor. Bro. Rowe into the Eastern chair of his mother lodge, which honour he had won for himself by the hard work which he had done for the lodge, and he thought that the brethren had got the right man in the right place, and one that he had no hesitation in saying that he would do credit to the lodge. There being no further work before the lodge it was closed in peace and harmony at 9 p.m., and the brethren then adjourned to a sumptuous banquet. A band was in attendance, and played some select music under the direction of Bro. J. E. Tyers. After the removing of the cloth the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Queen and Craft," which was followed by the band playing the National Anthem. The next toast that the W.M. brought before the notice of the brethren was "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England," and remarked what a great pleasure it had given all those brethren who were able to attend the laying of the foundation stone of the Prince's Dock, and stated that he had been informed that it had met with the high approval of their Most Worshipful Grand Master, and asked them to join in drinking his health, and that he hoped the Great Architect of the Universe would spare him long to rule over us, which was enthusiastically responded to by every brother present. The band played "God bless the Prince of Wales." The W.M. then rose and said: Brethren, the next toast I ask you to join me in drinking is "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon; the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of Scotland, and the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of Ireland." The band played "Britannia, the Pride of the Ocean." The W.M. then asked the brethren to join him in a toast that he was sure he had only to mention—it was "The Health of their District Grand Master, the Hon. J. Gibbs, and his Deputy," and stated that he was sorry that the District Grand Master and his Deputy were not there on the present occasion, as they were unable to attend, but he (the W.M.) was sure that the brethren had that fraternal love for them as their heads in that district, and he was convinced that they were one and all pleased to meet them at any time when it was their pleasure to favour them with their company. The band played the air, "Fine old English Gentleman." Wor. Bro. Mitchell, P.D.G.S.W., responded to this toast on behalf of the District Grand Master and his Deputy regretted their inability to be present on this occasion with the District Grand Officers, as he knew that he (the District Grand Master) was always pleased to attend at such a time as the present one with his District Grand Lodge, and thanked the W.M. and the brethren for the kind way they had received the toast which had been put to them, and had been so warmly responded to. The W.M. then said: Brethren, in proposing to you "The Health of the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Scottish Freemasonry in India," I know you all regret his inability to attend here this evening; but we will drink his health, brethren, with as much enthusiasm as if he were with us, knowing as we do he is otherwise engaged, and we will wish him long life and happiness in the degree he had lately taken, as well as a long Masonic career, which was drank with great spirit. The band played the air, "Blue Bells of Scotland." Wor. Bro. Manekjee, P.D.G.M. of Scottish Freemasonry in India, responded to the toast which had been put to them by their newly-installed Master and said that he was sure that had their Grand Master of Scottish Freemasonry in India been present he would have been pleased with the way the work of this evening had been carried out, and responded to the toast far better than he could have done; but thanked them in the name of Most Wor. Bro. Moreland, himself, and his Grand Officers. Wor. Bro. C. E. Mitchell, P.D.G.S.W. and I.P.M., No. 944 E.C., then said: Brethren, I now ask you to join me in drinking a toast that I am sure will meet with your approbation—it is the toast of the evening, and is "The Health of your Newly-Installed Master, Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe." Brethren, many of you know him so well in the working of the different degrees in Masonry that all I can say to eulogize his Masonic career, and his many good qualities would be superfluous on my part to do so, as I have myself experienced the excellent way he always carries out the work entrusted to him, and you have appreciated his success in this lodge by electing him and installing him as your Wor. Master for the ensuing year. The band played the air, "Cheer, Boys, Cheer." Wor. Bro. Rowe, in replying to the toast of his health which had been proposed by their I.P.M., and which had been so kindly received by the brethren of the lodge and the visiting brethren present, and he would not detain them by making a long speech, and detaining the harmony of the evening, but would simply thank them for the great kindness they had shown towards him that evening by attending in such large numbers to assist in the ceremony of his installation, and hoped he would have the co-operation of the officers he had appointed that evening, also the assistance of the members, and he had not the slightest doubt of the lodge regaining her former standing in the district for the excellent working which she had been noted for two or three years ago, and said nothing else should be wanting on his part to carry out that which he had promised to fulfil during the ensuing year. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Past Masters of Lodge Truth," and said that they had excellent proof of what the Past Masters of the lodge were made of, as the lodge had been worked for the last two years by the brethren of this noble institution. The P.M. said he was sure that the lodge would have been at a standstill long ago had it not been for these worthy brethren, and he should look to them during the year for their support and advice. The band played the air, "For they are jolly good Fellows." Wor. Bro. Mitchell rose and said, on behalf of the Past Masters of the lodge, he wished to express his thanks for the very kind way which their healths had been put before the brethren by the newly-installed Master, and he could only say on behalf of the Past Masters, that they were always ready, as there had been sufficient proof of during the past two years; they were willing to assist the lodge and the officers at any time they needed their services, and he was sure they would all give their new Master all the support that he might require during the ensuing year. The W.M. said he had almost forgotten one very important toast during the excitement of the evening, and that was "The Health of the Installing Master, their worthy and Wor. Bro. Barrow, P.M.," who had so ably carried out the work of installation that evening, and said that he esteemed it as a great favour for the arrangement to be made, so that he (Wor. Bro. Barrow), whom he loved as a dear friend and brother, should be instrumental in placing him in the Eastern Chair of his mother lodge that evening, which he had always endeavoured to meet and stated in what high standing he was held as a ruler in the Craft and respected; they all look up to him in this and every other lodge in the district that he might favour with his visits. The band played the air, "Let us be happy together." Wor. Bro. Barrow, in replying to the toast, remarked that this was the third occasion on which he had acted as Installing Officer in Lodge Truth. It had afforded him peculiar pleasure to place Wor. Bro. Rowe in the Master's chair, not only because he felt sure that, under the able management of that most zealous and hardworking Mason, the prosperity of the lodge, which for some time past has been declining, would return, but because Wor. Bro. Rowe was one of his (Wor. Bro. Barrow's) most valued friends, and merited the support and respect of all who desired to see Freemasonry in Bombay flourishing. Wor. Bro. Rowe was not only well-known in Craft Masonry, but as head of a preceptory, and of an Eighteenth Degree chapter, was looked upon as one of the most careful and successful Principals in the presidency. As they were aware, Wor. Bro. Rowe had lately conferred on him the high honour of the English 30th Degree, and no other Craft lodge in Bombay had at its head a man who united in his own person more administrative experience in the office of Master. The W.M. then rose and said.—Worshipful Sir and Brethren. The next toast he (the W.M.) had to ask the officers and brethren to join him in—one that was always so well received in Truth—was that of "The Visitors." He could assure them one and all that at any time they would favour the lodge with their presence he could ensure them a hearty reception both at working up stairs and at their festive board below, and hoped that he would have the pleasure of their company during the ensuing year as he had had in the past in other lodges which he had been ruling over for the past year. The band played the air, "Let us be happy together." Wor. Bro. F. Council, on rising to respond on behalf of the visitors, was loudly applauded, and said he had great pleasure at being present at the installation of their W.M. It was one of those elections that they had all looked forward to with great interest, knowing how Truth had been situated for the past two years; but he was pleased to say that he believed the brethren had selected one to rule over them for the ensuing year that would do his work in that Masterly style which he was noted for, and had seen him carrying out in the lodge he had been ruling over for the past year, and he was sure that the members of Truth had made a wise choice in securing him as their W.M. for the ensuing year, and from what he had seen of Wor. Bro. Rowe's working he would this time next year prove to the members that he had done his duty to the lodge, and thought he could speak of all the visitors present, as well as himself, that they would only be pleased to visit the lodge again on some future occasion when opportunity offers, and thanked the brethren of Truth for the kind way the toast of their health had been received and responded to. The next toast was that of "The Newly-appointed Officers of Truth." The W.M. said that he hoped that the selection he had made would prove beneficial to the lodge, as he had taken every care in the selection, and had given his reason for choosing the brethren he had done, and stated the claims he thought each one had to the post he had appointed him to, and hoped he would find them punctual in their attendance, as they were quite aware unless the Master had the hearty co-operation of his officers it was impossible for the lodge to work in that efficient way which he hoped they would do during the current year. The band played the air, "Happy are we to-night, Boys." Bro. C. Tudball, S.W., on behalf of himself and brother officers, said that he could assure the W.M. that they would give him their hearty support, and attend their duties regularly, and give him that assistance they knew he was deserving of, and that nothing should be wanting on their parts to carry out the duties of the officers which they had been appointed to that evening, and thanked the W.M. and brethren for the kind way their health had been received. The W.M. then introduced the toast of "The Past Officers," and in doing so mentioned the services of Bro. C. Tudball as the Secretary of the past year; also those of Bro. Capt. S. Babington, as S.D.; also the valuable services rendered by their I.P.M., Wor. Bro. C. E. Mitchell, and those of Wor. Bro. W. H. Hussey, D.G.S., their late Treas., who had to retire from his old post (which he had so worthily filled for the past few years) on account of his health and the heavy duties he had to perform as D.G.S., which was received with applause. The band played the air, "Life let us Cherish." Bro. Capt. Babington, on behalf of the Past Officers, said what little they had done during the past year they had done with a good will, but he hoped that those that were appointed to office during the ensuing year would endeavour to do better than they had done in the past, and thanked the brethren for the cordial way they had received the toast of their health. The remainder of the evening was spent in harmony by the brethren, many good songs being sung, the choruses of which were accompanied by the band. The W.M. called the attention of the brethren to the approaching hour, and the last toast of the evening was that of "The Poor Masons," and took leave of each other at 11.15 p.m. Thus ended the merry installation night of Lodge Truth. The band played the air, "To all Poor and Distressed Brother Masons," after which, to close the proceedings, "God Save the Queen," in which all the brethren joined.

Elliott, 749 and 1375, as a joining member and Mr. Wingate for initiation. Messrs. Beckwith and Wingate were then initiated by Bro. T. J. Moss, P.P.G.R. Middlesex, P.M. Bro. J. B. Langley was installed by the W.M., who received a vote of thanks for performing the ceremony, and it was directed that the vote should be recorded in the minutes. Bro. The usual twelve guinea Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. J. W. Baldwin. The proceedings then terminated with the proposition of several gentlemen for initiation, and the passing of some new bye-laws, and were followed by a banquet.

FELTHAM.—Elliot Lodge (No. 1567).—The second meeting of this promising young lodge was held on Saturday, the 8th inst., Bro. J. Mason, W.M. in the chair, supported by Bros. H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treas, acting as I.P.M.; F. Green, S.W.; W. Dunham, J.W.; J. R. Nicholls, S.D.; A. J. Ireton, J.D.; J. H. Pearson, I.G.; S. L. Green, D.C.; T. W. Clarke, W.S.; W. T. Hone, Prov. G. Purst., Treas.; and J. Elliott, Sec. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of the consecration and emergency meetings having been read and approved, the ballot was taken for five gentlemen as candidates for initiation, this being unanimous in each case. Four of them being in attendance, were introduced, and received the benefits of the First Degree. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Pearce and Nicholls were duly advanced to the degree of Fellow Craft. The S.W. presented the lodge with a very handsome volume of the Sacred Law, which, for elegance of design and material, we have seldom seen surpassed. The present was duly received and acknowledged on behalf of the lodge by the W.M., who said he trusted that not only would the members look upon it as a gift to the lodge for the mere routine business thereof, but that they, by careful study and strict adherence to its precepts, may be guided to that Grand Lodge above, where he was sure it was the earnest desire of every one present they may at last meet, when this life and its meetings shall have passed away. Bro. Hone proposed, and Bro. F. Green seconded, a motion that Sir G. Elliot, having kindly given his consent for the lodge to use his crest for all lodge purposes, that this become at once a banner lodge, which, being carried unanimously, the banner of Bro. Mason, as first W.M., was at once unfurled, and was much admired by all present. Several gentlemen being proposed for initiation, and one as joining member at the next meeting, brought the lodge meeting to a close, after which about 30 of the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet supplied by Bro. Harris, who was assisted by the well-known caterer, Bro. Stone, of Halliford. After the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the usual Masonic toasts, which were well received; and in proposing that of "The M.W.G.M.," he referred to his visit to India, and thought that if anything was needed to prove the high estimation in which he was held, both in and outside the Craft, he was sure that need had been well supplied. He trusted that the Great Architect of the Universe would guard and shelter him from every danger, that he may be enabled to return safely to his native land, when every member of the Craft would rejoice to find him once more amongst us. The lodge was honoured by a visit from Bros. H. Buss, Prov. G. Treas.; R. W. Little, Prov. G.S.W.; J. Coutts, P.G.P.; E. M. Haigh, P.G.S.; B. Swallow, Prov. G.S. (W.M. 1563); J. Green, G. Towns- end, J. Barfield, and A. Glover. Each of the toasts were given and responded to in a truly Masonic manner, the Tyler's toast bringing to a close a most enjoyable evening. We wish the lodge that success which it deserves, and which is evidently attending its every movement, as we understand that a list is always to be found lying on the festive board for contributions to the Girls' School, which already amount to nearly £40, and we think this should stimulate other Provincial Lodges to greater exertions on behalf of the forthcoming festival.

C. Johnson, P.M., and carried unanimously. Bro. Toller responded in suitable terms on behalf of those engaged in the work, and after the transaction of some routine business the lodge was closed, and the members adjourned to refreshment.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—The last convocation of this excellent and old established chapter was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Tuesday, the 8th inst. The chapter was opened by Comps. Smith, M.E.Z.; Holbrook, I.P.Z.; Harfield, P.Z.; Treas.; Davage, P.Z.; Scribe E.; W. Hammond, P.G.P.S. Middx., H.; Elsam, J.; Wagner, N.; Robinson, P.S.; Mander, and A.S. There were also present Comps. Whitley, Bond, Webb, Walls, Sumner and Stewart. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the companions proceeded to elect the office-bearers for the year ensuing, as follows: Comps. Hammond, M.E.; Elsam, H.; Wagner, J.; Robinson, N.; Harfield, Treas.; Davage, S.E.; and Mander, P.S. In every case the ballot was unanimous, and at the conclusion of the election the companions severally returned thanks for the honour done them. A letter of resignation having been read from Comp. Honnewell, who held the office of 1st Assist., which was accepted with great regret, Comp. Harfield, P.Z. arose and proposed that some fitting tribute of respect and esteem was due to their worthy M.E., Comp. Smith, who had presided over them for two consecutive years, and who had on all occasions discharged his duties with unremitting zeal, excellent ability, and invariable urbanity. He went on to say that the last proof of the M.E.'s interest in his mother chapter that could be adduced, was the fact of his coming at all seasons so many miles to preside over them, namely, from Chester. In conclusion he hoped that the chapter would, in consideration of his great services, vote Comp. Smith a very handsome jewel, and he would suggest that it should be at least twice the money value of that usually voted to those who had discharged the onerous duties of First Principal, the Jerusalem Chapter. Comp. Holbrook, P.Z. in seconding the proposition endorsed the remarks of the last speaker most warmly. The proposition, having been neatly put by Comp. Hammond, was unanimously carried, and the M.E. in a very modest speech acknowledged his gratitude for the kind manner in which the proposition had been moved and seconded, and also for the hearty way in which the vote had been received and carried by the chapter at large. Comp. Mander having proposed a member for exaltation at the next meeting, viz., Bro. Pratt, of the Mount Edgumbe, which was seconded by Comp. Stewart, the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the M.E. gave the usual loyal toasts, which were warmly received. In proposing "The Health of Comps. Lords Skelmersdale and De Tabley, G.H. and G.L. of England," the M.E. dwelt at length upon the eminent services rendered by those justly esteemed noblemen, not only to the supreme degree of the R.A., but to Freemasons generally. In speaking of the latter peer, the M.E. stated that as Lord De Tabley held the position of G.M. and G.S. of Cheshire he had frequent opportunities of observing the manner in which he discharged his Masonic duties, and he could only say that he was a most excellent working Mason in all degrees of the science, and that his lordship personally took a great interest in the doings of every chapter and lodge in his province, and in private life he was most justly and deservedly esteemed by all classes of the community. In conclusion, the M.E. expressed his opinion that while Freemasonry was supported by such noblemen as those whose health he had had the honour of proposing, and he was proud to think that there were many such, it would continue to flourish, and eventually become so powerful that its most bitter enemies would have reason to believe that the Craft and its degrees were something more than mere empty names. It is needless to say that this toast and the remarks that accompanied it was most cordially received by the companions. Comp. Walls having recited the "Charge of the Light Brigade," the I.P.Z., Comp. Holbrook, proposed "The Health of the M.E.," in which he stated that after the encomiums which had been passed upon Comp. Smith in the chapter that evening, and which were well merited, it would be perhaps in bad taste for him to further enlarge upon the good qualities and working abilities of the M.E., who for two years had occupied that exalted position, and in conclusion he would ask the companions to join with him in wishing Comp. Smith a long life and the enjoyment of every domestic blessing. The toast having been duly honoured, the M.E. responded. In the course of his speech he touched feelingly upon the kind remarks that had been passed upon him that evening by Comps. Harfield and Holbrook, which he felt he did not deserve in their entirety. It was true he had striven to do his duty, with the hope that by so doing he should merit the approval of the companions, but he considered that no one should aspire to fill the chair of a First Principal unless he was prepared to devote every energy to discharge its multifarious duties with credit to himself and to the satisfaction of the chapter. With regard to the jewel which has been unanimously voted to him that day, he hoped to be spared many years to wear it as a memorial of the respect and esteem borne him by the companions of his mother chapter, the old Jerusalem. Comps. Robinson and Mander having contributed some harmony, the M.E. proposed "The Healths of Comps. Hammond and Elsam, the First and Second Principals elect," in a very neat speech, in which he stated that he must mention that the assistance he had received from those worthy companions during his two years of office was great in the extreme. However well up a First Principal might be, his efforts would be abortive unless aided by the exertions of his chief officers, and he was pleased to say that in every way Comps. Hammond and Elsam had rendered him good suit and service, and in conclusion he looked forward to the chapter enjoying two prosperous years of office under the able away of those companions, and it was his intention to endeavour to bring several provincial brethren to be exalted during their respective years of office. Comp. Hammond, in reply, stated that he was proud to think that the chapter had voted him that day to fill the chair of the Jerusalem as First Principal during the ensuing year, and he would endeavour to merit the confidence reposed in him. He then touched at length upon the remarks of the M.E., and said that although he could not hope to equal the working of Comp. Smith, yet he would try, with his assistance, in conjunction with the other P.Z.'s of the chapter, to preserve its prestige, and in conclusion he hoped that his term of office would be as prosperous and as successful as that of the M.E. Comp. Elsam briefly returned thanks, in which he endorsed the remarks of the last speaker, and said that with the good examples of the M.E. and the M.E. elect before him, it would be very hard indeed if he could not manage to discharge his duties when the time came to the satisfaction of the chapter. The M.E., and Comps. Mander and Walls having vocally and dramatically amused the companions, Comp. Wagner, the Third Principal elect, was duly toasted, and made an excellent reply. "The Health of the P.Z.'s of the Chapter" was then given, and Comps. Harfeld, Davage and Holbrook responded. The toast of "The Subordinate Officers of the Chapter" having been given by the M.E., prefaced by a few kind remarks addressed to each officer individually, was acknowledged by Comps. Davage, Robinson, and Mander. The installation of Comp. Hammond takes place on the second Tuesday in April next.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—Owing to sickness and other causes, the monthly meeting on February 15th was but thinly attended. Unfortunately the absence of the 1st and 2nd Principals was thus accounted for. By request Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins P.Z. 328, 587, 710 took the chair of Z; Ex. Comp. Moutrie, P.Z. and Treas., that of H.; and Ex. Comp. Carey was in his place as J. The following P.Z.'s were also present:—Ruble, Mann, Kees, Reeves; and Trevor, as a visitor from a chapter at Bombay. After the chapter had been opened the following companions were admitted:—Hill, E.; Hearn, N.; Brown, P. Soj.; Gummer, as Soj.; Faulkner, J. Soj.; Howes, Davies. Comp. Bigwood was in his place as Janitor. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Packer was introduced, properly prepared, and exalted to the Supreme Degree by the acting 1st Principal, who also gave the historical, symbolical and mystical lectures, with the exception of the explanation of the working tools, which devolved on the acting H. The chapter room on this evening wore an unusually cheerful aspect, the officers wearing new robes and collars; there was also a new altar; the sceptres, staves, jewels, candlesticks had been regilt, &c. Ex. Comp. Moutrie reported on what had been done, and presented to the chapter a new veil for the altar, and a banner for the 1st Principal. For this a vote of thanks was passed, as also to him and Comp. Hill for their successful labours in the work of restoration. A grant of ten guineas was made to the Masonic School for Girls. Other matters not of general interest were settled, and a brother was proposed for exaltation.

STONEHOUSE.—Sincerity Chapter (No. 189).—A convocation of this chapter was held on Monday evening at St. George's Hall. There were present: Comps. J. E. Curteis, Z.; Chapman, H.; Dampney, J.; Rae, P.Z.; Bayly, P.Z.; J. Latimer, S.E.; A. Latimer, S.N.; Hon. P.S.; Rev. J. W. Lemon, S.S.; Ferguson, J.S.; Col. Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, placed upon the list of the M.E.Z., who represented the province at the annual festival) having been read, Comp. Curteis, assisted by Comp. Rae, P.Z., installed Comp. Chapman (who had travelled from Sheffield to be present upon the occasion) as Z.; Comp. Dampney, as H.; and Comp. J. Latimer, as J. The following companions were appointed and invested:—Comps. A. Latimer, S.E.; Rev. J. W. Lemon, S.N.; Hon. P. S. Ferguson, S.S.; D. Horton, J.S.; Rogers, Janitor. Comp. Curteis congratulated the chapter upon its financial position, and expressed a hope that whilst it continues to expect a high standard of qualification on behalf of all candidates for admission to it, the one great object of all Freemasonry would, as it ever had been, be well considered.

MANCHESTER.—Affability Chapter (No. 317).—This chapter held its monthly meeting on Thursday, the 17th inst., when more than forty members and visitors were present. The chapter was opened by Comp. J. H. Sillitoe, Z., who afterwards installed his successor, Comp. S. Henson, as Z. Comp. Fox was installed as H. by Comp. W. F. Towle, P.Z., and Comp. J. Smethurst as J. by Comp. J. Hall, P.Z., P.G.P.S. of E.L. The officers were invested by Comp. Towle, viz., Comps. J. Lees, as S.E.; J. Dawson, as S.N.; D. Donbavand, P.S.; Moore, 1st A.S.; J. Kerridge, 2nd A.S.; W. P. Norris, Treas.; and J. Sly, Janitor. The newly installed Z. presented the balance sheet, which was passed. He congratulated the chapter on the flourishing state of their finances, and in doing so stated that for years there had been a debt upon the chapter, but he was proud to say that their late Z., during his two years of office, had by his exertions raised the chapter in its number of members as well as in its financial state, and they had now a good balance in hand. He then briefly alluded to the presentation which was to be made during the evening to Comp. Sillitoe. After the chapter was closed about forty companions sat down to a substantial repast, Comp. Henson presiding. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed, and drank with enthusiasm. "Comp. Henson's Health" was proposed and received very warmly. After returning thanks he in a very eulogistic speech presented to Comp. Sillitoe a very handsome timepiece, and a beautiful eighteen-carat gold P.Z.'s jewel, as a tribute of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the chapter. The timepiece bears a gold plate with the following inscription:—"Presented to Comp. J. H. Sillitoe, P.Z., by the members of the Chapter of Affability, 317, for his valuable services, February 17th, 1876." The jewel also bears a suitable inscription. The musical talent of this chapter is well-known in the province, and the proceedings of the evening were enlivened by songs and recitations, Comp. Roberds, P.G.G., doing good service at the pianoforte.

Steward; John Smith, 105. Bros. S. H. Rawley, J. Newton, E. J. Moore, R. C. Davis, were advanced to the degree of Mark Master Masons. The ceremony of installation was then worked, and on the brethren being admitted P.M. Mortlock gave the charge in a most impressive manner. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—E. Gotthiel, S.W.; J. T. S. Hood, J.W.; W. Christian, S.D.; W. H. Wallington, J.D.; G. Hollington, I.G.; B. Cundick, Registrar; B. L. Stuitesant, Sec.; N. Gluckstein, W.S.; and J. H. Ross. At the conclusion of the business the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet. The W.M., in giving the toast of "The Queen," stated that we had in connection with Mark Masonry Prince Leopold, and he had no doubt that he (Prince Leopold) would attain a high position in the degree. After the toasts of "The G.M., Lord Limerick, P.G.M. of the Order, Lord Leigh, the Earl of Carnarvon, Bros. Binckes, Portal, &c.," the W.M., proposed "The Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale. He spoke very feelingly of the loss the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons had sustained by the death of Bro. R. Callender, stating how short a time since he had sat together with him, &c. "The Grand Officers" was responded to by Bro. Binckes, who said it was with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret he passed a high eulogy upon Bro. Callender, especially dwelling upon his universal kindness to Masons, and not only to them, but his love and charity extended to those outside the Craft, and to all philanthropic objects. The W.M. proposed "The Visitors," coupling with it the name of Bro. Berridge, W.M. of the Macdonald Lodge, 104, who responded in a very able speech. The W.M. then proposed "The Past Masters." Bro. Lacey proposed "The Health of the W.M. elect, Bro. Verry," who, in responding, said he would, as far as he could, promote the interests of the lodge, and do all he could for its welfare, and keep up its prestige as the two P.M.'s had done before him. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Newly-advanced Brethren," who, he stated, were personal friends of his own. Bro. Davis sang a capital song, and the newly-advanced brethren replied to the toast. The W.M. then proposed "The Healths of Bros. Binckes and Terry." Bro. Terry replied in a most eloquent speech. Bro. Binckes also replied, and gave a most encouraging account of the Mark Benevolent Fund, and impressed upon his listeners that they must not forget "Our Boys." There were some other toasts, and a duet, whistled by Bros. P.M. Mortlock and Henley, was received with great applause.

MACDONALD LODGE OF MARK MASTERS (No. 104).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masons' Hall, Coleman-street, London, E.C., on Saturday, the 19th inst. The brethren attended in regulation mourning for the late Deputy Grand Mark Master, Brother W. Romaine Callender, whose lamented decease was the subject of generally expressed regret. The W.M., Bro. R. Berridge, opened the lodge at the appointed hour, and amongst others present were the W. Bro. W. Worrell, P.G. Organist, I.P.M.; Bros. T. White, S.W.; N. Ritherdon, M.O.; the V.W. Bros. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O.; James Stevens, P.G.J.O.; P.M.'s, L. Hammerton, P.G. D.C., P.M. and Secretary; Bros. W. P. Collins, S.D.; F. H. Cozens, J.D. and Organist; N. J. F. Bassett, I.G.; G. Yaxley, D.C.; G. W. Verry, W.M. Temple Mark Lodge, W.S.; J. Cloce, C.S.; W. C. Hale, J. K. Pitt, H. F. Partridge, J. F. Honey, F. G. Raggatt, J. R. Williams, H. H. Cook, W. Grant, and others. There were no visitors on this occasion, and the business was not so heavy as is usual in this lodge. Bro. Edwin Frost, of No. 1347, was duly advanced with full and perfect ceremonial. The W.M. offered his services as Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, an offer which was cordially accepted with promises of support. The lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. The customary toasts were severally proposed and responded to, the only one requiring special mention being that of "The Deputy Grand Mark Master, and the Past and Present Officers of Grand Mark Lodge," in response to which Bro. Meggy feelingly alluded to the loss the Order had sustained by the death of Bro. Callender, whose good works, both in Craft and Mark Masonry, were so generally recognised both in the metropolis and in his large and important province. In the nobleman about to be appointed in his stead Bro. Meggy hailed an influential addition to the future prospects of the Mark Degree, and having further expressed his conviction of the earnestness with which the officers of the Grand Lodge endeavoured to perform their duty to the Order, thanked the brethren in the name of his colleagues present for the compliments the W.M. had paid to them. Charity was not forgotten, and on the toast of "The Mark Benevolent Fund" being responded to, the offered Stewardship of the W.M. was gratefully acknowledged. The very enjoyable evening was enlivened by some capital songs, Bro. Cozens presiding with his usual ability and urbanity at the pianoforte, and was brought to a close at a reasonable hour by the Tyler's toast.

COCKERMOUTH.—Dyke's Conclave (No. 36).—A special assembly of this conclave was held on Wednesday, the 9th inst., at the rooms of Skiddaw Lodge, N. 1002, Market-place, Cockermouth. Em. Sir Knt. R. Lamonby, by special warrant of the Executive Committee of the Grand Imperial Council, in order to enable him to spread the Knightly Order in the Australian colonies, whence he proceeds in the month of April next. The ceremonies were most correctly and impressively performed by the presiding Sovereign, assisted by the other Em. Sir Knights present, and the conclave was duly closed by the newly-enthroned Sovereign.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Mother Kilwinning (No. 0).—The fifth annual re-union of the brethren in Glasgow neighbourhood belonging to the ancient "Mother" was held on Friday evening, the 18th inst., in the hall of St. John's Lodge (No. 34), at 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Bro. R. Wylie, P.G.S., Ayrshire, presided, supported to right and left by J. A. Ferguson, P.S.W. 0; J. Thomson, 0; M. Nelson, W.M. 34; W. Bell, I.P.M. 34; John Baird, P.M. 34; and others. Bros. Stodart and Walker, No. 0, officiated as Croupiers, and about 50 brethren sat down to an excellent supper, elegantly purveyed by Bro. C. Galloway, of West Nile-street. Previous to commencing the subsequent proceedings of the evening, the Secretary, Bro. Stodart, read letters of apology for absence from Bros. Sir James Ferguson, Bart. of Kilkerran; W. Montgomery Neilson, W.P.G.M. of Glasgow; and Rev. Bro. Inglis of Kilmaurs, P.G. Chap. of Ayrshire. The Chairman then proposed the usual loyal toasts, which were enthusiastically honoured. In commending that of "The Prince of Wales, G.M.M. of E." he said that the Prince, as they were all aware, was not only the head of the Craft in England, but was also the patron of Freemasonry in Scotland. He had no doubt that the Prince's visit to India would have a very beneficial effect upon Freemasonry, in that distant part of her Majesty's dominions, in addition to cementing more closely the people of that great empire with the old country. The toast of "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces" having been given by Bro. Stodart (Croupier), and acknowledged by Bro. Serjt. Reid, the Chairman said they had now got to that part of the programme where what was known as the "chairman's address" came in, but first of all he felt it to be his duty to thank them for honouring him with the position of chairman on that occasion—to preside over the "sons of light" who were cradled in the Mother Lodge Kilwinning. Assembled as they were that night around the social board, drawn together by the most sacred ties of brotherhood, he had chosen as text for his few remarks, "What is Freemasonry?" They were again invited to answer that question by those who had not entered within the portals of the Masonic temple; and, as they were aware, their Order had been assailed and anathematised by the Church of Rome. Well, Freemasonry, as they understood it in these days, had been defined as "a beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols—faith, hope, and charity being among its brightest jewels." Its principles were incontrovertible; they were based on the broadest ethical truths; it was founded on the Bible. Freemasonry sought to infuse its members with the spirit of love, charity, and benevolence; to break down the partition wall between class and class. In a Masonic lodge peer and peasant, rich and poor, learned and illiterate, met fraternally on the same level. Freemasonry had been denounced for being a "secret" society; but he held that wherever and whenever secrecy was necessary it was also commendable. But what were those secrets? Remove from Masonry the pass-words, signs, and tokens, and the manner of conferring the degrees, and the whole secrecy of the matter disappeared. The benefits of the Order, however, remained, being reserved for the initiated, who contributed to its support; and its cosmopolitan language was used only as a sign and test of brotherhood. Having referred to the olden times, when Masonry was exclusively a guild society, when none but operative Masons were admitted to enjoy its privileges, the Chairman said it was worthy of remark that the Lodge Glasgow St. John, within whose walls they were highly privileged to meet that evening, was the last to give up this ancient character. Within that time-honoured lodge non-operatives were not admitted until so recently as the year 1842, and not till the year 1850 did they see fit to join themselves with the Grand Lodge of Scotland. In concluding his remarks the Chairman said that the Freemasons did what in them lay to aid in healing dissensions, and in bringing good and honest men into one indissoluble brotherhood. The door of a Masonic lodge was open to every man of "good report," irrespective of his religious or political creed. Notwithstanding all that had been said by the uninitiated against Freemasonry, and he admitted that, like all merely human institutions, it was not perfect—the fraternity seemed in a fair way of becoming co-extensive with terra firma. It was a somewhat rare saying that "the sun never sets on the British dominions"—an apt and forcible illustration of the wide distribution of their Order. Lodge-houses had been formed in all the great geographical divisions of the world—in Europe, Asia, China, along the coast of Africa, the two Americas, and Australia. Hence they might truly say that in almost every clime there was a lodge, and in every lodge a band of brethren—thereby doing somewhat to hasten the time of which our national poet prophesied—

When man to man, the world o'er,
Shall brethren be and a' that.

The chairman resumed his seat amid much applause. The toast of "The Province of Glasgow" was given by Bro. Thomson, and responded to by Bro. John Baird, P.G.S.M. The latter said he felt exceedingly sorry that the P.G.M., Bro. Neilson had not been able to be with them that night. He could assure them, however, that he (the P.G.M.) had been much successful in promoting and maintaining the cause of Masonry in Glasgow. That he had been successful, was shewn by the fact that there were now some 26 or 27 lodges within the province, and that, at the last visitation of them by the P.G.L., every one of them was found to be in a promising condition. The prosperous condition of the P.G.L. itself was shewn by their now being able to give away regularly a large amount in charity. Before sitting down, Bro. Baird begged to propose the toast of "Mother Kilwinning." In so doing he remarked that it certainly did seem strange that in every country in the globe the name of Mother Kilwinning should be known. Such was the case, however, and that its prosperity might yet more increase, and its borders be extended in time to come, was the wish not only of those present, but in every quarter where Masonry was known. The toast was acknowledged in brief but fitting terms by Bro. Ferguson, P.S.W. Amongst the other toasts were "Lodge St. John, No. 34," by the Chairman, coupled with the name of Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M. of St. John, and by him ably acknowledged; "Visiting Brethren," responded to by Bro. Brownlie, Lodge St. John; "The Chairman," by Bro. Wm. Bell, I.P.M., No. 3, &c. The programme, we may just add, was abundantly interspersed with song and recitation, and the fifth re-union of the Glasgow sons of the Ancient Mother was an unquestionable success.

He would have much pleasure in being present with them at their annual festival on the 25th inst.

The annual festival of the lodge is to take place on the 8th March, in Bro. Thornton's Restaurant, Argyle-street. The next business before the meeting was installing into office the officers elected at last meeting. On account of Bro. Shaw's resignation as W.M. the ceremony was ably gone through by Bro. A. A. ARDROSSAN.—Lodge Neptune Kilwinning (No. 442).—On Friday evening, 4th inst., the members of this lodge held an out-door demonstration, which was followed by a supper and a ball in the Eglinton Arms Hotel, Ardrossan. About seven o'clock the procession was formed at the lodge-room, Priocra Lane (North), and headed by the band of the Ardrossan Artillery Volunteers, the brethren, dressed in their regalia, marched through the principal streets, carrying several handsome banners. The weather was very fine, and the procession, which was lighted by a number of torches, attracted considerable attention from the large number of spectators who turned out to witness it. About eight o'clock up wards of eighty ladies and gentlemen sat down to an excellent supper in the Eglinton Arms, served up in Mr. McKeazie's usual good style. The room was tastefully decorated with evergreens, choice plants being also placed upon the tables. The chair was occupied by P.M. Bro. J. Robertson, who was supported right and left by D.M. Bros. J. CONSECRATION OF THE ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE, No. 1589.

The St. Dunstan's Lodge, No. 1589, was consecrated yesterday week at Anderson's Hotel. The lodge was established by brethren who are parishioners of St. Dunstan's in the West, and to parishioners alone it is intended to confine membership. There is a strong body of Freemasons in the parish, and it is believed there will be no difficulty in getting the lodge well supported. The ceremony of consecration was ably performed, and if the music had been good would have been unexceptionable. From the Consecrating Master to the Inner Guard, all the officers were perfect in their duties, and the Chaplain delivered an oration which for its practical bearing could not be surpassed. The lodge was consecrated by Bro. James Terry, Grand Director of Ceremonies Herts; the other officers being filled as follows:—J. C. Dwarber, W.M. 1589; W. Wellsman, S.W. 1519; H. W. The lodge having been opened, and the ceremony completed down to the point where the Chaplain delivered the oration.

Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., rose and said—I believe it is the usual custom on these occasions to deliver what is called in our language an oration, and it is also very common, I believe, for the officiating Chaplain to deliver that oration from a written document and at some length. I hope I may not be considered disrespectful to this lodge if I break through the usual custom observed on these occasions, and if I merely give you a few thoughts occurring to a brother Mason, of my heart and mind, as it may occur to me, for a very few minutes on the nature and principles of the Institution of which the present lodge is a branch, the latest in the Order. Brethren, I do this on more accounts than one. Time is, with us in London, as you all know, a valuable thing, and I am sorry to say of late mine has been taken up in such a manner as not to admit of my giving more thought to this subject, but I feel that long apologies are unnecessary in one sense, because I see myself surrounded by Masons who, I have no doubt, are more experienced by far than myself, and are quite as sensible as, or more sensible than, I am of the nature, duties, and principles of that Order to which we have the honour and happiness to belong. Though numbering now eight and twenty years as a Mason I feel that there are many Masons present in this room to whom I need say little to impress upon them and upon myself (for I always in speaking to my brethren in whatever capacity I may have occupied, feel that I am also addressing myself) the principles of Freemasonry. Brethren, in the first place, it is very natural that I should recur for a moment to that which has often been probably brought to your notice—I mean the manner in which the ceremonies and working of our lodges should be conducted. I have in the long period during which I have had the privilege of being a Mason been present at many lodges both in the north and south of England, and it has been my good fortune to be present upon many occasions on which the ceremonies of our Order have been beautifully and admirably, and solemnly conducted; and I have no hesitation in saying that the conduct of those ceremonies in such a manner has tended very materially, not only to impress upon the brethren the desirability of accuracy and well doing in whatever they take in hand—which is an excellent lesson for life in general—but that the well conducting of those ceremonies has had a very material effect in conveying to the brethren the glorious principles which those ceremonies so eloquently embody. Brethren, it has been my misfortune too, to be present in lodges where the ceremonies have been done in what I will say, not is very elegant, but in very expressive phrase, a very slipshod manner; and when done so, I need scarcely say that they have exposed our venerable Order, not merely to the ill repute of being unequal to its office, but have positively brought it into ridicule. The effect of a grand ceremony badly done is in my opinion far worse than if no ceremony was done at all; it leaves the mind of the hearers in a most unsatisfactory state, and that which was to be held up to veneration becomes a matter of ludicrous comment. It is related of a great archbishop of Milan, when passing through the galleries of one of the great painters in Florence, surrounded by a magnificent retinue, and clad in his robes of office, that the students occupying the galleries looked up with veneration and admiration to the great prelate. But unhappily he paused before one picture, and thinking he understood painting as well as ecclesiastical authority and learning, gave unhappily a comment which turned the awe and admiration of the students into a loud burst of laughter; in fact, their veneration was converted into ridicule at the ludicrous attempt to express an opinion on the subject of which the archbishop was ignorant. So it is with our ceremonies when ill done; and I hope, brethren, that this lodge may follow the example of, and may emulate, the Emulation Lodge, in endeavouring to carry out the ceremonies of our Order in that accurate and solemn manner, which befits the high principles embodied in them, and which, as I have said before, conveys such deep lessons to us all. And, brethren, let me also say that [not only in the lodge but out of it, must we endeavour to carry out the principles which we more or less pledge ourselves to, by being associated thus together. We must remember that all signs that have not something signified in them are empty signs, and that when we adopt those signs, those symbols, those high principles which they embody without carrying them out into action, we are like the form of ourselves without its life, which is simply dead to everything around. I am quite sure that in the present day, as a great statesman within a few days or a few hours has stated in regard to the great City Companies of London, I am quite satisfied that Freemasonry is on its trial at this hour, as a great body of men who profess certain principles. And of course I need scarcely say to the brethren that recent circumstances over which we all rejoice have brought out Freemasonry into the foreground more than ever in its history, and if a multitude of men seek to join our lodges let us see that those men be worthy of our choice; let us see that they be men that shall illustrate the annals of Freemasonry in modern days, and be able to band down to future generations the best heritage in the world, the value of a good example and an honest name. I feel quite sure that in proportion as we carry out the principles of our Order, so will it be raised in the eyes of mankind; so will men wish to join it, not for any mercenary object, nay, not for any animal object; but for the highest, the best, the noblest objects that can possibly exalt humanity, viz., Glory to God, the Great Architect of the Universe, and blessing to our fellow men, made by God, as well as we ourselves in the Divine image. It is in this way that we shall raise our Order, and that we shall in proportion become independent, sir, of the sneers of faction, come from what quarter they may, and of the ridicule of men however high in authority. Whatever that authority may be we shall be able to give the quiet, calm denial of a good and steady example; and when, perhaps, men attempt to quote ancient times, and refer to names of men who have flourished in history, whether in Church or State, we may be able to show on our rolls a number of men who have not said, Let there be no light; but who, following the Great Architect of the Universe when he brought into existence this planet on which we live, proclaimed aloud, Let there be light. Let there be light on our business; let there be light on our devotions;

let there be light on all the transactions of our lives; nay let there be light upon our very recreations, so that we need not fear that Allseeing Eye; and when we fear not that we need fear no scrutiny of man—poor man! so that whether our lodge be meeting in one place or another, whether we be under one name or another, ancient or modern, let us seek to carry out that glorious motto so often sung in our lodges, "Let there be light." This lodge, as you know, brethren, rejoices in the name of the ancient saint, which distinguished this ancient parish. Let us seek now in our generation to preserve the blessings that have been handed down to us, and without in the slightest degree reflecting upon those who in former and in darker times had not the same advantages as ourselves, let us by God's blessing seek to use the blessings we possess, and not only proclaim Let there be light, but live as the sons of light. (Applause.)

The ceremony was then proceeded with, and at the conclusion of the consecration Bro. John Charlton Dwarber, P.M. No. 55, was installed by Bro. Terry as Master of the lodge in the presence of 31 Past Masters. The officers invested were Bros. Walter Wellsman, S.W.; H. W. Dalwood, J.W.; Winthrop Mackworth Praed, Treasurer (unanimously elected); J. Tisley, Secretary; John Dodson, S.D. (Junior Deacon to be chosen at next meeting); Woodbridge, I.G.; John Gilbert, Tyler; and Bro. W. Maxwell, P.M. No. 8, was invested as I.P.M. Bro. Wellsman moved, and Bro. Dalwood seconded, a vote of thanks to and the election as honorary members of the lodge of Bros. Terry, R. J. Simpson, R. W. Little, Joseph Smith, and E. P. Albert, which was unanimously carried; and Bros. Terry, Simpson, Smith, and Little having acknowledged the compliment, propositions for initiation and joining were taken, and the lodge was closed. A very choice banquet was afterwards provided by Bro. Clemow, the serving of which was admirably superintended by Bro. Smith, the manager of Anderson's Hotel. When this had been partaken of the toasts were proposed in due course. After proposing the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," in which the W.M. alluded to Her Majesty as the daughter of a Mason, the mother of Masons, the mother-in-law of a Freemason, and a patroness of the Masonic Institutions, he proceeded with the toast of "The M.W.G.M.," and after regretting His Royal Highness's absence, said that so important a Craft deserved, and it was necessary that it should have, a strong head and a firm hold, and these it could never have if its members did not feel respect and love for those who ruled over it. Fortunately this was the case with respect to the Prince of Wales and the brethren of the Order, for the Prince of Wales was most popular in the Craft, who were fortunate in having such an enthusiastic Mason to rule over them. "The Pro Grand Master, the D.G.M., &c.," were represented by Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., who responded. In the course of his observations, wherein he said that he was not returning thanks merely as a matter of form for brethren whom he was bound to reply for, but really for brethren who deserved and had obtained the respect of the Craft, he expressed much pleasure at the establishment of St. Dunstan's Lodge. He thought it was one more link in the chain of brotherhood, which at the present time was a very important thing; important on two grounds, first, constitutionally, secondly, socially—constitutionally, because he felt that Masons represented that beautiful harmony that should exist between order and freedom, which probably was scarcely possessed by any other body which he was acquainted with. It hit a happy medium which brought down from the throne to the peasant the idea that while we were perfectly free, while we had light to be thrown upon all things, there was to be respect for authority, for order, and for all those things which alone could make society hold together in times of considerable danger. Again, he regarded it as a wonderful agency socially; for, while we were divided as men by many things—by religious opinions, by political opinions, by private quarrels, by differences of tastes, by the thousand other things which acted upon us as men—Masonry seemed, in the order of God's Providence, to bring us together and link us in such bonds that we began to consider how we might best agree, and how those sharp corners which continually rubbed against us in the busy affairs of life might be toned down with the pumice stone of brotherly love till we were bound together. (Hear, hear.) Therefore, he thought it was a happy idea that parishes—those ancient divisions which God protect in this land—should have their lodges. Next to the family unit came the parochial unit in England; and whatever might be their opinions on other subjects, let them never give up that. He was glad to find Masonry backing up the idea; and as long as they had good and worthy men among them who were acting in the legal divisions of parishes might they hope that Masonry would unite them in another bond, in religions, in political and in social life, in everything which might lead to their happiness as men, and that might produce at last that best of all, happiness for which good men ever looked.

Alderman Hadley also replied. The W.M. next gave "The Consecrating Officers," and in reference to Bro. Terry, said that when that brother called on him some years ago for a subscription for the Benevolent Institution he was so struck with him that he could not help telling Bro. Dwarber after Bro. Terry had gone that the old men and women would never starve while Bro. Terry collected the money for them. Regarding the ceremonies of the day he would only say that they had been most ably rendered by all the consecrating officers.

Bro. Terry replied, thanking the W.M. for the flattering terms he had used, and stating that it had given him great pleasure to perform the ceremonies. All the consecrating officers might congratulate themselves that the St. Dunstan's Lodge had started under such favourable auspices. Bro. Terry then proposed "The Health of the W.M." The brethren had not placed in the chair a brother incapable of performing his duties, for they had themselves witnessed what he could do when he invested his officers. Under his rule might St. Dunstan's Lodge progress.

The W.M., in reply, said that since he had been a Mason he had endeavoured to do his work earnestly, properly, and well. He had not lived to the age of sixty years without knowing that it was perfectly impossible for the best man, however animated he might be by the most righteous intentions to please his brethren, to succeed in doing so. In his time he had found men go away from him, but ultimately come back to him, which was a great triumph, and this he said without any desire to be ostentatious. At times you could not act as men wished, simply from your own honest convictions, but that was no reason why they should not be friends. He quite agreed with the Chaplain's remarks about parochial connections. Before starting this lodge, it occurred to him that he was living in a neighbourhood which was the very hotbed and nucleus of Freemasonry; they were in the very centre of Freemasons, where they had been inactive for a certain number of years. The Masonry there was lying dormant, and only wanted reviving. He knew it, and those who acted with him knew it, and his desire was to resuscitate it, and to bring it into usefulness. There was no greater mischief surrounding the parochial system than that of not knowing each other; and after living near one another for a long time, we often asked the question when we became acquainted, Why did not we know each other before? Much misrepresentation was removed by such knowledge; and we blamed ourselves frequently for not being the first to speak. Now, Masonry unsealed all this reticence, and in that parish he wanted to bring Masonry into play. He wanted to make the lodge a lodge of usefulness. The parish was one in which he had spent his best years, formed his dearest affections, where he was married, where his children had been born, and where he hoped to die. His heart went with this lodge, and his best efforts would be used to make it serve the objects for which it was promoted. After giving "The Visitors," the W.M. gave "The Charities," for which Bro. Little replied; "The Treasurer and Secretary" followed, Bro. Tisley responding. Bros. Wellsman and Dalwood replied for "The Officers," and the Tyler's toast concluded the evening, which was enlivened by some beautiful singing and music by Bros. E. W. Mackney and Webb.

THE PROPOSED SCOTTISH MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION. A SECOND APPEAL.

To you my Scottish brethren of "the Mystic Tie" I must once more appeal. The year before last I issued to all lodges and chapters, &c., a scheme for a "Benevolent Institution for Scotland," embracing the three branches, viz., Schools for Boys, Schools for Girls, Asylums and Annuities for Widows and Aged, together with an advanced scheme for students, at the several Universities. I need not here further recapitulate.

The scheme is patronized by most of the Grand Office-bearers; a greater part of the Provincial Grand Masters. There are numerous representatives scattered throughout Scotland, a list of whom will again shortly be published in the "Freemason;" surely then we must suffer no more time to elapse, we must put our shoulders to the wheel and prove that we are Masons in deed, as well as in name.

Do not, my brethren, hang back for others to lead, be the leaders yourselves; and though late in the field—though other countries are now before us—let us make up for lost time, and provide for the wants of those daily, yes hourly, crying to us for aid. Picture to yourselves your aged brethren reduced by no fault of their own to dire penury, perhaps without even a crust of bread to allay their fierce hunger. Think of the widows and orphans, who having lost their bread winners have been reduced from comparative comfort to abject misery and want. Let not their cry go up in vain; come forward like honest men and Masons to the best of your ability, and soothe these aching hearts. Now is the time, while yet you are able, ere the fell season arrives when you yourselves may be in such evil plight; you know not what a day may bring forth. Soon, aye too soon, their lot may be yours.

Brethren of Scotland, I have taken this opportunity to address you, as it seems very appropriate; the year is yet young, and from the the Sister Kingdoms already bright auguries of the future are presenting themselves.

Many of you will remember that last year (while traversing Scotland in behalf of this scheme) I was enabled to lay before you the returns of the English, the Irish, and many foreign institutions of a similar character. At that time I was able to inform you of the wondrous deeds of the small country of Sweden and Norway, small in population (4,297,972 according to census of 1873). Another bright point I was able particularly to emphasize, viz., the three great English charities which that time had received over £28,000 for the year, collectively, this amount far in excess of former years. Still even this magnificent donation was considered inadequate to the demand, and all well-wishers, all true Masons, were earnestly solicited to help. One answer has been given, and a worthy one.

I have before me the account of the anniversary of the Benevolent Institution "for Widows and Aged," this year a glorious total, over £9000 and lists yet to come in, an increase of £2000 over last year. May the Great Architect grant that this steady increase in one branch alone, may be permitted to the other two yet to come in.

I would mention one other fact. Lancashire, two simple provinces, after proceeding for their own special institutions, has given over £1500 to this one fund alone; Lancashire and Scotland are much alike in population and general wealth—surely then Scotland could give at least £3000 to the combined institutions. Every facility will be given to the poorest to contribute their mite.

I have no fear that you will respond to me in behalf of the widows and aged, but I have heard the question raised, schools? Why more schools? Education is compulsory, and ratepayers have to provide for those who cannot afford this luxury; true, most true; but I would ask then, how are these poor orphans to be fed, clothed, and properly brought up; are they to live a street arab life till the Board Officer finds them and roughly takes them to the nearest school? Does the education act provide food, clothing, and decent God-fearing homes for these poor wretches? No, brethren, no? Fancy yourselves by illness, or other cause, reduced to want, (you the breadwinner may die suddenly) and your poor widow is left without a single hope of relief, left I say, to maintain her helpless children; are these children to herd with the lowest, perhaps, the criminal classes? No, brethren, no. We as Masons hope for much more, we hope to receive these poor children in a true home, free from contamination with vice, to educate, to support, to feed, to clothe, and to house them, and when they are thrown upon the wide world to earn their own living; they may bless their benefactors, and strive to show by blameless lives, that they appreciate the good that has been instilled into them, and maintain the good character and Godfearing habits in which they have been reared and brought up.

I may say that I am not unacquainted with our existing Masonic Schools, I know the good they do and for years they have done, and I feel assured that all those equally or better informed than myself will endorse my statements. Come forward then, my Scottish Brethren, or our colonies will distance us in the race, already I have letters from distant lands seeking to give a helping hand (the colonists are no niggards) what they have earned with the sweat of their brow, they are ready and willing to give; think brethren of your duties, your solemn duties as Masons! Remember the hour when you were admitted into Masonry! Consider the glorious words then uttered! Do what you then solemnly promised! Above all remember those blessed words of Scripture, "Blessed is he that gives as well as him that receives."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday, in the library, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. John Boyd, Benj. Head, H. Browne, W. Roebuck, Dudley Rolfe, R. Kenyon, Col. Creaton, Thomas Massa, De. Ramsey, Walter Wellsman, H. A. Dubois, A. H. Tattershall, H. Massey ("Freemason"), Robert B. Webster, F. G. Baker, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, H. Phythian, Richard Spencer and R. Wentworth Little, (Secretary.)

C.I. Creaton brought on his motion for increasing the Secretary's salary £50 a year. As a brother who saw a great deal of the working of the institution, he could say that Bro. Little had always given the greatest satisfaction. It was unnecessary for him to say more, as the brethren knew as well as he did what the services of the Secretary were. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Tattershall seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Bro. Col. Creaton then moved the addition of £20 a year to the salary of Bro. Hedges, the chief clerk in the office. Bro. Little gave him a very high character, both for attention to his duties and ability in the performance of them. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Tattershall seconded the motion, which was then put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Little having been called in, the Chairman, addressing him, said that the increase had been unanimously carried, and all the brethren considered he deserved it.

Bro. Little thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said that although his health had not been all he would have desired for a few months, yet the interests of the institution had not suffered thereby. What the brethren had done would act as a stimulus to still further exertions on his part. He also thanked the brethren on behalf of Bro. Hedges.

Two candidates were placed on the list for election in April next, and the committee then adjourned.

ST. JAMES'S UNION LODGE BALL.

The fourteenth annual ball of the above lodge was held at Freemasons' Tavern, on Thurs., the 10th, and was attended by a large number of brethren and their ladies.

Dancing commenced at half-past nine with a goodly muster. Coote and Tinney's excellent and justly famed band of sixteen performed, with their usual spirited gusto, the admirable programme prepared for the occasion, Bro. Jarvis acting with indefatigable zeal the office of M.C. Nearly 300 ladies and gentlemen answered the invitation of the Stewards, who left nothing wanting for their guests' enjoyment. A sumptuous supper was served in the Crown and Sussex Rooms, presided over respectively by Bros. Parsons and Staden, Bubb and Smith, the usual toasts on such occasions being given and responded to with admirable brevity. Dancing being resumed, was continued with great spirit, and it had turned half-past four before the last dance closed one of the most successful of these annual festivities.

Appended is the list of Stewards:—Bros. W. C. Parsons, I.P.M., President; A. W. Staden, Vice-President; G. Bubb, P.M., Treasurer; J. Gillard, W.M.; A. Amett, J.W.; S. Smith, S.D., W.S.; E. S. Harrison, J.D.; E. Farwig, I.G.; W. Stallard, W.S.; J. W. Stacey, D.C.; H. A. Stacey, P.M.; J. Miles, P.J.D.; A. Hays, R. Rickards, J. A. Hussey, J. Wood, J. Atkin, W. H. Baker, W. H. C. Sharpe, A. Pinto Leite, L. B. Pillin, J.W., Hon. Sec.

The Worshipful Master then duly installed him, in the presence of a board of Installed Masters, numbering 36 brethren. The Prince showed his proficiency as a student of Freemasonry, and invested his officers for the year as follows:—Bros. Rev. R. W. M. Pope, Deputy Master; Williamson, Senior Warden; the Rev. L.K. His Royal Highness then rose to close the lodge, when five propositions were given in for initiations, and the "hearty good wishes" were expressed by Lord Methuen, from Wiltshire; by Lord Shrewsbury, from Staffordshire; by Colonel Campbell of Blythwood, from Renfrewshire; by Bro. McIntyre, Q.C., from Grand Lodge; by Lord de Tabley, from Cheshire; by Colonel Burdett, from Ireland and Middlesex; by Colonel Adair, from Worcestershire; by Bro. J. N. Martyn, from Suffolk; and by a long list of other brethren, among them being Bro. Reginald Bird, representing the Province of Oxfordshire. Lodge was then closed, and a banquet at the Clarendon Hotel followed, presided over by the Prince; after which the usual toasts were proposed.

The W.M., in giving the first toast, said,—Brethren, I rise to propose to you the toast dearest to all loyal subjects, and particularly to all Masons. Though it is one requiring no comment, we will drink it with no less enthusiasm. Brethren, I give you "The Queen and the Craft."

The toast was followed by "God save the Queen."

The W.M. then rose and said,—Brethren: I rise with the greatest pleasure to give you the toast next in order, but equally important with the one we have just drunk. It is that of "The Grand Master of England." (Applause.) As to all Englishmen the reception of the Prince of Wales in India has been particularly gratifying, so all Masons must feel especially gratifying the tribute of loyalty paid to our Grand Master in India by the Craft. (Hear, hear.) While drinking our Grand Master's health, let us unite, brethren, in wishing him a safe and speedy return. (Cheers.) Brethren, I give you the toast of "Our Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales."

This toast was followed by the singing of "God bless the Prince of Wales."

The W.M. again rose and said: I will now, brethren, give you the toast of "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and Officers of Grand Lodge, Past and Present." We, members of the Apollo, can recollect with just pride that the two first officers I have named were initiated in this lodge, and both are members of it. Nor need I remind you that they are not the only representatives of Grand Lodge whom the Apollo can boast of. We hope to see the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master at the ceremony to-morrow. In the meanwhile I assure you that they regret no less than we do their inability to be here with us this evening. I couple with this toast the name of the Provincial Grand Master of Wiltshire, Lord Methuen.

Lord Methuen replied, and apologized to Grand Lodge for being so badly represented in an elocutionary point of view by him. If the whole of Grand Lodge had been present they would have hailed with delight the advent of one who promised to become a star in the hemisphere of Freemasonry. If he might be allowed in His Royal Highness's presence to say so from his earliest days down to the present he, had been a shining bright light to all those who came about him; and they felt he would remain so as long as life was spared him, and as long as he remained the head of the Order at Oxford he would set an example to Masons in the province. He (Lord Methuen) wished he could express himself as strongly as he could wish in proposing the health of one who had done, and was doing for the Craft and the Lodge so much good. He had worked most assiduously in the cause of Masonry throughout the province, and had successfully brought to an issue whatever he had attempted with regard to the welfare of Freemasonry. His Lordship concluded by proposing "The Health of the Grand Registrar in charge of the Province, the D.G.M., and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge."

Bro. A. J. McIntyre, Q.C., G.R., replied: It was a great pleasure to be praised by one who himself deserved so much praise. It had been his earnest endeavour since the province of Oxford came into his hands to discharge the duties of his office to the utmost of his ability, and in that he had been more than supported by all the brethren who had been appointed to office in the province. If ever there were officers loyal to their head or devoted to the principles and practice of Freemasonry, it was in this province. Never in any province did brethren more deserve office, or, having obtained it, more worthily discharge the duties thrust upon them. He felt it indeed a proud thing to have been placed by fortuitous circumstances at the head of the province of Oxford; but he felt it more fortunate, having been placed in that position, to have been so well supported. It would leave an impression upon his mind which could only be effaced by time with him being no more. (Hear, hear.)

The Earl of Shrewsbury proposed "The Worshipful Master." He felt that a very important duty had devolved upon him, and if he was guilty of any failure in it, it was to be attributed, not to want of will, but to inability to discharge the duty properly. He appealed to his brethren of the Apollo Lodge to excuse any fault. He might say this of Masonry, that those who wished to push themselves forward in it never succeeded, but those who went on quietly and guilelessly, and accepted the honours thrust upon them, succeeded. He felt it an additional honour, after having been 30 years a member of this lodge, to have to propose the health of His Royal Highness. Without adulation he might say of His Royal Highness, that he congratulated him upon the facility and adaptability with which he had conducted his important duties in lodge that evening. Thank God for the adaptability, sociability, and kindness of heart which characterised not only their illustrious brother; but all the members of the Royal Family, whether male or female, which harmonised with the affections, wishes, and desires of the people. He would refrain from saying more, for a good man did not want to be praised. In his university career, in his social life, and in his classical life, His Royal Highness had endeared himself to the whole university; while in his Masonic life he had endeared himself to the members of the Apollo Lodge. In his future career he hoped that he would follow in the same course, and as one object in Freemasonry that he would recommend to His Royal Highness, he would recommend him to patronise the Masonic Charities. Without mentioning one in preference to the other, he hoped he would give a little of his time towards helping those great societies of Masonry, and Masonry would then flourish as it ever had done under the hands of his Royal and illustrious brother. He hoped to live to see him take the same position with regard to the charities as the Prince of Wales had done. (Cheers.)

Prince Leopold said: It is with feelings of great pride and most heartfelt pleasure that I rise to thank you for the most cordial manner in which you have welcomed me, and I beg to thank Lord Shrewsbury for the kind manner in which he has proposed my health. I must feel it a great honour, after having served so short an apprenticeship to Masonry, that the members of this lodge should have unanimously chosen me to be their Master, and I also feel grateful to them, as it will give me an opportunity of returning from time to time to Oxford, where I have already spent so many happy days. When I think of the prestige that has always attached to the Apollo, and the many distinguished Masons who have preceded me in my office, I do indeed feel and appreciate the warm encouragement and kind support which I have met with this evening at your hands. I trust I may be able to come among you frequently during my term of office, and to perform its duties in a manner not altogether unworthy of my predecessors, though I am well aware that this will prove no easy task. Before sitting down I have a toast to propose to you. It is "The Health of those who have so kindly honoured us with their presence here this evening," and I couple with that toast the name of Bro. Col. Burdett, the Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex. (Cheers.)

Col. Burdett replied, and said he was glad to see that there were represented on that occasion the brethren not only of the North, South, East and West, but also Scotland and Ireland even, for he found a brother from North Munster, who he was sure would take back to North Munster a report of the proceedings of the day, a report which he was sure would be received there in the same manner as it was here. It must have given every visitor the greatest pleasure to see the work so well performed by the W.M., and all the officers, from the Inner Guard upward. It was most able and creditable, and they must all feel very proud of it. Not only in lodge had the work been well done, but at the festive board the W.M. had presided in a most able manner. (Hear.)

The W.M.: Brethren, the next toast I have to give you is that of "The Past Masters of the Lodge." The reputation which the Apollo enjoys for its working it owes to its Past Masters. Many of them are known to me only by tradition, but I feel myself very fortunate in having been initiated by so good a Mason as Past Master Morrell, and in having served under a Master so remarkable for his thorough working of the lodge, and for the unswerving manner in which he has always maintained the strictest order and discipline as Bro. Past Master Pickard. Brethren, I give you the toast of our "Past Masters," coupled with the name of our Immediate Past Master Bro. Pickard.

The Rev. H. A. Pickard, I.P.M., said: On behalf of the P.M. of the Apollo, I rise to return my hearty thanks for the honour you have done us to-night, a body much larger than we generally have here to drink our health; and as I look round the room I see that I appear in a very unusual position as both Senior Past Master of the Apollo Lodge, and also the Junior. As during the past you have heard so much of me in that capacity you will be very glad not to hear so much of me in the future. But I may look back on my Masonic career and say that there are three epochs in my life as a Freemason in which I have been hitherto inclined to consider as the most memorable in my life. I refer first of all to the 4th June, 1856, when in the first year of my office as W.M. of this lodge in the Gardens of Worcester College we presented a testimonial to one whose name has always been received in the Apollo Lodge with the greatest enthusiasm, our Past Master, Bro. Beach, now Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. On that day we showed the gratitude Masons always feel to one who raises a lodge beyond the position which it has to that time occupied. I speak in the presence of the old members of the Apollo with all deference and due respect to the position which the Apollo occupied in their days, but I speak also in the presence of the members of the aforesaid lodge who used to do the work of the Apollo when I was initiated in Masonry, and I say that to Bro. Beach is due the position which I think I may say without ostentation the lodge now holds. Well, I look back to the 4th June, 1856, with great pleasure for another reason, because on that occasion we for the first time had the pleasure of inviting the wives, the children, and the friends of Masons to enjoy on that commemoration day the pleasure which they had not hitherto had at Oxford, when music such as we have just had was provided for them. (Applause.) We were able to give a treat which for 20 years has now been given, and has been a source of gratification to the visitors. And my second epoch is the 16th May, 1857, when in the second year of my Mastership of Apollo Lodge I was Prov. S.W. of Oxfordshire, and Lord Zetland, Grand Master, honoured the province by visiting it at our Provincial Festival. Coming down to modern times—passing by that dark period when up in the cold north I saw very little of the light of Masonry (through my own fault, brethren, and through my manifold occupations)—I pass on to that grand epoch, the 28th April last year when I had the honour of representing the province at the installation of our Grand Master in the Albert Hall. Up to the present time those are the three great epochs in my Masonic career; but now the proudest moment has arrived when I have had the honour of installing your Royal Highness in the chair of King Solomon, and of hearing from your lips those gracious words in which you proposed my health and that of the P.M.'s of the Apollo. I have to thank you for the cordial manner in which, brethren, you have received the toast which has been proposed. If it has been a life of toil and trouble there are occasional glimpses of worldly happiness, and with me they are generally connected in some way or other with Freemasonry. I may recall that of meeting those old friends whom I can only see on such occasions as this, and it is the very greatest delight to me to be able to give to them a hearty welcome. (Hear, hear.) And now, W.M. and brethren, so far having delivered myself of the speech which I have had to inflict upon you, the W.M. having entrusted me with his gavel, allow me to propose a toast which I must say I have so often proposed with the greatest pleasure. It is "The Masonic Charities!" and the health of those who have supported them. Every one round the table has supported them; but if not, I know he will double his subscription next time he is asked. (Laughter.) Having created some amusement by my desultory remarks, I have now to ask you to drink to the health of the Masonic Charities, and especially to that Apollo brother, who is well-known not only here but all over England, if not wider, Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain of England, one of my oldest friends, one of my dearest best-beloved brethren, who bears on his breast a badge which will tell you how often he has served the stewardship of the different Masonic Charities. All I have to say before I sit down is to quote the words of a poet whose creed if he had now lived would have probably precluded him from being among our brethren, but whose words, I think, may justly be the motto of all Freemasons:—"In faith and hope the world may disagree. But all mankind's concern is charity;

All must be false that thwarts this one great end And all be true that makes mankind a friend."

The Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., responded, and strongly recommended the three institutions to the favourable notice of the brethren.

Bro. Bué, W.M., Alfred Lodge, responded for "The Visitors," and the proceedings were brought to a close about eleven o'clock.

There was some exquisite singing, under the direction of Bro. Farlay Simkins, by Bros. Bickley, of Birmingham; Thornton, of St. Paul's; and Robson, of Magdalen College, all of whom belong to the Alfred Lodge. Bro. T. Plowman also by special request sang his amusing song of "Cock-a-doodle-do," which contains some very clever hits at passing events. It was most favourably received, particularly the reference to the Suez canal.

MASONIC BALL AT HUDDERSFIELD.

The annual Masonic ball in connection with the Lodge of Truth, No. 521, took place on Friday, the 11th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Fitz William-street, and as expected was a great success, in fact, the best Masonic ball ever held in Huddersfield. From the energetic manner in which the ball committee went to work it could not fail in any particular. Bro. T. Jackson, W.M., was chairman of committee, and, as is well known, whatever duty he takes in hand he is sure to perform with credit, so it was particularly in the present instance. Upwards of 90 ladies and brethren were present, and so thoroughly enjoyed themselves that dancing was kept up far into the small hours, in fact, the hand of time pointed nearer five than four. Several brethren from Leeds and Manchester were present, as also from the other lodges in the immediate neighbourhood. The room was beautifully decorated by Bros. Allen, Jackson, P.M., P.G.S., and Platts, and reflected great credit on their artistic abilities; mirrors hung with lace curtains and imitation tapestry were placed at intervals round the room, and beautiful baskets of flowers (provided by Bro. Midgeley) were so placed as to make the scene like one in fairyland. The floor being covered with Holland enabled the dancers to move easily and gracefully, the room being lighted from the roof by a powerful limelight gave the appearance of moonlight, the effect on such a variety of colours being magnificent. The Master of Ceremonies, Bro. J. Varley, P.M., discharged his duties to the satisfaction of all present. The refreshments were provided by the purveyors of the lodge, Bros. Firth and Turner, P.M., ably assisted by Bros. Hirst and Sykes. Amongst the company were Bros. T. Jackson, W.M. 521; W. Smith, P.M., P.Z. 290, P.P.G.D.C.; A. Jackson, P.M., P.Z. 521, P.G.S.; G. Marshall, P.M., P.Z. 521; T. Tyers, P.M., P.Z. 1458; Walters, Austin, besides several others of equal note. On Saturday evening the lodge held its annual children's party, which took place the evening following the ball. About 120 children were present, and they thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The season will probably wind up with a social gathering in about a month, when no doubt many who were at the ball will again meet, and with gratification speak of the happy and pleasant evening they spent on the 11th of February.

Obituary.

BRO. S. D. FORBES.

It is our painful duty to chronicle the sudden death of Bro. S. D. Forbes, of Portsea. He was initiated into Freemasonry in the year 1839, in the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 342. He joined the Lodge of Harmony, then held at Gosport, on December 3rd, 1840, and was Worshipful Master in 1843. He was one of the founders of the Portsmouth Lodge, No. 487 (late 717), in 1843, and was appointed Secretary. He was W.M. of the Portsmouth Lodge for the years 1844 and 1845, and was appointed Secretary again in 1847. He was elected an honorary member of that lodge, March, 1860, in recognition of his services to Masonry in general, and the Portsmouth Lodge in particular. He was also one of the founders of the United Brothers' Lodge, No. 1069, in 1865. He was a P.P.G. Warden of Essex, and was appointed Senior Grand Warden of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight at the last provincial meeting, held at Ryde in July, 1875. His funeral, which took place on Thursday, 17th inst., was attended by nearly 100 brethren of the neighbourhood, among them being Bros. Alderman H. Ford, M. E. Frost, J. L. Rastwick, and James Tayler. The funeral service was conducted by Bro. the Rev. E. Churchill, P.G.C. The loss of so old and valued a brother will be severely felt by every Mason in the province.

All the cabmen's shelters in the metropolis are now thrown open, free of charge for admission.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: Good Digestion.—With the weather alarmingly changeable, and the cold almost penetrating to the very sources of life, the skin will become inactive, and the digestion impaired, unless corrected by suitable means. Holloway's Pills are universally acknowledged to be the safest, speediest, and best corrective of indigestion. Loss of appetite, acidity, flatulency, and nausea are a few of the inconveniences which are remedied with ease by these purifying Pills. They strike at the root of all abdominal ailments, they excite in the stomach a proper secretion of gastric juice, and regulate the action of the liver, promoting in that organ a copious supply of pure and wholesome bile, absolutely necessary for digestion. These Pills remove all distention and obstruction.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER IN INDIA.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has paid a most successful visit to Nepal, where he was most warmly received by Sir Jung Bahadoor on the part of the young Maharajah. The R.G. Master was to take part in some time tiger hunting.

The Serapis has arrived at Bombay. The despatches from India Thursday morning state that there was splendid sport on Monday. Seven tigers were shot, six falling to the Prince's rifle. His Royal Highness was accompanied by Sir Jung Bahadoor. Upwards of 600 elephants were employed in beating the jungle, and the sight was of an imposing character.

THE INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD AS P.G.M. FOR OXFORDSHIRE.

For some time the thoughts of English Masons have been turned to that distinguished province, over which so fitly and so seasonably the exalted brother of our Royal Grand Master has been called to rule. Like many of his Royal Family, Prince Leopold seems to have sincerely attached himself to our Order. And as Freemasons, we rejoice to know and to think that our principles and practice so commend themselves in successive generations to various members of the House of Brunswick, that while we have received from them all of kindly sympathy, approval, and adhesion, we on the other hand have been able to offer to them alike our loyal homage and our fraternal attachment. So mote it be in the future as in the past and present, and long may this happy union continue between the august and genial sons of our gracious Sovereign, the daughter of an old Grand Master, and our peaceful, intelligent, law-abiding, educated Craft. When some years hence another pen records in the still flourishing columns of the "Freemason" the passing events and notable "sayings and doings" of Freemasonry, may he have to tell, as we do gratefully and gladly to-day, that close and affectionate union which ever has existed, and we feel sure ever will exist, between English Freemasons and our Royal Family. Prince Leopold has already gained golden opinions at Oxford, and on every ground, personal and Masonic, we feel sure that no happier choice of a ruler for the province could be made than that which has been so wisely made by our absent but mindful Grand Master. A letter from India in our last impression tells us well what his zeal and sympathy for Freemasons and Freemasonry really are! The tastes and temperament, the studies and the sentiments of His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, all seem to augur a prosperous regime, and to point to a grateful and contented brotherhood. Owing to the distinguished character of its lodges generally, and the noble and cultured brethren who swell the long roll of the Apollo Lodge in particular, the Province of Oxfordshire is always a very important one in the Masonic aggregation. We therefore congratulate it to-day on its gathering, and the interesting ceremony of the 23rd, its new ruler, and the spirit and enthusiasm of its members. Time does not permit us to go into the account of the installation in detail now; we shall recur to it in our next, offering as we do to our good brethren in the Province of Oxfordshire our sincere felicitations and our hearty good wishes.

THE ONWARD MOVEMENT OF FREEMASONRY.

Those who are conversant with the real facts of the case as regards the present proceedings and prospects of Freemasonry, especially under the Anglo-Saxon system, and we believe the same state of things is to be found more or less in other jurisdictions, must be struck with its tendency to increase and to expand. On every side of us in Great Britain, the New Dominion, and the United States, we see young lodges springing up, we hear of fresh lodges being formed. Here, there, and everywhere, the brethren of the mystic tie, like the armed but silent host in the "Lady of the Lake," seem to "crop up" before our wondering gaze to attract our attention, and to claim our notice. Indeed, we think it cannot be denied by any, that at no epoch of our existence since the Revival of 1717, has the spirit of Masonic propagandism been so active or so successful as now. Indeed, it is impossible to read the hebdomadal columns of the "Freemason" without noting how many proofs are therein to be found of the advance and augmentation of our ancient Craft. And we are among those who, believing in Freemasonry, always gladly welcome those numerous interesting "little strangers" who, in the guise of new lodges, challenge our kinship and demand our sympathy. We do not believe in a stationary Freemasonry; we do not think even that that lodge or district is very much permeated either with Masonic zeal or with a desire for Masonic light in which, following the humdrum course of years, one lodge supplies either the wants of a populous town, or is the only Masonic centre in an influential and increasing district. There are sleepy Masons and sleepy lodges up and down our good land, and whenever you come across them you know at once that it means the minimum of work, and the maximum of refreshment, an indolent, half-hearted, indifferent profession of Freemasonry. We, on the contrary, desiderate Masonic energy and life, activity and service, zeal and labour, and we therefore always welcome the planting of new lodges, and the "swarming" from old ones. For it is in this way that Freemasonry still, poetically at any rate, spreads "from pole to pole." It is in this way, we repeat, that its principles are diffused, and its benefits are proclaimed. We are inclined to think sometimes, that one of the reasons of this advance and increase of Freemasonry is to be found in the fact, that wherever its true teaching is best understood it is apparently most appreciated. Many of us have become very weary of the worn out cries of sectarian bitterness, of unreasoning intolerance. The dogmatism and the defiance, the anathemas and the antagonisms, the uncharitableness and the unsavoury violence of many pseudo-hierophants, have aroused as a counter action, and even counter irritant, the "free lances" of thought, of enquiry, and of criticism. In such a contest the pendulum is apt to swing a little over first on one side, then on the other, and we have always to regret, being human and fallible, mournful mistakes and puerile theories. But the "residuum" of all this often angry and perhaps not unsterile controversy seems to be the assertion of liberty of conscience, of freedom of opinion, of the inviolable and sacred right of the human intellect, the absolute liberty of the individual, within certain safe and recognised limits of religious teaching, and of religious conviction. The principle of toleration in its truest and widest sense is the keynote to all the mystic harmonies of Freemasonry, and it is just because Freemasonry is so wide-embracing and so unsectarian that it retains its peaceful and gentle character. But when we say this we do not mean that Freemasonry in any way encourages the sceptical reveries, or the hurtful unbelief of the day. We can be tolerant without being infidels. We can be charitable without becoming latitudinarian. It is thus that Freemasonry in its present position becomes a neutral ground for contending parties and even differing creeds. Once within its portals we do not enquire what our brother's politics and religion are. We assume, as we presume, that he is a believer in God, a loyal subject of his queen, but we do not trouble ourselves whether his doxy is our doxy, or anybody else's doxy. Hence Freemasonry has many charms for the kindly and sympathetic, the courteous and the cultivated. To know that amid the din of war and the shouts of contending factions, the disputes of the so-called religious world, and the internecine strife of conflicting schools, in this great battle-field of earthly life, there is one sheltered "oasis" in the dreary desert, one "Adytum Sanctum" into which the profane shouts of outside combatants cannot penetrate, where rancour is unknown, and "airesis" is not, this is both a pleasant "look out" and a gracious memory for us all. Good for us if, amidst increasing numbers to-day, we never forget the universal character of our Order; happy will it be to us if, adhering to our ancient landmarks, we allow neither love of novelty or change, the caprice or ignorance of the hour, to loosen those moorings which have so long held in a safe anchorage the good ship Freemasonry. Amid its onward progress and its material prosperity, amidst exalted patronage and numerical development, amid all that tends to popularise or to attract or to raise our Order in the opinion of the world, let us never forget that Freemasonry in its universal and cosmopolitan character, presents to many of us all a very great and attractive feature, and one which alike commends itself to our minds and consciences, our unchanging sentiments, and our active sympathies.

THE BOARD OF BENEVOLENCE.

We feel bound to call special attention to the last report of this most valuable and working organisation of ours, to its active labours, to its great utility. Each succeeding meeting only serves to show how important and how needful it is, how creditable to our Order, how helpful to those who stand in actual want of it. It seems to us to be Masonic charity in active exercises! For the reports all testify, and our last report especially, that there is at the present a very large demand for aid on our funds, and on the Lodge of Benevolence. Many of the cases we are assured, are very sad ones, indeed, even "heartrending," and the relief administered is alike truly required and gratefully received! It almost would appear from recent facts, and our monthly reports, that there is, so to say, a great "substratum" of poverty in Freemasonry. Whence does it come? How is it there? It may be difficult to account, perhaps, for it at first, just as it is to explain the presence of "flies in amber," as we remember hearing Mr. D'Israeli say many many years ago, but still the fact is before us, and seems to be a fact beyond any reasonable doubt. Why or whence, we repeat does it come? We make bold to say, through the fault mainly of our lodges, and of the Order! It is quite clear that for some time, the admission of new members has been far too lax; that is to say, we have admitted those who came with their fees in their hand, and have made our motto "carpe diem." We have not "thought of the morrow," nor looked on to the future? Hence we have admitted confessedly many who ought never to have been admitted at all; we have "sown to the wind," and we shall probably "reap the whirlwind." We must not shut our eyes to this distinct reality, that there is coming upon us a strain alike on our resources and our very system. This very great material prosperity of ours has its concomitant evil in a too rapid increase of brethren, since a large number are admitted to our privileges who look for the benefits and will eventually claim the charity of Freemasonry. But then, on the other hand, we must not take too gloomy a view of things. Our resources are still ample and increasing, and the prosperity of the Order seems, so to say, daily to augment. We have not a right to grudge the "Dole" of Masonic benevolence to all who really require it, and we are to find in our working out of the active principle of charity, as well our highest happiness, as our bounden duty. In nothing does our good old Order so shine, as in that incessant and liberal distribution of pecuniary succour to those who claim its fostering hand, or implore its beneficent aid. While, then, we carefully watch over the "outgoings" of our Masonic benevolence, which are just now very large indeed, while we seek to discountenance and deprecate any mistaken but somewhat popular view, that Freemasonry is to be sought for as well for what it gives, as for what it is, let us pride ourselves on the fact, that with some imperfection of details, common to all earthly institutions, Freemasonry in our own country, as in many others, is still, month by month, so to say, zealously employed in pouring into the wounds of our afflicted brethren the oil and wine of benign charity, in succouring old age, in soothing calamity, in pitying misfortune, in sympathizing with the sorrows of our mortal lot, in cheering the homes of the destitute and in causing the "widow's heart to sing for joy."

THE WILSON MSS. CONSTITUTION.

The discovery of this much desiderated MS. is a happy omen of further archaeological discovery, as it shows what patience and perseverance will do.

It occurred to me some time back that in order to trace it I had better ascertain if it still existed, and if Mr. Wilson of Broomhead, in whose possession it was said to be, was a "vera persona," as too many "tricks upon travellers" have been played on Masonic students. The first reference to the M.S. alluded to occurs in Preston and Hutchinson about 100 years ago, as far as I know, and many changes might have taken place since then.

No previous enquiry seems to have been made about it, though it has been mentioned more than once in the archaeological discussions of later years, and is also alluded to by Bro. Hugban and myself, in the collection of the Constitutions which he edited some time back.

My obliging Bro. S. B. Ellis of Sheffield, a Masonic student, at my request placed himself in communication with Bro. Nixon, who was acquainted with Mr. Wilson, the present owner of Broomhead, and descendant of the Mr. Wilson mentioned by Preston, and it was ascertained from Mr. Wilson, who wrote in the kindest manner, that the Wilson MSS. had been sold to Sir Thomas Phillips, the well-known collector of MSS., and Mr. Wilson believed that some of them had been re-sold or given to the Bodleian Library. On enquiry it moreover soon became apparent that such was not the case, and that the MS. remained still in the possession of the relative to whom they had been left by Sir Thomas Phillips. Luckily, a previous friendly acquaintance gave me, so to say, a special facility of access, and I found to my great delight that the MS. still exists "in vellum," is, its owner says, of the 17th century (the real date has to be ascertained, as a vellum MS. of the 17th century is somewhat rare). He has most kindly permitted me to have it copied, and it will appear in the "Masonic Magazine" for April. Until of course it has been seen and looked over carefully, and collated with others, no one can know or say anything as to its real date, or whether Preston's statement of its age will turn out to be correct or not. It is just possible that Preston, who was not an "expert" in MSS., if he saw it, might not write critically or correctly on the subject, and probably took his facts on the assertions of others; but every endeavour will be made in the interests of historical truth and accuracy to ascertain if possible its, at any rate, approximate date. It is, however, a fresh Constitution unearthed, and I think may lead to others being discovered.

WELCOME OF OUR GRAND MASTER.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am indeed pleased to see this question "mooted," by our worthy brother "An old English Mason." I think with him, that something on a grand scale should be done by the entire Craft of England—such as a meeting, say, at the Crystal Palace, which is far easier of access, than the Alexandra Palace. The train service to the latter is not yet perfect.

I would suggest that the tickets be half-a-guinea, a profit of 5s. on each ticket to go to our charities. We might expect 10,000 (min. no.); that would give a goodly sum of £2500.

I also would suggest that our fair sisters be admitted, as we all must admit that they are, largely endowed with charity.

I earnestly hope Grand Lodge will take up this question and bring it to a glorious issue. I also beg the brethren to state their views through the columns of the "Freemason."—I am, dear Sir, and brother, yours fraternally,

A YOUNG M.M., No. 72.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I quite endorse the sentiments expressed by "An Old-English Mason" and Bro. E. J. Walford as to giving our Grand Master a right royal welcome on his return to his native country, and hope the matter will be taken up by the proper authorities, and put in motion at once.

Yours fraternally,

S. PIGOTT,

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see with pleasure in your impression of Feb. 19th proposals to celebrate Masonically the return home of our M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; in my opinion the idea is one of great value. We have already had one of the most imposing Masonic ceremonials of modern time, on the accession of our M.W.G.M. to the throne of the Order. We can now do something to prove to the world that we practice our great watchword charity, and this by bringing our three noble institutions to the front.

I should have been inclined to have recommended a united anniversary of our three charities as the method of welcoming home our M.W.G.M., but one of these anniversaries has already been held, and the matter might have been difficult to arrange. But might we not hold "A Grand Masonic Fete" at one of our great central places of resort (such as the Palaces of Sydenham and Muswell Hill, the Agricultural Hall, Islington, or the Westminster Aquarium), with special attractions the proceeds, after paying all expenses, to be divided among the three several institutions; arrangements might be made to entertain the whole of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, together with the widows and aged, and to present them to their Royal Patron. An address of welcome and congratulation might be presented, and perhaps a grand banquet held, but these are matters of detail that had better be left in the hands of our excellent brethren, Sir A. Woods and T. Fenn.

By having such a fete as this, the ladies who have done so much for our charities, the wives and daughters of Masonry, could also partake in the general joy, and while so gratifying themselves, would feel that they were one and all assisting in the cause of charity, and helping to cheer the aged, the widow, and the orphan in their distress.

I am, Sir and brother, yours fraternally,

Kirkcudbright (Scottish Constitution), late

ELECTION OF PROV. G. OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I know a brother, a professional man for nearly forty years, and a Mason of the same standing, who is the oldest Mason and the oldest P.M. of his lodge, and who is at the present time the W.M. of a Mark lodge, and M.E.Z. of a chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and who was some years since mainly instrumental in keeping his Craft lodge from going to the ground, and for all this he was never offered a chair in the Grand Lodge of this province, and some seven or eight younger brethren of his lodge had been appointed over him, and when this old and esteemed brother some short time since wrote to the P.G.M. very politely, and told him what I have just written, and asked him how he selected his P.G. Officers, he was very curiously told that no one had a right to ask him, but the Grand Master; and thus the matter at present stands.

Will you, or some experienced brother, kindly tell me how P.G. Officers are appointed in other provinces, and what steps you would advise my neglected brother to adopt under the above circumstances?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours very fraternally,

A LOVER OF JUSTICE.

[The appointment of all Provincial Officers rests with the P.G. Master, except the P.G. Treasurer.—Ed.]

MASTER MASONS' JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hardly like to put up my very humble opinion in opposition to yours; nevertheless, I should like to be allowed to give my reasons for dissenting from the editorial note which is appended to a letter of "A Master Mason" in the "Freemason" of the 12th inst.

"A Master Mason" asks if a jewel consisting of the square and compasses is one which a Master Mason may correctly append to his breast; also whether there is the same doubt attached to the jewel of the "square and compasses" as to the "five-pointed star."

In a note at the end of the letter you write that, in your "humble opinion, according to the Book of Constitutions, a jewel appertaining to the Master Mason Degree can lawfully be worn in lodge."

Now it is my very "humble opinion" that although there is no authority for the wearing of a "five-pointed star" by Master Masons, and it is therefore doubtful whether it is "correct," yet, inasmuch as no competent Masonic authority that I am aware of has yet decided that it is "incorrect," Master Masons aspiring to the wearing of doubtful decorations may be "winked at" for wearing the "five-pointed star."

But with regard to the wearing of a jewel consisting of the "square and compasses," this is a matter which in my very humble opinion does not admit of a doubt. For that is the jewel which according to the Book of Constitutions (page 119, also plate 2) is appropriated to the Past Deputy Grand Master of England, and therefore I maintain that it is thoroughly "incorrect" and Masonically illegal for any one except a Past Deputy Grand Master of England to wear such a jewel.

I well remember when a young Mason visiting the Emulation Lodge of Improvement for the first time, just eighteen years ago, with a jewel consisting of "crystal square and compasses" appended to my breast, and may being ironically asked by dear old Bro. Pike (since gone to his rest) if I was Lord Pamure, "as he was the only person entitled to wear such a jewel." This dictum was confirmed by Bro. Stephen Barton Wilson (then Secretary of the lodge) and other brethren present, including, I think, the present Grand Secretary; and I was then politely requested to divest myself of the illegal jewel in the face of the assembled brethren, a proceeding which made a deep impression upon my youthful mind, as even then I prided myself upon being very correct in my "clothing" as well as in my "work." So when I got home that night I rushed to my Book of Constitutions, and there ascertained for myself that I had been rightly convicted of the (Masonic) crime of wearing an illegal jewel.

Ever since then whenever I have been in the chair of a lodge and espied a "square and compasses" jewel, I have quietly requested the brother wearing it to remove it.

I enclose my card, and beg to remain, dear Sir and brother,

Yours fraternally,

Feb. 16th, 1876.

A PAST MASTER.

INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD AS PROV. GRAND MASTER OF OXFORDSHIRE.

This long looked for event took place on Wednesday last, in the Sheldonian Theatre, Oxford, on which occasion there was a splendid gathering of Freemasons to give éclat to the proceedings. Among those present were Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master; the Marquis of Hamilton, M.P., Senior Grand Warden; Bro. Alderman Stone, ex-Lord Mayor of London, Junior Grand Warden; Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain; Bro. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar; Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary; Bro. F. Morrell, Junior Grand Deacon; Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter, Grand Director of Ceremonies; and Bro. S. George Homfray, Gd. Assist. Director of Ceremonies. Among the Provincial holding high positions in the Grand Masters, Past Officers of Grand Lodge and others Craft who were present were the Earl of Hardwicke, the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Limerick, Lord de Tabley, Lord Methuen, Lord Leigh, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, the Earl of Jersey, Lord Ramsay, General Brownrigg, Colonel Burdett, Viscount Newry, Bro. W.W. B. Beach, M.P., Bro. T.F. Halsey, M.P., Bro. J. B. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes; Colonel Adair, Bro. V. A. Williamson, Rev. C. J. Martyn, Rev. P. Moore, Rev. D. Sedgwick, Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, Rev. W. F. Short, Rev. K. Bedford, Rev. Dr. J. Edmund Cox, Colonel Campbell of Blythswood, Bro. R. R. Holmes, Bro. H. W. Strange, Captain Philips, Major Shadwell Clerke, Bro. R. J. Spiers, Sir E. Lechmere, Captain Ferrier, Lieut.-Colonel Somerville Burney, Bro. Staveley Hill, Q.C., M.P., Sir F. M. Williams, Rev. T. Cochrane, Bro. Heather Bigg, Bro. Frederick Binckes, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.S.D.; Bro. Colonel Machen, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.; Bro. R. Phenes Spiers P.M. 10; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; E. M. Haigh, P.G.S.; W. Roebuck, Bro. Kingston, W.M. 862; Bro. Alfred Wigan, and Bro. Milsom, of Bath; and Bro. H. Massey ("Freemason").

The ceremony which gave Prince Leopold one step higher in Masonic rank was arranged with the same regard for detail and order as was the splendid ceremony of the 28th of April last, when the Prince of Wales was installed as Grand Master of English Freemasons at the Royal Albert Hall. Indeed, it was like it in almost every particular, even to the presentation of an address of congratulation from the Grand Orient of Italy. It will be remembered by Freemasons that on the 28th of April, 1875, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Past Grand Deacon, presented such an address to the Prince of Wales from the Italian Freemasons; and the same brother on Wednesday presented a like address to Prince Leopold. As the Prince of Wales received the address sent to him, so did Prince Leopold receive the address sent to him, most graciously, and the same will be duly enrolled in the records of the province. Perfect success attended the proceedings.

The doors of the Divinity School were opened for the admission of the brethren at twelve o'clock, and closed at half-past one, after which no brother could be admitted. The semi-circle was reserved for the officers of Grand Lodge, present Provincial Grand Officers of Oxfordshire, and all brethren up to the rank of Provincial Grand Warden. The area was reserved for all other Provincial Grand Officers; Oxfordshire being on the left of the chair, and other provinces on the right. Those who were not Provincial Grand Officers were directed by the Stewards to their places in the Ladies' Galleries. The brethren appeared in evening dress (or black frock coat), white gloves, and full Masonic Craft clothing.

At ten minutes before two the following procession was formed in the Divinity School, viz.:

- Two Tylers with drawn swords.
- Three Provincial Grand Stewards
- Past Provincial Grand Pursuivants.
- Provincial Grand Pursuivants.
- Past Provincial Grand Sword Bearer.
- Provincial Grand Directors of Ceremonies.
- Past Provincial Grand Superintendents of Works.
- Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works.
- Past Provincial Grand Deacons.
- Past Provincial Grand Secretaries.
- Past Provincial Grand Registrars.
- Provincial Grand Registrar.
- Past Provincial Grand Chaplains.
- Provincial Grand Chaplains.
- Past Provincial Grand Wardens.
- Provincial Junior Grand Warden.
- Provincial Senior Grand Warden.
- Provincial Junior Grand Deacon.
- Past and Present Officers of Grand Lodge, according to Rank.
- Deputy Provincial Grand Master.
- Provincial Grand Sword Bearer.
- The Right Worshipful the Grand Registrar in Charge of the Province.
- Provincial Senior Grand Deacon.
- Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master of England.
- Two Grand Stewards.

The procession entered the hall, the organ being played by Bro. Plumridge. Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by the Grand Registrar.

As soon as Grand Lodge had been opened the Deputy Provincial Grand Master announced to Grand Registrar the presence of the Deputy Grand Master of England, Lord Skelmersdale. Bro. McIntyre immediately requested his lordship to take the chair, which the Deputy Grand Master accordingly did, and told the brethren that this especial Provincial Grand Lodge had been called together for three purposes; first, to instal a Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire; secondly, to present a testimonial to Bro. Spiers; and thirdly, to appoint a Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and a brother to the vacant Stewardship of the province, in the room of Prince Leopold. The Rev. H. A. Pickard informed his lordship that Prince Leopold was without the door of the lodge, and sought admission and installation.

The procession having been formed, retired, and re-entered in the following order:—

- Three Provincial Grand Stewards.
- The Gloves and Apron of the Provincial Grand Master, on a cushion borne by the Master of a Lodge.

The Collar and Jewel of the Provincial Grand Master, on a cushion borne by the Master of a Lodge.

Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies.

Provincial Grand Registrar.

Provincial Grand Treasurer.

Provincial Grand Chaplains.

Six Past Provincial Grand Wardens.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCE LEOPOLD, Provincial Grand Master.

Two Equerries.

(Bro. Collins, C.B., & Bro. the Hon. Alex. Yorke).

Two Provincial Grand Stewards.

His Royal Highness on entering was received with several rounds of applause. Placed on the left hand side of Lord Skelmersdale, Prince Leopold was duly installed, when, to the sound of blast of trumpet, he was duly proclaimed Grand Master of Oxfordshire, and saluted according to ancient form.

Lord Skelmersdale then, addressing him, said—"I beg to congratulate your Royal Highness on being placed in the chair. I need not tell, you, sir, how important are the duties of the high office to which you have been promoted. Your steadfastness in the cause of Masonry has proved to all the brethren how thoroughly worthy you are to occupy that chair, and I congratulate the brethren of the province that the choice of the Grand Master has fallen upon your Royal Highness. Accept, I beg of you, my hearty congratulations."

The brethren endorsed these expressions, given with his lordship's customary suavity, by a burst of applause, and His Royal Highness bowed both to Lord Skelmersdale and the other brethren. Bro. Reginald Bird, Vice Principal of Magdalen, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, then yielded up to the new Grand Master his "jewel" of office, which His Royal Highness immediately handed back. The warrant of his appointment as D.P.G.M. was then read, and the usual salute followed. His Royal Highness's next business was to supply the vacancy which his own elevation had caused in the Stewardship of the province, and Bro. Walter Jas. Douglas Campbell was called up for investment. Assigning to him the office of Provincial Grand Steward, Prince Leopold shook him warmly by the hand, and that worthy recipient of the Grand Master's favour took his seat among the Grand Stewards of the province. Considerable cheering followed the appointment, which evinced that it was acceptable to the brethren.

The following Provincial Grand Officers were then re-appointed, and on presentation to His Royal Highness he shook them by the hand. Bros. John Galpin, Provincial Senior Grand Warden; H. R. Cooper Smith (Magdalen College), Provincial Junior Grand Warden; Rev. R. W. M. Pope, Provincial Grand Chaplain; Rev. W. Alexander Ayton, Provincial Grand Chaplain; Alderman Thomas Randall, Provincial Grand Treasurer; R. L. Williamson (Christ Church), Prov. Grand Registrar; William Henry Horn, Prov. Senior Grand Deacon; Jason Saunders, Prov. Junior Grand Deacon; Sinclair Frankland Hood (Magdalen College), Prov. Grand Secretary; Charles Bishop, Prov. Grand Superintendent of Works; Julius Sladden, Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies; Carlisle J. S. Spedden (Queen's College), Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies; Alderman William Eagleton, Prov. Grand Sword Bearer; Henry Plumridge, Prov. Grand Organist; Henry Williams, Prov. Grand Pursuivant; Gordon Campbell (Exeter College), Cecil G. Paget (Christ Church), J. E. Courtenay Bodley (Balliol College), Wm. Peppercorn and Frederick Dolley, Prov. Grand Stewards; and William Stephens and George Norwood, Prov. Grand Tylers. These appointments remain in force till next Provincial Grand Lodge.

The proceedings were now drawing somewhat towards a close, and the brethren were looking anxiously for a mark of favour which Royal hands were about to bestow on a brother whom they delighted to honour. For more than twenty years Bro. R. J. Spiers had held the office of Deputy Grand Master, and the brethren of the province had subscribed for a handsome silver inkstand, a purse of 500 guineas, and an elegant album recording the names of the subscribers. The gifts were borne on a crimson cushion and handed to the Prince, who called for Bro. Spiers, and then, addressing the brethren;

The Prov. Grand Master said: Brethren, a pleasant duty has devolved upon me, which I now rise to accomplish. It is to present a testimonial to Bro. Spiers who has now for many, many years been associated with Masonry, not only in the province, but also in the Grand Lodge. It is the great zeal and energy which he has ever shown for the Craft, which merits the slight testimony of regard from many of his friends of our brotherhood. (Applause.) I have been asked to act to-day as spokesman on their behalf, and it is with great pleasure that I fulfil the task. Bro. Spiers, in the name of a large number of Masters, most of whom you see here to-day, I present you with this inkstand, and this purse containing the sum of 500 guineas, as a token of their esteem and regard for yourself, and of their gratitude for the work you have done for Masons in general. (Applause.)

Bro. Spiers, who had been standing all this time, then advanced to the Provincial Grand Master and received the present. He said, in reply: May it please your Royal Highness, my Lords and brethren, I trust indeed that the kindness which I have ever experienced from my brethren, which you have so kindly extended to me, will cause you to grant me some indulgence on this trying moment of my life. (Hear, hear.) I stand here before you in the presence of His Royal Highness, at whose hands I have just received this magnificent gift; and in the presence of my friends, many of whom I have known now for many many years, and you may believe that a brother may well be unnerved who has to accept at the hands of royalty and in the presence of such distinguished brethren such a gift. Words would quite fail me to respond to you in adequate terms for the present you have just now made; but I trust that having been for many years among you, you will excuse any default on my part. I have now been with you many, many years—a long time, as most of you are aware, more or less for thirty-two years, and I feel somewhat overcome, when I see so many of my old friends. I entered Freemasonry 32 years ago in Oxford, and I found out what an institution it was. Attending in London frequently I had an opportunity of seeing by the Masonry there what a rich mine of ore it was from which the Freemasons of Oxford might dig. It is recorded in Provincial Grand Lodge, the year before I became a Freemason that there were but two lodges in the province. One of those had 30 members, and the other 33—which comprised the whole of the Freemasonry of the province—and I believe until I had the honour of being a Steward, there had not been such an office in the province to represent it at the charities. Of course I was glad to make myself a Steward, and I induced my brethren to enter the list, and since that time there have been no less than 200 stewardships. For the great kindness you brethren have shown me, especially the Apollo University Lodge, in supporting me, I was encouraged to go on and on till I got office in Grand Lodge. Within a year of my initiation we got from Grand Lodge £50 for a deceased brother's widow, our province gave another £50, and we got the daughter into the Girls' School. We, while being happy ourselves have tried to obtain happiness for others. Last year Grand Lodge honoured me by granting £150 to a brother of the Apollo, and last week I got a grant of £50 from the Lodge of Benevolence for a Past Master. I now have to thank all the brethren for this testimonial, the committee, the Treasurer, Bro. Randall—whose name will always be kindly remembered by old Oxford men—Bro. Thompson, a name which for three generations has been held in high esteem by all Oxford Masons. I thank you all, and I can assure you the plate will be handed over to my children, as an heirloom, and I hope they will honour it. (Applause.)

The address, of which the following is a translation, was presented from Italy by Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.:

"Grand Orient of Masonry in Italy and the Italian Colonies.

"To His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire,

"Most illustrious and potent Brother,—Italian Masonry, which rejoices at seeing evermore honoured in the most noble nation of England that universal brotherhood of which too is not the least portion, hastens to send you its most respectful and affectionate congratulations on the auspicious event of your Royal Highness's exaltation to the office of Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire.

"Happy the people among whom the men of the loftiest social standing appreciate and practise, as you do, the grand principles of that humanitarian progress which it is the object of Masonry to vindicate and to diffuse throughout the civilised world.

"Accept, most illustrious and potent brother, our most devoted and sincere congratulations and our fraternal salutation.

"Rome, 18th February, 1876.

"In the absence of the Grand Master, the Grand Master Associate, (Signed) GEORGE TAMIO, 33°."

All the arrangements were under the control of Bro. Reginald Bird, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pritchard, P. Prov. S.G.W., to the latter of whom was entrusted the duty of superintending the arrangements inside the theatre; and they are both to be congratulated on the excellent manner with which everything went off.

Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren separated, but in the evening dined together at the Corn Exchange, under the presidency of His Royal Highness.

The toasts of the evening were then proposed.

The Provincial Grand Master, on rising to propose the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," said: Brethren, the first toast of the evening, which I now rise to propose, needs no words of mine to preface it. It is one which all loyal subjects and Masons will drink with loyalty and fidelity. Brethren, I give you "The Queen and the Craft."

The toast having been drunk, was followed by the singing of "God save the Queen."

The Prov. Grand Master: Brethren, it is with feelings of the greatest pleasure that I rise to propose the toast which comes next upon our programme this evening, and it is one which I am sure all of you will drink with enthusiasm. "The Health of the Grand Master of England" will always meet with a hearty reception among Masons (hear); and when we can identify with it, as we can on the present occasion, "The Health of the Prince of Wales" (applause), the toast must meet with a reception doubly warm and enthusiastic. (Cheers.) Our Grand Master has been most loyally received by our brethren in our Indian Empire, and we may hope that as the friendly ties between this nation and India have been strengthened by his visit, the cause of Freemasonry may be benefited in no less a degree. (Cheers.) Brethren, I call upon you to join with me in drinking "The Health of the Grand Master of England," and in doing so to wish him a speedy return home. (Hear, hear.) I give you, brethren, "The Health of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master."

"God bless the Prince of Wales" followed the drinking of this toast.

The Provincial Grand Master again rose and said: Brethren, it is with great pleasure that I rise to propose this toast; nevertheless, regret is coupled with the task, as one who I had much hoped to see here to-day is prevented by illness from coming. I am sure that you will be all as much grieved as I am to hear that the Pro Grand Master of England, Bro. Lord Carnarvon, will not be able to return thanks to-day for the toast which was to have been coupled with his name. At the same time I am sure you will be glad that he should run no risk of increasing his indisposition by travelling contrary to the advice of his physician. (Hear, hear.) And while calling on you to drink "The Health of the Officers of Grand Lodge," I am able to give you the toast of "The Deputy Grand Master of England." I must thank him at the same time for the prominent part he has had the kindness to take in to-day's proceedings, a part which he has performed, as he indeed always must, so gracefully and so well. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, I give you "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Officers of Grand Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. Lord Skelmersdale. (Cheers.)

Lord Skelmersdale: Your Royal Highness, my lords, and brethren, I thank you most heartily for the most kind way in which you have received the toast of the Pro Grand Master, myself and the other Grand Officers. I can assure you it was with very deep regret that the Pro Grand Master had to give up all thoughts of attending here this day, and doing the duty which I have the honour to perform instead of him. With regard to myself I can assure you that when twenty years ago I took part in a festivity of a different kind to this—I mean the Masonic ball, when I was in reality a meek lambkin, having just entered into the happy fraternity—I little thought I should stand here as one of the highest officers in that fraternity to return thanks for this toast. But, brethren, I have never regretted for one single moment since that day my having entered the Order. The more I see of it the more I rejoice to belong to it, and the more do I wish and hope that others may belong to it, and long may it continue. And I only hope with God's grace I may be enabled to perform properly the part I have taken in it. Brethren, I thank you in the name of all the Grand Officers here present for the hospitality shown to them; and also I am sure I may say on behalf of them that they must have been well impressed with the ceremony this day, and that they were all glad to be present at it. (Cheers.) I thank you for the Pro Grand Master, myself, and all the Grand Officers. Brethren, before I sit down I have H.R.H.'s command to give the next toast—may I call it, as it is, the toast of the evening. (Applause.) Brethren, we were told not long ago that the two great watchwords of our fraternity were Charity and Loyalty. Charity, brethren, I will not dwell upon. Not long ago I had occasion to speak to many whom I have the pleasure of seeing here present to-day upon that subject, but I will not be tedious on that subject now, as I am afraid I was on that occasion. It is well understood among us brethren, and I hope it will be carried out as ardently as formerly. But loyalty is another great point in our faith and I ask you what can more conduce to loyalty among Freemasons than seeing, may I say, the Royal brotherhood taking such an active part as they do in our proceedings. At the earliest age possible His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, and His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, have all in turn become members of our fraternity; and not only have they become members of our fraternity, but they have become active working members. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) Brethren, I congratulate you most heartily and sincerely on having secured His Royal Highness Prince Leopold as Grand Master of the Province of Oxford, for I feel sure, brethren, he will carry out the duties of that office as fully as he has hitherto carried out the duties that have fallen to him in lodge. Brethren, I give you "The Health of His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire."

The toast was received with great cheering, in which the ladies joined.

Rider A to Oxford Two

The Provincial Grand Master, who on rising to respond was received with renewed cheering, said: Brethren, I find it difficult to express my feelings on the present occasion, or to thank you sufficiently for the manner in which you have received the toast so very kindly proposed by the Deputy Grand Master. I can assure you I deem it no small honour to be appointed Grand Master of this province, and I will ever do my utmost to prove myself adequate to the charge which has been committed to my care. (Cheers.) I feel it also no small compliment that after having been for so short a time a Freemason you should have testified your approbation of my appointment in so kind and flattering a manner. (Cheers.) The very name of Oxford will be always associated with everything that is near and dear to me, (cheers); and it is with feelings of the truest pride and pleasure that I find myself so closely bound in a bond of brotherhood, both with the university and the province, as Master of the Apollo Lodge and as Provincial Grand Master. (Applause.) One of the greatest benefits of Freemasonry exists in the opportunities it affords to members of the Craft of meeting together from time to time, and expressing those great qualities of goodwill and friendship which are the very key notes of Freemasonry. (Cheers.) In conclusion, I trust, brethren, that I may be able to perform my duties in a manner not altogether unworthy of my illustrious predecessor, Bro. McIntyre, who has for some time past conducted the business of the province so ably, so energetically, and so well. (Hear, hear.) Brethren I ask you to join me in drinking "The Health of the Grand Registrar of England, Bro. Æneas McIntyre."

The toast having been drunk,

Bro. McIntyre said: Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, brother Wardens and Officers of the province of Oxfordshire, I cannot allow a moment to elapse before rising to return thanks for the very great compliment that has been paid to me by His Royal Highness your new Provincial Grand Master. Some years ago, before I was intimately connected with the province of Oxford, it became my duty, as holding the office which I now hold in the Grand Lodge of England, to rule over a neighbouring province and to establish on the banks of this noble river which runs through your city a lodge which since that time has flourished. When I reflect that when I came to consecrate the Abbey Lodge of Abingdon the members who were strenuous in supporting me and who rallied round me in immense numbers and in honour to the consecration of that lodge attended and made it one of the most successful in the province of Oxford—I little thought then that my esteemed friend, your late Grand Master, Bro. Colonel Bowyer, would be called to his account so soon, or that I should be called upon to rule over it. When I was so called I found the province of Oxford, as it was sure to be under so good and able rule as the rule of Bro. Bowyer, supported by Bro. Spiers, in a most admirable condition. Since I have had the charge of the province, which has been for five years, it has kept in that condition, and I may say I leave the province in good working order—loyal Masons, true officers, determined to do their duty, to be loyal to their King and faithful to the Craft.

(Applause.) Of course, in one respect, I do feel deeply that that tie which has united us so closely during the last five years is now severed; but I do rejoice in this, that in taking my departure from among you as the head of this province I hand the government over to His Royal Highness, who has shown great promise of doing well, and who has shown all others how to do well, not only throughout the Province of Oxford, not only throughout England, but throughout the whole world. I am especially thankful to His Royal Highness for the extreme kindness with which he has been pleased to speak of me on this occasion, and I am also highly flattered by seeing there are such a number of brethren whom I have met on former occasions when I have presided in your Provincial Grand Lodge, and who now shew to me the same kindness that they always exhibited when I ruled over them. It has been truly said that man honours the rising, not the setting sun; and when a person has ceased to rule over them, and is departing from among them, and has nothing more to give them, gratitude is very seldom shewn. That is not the characteristic of Freemasons. I feel sure from what you have manifested towards me this evening that during my rule of five years over you, although I may frequently have erred in judgment, every Mason in Oxford will know that I have endeavoured to discharge my duty to the best of my ability; and in taking my leave of you I thank you for the numberless kindnesses you have shewn towards me. (Cheers.)

Bro. Reginald Bird, D. Prov. G.M.: Your Royal Highness and brethren, I rise to return thanks for my brethren, the Provincial Grand Officers, and I have to return thanks for a most distinguished number of brethren—brethren who are far more able than I am to return thanks; but I feel quite sure that on their behalf I can say this one thing, that no body of men feel the honour more than they do—the honour that has been conferred on this province to-day by the appointment His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master has made of His Royal Highness Prince Leopold as our Provincial Grand Master. If anything was wanted to induce the brethren of this province to endeavour to increase their zeal for Freemasonry, and to try to do more good to the Craft throughout the province, I am sure this day's ceremony and this day's appointment will induce every one of them to redouble his efforts. On behalf of myself I have to thank you most heartily and sincerely for the very high honour you have conferred upon me, and I trust I shall be able to discharge those duties you have placed in my trust, as well to your satisfaction as to that of this province. I thank the brethren very much for the kind reception they gave to me on my appointment, and I trust my best endeavours will be to promote the interests in the absence of the Provincial Grand Master, of every lodge of this province. I trust the first duty you will be called upon to perform will be that of allowing the consecration of a new lodge in this province, one that I have every reason to believe in a very few weeks will be consecrated, and which I have every reason to think will be a successful one. On behalf of the Provincial Grand Officers of Oxford I thank you most sincerely for the kind way in which you have drunk our health. (Applause.)

Bro. W. Beach: Your Royal Highness, Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and brethren, I have the honour to propose the next toast. The interchange of visits between the brethren of the respective provinces is productive of the greatest benefit to Freemasonry; it affords an opportunity for contracting new friendships, and it also gives an opportunity for welcoming those who perhaps for many a long day we have not seen. I propose the toast of "The Visitors" with peculiar gratification, because intimately associated as I have been in former days with the Province of Oxford, and never having relinquished my interest in it, I can bear willing testimony to the delight with which the brethren of that province honoured visitors from other quarters. And I am truly glad to say, as you will all bear me out, that the brethren of the present day have not deteriorated from the character which those who went before them earned. Brethren, I will not detain you at this late hour of the evening, but I will as an old Mason of this province congratulate you upon the auspicious proceedings of this day, and trust that they augur well for the prospects of Freemasonry in this province. I beg to couple with this toast the name of Lord Limerick, who is an energetic, an able, and successful Mason. He rules over his province with ability, and I am sure you will receive his name with enthusiasm. (Cheers.)

The Earl of Limerick: May it please your Royal Highness and brethren—If under ordinary circumstances to attend as visitors at your Masonic meetings is a pleasure and an honour, how much more when we have been called upon to be present at a meeting of such importance, not only to the province of Oxfordshire but the Craft at large, as the installation of His Royal Highness as Provincial Grand Master. I venture to say, brethren, that, saving one occasion—that of the installation of His Royal Highness our Grand Master—there has been no Masonic event for a long time more fraught with advantage to our Craft. It has been a pleasure and an honour to those brethren whom you have invited to be present at the ceremony of installation and to see with what ability that ceremony was carried out, and whom you also invited to be present and partake of your magnificent hospitality. I am sure that I only speak the minds of all the visitors when I express our heartfelt wishes for His Royal Highness's prosperity, and for the prosperity of the province over which he is called upon to rule. I thank you, brethren, in the name of the visitors, for the manner in which you have received the toast.

The Prov. Grand Master: Before we leave I have one last toast to propose. It is one I am sure that you will drink with the greatest enthusiasm; it is that of "The Ladies," the ladies, who so seldom deign to visit us, but whom we are always so glad to see. I wish we could see them oftener. I give you "The Ladies;" and as Bro. Hilton is in the gallery I will call upon him to respond.

The Rev. J. Hilton: W.M. and brethren, I have received at the hands of your W.M., the first piece of unkindness that I believe he has ever done me; that is to say, not that I am not glad and rejoice to be spokesman for so much beauty as you see around me here to-night, but at the same time I feel truly unworthy to be their spokesman. And for another reason it is unkind, because a stern college and a sterner dean and chapter forbid me to be anything other-wise than a celibate. (Laughter.) But perhaps that is rather a reason why I should return thanks, because I shall be so exceedingly impartial to them: (Renewed laughter.) Let me then return on behalf of the ladies their most sincere thanks, and I have heard some say that they hope some day or other the ladies will return thanks for themselves. Unworthy though I am to be their representative, I hope that that day will be very, very far distant. As we hear so much about the claims of equality, of ladies and gentlemen being exactly alike, that ladies are to go in for all kinds of occupation, without proper training or fitness for them, I am sure none of the ladies here wish any such thing to happen. When I say they do not wish it, allow me to say when this does happen, when this equality does occur, but which I hope it never will do, then we shall find what they lose. Ladies gain so much now on all occasions by the courtesy which you shew them, that when this equality comes they will feel their loss. And what would they lose? They would lose, if we consider ourselves on an equality that graciousness, kindness, gentleness, and courteous feeling towards ladies that has long been the characteristic of an English gentleman. Brethren, I am sure you will bear me out, and the ladies will bear me out, in saying I hope the day is far distant. I return on behalf of the ladies my most sincere thanks to you for drinking their health in the way you have drunk it. I am only sorry that you have such an unworthy mouthpiece of so much that is noble, and beautiful, and kind.

The proceedings then terminated.

The musical entertainment, which was ver beautiful, was given by the following brethren:—Bickley, of Birmingham; Thornton, of St. Paul's Cathedral; Robson, of Magdalen College; Farley Sinkins, Christ Church; Rowley, Duxbury, Crane, and Halliwell. The whole was under the direction of Bro. Farley Sinkins.

In the course of the evening His Royal Highness received a telegram from the Lodge of Antiquity, No. 2, of which he has been elected Master. His Deputy Master has just been installed, and on receipt of the telegram His Royal Highness put on the ancient chain the square and which are always worn by the Master of that lodge on the night of installation. They were delivered to him by the outgoing Master of the Lodge of Antiquity, who was present at the banquet. His Royal Highness belongs to two London lodges, the Antiquity, No. 2, and the Westminster and Keystone, No. 10. He wore the jewels of the Antiquity on this occasion.

This year's Civil Service estimates were issued yesterday. The total amount required from the several classes for the twelve months ending March 31st, 1877, is £13,308,855, a net increase over the sum appropriated for the expiring year to the extent of £299,744.

The roll of the Institution of Civil Engineers on the 1st of this month contained the names of 843 members, 1530 associates, and 14 honorary members, while there were also attached 373 students, making a total of 2760 of all classes.

The Liverpool charities have been benefited by another large bequest, the total amount of which is £25,500, which sum is to be divided among twenty-four institutions, eleven of which receive each £3000 two others £1000, and the balance is apportioned in small amounts among the others. The testatrix is Miss Cort, who died at Kirkley, near Liverpool, on Jan. 3. This bequest follows closely upon the legacy of £300,000 left by Mr. Lyon Jones to Liverpool charities.

An Inaugural Ball will take place shortly at the Surrey Masonic Hall, in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

The following is a copy of a telegram from Governor Sir W. F. D. Jervois, K.C.M.G., to the Earl of Carnarvon, dated Singapore, Feb. 17, 2.55 p.m.:—"Three of actual murderers of Birch captured. One confesses everything; says nine men perpetrated murder, and has given names."

Bro. Sir Watkin W. Wynn, P.G.M. North Wales, has recently added a domestic chapel to his principal seat, Wynnstay, near Ruabon, North Wales. It consists of a nave and north aisle, with vestry, two bold and well-moulded arches separating the nave and aisle. Mr. Edmund B. Ferrey was the architect.

Bro. Captain Mercier has been re-elected Chairman of the Hospital Saturday Fund for the present year.

Sir Knt. H. C. Levander has undertaken, with the sanction of the Executive Committee, to represent the Red Cross and Appendant Orders, as a Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB.—We are glad to find that the London Masonic Club is progressing most favourably towards completion, and also in numbers. Next week we hope to place a full description of the building, and its internal arrangements before our readers. Owing to the number of applications for membership already received we hear that it will be necessary to raise the subscriptions, and impose an entrance fee; we therefore recommend brethren intending to join to send in their names without loss of time.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, No. 202 held at the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales-road, Kentish Town; on Friday, 3rd of March, 1876. Chair to be taken at seven o'clock precisely, by Bro. J. F. Wuest, Preceptor, P.M. 753.

The "Graphic" of Saturday last contained an engraving of Bro. W. Romaine Callender.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin gave a banquet on Thursday week, at which there were 400 guests. The Duke of Abercorn spoke of the prosperity of Ireland as having increased during the past year. It had, he said, made most decided and positive advances, and these gave rise to well-founded hopes of seeing great progress in the future. What Ireland wanted was more capital expended in it, and without security for life and property this could not be obtained.

WIPE YOUR FACE.—The best Cocoa Nut Mats and Matting are made by Treloar and Sons, 69, Ludgate-hill.

A deputation from the Royal Hospital, Belfast, recently waited on the Lord Lieutenant, and presented an address expressive of thanks to His Grace for having obtained the charter, and pointing out the advantages which the charity derived from it. His Grace said it gave him great satisfaction to find that the charter was of such use to the hospital, from £20,000 to £30,000 having been already obtained.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Lady Georgiana Hamilton, gave a ball at Dublin Castle on Tuesday, the 15th inst.

We are requested to state that owing to the death of Her Imperial Highness the Grand Duchess Marie Nicolaivna of Russia, the parties announced to be given by their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh on the 26th inst. and the 2nd March will not be held.

On the promotion of the Prince of Leiningen, G.C.B., to flag rank, the command of the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert will, it is stated, be given to Commodore Sir William N. W. Hewett, K.C.B., senior officer on the West Coast of Africa.

The "Daily News" understands that during the three years' naval command of the Duke of Edinburgh the Duchess of Edinburgh will reside for a considerable portion of each year in Russia. Arrangements have been made by which the Duke and Duchess will spend the winter of 1876-7 in Malta.

A Norwegian expedition to the Arctic Seas will (our Copenhagen correspondent writes) start early this spring.

Bro. Sir Gilbert Greenall contradicts the report that he intends to retire from the representation of Warrington.

MARK MASONRY.—The Right Hon. the Earl of Lime- rick, M.W.G.M.M., has appointed the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale to be D.G.M.M. in the room of R.W. Bro. Romaine Callender, M.P., deceased.

NEW QUARTERLY MAGAZINE.—"The Rosicrucian and Masonic Record," which has been for nearly eighteen years the organ of the Rosicrucian Society, will henceforth be published with the view of enlisting the support of those brethren of the Masonic Fraternity, who are associated with the Christian and Philosophical Degrees. The field of general Masonic literature being already well occupied, the "Rosicrucian and Masonic Record" will be devoted mainly to the examination and elucidation of Freemasonry in its more æsthetic relation with symbolism, science, and thought. Facts and occurrences of an interesting character will, however, be duly noticed, and meetings of Rosicrucians and Philosophical Masons regularly recorded. Several brethren of literary attainments have promised cordial co-operation, and the magazine will continue to be edited by Bros. R. Wentworth Little and William Robert Woodman, M.D. The publisher is prepared to enlarge the magazine to 48 pages, for the price of one shilling, the numbers to be published in January, April, July, and October.

Bro. George Tedder's Annual Benefit Concert will take place at the Erith Public Hall, on Monday next. Bro. W. B. Henwood, Hon. Sec. (Belvedere), from whom any information may be obtained.

NARROW ESCAPE OF BRO. R. WENTWORTH LITTLE, Sec., Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.—Bro. Little had a narrow escape a few days back. While proceeding home in a hansom cab, the horse took fright, the driver losing all control over it. Fortunately Bro. Little escaped with but slight injuries.

METROPOLITAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1506.—Bro Adams is the Preceptor of this lodge, and on Friday, 11th inst., being the first meeting since the recent death of his daughter he was not present. In his absence Bro. Shand moved, and Bro. Solomons seconded, and it was unanimously approved, that a vote of condolence be entered upon the minutes, expressing sympathy with their worthy brother, the same to be transmitted by the Secretary in a letter to Bro. Adams.

On Wednesday, the 2nd inst., Emma Holmes gave a reading a la Bellew at Colchester in aid of the Literary Institution there, Shakespeare, Hood, Tennyson, Dickens and Barham being laid under contribution to furnish the evening's amusement. The "Essex Standard" says "there was a very full audience," and Bro. the Rev. C. L. Acland; himself an accomplished scholar and lecturer, took the chair. The "Standard" adds, "the programme was a very varied one, and calculated to tax the power of a reader; but Bro. Holmes accomplished his task without any difficulty, and seemed equally at home with both the grave and the gay." Amongst the former was a "Legend of St. Swithen's Eve," from the Masonic Magazine, which was listened to with great attention and a pparent interest, and the latter was best exhibited by Mr. Sprouts's courtships, which elicited roars of laughter.

DAYLIGHT reflected in dark rooms. Gas superseded in day time. Health, comfort, and economy promoted by adopting Chappin's Patent Daylight Reflectors.—Manufactory, 69, Fleet-street, London.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF PRUDENT BRETHREN (No. 145), assembled for their regular meeting on the 22nd ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Officers present, Bros. E. H. Thellay, W.M.; G. Purkess, I.P.M.; Moulst, S.W.; Haslett, J.W.; John Boyd, P.M.; Treas.; G. S. States, P.M.; Sec.; J. Hughes, S.D.; Leggett, J.D.; Lewis, I.G.; Lyster, D.C. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Albert Mears was duly and most ably initiated by the W.M., and Bros. Curtis, Rees, Hill, Sims, and Deares, were raised to the Third Degree. Two candidates for initiation were proposed in open lodge. The honorary membership was presented to Bro. Herbert Dickets, P.M. G.S. Lodge, for valuable services rendered. A vote of thanks, to be recorded on the minute-book, was voted to Bro. John Wills, F.R.H.S., for supplying the rare exotic flowers with which the banquetting tables were decorated at the late centenary festival. A charity jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. G. Purkess, for having served two Stewardships of the Masonic Institutions on behalf of the Lodge of Prudent Brethren. There were several visitors present—Bro. Baldwin, P.M. Era Lodge and others. The members present were Bros. Thomas Bull, P.M.; Mamby, A. S. Chinnery, Wood, and others.

CITY OF LONDON LODGE (No. 901).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held on Monday last, at Gurney's Hotel, Little Britain. Bro. H. D'Arcy, the W.M., occupied the chair of K.S., and there was a fair attendance of brethren. The visitors present were Bros. F. Buckland, P.M. Israel, and W. G. Kent, 1297. The lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. D. Portage, the Secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. Mr. J. Morris and Mr. Thomas Wallis were initiated. Bros. Mosley and Roche were raised to the degree of M.M.'s. At the conclusion of the ordinary business a letter was read from Bro. Stephen Carey, resigning not only his position in the lodge but also his membership, the reason being that he had been confined to his room for a considerable time, and had been positively forbidden by his physician being out after night-fall, and he would for some time be unable to attend to lodge duties. Bro. Carey being one of the most esteemed and efficient members of the lodge, many of the brethren expressed their deep regret that he should have been compelled to send in his resignation, and as Bro. Salisbury, P.M., who kindly acted as S.W., expressed it, Bro. Carey would be a great loss to the lodge, and the brethren would be most reluctant to lose so valuable a member. The question of accepting Bro. Carey's resignation might stand over to a future meeting in the hope that the Great Architect of the Universe might restore him to health and enable him again to take part in his Masonic duties. The W.M. and brethren concurring, the question was deferred.

THE BURGEOYNE LODGE (No. 902).—The installation festival of this lodge, which is named after the venerable engineer whose Wardenship of London's fortress was the last of the many services he rendered to the state he loved so well, was held on last Monday, the 28th, under the brightest and happiest circumstances, for it is a bright and happy circumstance when the outgoing Master, completes his circle of duties by installing his successor, and it is another when that successor shows that he has a full knowledge of his work. Bro. R. N. Field, the W.M., took the chair precisely at the hour fixed for the opening, Bro. Brooks, the W.M. elect, occupying the S.W. chair and Bro. Jeffrey that of J.W. The important minutes being confirmed, a ballot was taken for Mr. George Shepherd, and the result being favourable that gentleman was in due form initiated by Bro. Field in an able manner. After this Bro. Brooks was duly presented, and the ceremony of installation was commenced according to the Emulation ritual, as taught by the late Bro. John Thomas, and the W.M. elect having pledged himself to the requirements of the Order and of the lodge, was, in a Board of Installed Masters, duly installed according to ancient form. When the lodge was again opened and the proclamations duly made in the three degrees, the new W.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his officers, making at each appointment and investiture a near little speech. Bro. Colonel Wigginton, W.M. of the Francis Birdett Lodge, acting as Director of Ceremonies and presiding each officer. Bros. Jeffrey was appointed S.W.; Byss, as J.W.; S. Poynter, who had again been unanimously elected as Treasurer, was most warmly received when invested. Bro. F. J. C. Taylor was appointed Secretary, Bro. Pcock, as S.D.; Bro. S. D. Young, as J.D.; Bro. Haig, as I.G. When this interesting part of the ceremony was over Bro.

Field gave the customary addresses with much point and with excellent elocution, adding thereby greatly to the effect. In the course of the other business which followed before the closing, on the motion of Bro. Rogers, P.M., the sum of ten guineas was placed on the list of Bro. Field, who goes up as Steward for the Boys' School Festival, and Bro. Field was also presented with a handsome address, engrossed and richly framed, expressing the kind sentiments of brethren towards the I.P.M. for his two years' work as W.M., and they added a handsome bar to his P.M.'s jewel. Bro. Field warmly thanked the brethren, not only for these testimonies of their esteem, but for the honour of electing him their Steward at the Installation of the Prince of Wales, and adding to that honour the presentation of the Stewards' jewel. The lodge then, out of its charity fund, exercised the "distinguished virtue" on behalf of a brother who had met with a great misfortune in the loss of his right arm, and notice of a motion was given that the sum of £10 should be voted for the purchase of Bro. Harty's grand steel engraving of His Royal Highness's Installation at Albert Hall. The lodge then closed, and the brethren banquetted in the Pillar Hall, no fewer than twenty-five visitors being present, with a very large muster of the brethren. The W.M. was supported by Bros. Field, Wigginton, Poynter, Rogers, Taylor, Harvey, Levander, P.G.S.D. of Wiltshire; Bridge, P.G.O. of Kent, and P.M. of the Royal Navy; Headon, I.P.M. of The Great City Lodge; Larham, W.M. of the Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge; While, I.P.M. of United Strength ("Freemason"); Dwarber, W.M. of St. Dunstan's Lodge; George Dawson, of the Belgrave Lodge; Blythe, of the New Concord; and others. After the banquet the W.M. gave the loyal toasts and of "The Grand Officers," and these having been honoured, Bro. Field gave "The Health of the W.M.," saying that he was sure that the brethren would receive it with all cordiality, for they all knew the patience and industry with which their W.M. had worked his way through the different offices until he had reached his present proud position. They were sure, too, that he would worthily fill his high station, and carry out the duties annexed thereto in a manner worthy of the traditions of the lodge for good work. The toast having been honoured in every way, the W.M. thanked the brethren warmly both for their suffrages and for the cordiality of the reception accorded to him—promising them that nothing should be wanting on his part to ensure their happiness. He then proceeded to propose the toast of "The I.P.M.," who, he said, had worthily carried out the duties as W.M. for two years, and had given the lodge the great advantages of his talents and Masonic knowledge. Bro. Field, in response, again thanked the brethren, and took occasion to refer again to the honours the lodge had bestowed upon him, saying that he should ever feel gratified for those handsome presents, which he should ever wear with the deepest feelings of pride. He reminded them of the happy and cheerful face, now missing, of the late Bro. John Thomas, by whose instruction, he said, he had profited, and whose mantle, he considered, had fallen upon the shoulders of Bro. Larham. The speaker in feeling terms referred to the absence of P.M. Henry Smith, an absence caused by a deep domestic affliction. "The Health of the Initiate," was then toasted, and the newly made brother returned thanks in suitable terms. The "Visitors" were then toasted, and the W.M. in reading out the list of visitors present, incidentally paid a "compliment" to the "flourishing style" of signatures by calling at one name "Bro. Somebody." To this toast Bros. Levander, Bridge and Dwarber responded, and all expressed the satisfaction with which they had witnessed the principles and work of the Craft so worthily carried out, as by the Burgoyne. The "Past Master's" toast was responded to by Bro. Harvey, and Bro. Poynter, whose services to the lodge were warmly acknowledged, made an excellent speech in pointing out the principles which should guide the brethren in exercising the ballot. The other officers also spoke, and the Tylers' toast closed a pleasant evening. The banquet was served in Anderson's best style.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).—The members of this lodge met for the first time under the presidency of their new W.M., Bro. Lancaster, on Thursday, 17th February. The W.M. was supported by I.P.M., Bro. Frobes; S.W., Bro. Christie; J.W., Bro. Jupe; Sec., P.M., Bro. Staton; S.D., Bro. West; J.D., Bro. Robinson; and I.G., Bro. Arkell, and numerous brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting having received assent, the W.M. raised Bros. Cleghorn, Nicholls, and Smith, and passed Bros. Cane, Jackson, and Kempton. Ballot was then taken for Mr. George Buszard, which proving satisfactory he was duly initiated in a manner that speaks well for the brethren having chosen such a representative for the chair of K.S. The W.M. having risen in the usual manner, one candidate was proposed for the next meeting, and the lodge was closed in ancient form.

PECKHAM LODGE (No. 1475).—The second installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 17th ult. The minutes of the previous regular meeting of the lodge and those of a lodge of emergency were read. The S.W., Bro. Walter Charles Canton, was presented to Bro. J. T. Dalby, the retiring W.M., as the brother who had been selected to preside over the lodge during the ensuing year, and Bro. Dalby only expressed the sentiments of every member of the lodge when he expressed himself "heartily rejoiced at the selection made." The customary ceremony was then gone through by Bro. Dalby, whose rendering of the installation was perfect, both as regards ritual and elocution, and at the completion of the charges he received his just reward in the unanimous plaudits of the large assemblage of brethren. Having been duly installed Bro. Canton proceeded to invest his officers, who it may be stated were appointed in rotation, viz., Bros. Duck, S.W.; Stephens, J.W.; Harvey, S.D.; Jackson, J.D. The only appointment vacant, that of I.G., was conferred upon Bro. Murley, [and those of Treasurer and Secretary continue to be held by Bro. Warren, P.M., and Bro. Gompertz, P.M., whose services on behalf of the lodge have not failed to obtain the recognition they have well deserved. The ceremonies of installation and investiture were presided over by Bro. D. Rose, P.M., who holds the office of D.C. in this as well as in several other lodges. The newly-installed W.M. commenced the duties of his exalted position by initiating Messrs. Dalley, Messum, and Smithers. He delivered the ritual in a manner which proved that he intends to sustain the high reputation which the Peckham Lodge has gained for the excellence of its working. The brethren proceeded to the discussion of an excellent banquet. The usual toasts were proposed and duly honoured, and Bro. Dalby, the I.P.M., was presented with a ten-guinea Past Master's jewel as a token of the brethren's recognition of the valuable services he has rendered to the lodge during his year of office. The oratory was enlivened by vocal displays on the part of several brethren, whose efforts were, however, restrained to some extent by the absence of a piano, a defect which will doubtless be remedied at future meetings of the lodge. In conclusion it may be remarked that the Peckham Lodge, which has just commenced the third year of its existence, has thus far shown remarkable prosperity. It numbers on its books sixty subscribing, and two honorary members, no less than twenty gentlemen having been initiated during the past twelve months. Amongst the numerous visitors were Bros. Allan C. Wylie, W.M. 869; S. H. Wagstaff, P.M. 1216; Henry W. Gompertz, S.D. 1364; Dann, P.M. 72; Moore, P.M. 73; Chas. F. Hogard, P.M. 265; G. Edmonds, P.M. 975; Smith, W.M. 1172; Reynolds, 169; James Garner, S.D. 975; J. Drew, J.D. 1261; and others.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on February 24th, at the Asheton Arms, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. D. Reid. The five candidates for F.C. honours were duly passed in the following order:—Bro. J. B. Howard, by Bro. J. Garlick, P.M.; Bros. J. Bradshaw and H. Wilson, by the W.M.; Bro. A. Swallow, by Bro. Harvey Heywood, P.M. and Treas.; and Bro. Moses Mills, by Bro. W. H. Kershaw, I.P.M. This arrangement was admirable, and from the effective way each ceremony was rendered it proved that good old 78 possessed retentive Past Masters. The portrait of H.R.H. the Grand Master, which was presented to the lodge at its annual festival in December at the banquetting board, was now formally received as lodge property. Bro. W. H. Kershaw, I.P.M., asked the brethren to accept the portrait of H.R.H., the noble Ruler of the Craft; the brethren who presented it to the lodge were indeed proud to do so; all who had subscribed to that portrait had been spectators of a grand ceremony, the like of which in all probability would never again be witnessed by any brother present. The portrait would be a memento of that memorable day when our Grand Master was installed in the Albert Hall; those brethren who were not present at that magnificent ceremony could gaze upon that portrait, and at all times think of those watchwords which resounded through the Hall, "Loyalty and Charity." He therefore asked, on behalf of the brethren who had signed their names in the margin of the portrait, that the lodge would accept this token as a souvenir of the auspicious occasion to which it related. Bro. H. Heywood, P.M. and Treas., in accepting the handsome gift on behalf of the lodge, remarked that he considered it a pleasing way of showing love to the Imperial George Lodge. A lodge of unbroken records approaching a century and a half would be able to show, in 1876, a record respecting one of the greatest events in Masonry, when the future King of England accepted the office of Grand Master. Those brethren who were present at that memorable event had signalized the same by a handsome addition to the lodge, and he suggested that the gift and the names of the donors be recorded in the minute book of the lodge. Bro. W. Percival, J.W., seconded the proposition. In addition to the above presentation Bro. Clark, S.S., on behalf of the Stewards and junior members, presented the lodge with a handsome gilt frame, set in polished oak, lined with Utrecht velvet, this to adorn the lodge's valuable charter. The S.S. begged the acceptance of the same by the lodge, as a sincere token of regard on their behalf to their mother lodge, and as a sequel to the munificent gift of the P.M.'s and officers already mentioned. He hoped that their example would be followed by other brethren in similar tokens of respect. The W.M. replied that he was much pleased to receive such a useful and yet ornamental present from the Stewards and junior members of the lodge, and begged to propose that the best thanks be accorded to them for the beautiful adornment they had added to the warrant of their lodge. Bro. John Wood, P.M., D.C., seconded the proposition, and also made reference to the inscription appearing in the margin of the Royal portrait, which is as follows:—"This portrait of H.R.H. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, K.G., M.W.G.M., was presented to the Imperial George Lodge, No. 78, by the following officers and brethren, as a memento of their being present to represent the lodge at the installation of H.R.H. in the Royal Albert Hall, London, April 28th, 1875:—W. H. Kershaw, W.M.; David Reid, S.W.; George Bradbury, J.W.; Samuel H. Chetham, I.P.M.; Jno. Wood, P.M., D.C.; Jno. Garlick, P.M.; Jno. Dyson, P.M.; Geo. Dann, M.M." Bro. Wood, P.M., D.C., said the brethren had not inscribed their names for the purpose of setting forth their deeds to the present members of the lodge; but that was done as a record for those that come after. Should the Imperial George Lodge be in existence in another century and a half that portrait would remind the members of a grand event that took place in the days of their forefathers; the signatures would also point out those privileged to be present at that event; they would also testify that they were men that could write. The latter happy thought of our humorous brother met with great approval. Bros. W. Jones, of 993, and G. H. Darwin, of 163, were respectively proposed as joining members by Bros. Wood, P.M., D.C., and H. Wilson. The W.M. intimated that there were two candidates for Masonry, but the great increase of labour necessitated an emergency meeting, which would be held in the middle of the ensuing month, of which due notice would be given. Progress was also reported with regard to the correspondence with Grand Lodge relating to the dispensation for the "centenary jewel;" the proposed "Library and Masonic Literature" scheme was also alluded to, after which the charity box passed round and received a most handsome acknowledgment. The lodge having been closed, refreshment was at once proceeded with, the evening being far advanced. Customary and loyal toasts having been given, the toast of the evening, that of "The Newly-passed Brethren," was moved by the W.M., and most enthusiastically joined in by the brethren present. The newly-passed brethren individually responded to "The good wishes and God speeds" in happy and most suitable terms. Especial attention was then drawn by the W.M. to the honour the lodge had accorded to it by the distinguished visitors of the evening, especially the chief representatives of the Wilton, Tudor, and Friendship Lodges. He wished also to note the visit of the Rev. Bro. H. B. Jones, W.M. elect of the Charlton Lodge, 1387, and his officers designate. The P.G.L. of East Lancashire was ably represented by Bro. Parker, P.P.G.T., who acknowledged the compliment and good wishes to the P.L. in a felicitous manner. Other visitors having responded, the brethren separated in the usual Masonic manner.

The minutes of the emergency meeting of 4th January, 1876, were also read and confirmed. The minutes of the last meeting of the permanent committee were read and adopted. Letter from the widow of a deceased brother, acknowledging the receipt of £10, was then read. Letter enclosing money order for Rs. 10 on account of Bro. Prescott's arrears of dues, was then read. A circular from the "Masonic Record" of Western India was then read, and Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe then rose and strongly recommended the brethren to subscribe to the same, and that he considered this Masonic journal ought to be supported by all the brethren that had the means to do so, and that it was easy for those that could not manage to take it individually to join two or three together, so that they might know what was going on in other lodges besides those they could visit, and that, although he had been called to account himself for a slight irregularity that had occurred of late in one of the lodges of which he was a member, (and which he had fully explained), he thought that it was the only way to keep us well up to our work; were it not for a journal of this kind such matters might be passed over and unnoticed. Hence he hoped they would give their support as far as they personally could, and he was sure that the Secretary would record any of their names, and forward the same to the proper quarter. The Tyler then reported the presence of the District Grand Master and his officers. The District Grand Master and his officers were duly admitted. The District Grand Master then asked if any member of the lodge had any complaints to make against the W.M. or members, and there being no response, he said it gave him great pleasure to find the lodge working so harmoniously together, after which he returned the hiram to the W.M. W. Bro. W. C. Rowe, W.M., then rose and said: Rt. Wor. Sir, Wor. Sirs, and brethren, as you are aware, we have met here this evening to install the W.M. elect of this Lodge Concord, but before I proceed with this work I think, in justice to myself and the lodge over which I have had the honour to rule for the past twelve months, I ought to give an account of my stewardship during the year. Well, brethren, I must say we have not wasted our time during the past year, for we have had twelve regular and three emergency meetings, eight initiations, seven passings, seven raisings, six lectures on the different tracing boards, and one address on the solicitation and selection of candidates for Freemasonry. During the year we have given Rs. 520 in charity, and our receipts have been Rs. 418, so you may observe, brethren, that we have given Rs. 102 more from this fund than our receipts have been during the year. We had a balance in hand on the 31st December, 1875, of Rs. 706 in the General Fund, and Rs. 540 in our Charity Fund, making a total of Rs. 1240, being an increase in our funds of Rs. 180 with the corresponding month last year, so I think we may congratulate ourselves on our steady success during the past year. We have also made a few little additions to our property during the past year in the way of a wardrobe fitted to suit our kit, also a bookcase for keeping the past records of our lodge, so that they be handy for reference at any time your permanent committee may need or require any information of what has been done in past years. We have also a respectable store cupboard, and have made many other little improvements, and I think we may say we have made some progress during the year. There is also another very important thing that we have started, and that is a charity box, and it was intended to send the contents to our Masonic Benevolent Institutions at home at the end of every year—I mean the Boys' and Girls' School, also the Institution for Aged Freemasons in England—although this has only been commenced during the last three or four months. We have now got Rs. 29.120 up to the end of the year, and as a commencement of this good work I shall have great pleasure in putting the remainder required to take up a life governorship in one of these excellent institutions, which I hope may be followed up year after year, so that we may let them know at home that, although we are far away, they are not forgotten. With this short account of my stewardship, brethren, I shall now proceed to install our W.M. elect, Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson. Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson was duly installed as the W.M. of Lodge Concord, No. 757, E.C., for the ensuing year. The following officers were then invested:—Bros. O. Tomlinson, S.W.; J. Spiers, J.W.; F. Burdett, Treas.; W. Fearn, Sec.; W. G. Davie, S.D.; H. Watson, I.D.; S. Thomas, D.C.; J. Luke, Stwd.; J. E. Tyers, S.G.; J. W. Seager, Tyler. Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson, W.M., then rose and said: Right Worshipful District Grand Master, Officers, and members of Grand Lodge, members of Lodge Concord, and visitors generally.—It has been the custom amongst some newly-installed Masters to offer to the members of this lodge some reasons why he has appointed such and such brethren to such an office. Now, in a small lodge this may not be a very difficult matter, but in a lodge of the dimensions of Concord it would be a very difficult matter to do so, especially as we have so many good and true Masons who are all capable of working almost any office in the lodge, and all I intend to say in the matter is that I have not used my own judgment entirely, but have taken your P.M.'s and P.W.'s into my confidence, and the list of officers placed before you this evening is the result, and I entertain no fear for the future success of Concord whilst I have such an able and willing band of pioneers with me. Now, brethren, I have on a previous occasion informed you that I was not at all desirous of being W.M. again, but do not think for a moment that I do not fully appreciate the high honour you have done me by unanimously electing me for the second time as Master of this our very popular lodge; but what I mean is this, that I am very sorry, and very much regret that one of your Past Wardens did not come forward and stand for this high and important position in Masonry. However, brethren, as this has not been done, and I am installed W.M. for this year, I can only say that I will, as I have already promised, do the best I can for the interests of the lodge, and as I am an old member amongst you, and well known to you all, I think there is no necessity for me to attempt a speech to you, and before resuming my seat I would wish that the thanks of this lodge be presented to the R.W.D.G.M., the Hon. James Gibbs, for his kindness in attending on this occasion, and as we all know that this R.W. brother's time is very fully taken up by his officers in the council of this presidency, we the more readily and heartily tender those thanks to him, for we all are very glad to see his welcome face amongst us at any time, but more especially at these annual gatherings, when we meet many old friends who attend to lend their presence to his imposing ceremony, and I would add that he thanks of this lodge be also given to the District Grand Lodge and those visitors of both Constitutions who have favoured us with their company, and in conclusion I thank the members of Lodge Concord for their unanimous approval of me as their W.M., as it affords me the pleasure of knowing that my previous efforts in the Eastern chair are not forgotten, and trusting that each brother will work with the grand object in view of lessening human misery and vice, then shall we have a year of prosperity in Lodge Concord, and I shall be able to hand this Hiram to my successor with a good conscience that we have one and all done our duty to the Craft in general and Lodge Concord in particular. Brethren, there is one thing more I wish to say, and that is, it is usual at this time of the year to think of the charitable institutions in Bombay; I therefore propose we give Rs. 50 each to the Scottish Orphanage, the Byculla Schools, and the Indo-British Institutions. Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, in seconding the motion, proposed that Rs. 100 should also be voted for the Bombay Masonic General Charity Fund. Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson agreed to amend his original proposition, and it was then resolved that Rs. 100 be presented to the Bombay Masonic General Charity Fund, Rs. 50 to the Scottish Orphanage, Rs. 50 to the Byculla Schools, and Rs. 50 to the Indo-British Institution. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, the following six brethren were elected, in accordance with Act XII., members of the Permanent Committee:

—Bros. H. Watson, J. Luke, J. May, W. E. Craddock, J. Middleton, and W. G. Davie. Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe then delivered over to the W.M. the stock list of the lodge, and at the conclusion of this portion of the business the W.M. tendered the thanks of the lodge to the R.W. the D.G.M. and the officers of the Grand Lodge for their attendance. R.W. the Hon. Bro. J. Gibbs in acknowledging the compliment said: Wor. Sir, in thanking you for the vote which has just been passed I can only say we are always very glad to visit the lodges in Bombay once at least in every year. I have had great pleasure in attending Lodge Concord on former occasions, as I have also had this evening, and I hope that the end of the year will shew as satisfactory a state of things in the lodge as at present. I should add that I received a note from my deputy, Wor. Bro. Balfour, stating that owing to his having to attend to the installation meeting of Lodge Rising Star he was prevented from coming here, and therefore begged that I would tender his apologies to you, which I now do. The W.M. then said: Brethren, I have great pleasure in rising to propose that a Past Master's jewel and clothing be voted to Wor. Bro. Rowe, who has worked so well and so ably for the lodge during the past year. I am only sorry that our arrangements were not completed in time to allow of the presentation being made this evening, for from the estimation in which this worthy brother is held we felt sure that the present proposition would be unanimously agreed to, and that we were justified in ordering out the jewel and clothing from England in anticipation of your approval. Wor. Bro. Robinson said he had much pleasure in seconding the motion. The proposition was carried with applause. Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe then rose and said: R.W. Sir, W.M., Wor. Sirs and brethren,—For the thanks which you have just accorded for my services and the very handsome way you have recognised the same I beg to tender you my most sincere and hearty esteem, and trust that the good feeling that has subsisted between you and myself during the past year will continue to the end. Twelve months ago I had to thank you for the high honour you had conferred on me in unanimously electing me your W.M.; and now having laid down the government of the lodge, I must be allowed to say how much I have to thank the officers, past officers, and brethren who have favoured me with their visits during the year, and for all the kindness they have shown towards me throughout. I am happy to say the year has not been an idle one for Concord, and I have always arranged to have something in the way of lectures when not working any of the degrees, and although the work has been heavy and taken up my time a great deal, yet we have laboured so pleasantly and so harmoniously together that the toil has been a pleasure to me, and I am pleased to say that the principle illustrated by the name of our Lodge Concord has been carried out to the letter. In conclusion I will only add that the regret I individually feel in giving over charge of the lodge (having been called away to the Mastership of my mother lodge, Truth) is much lessened from knowing that I am succeeded by my worthy and W. Bro. Henderson. To him, and to W. Bro. Robinson, and to my officers, who have served under me during the year, especially Bros. Burdett and Tomlinson, my very hard-working Treasurer and Secretary, I wish to give my best thanks for the valuable aid and assistance they and all my officers have given me during the year. Again, brethren, I thank you for your kindness to me from the first day I became a member of this lodge till the present time, and at any time I can be of service to Concord, I shall be most happy to serve her in any way my abilities will permit of, and I trust that the G.A.O.T.U. may grant her that prosperity which it has been my good fortune to enjoy during the past few years. The brethren then adjourned to the dining hall, where an exceedingly pleasant evening was spent. A band was in attendance, and its services added to the attractiveness of the meeting. The brethren having adjourned to the banquet, at which the proceedings will be given in our next.

ECCLIES.—Victoria Lodge (No. 1345).—The installation meeting of this lodge was celebrated on Wednesday, the 16th ult., at Bro. Pearson's, the Cross Keys Hotel, Eccles. Bro. W. Wright, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. C. Rudman, S.W., W.M. elect; G. S. Ballard, J.W.; J. Brooks, P.M.; T. Buxton, P.M., Treas.; J. Pearson, I.G.; J. C. Gillman, P.M., P.G.S.D.; J. Mountain, P.M.; W. Leader, P.M., P.G.J.D.; E. H. Downs, P.M.; J. Barker, P.M., Sec.; T. Lee, P.M.; Jos. Dulson, E. Sullivan, W. Pendlebury, W. Steele, J. Harper, A. Pendlebury, F. Wilson, J. K. Ashton, R. Foster, T. B. Howarth, T. Hill, H. Ainsworth, T. H. Calderbank, A. Goering, J. C. Mather, E. J. Collins, T. Ridyard, E. Taylor, E. Wolfgang, R. Miller, Tyler, and a large body of visitors, amongst whom were I. W. Carr, W.M., and H. T. Jones, 1496; H. Barton, 1375; R. H. Coppell, 314; W. Brown, jun., 325; H. Johnson, 935; W. Smith, 322; E. B. Harding, P.M. 1496; T. Bidolph, P.M. 1009; F. A. Winder, 37; Jas. Andrew, 1213; D. Butterworth, 1055; and James Bent, 277. The lodge was opened at four o'clock, and the reading and the confirmation of the minutes having taken place, the next principal business of the day was the installation of Bro. C. Rudman, W.M. elect, into the chair as Master of the lodge. The usual preliminaries having been gone through, and all the brethren below the chair having retired, a board of installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Rudman was installed into the chair as W.M. for the ensuing year. The brethren having been admitted, the new W.N. received the customary salutes, after which he appointed his officers as follows:—E. Lowndes, S.W.; J. Harper, J.W.; T. Buxton, P.M., Treas.; J. Barker, P.M., Hon. Sec.; W. Steele, S.D.; H. Ainsworth, J.D.; J. Pearson, I.G.; J. Mountain, P.M., D.C.; and R. Miller, Tyler. Bro. W. Wright, I.P.M., assisted by Bros. J. Mountain and Brooks, P.M., then delivered the usual addresses in a most impressive manner, and indeed the whole of the installation ceremony was rendered in such an admirable style that he well earned the applause with which the conclusion of his labours was rewarded. The W.M. then said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to present Bro. W. Wright, I.P.M., with a jewel which had been voted to him by the brethren as a small tribute of respect and esteem. Bro. Wright thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said he should always look upon it with pleasure, as a token of the esteem entertained for him by Victoria Lodge. Copies of the report of the audit committee were then handed round, which showed the financial position of the lodge to be in a very flourishing condition. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren, about 60 in number, sat down to a magnificent banquet, which was varied and bountiful, and gave complete satisfaction. On the withdrawal of the cloths, the W.M. gave, in succession, "The Queen," "H.R.H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of Masons of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family;" "The M.W. Pro. G.M. of Masons of England, the Earl of Carnarvon;" "The R.W.D.G.M. of Masons of England, and R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers;" "The W.D.P.G.M. of Masons of West Lancashire, the Hon. F. Stanley, and the rest of the P.G. Officers Past and Present." Bros. J. G. Gillman, P.M., and J. Barker, P.M., responded to the last toast. Bro. W. Wright, I.P.M., next proposed "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Charles Rudman," who suitably acknowledged the compliment. Bro. T. Buxton, P.M., proposed "The Masonic Charities," to which Bro. Gillman responded. The W.M. proposed the "Immediate Past Master," which was feelingly acknowledged by Bro. Wright. P.M. proposed "The Visiting Brethren," responded to by Bros. Carr and Bowker. Bro. A. Goering, in the course of an excellent speech, proposed "The Newly-Invested Officers." Bro. Lowndes, S.W., and Bro. Pearson, I.G., responded. The W.M. next proposed "The Healths of Bros. T. Buxton, P.M., and J. Barker, P.M., the Founders of the Victoria Lodge," which compliment was graciously acknowledged. The various toasts were drunk with Masonic enthusiasm.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, on Thursday, the 17th ult. Present: Bros. C. Hopwood, P.M. 141, W.M.; W. Hammond, P.M. Jordan, Lebanon, P.J.G.D. of Middlesex, &c., I.P.M., and acting Sec.; Raw, P.M., Treas., acting S.W.; Hurst, J.W.; Walls, acting S.D.; Fox, J.D.; Jessett, I.G.; Ockenden, D.C. The minutes of the January meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bros. Tagg and Moody to the M.M. Degree. The ballot was then taken on behalf of Bro. Barret, 1503, and declared by the W.M. unanimous. Several propositions for initiation at the next meeting were handed in, and notice given that the R.W. Col. F. Burdett, G.M. of the Province, had signified his intention of being present at the March meeting. The acting Secretary also said that in his communication the P.G.M. had stated that a family affliction would prevent him from being present that evening (Thursday, the 17th ult.), although he should very much have liked to have visited the lodge. The lodge was then formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent supper. Upon the removal of the cloths the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," in which he expressed how gratifying it must have been to every loyal Freemason to see the manner in which Her Majesty was received on her progress to and from Westminster to open Parliament. Those who had an opportunity of viewing the procession and the dense masses of people lining the route witnessed a grand sight, and he hoped that the Queen this year would be again seen in the metropolis discharging those duties which had in former and happier times been so well carried out by her as to excite the envy of foreign Courts. This toast was most warmly received. "The Health of the M.W.G.M." followed and was duly honoured. In proposing the toast of "The Deputy and Pro Grand Masters, Lords Carnarvon and Skelmersdale, and the rest of the G.O.'s Past and Present," the W.M. dealt upon the eminent services those noblemen and gentlemen constituting the G.L. executive rendered to Freemasonry. "The Health of the R.W. Bro. Colonel Burdett, G.M. of the Province," followed and was heartily drunk. In giving the toast of "The rest of the Grand Officers of Middlesex, Past and Present," the W.M. expressed how pleased he felt that he had had on his left hand during his year of office so distinguished a member of the Provincial Grand Lodge as Bro. W. Hammond, the I.P.M., and he was sure that in coupling that brother's name with the toast he was only giving honour where honour was due. In reply, Bro. Hammond said he hoped he might be pardoned by the brethren for alluding to the toast of the R.W. the G.M. of the Province before responding on behalf of the G.O.'s Past and Present, but, although at the risk of being thought presumptuous, he felt that he ought to say something of his personal knowledge of Bro. Colonel Burdett in the absence of the properly qualified brother to return thanks for the P.G.M., viz., the D.G.M. He could say that their Grand Master kept a fatherly eye upon the working and management of every lodge in his province, and he believed that he made himself acquainted with their most minute details. The I.P.M. then went on to speak of the very many valuable qualities that the P.G.M. possessed, and he hoped that the Hemming Lodge would have an opportunity at their next meeting to welcome the gallant colonel in person. The concluding part of his speech was devoted to returning thanks on behalf of the other Grand Officers of the province. "The Health of the W.M." was then warmly proposed by Bro. Hammond, in which he spoke of the good qualities, geniality of character, and energy, fire, and pluck of Bro. Hopwood. This toast having been duly honoured, the W.M. briefly replied by stating that he had endeavoured to do his best, and no one could do more than that, and if the members of the lodge were satisfied with him that their thanks at the conclusion of his year of office would amply repay him for whatever trouble he had taken to enhance the prosperity of the lodge and to discharge the duties of Master. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. said he always felt pleased to see members of other lodges, both in the lodge and at the council board, as he believed that great good resulted therefrom. Bros. Tench (Zetland) and H. Jones (Lebanon) neatly replied, in which they stated that as very young Masons they could not be expected to say very much, but they wished the brethren of the Hemming Lodge to know that they were highly gratified with the "working" and with the whole proceedings that evening, which had excited in them very pleasurable feelings. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the I.P.M.," who had that particular evening, in the dual capacity of Past Master and Secretary, rendered him very valuable assistance, and although his abilities were well known to all, yet he must say that whatever duty Bro. W. Hammond undertook he discharged it well. The I.P.M., in reply, modestly touched upon the kind encomiums passed by the W.M. upon his poor services to the lodge. He then went on to state that at the request of several members of the large Lebanon Lodge he had succeeded, with the valuable assistance of others, in obtaining a warrant for the Hemming Lodge, which was established as an offshoot from the other in order to enable the members and others desirous of obtaining office in the Craft to get on sooner. They were accordingly severed from its large trunk, and although they did not wish to aspire to become as numerous as the "Lebanon," yet he was sure that in time they would bear in all other respects a very favourable comparison. In conclusion he predicted a very prosperous career for the Hemming Lodge, as he said it possessed many good working members who were desirous of obtaining that honourable goal, the chair of K.S., and who would spare no trouble, he thought, and punctual attention to the requirements of the lodge in the prosecution of their laudable ambition. "The Health of the Treasurer, Secretary, and other Officers of the Lodge" followed, and was responded to by Brothers Hurst, J.W.; Jessett, I.G., and Ockenden, D.C. The former stated that he had endeavoured, and would endeavour, to fulfil his duties satisfactorily, and although he might be possibly called upon very soon, and before he was quite prepared to discharge its responsibilities, to take the very highest position in the lodge, yet he hoped by perseverance, and with the valuable assistance of the P.M.'s and other able brethren of the lodge, to carry out the duties of the chair at least creditably. Bros. Jessett and Ockenden kindly thanked the brethren for the manner in which their names and the other officers of the lodge had been received, and the latter, who had been particularly complimented by the W.M. for the very handsome sum he as Steward of the lodge at the recent festival for the Aged Freemasons had sent in, took occasion to speak of the Masonic charities in a very able manner, and in concluding his remarks stated that when asked by non-members of the Craft, What was Freemasonry? What good did it do? and other queries equally disparaging, he simply referred them to Wood Green, Croydon, and Clapham Junction. "The Health of the Joining Member, Bro. Barret," was then given and drunk, and drew from that brother a very amusing reply. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. Watts," for the services he had rendered the lodge as an officer on that and former occasions in an acting capacity. This toast was duly honoured and briefly responded to. Between the toasts, &c., Bros. Hammond, Hurst, Jessett and Walls vocally and dramatically amused the brethren. The Tyler's toast at 11 o'clock terminated one of the most successful and enjoyable meetings of the lodge since its foundation.

INSTRUCTION.

MOUNT LEBANON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 73).—A dinner was given on Wednesday 16th ult., for the purpose of doing honour to the excellent Preceptor, Bro. J. Noke, P.M. 73. The arrangements were carried out by Bro. Plock to the entire satisfaction of the brethren. Bro. Wingham, P.M., presiding, supported by Bro. Hook. After a very excellent dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were disposed of, and the important proceedings of the evening commenced. The Chairman, in rising to propose "The Health of Bro. J. Noke," said: Bro. Noke you have been well-known in the Masonic world for nearly forty years, and the lustre of your Masonic honour has never been tarnished. For many years you have spent your strength and energies in imparting that knowledge to the brethren which you have so well mastered yourself, and which has lent lustre to many a Masonic chair. Now at the age of nearly eighty years we find you, (although engaged daily earning your bread truly by the sweat of your brow) actively engaged in imparting Masonic instruction in this and other lodges. We find you working so recently as a fortnight since in this place the Fifteen Sections. Three hours' questions without flagging at your age, Bro. Noke, is a feat worth recording. The brethren have met this evening to do you honour, and they present you with this beautifully illuminated testimonial, which is worded as follows:—"Mount Lebanon Lodge of Instruction, No. 73. This testimonial, together with a purse of money, as a mark of respect and esteem, was presented to Bro. Noke, P.M. 87, Preceptor, in appreciation of his unwearied exertions in the cause of Masonic instruction." I also in the name of the brethren present you with this purse, and may God grant you yet much health and strength, and may you never want a shilling to put into it. Bro. Noke, in returning thanks, was quite overcome; he thanked the brethren from his heart for the handsome mark of their favour, and trusted he might always retain the good esteem he had gained. He could only say, God bless them all. "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary" was then given, and responded to by Bro. Welsford, Treas., and Bro. Phillips, Sec. "The Health of the Chairman" was then proposed by Bro. Hook, and responded to by Bro. Wingham, P.M. The Chairman then proposed "The Health of Bro. Hook," and took occasion to say that it was to Bro. Hook we are principally indebted for this very pleasant evening. It was Bro. Hook who proposed the testimonial, had been the Treasurer of the fund, and had with his own hand engrossed the testimonial which had been presented. Bro. Hook, in responding, said, from beginning to end of this matter had been a labour of love; he was but a recent member of the lodge, but he had conceived a respect and regard for Bro. Noke, which he was sure was not misplaced. As a Lodge of Instruction he believed the Mount Lebanon Lodge second to none, and as an Instructor and Preceptor Bro. John Noke stood at the top of the tree. The testimonial was an easy matter when once begun, as the respect and esteem in which our Preceptor is held made subscribers of almost every brother he communicated with. The subscribers names numbering over forty are engrossed on the testimonial. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. Hayward, P.M.; Seex, P.M.; Sawyer Allesen, Miller, Allcott, Ball, Skegg, Runbold, Foster, Cheetham, Catterson, Brook, and others. The evening proceedings were enlivened by some songs and recitations, capably rendered by Bros. Hook Ball, Miller, and Allcott. At the close Bro. Hook said he would read an acrostic, which he had during the evening sketched out, which was as follows:

Just such an evening we have passed,
O ne could wish 'twould longer last,
Hours roll on and pleasures pass away;
N or can we in its flight one moment stay.
N ow let us part, with pleasure to reflect,
O n kindly deeds, not words, but deeds of love,
K nowing that while 'tis day our task is set,
E ach deed recorded in Grand Lodge above.

On the cloth being removed, the chairman gave the following toasts, which were heartily responded to:—"The Queen and the Craft," "The Prince of Wales and Members of the Royal Family," "The Three Grand Lodges," "The P. Grand Lodge of Glasgow." Bro. McKeechie gave "Freemasons over the world." Bro. T. Phillips replied in a very able manner. "Clydesdale Lodge" was proposed by Bro. W. Ferguson, I.P.M. 543, and the chairman, in reply, said: Bro. Ferguson, Croupiers, ladies, and brethren, it gives me very great pleasure indeed to thank you on behalf of the Clydesdale Lodge for the kind and hearty way in which you have proposed the prosperity of our lodge, and I can assure you on behalf of the office-bearers and members, especially those that are present, that it will stimulate us to greater exertions in the future than what we have ever done in the past. It is now one year and nine months since we received our authority from the Grand Lodge, and I now make bold to say that there never was a lodge started on the same footing as the Clydesdale (556)—that without one of its promoters being monied men—but what we gave seems to have been like the widow's mite, and although our beginnings were small, we gradually went on from one degree of strength and prosperity to another. We have at the present moment the unprecedented number on our roll of 130 members—(applause)—and not only have we been very successful in this respect, but, brethren, 12 months ago, when presiding over the first annual festival of our lodge, expressed the hope that our next would be held in our own premises, and I am sure it must be a source of gratification to all the members to know that we are now in the position of sitting under our own vine and fig tree, none daring to make us afraid. (Applause.) This consummation, brethren, of my hopes was not brought about without a great deal of time, trouble and expense, and before the lodge could be held in this place it had contracted a debt of £140, but, nothing daunted, we persevered, and at this moment we are on the eve of wiping off every penny of that debt. It is, therefore, my hope and wish that we will sail onwards in smooth waters, so that with a long pull, and a strong pull, and a pull altogether, at the end of next year we may look back and say with pleasure, that the past year was one of continued prosperity. And now brethren, in a word, let us be true to ourselves, let us live up to and do justice to our principles. Let us embody Masonic principles in Masonic conduct, and we will successfully refute the calumnies of our enemies if any such there be; let us but exemplify our professions in our daily walk and conversation, and we fear not that we shall vindicate for our lodge and ourselves a position and a name in the estimation of all right-thinking men and Masons, and thereby our mysteries shall be handed down in all the integrity in which we have received them from those who have gone before us, to our children and our children's children, to the latest generations of those to come, and in the words of the poet.

Men, my brothers, men, the workers, ever reaping some thing new.

That while ye have done but earnest, of the things that ye shall do.

"The Ladies" was proposed in fitting terms by Bro. J. Boyle, S.M., and replied to by Bro. Howie. "The Press" proposed by Bro. Middleton, and replied to by Bro. Ferguson ("Freemason"). "The Chairman" by Bro. McCulloch; Bro. Phillips replied. "The Croupiers" by Bro. Reid, replied to by Bro. T. Phillips. Bros. Campbell, McCulloch, Malcolm, and Webster added very much to the evening's enjoyment by singing some excellent songs, assisted by two ladies of the company. After the last toast the brethren adjourned for a short time until the hall was cleared, when an assembly followed.

Radcliffe, P.M., Hon. Treas.; and Bro. E. A. Lees, Hon. Sec. The theatre was crowded each evening by delighted audiences. By the kind permission of Bro. Duval, the performances commenced each evening with the popular farce, "The Two Polts," in which Bro. H. Jackson, W.M. 1393, West Lancashire, especially distinguished himself as Colonel Bumpus; Bro. McCarthy, S.W. 1393, as Jack Bumpus; and Bros. E. A. Lees and R. Foulkes as the two Polts. The principal feature of the programme was the performance of "Macbeth," in which Bro. W.M. Asher played the hero with great force and earnestness. Bro. H. Jackson represented Macduff with artistic intelligence and power, and Bro. McCarthy performed Banquo with remarkably good effect. A special word of praise is due to Bro. A. C. Wylie for his careful acting as Lennox. The assistant ladies were from the theatre company, and Miss Constance Young received well-earned applause by her reading of the part of Lady Macbeth. Amongst the other aspirants worthy of notice were Bros. T. Dixon (Duncan); Bro. R. Foulkes, Miss Rodgers, Bro. W. H. Roberts, and others. Incidental to the piece, Locke's celebrated music to "Macbeth" was sung by a chorus of 40 voices, carefully selected from the Birkenhead Cambrian Choral Society. The performance passed off most successfully on both occasions.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The diseases common to winter, and endangering man's physical condition, will always exist, though many may be mitigated, and their effects removed, by timely and appropriately applied at the beginning of spring. Holloway's Pills are acknowledged, far and wide, to be the most effective purifiers of the blood, the most certain regulators of disordered organs, and the most innocent aperient that can be prescribed. This medicine is applicable to all alike—young or old, robust or delicate. It increases the appetite and controls all derangements of the bowels. After the disorder is subdued, occasional doses of these Pills will prevent any relapse, and, moreover, secure, promote, and intensify the good results which flow from perfect purity and regularity. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.V., will be present as the guest of the convocation, and will be received under the Arch of Steel at 5 o'clock, all knights should therefore be in their places before that time. Banquet at 6.30. punctually.

At a meeting of the Webb Testimonial Fund, at Trowbridge, a letter was read from Bro. Captain Webb, expressing his desire that the sum collected might be paid over to his father for his own benefit, as no possible application of the money in question could be so acceptable to him as that would be. It has been resolved that the fund—amounting to £521—should be disposed of according to Bro. Webb's wishes.

THE LATE DR. GAUNTLETT.—A committee has now been formed with the object of raising a fund for the widow and family of this eminent musician, who died suddenly from heart disease on February 21st. Mount have already joined the committee. C. L. Grunisen, Esq., of the Junior Carlton Club, is the Hon. Treasurer; W. C. A. Blew, Esq., of 16, Warwick-street, Pall Mall East, is the Hon. Secretary. Donations may be sent to either of these gentlemen, or the London and Westminster Bank, St. James's-square, to the account of "The Gauntlett Fund."

On Monday last His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, M.W.G.M. (Ireland), distributed the prizes to the successful students in the Royal Dublin Society School of Art. The Duke of Leinster was also present.

The Masons' Hall Tavern has been sold by Messrs. Cronin to Mr. W. R. Bell (late of Long-acre).

THE QUEEN'S VISIT TO GERMANY.—According to the latest announcement, Her Majesty is expected to leave England for the Continent on the 25th of March. The Queen will proceed direct to Baden-Baden, and after her visit to Germany will return to Windsor to meet the Prince of Wales. The forthcoming season is likely to be marked by a number of courtly festivities incidental to the return of His Royal Highness from his Indian tour, and which are expected to be held soon after the conclusion of the Queen's visit to Germany.

Bro. J. D. Allcroft presided at the Anniversary Festival of the London Orphan Asylum, on Monday last, at the Albion Tavern. During the dinner somewhat of a novelty was noticed in the introduction of instrumental music by the girls of the school. The effect was not only pleasant in itself, but had the result of directing the attention of the guests to the excellent education afforded to the pupils. The boys sang grace and part songs, which seemed to be equally well appreciated as the performance of the girls. In proposing the toast of the evening, "The Prosperity of the London Orphan Asylum," the Chairman made a strong appeal on behalf of the charity, the object of which was to clothe, maintain, and educate respectable fatherless children of either sex left without adequate means of support and wherever resident. Children were eligible between the ages of 7 and 11, and were usually retained till the completion of their 15th year. Since its commencement 3,955 orphans had been benefited, and there were at present 209 girls and 353 boys on the establishment, which, as was generally known, occupied a fine position at Watford. The cost of each child in maintenance, clothing, and education was not above £32. The subscriptions, which included a donation of £100 from the Chairman, and £20 from Mrs. Allcroft, amounted on the whole to £3,213.

Bro. Sir G. Greenall, M.P., was entertained on Tuesday night at a banquet, and presented with an address by the Corporation of Warrington, on his elevation to a baronetcy. The Mayor in proposing "The Health of Sir Gilbert," said Warrington generally rejoiced at the honour which had been shown to a fellow townsman, who, in his public capacity, had known no party and who had so well supported the local institutions of the town. Sir Gilbert Greenall, in returning thanks, said, while appreciating highly the distinction Her Most Gracious Majesty had conferred upon him, he valued above everything the good will of his fellow townsmen, which he rejoiced to know he possessed. He would ever remember with kindness the address which had been presented to him. "The Health of Lady Greenall" and other toasts followed.

The well-known medical maxim that food for children and invalids should be administered in accordance with the laconic direction, "little and often," though undoubtedly sound in itself, has the disadvantage of adding considerably to the labour of parents and nurses, and in the old days of rush-lights it is small wonder if the helpless ones often had to take their nocturnal nourishment as cold as ice, greatly to the detriment of their digestive organs. Modern ingenuity has, however, got rid of most of the difficulties formerly existing on this score, though it must be admitted that many of the new nursery arrangements have drawbacks of their own, especially in the danger of fire, arising from the use of spirit lamps, even by the most careful of persons, and by the flickering of ordinary night lights in the hands of the careless. Mr. Samuel Clarke, of 110, Albany-street, the patentee of the well-known Pyramid Night Lights, lights and food warmers, has, however, entirely overcome this danger, as the glass shades, which are an important feature, and addition to the lights, not only ensures a steady flame and good light, but renders all contact with bed-curtains or other external objects absolutely impossible, while at the same time, when the light is applied to the food warmer, the food in the porcelain panikin is kept always properly heated and ready for use. The many excellences of these inventions have been fully recognised by the jurors of the International Exhibitions of London, Paris, and Moscow, at all of which places they received first prize medals, while among those who have practically tested and approved of them may be mentioned the Queen and the Empress of Russia. These lights, like most really good things, are made in the simplest manner, having a stone base of their own, down to which they burn when in use for nine hours, and are sold all over the country at the rate of one penny each, in boxes of eight, and as so much depends upon their being used within a reasonable time after being made, the patentee invariably desires that the trade may regulate their stocks from time to time. This is certainly a very considerate feature in the manner of business adopted by Mr. Clarke, and though it may have given him additional labour, we can but think that in the long run it has materially affected and increased his business; so much so, that we bear he is unable to keep pace with the demand at the factory in Albany-street, and has, accordingly, gone to the working district of Bermondsey and established a factory there.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER INDIA.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is still, we believe, in Nepal, and will soon be moving homewards. He was re-elected, as our readers will gladly see, Grand Master for the ensuing year, amid much cheering on Wednesday night.

THE INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD AS PROV. G. MASTER OF OXFORDSHIRE.

The account of this very interesting event will have deep interest for our entire Order. Everything seems to have gone off, to use a common expression, most admirably, without a hitch, or jarring note, and to have reflected the greatest credit on those who had the arrangement of the proceedings from first to last. H.R.H. Prince Leopold was warmly welcomed by the proverbial loyalty and zeal of Oxford Freemasons, and we augur, alike from his own simple and effective words, and the pleasant proceedings of the entire day, much of future prosperity for the Province of Oxfordshire. H.R.H. is now W.M. of two of our most distinguished lodges, the Apollo University and the Antiquity, and we congratulate both lodges warmly on the circumstance, as we feel sure of this, that anything which leads to and perpetuates a living connection with our Royal Family and Freemasonry is deeply to be desiderated, and earnestly to be encouraged. While in some lands Freemasonry is exposed just now to anathema and slander, here in peaceful loyal England, we may say Great Britain, those who would have any cause and reason, a priori, to stem a disloyal and political sodality, come forward and proclaim their brotherhood, knowing well as they do, and as our august Head has so well said, that loyalty and charity ever have been, and ever will be, watchwords for our great Masonic army. We are glad to note that the interesting proceedings of the installation under the always genial auspices of our admirable D.G. Master, and in the presence of some of the most distinguished of our Craft, were very fitly closed by a presentation to an old and worthy Freemason, Bro. R. J. Spiers, late D.G.M. of Oxfordshire. We congratulate Bro. Spiers warmly alike on the occasion, and the result, long to be remembered by him, and all who took part in it, and we think that such an act of kindly fraternal feeling reflects great credit on the donors and on Bro. Spiers. Our Royal brother performed his part in this little episode, as he did throughout with all of dignity, urbanity, and personal sympathy, and we feel sure that into no better hands could the rule of so distinguished a province as Oxfordshire have been more wisely or seasonably committed. We congratulate our brethren in Oxford and the Province on the most successful issue of those memorable proceedings to which we alluded in our last impression. We trust, as we feel assured, that no better day's work for English Freemasonry has been done for a very long time, and one equally important and promising for the future as the present. All Freemasons will rejoice at this happy tendency to bind still closer the amicable relations and friendly intercourse which ever has existed, and we pray ever may exist between the House of Brunswick and Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry.

THE "PENNY POST" AND FREEMASONRY.

Our respected contemporary, the "Penny Post" a very useful and valuable Church of England Juvenile Periodical, has thought well to state its objections to our Order. "Our objection to the organization lies in the fact that the Freemasons set up a bond of union independent of, and superior to that of baptism. When heathens and Christians combine the latter must lose cast by the combination." Now begging our good contemporary's pardon, the opinion here expressed is both unfounded, and not a little absurd. Freemasonry sets up no bond of union independent of, and superior to that of Baptism. Freemasonry is in no sense a Church, and imposes no terms of union on its initiates, it accepts all within its pale, except the atheist and immoral, without any question of individual belief, or of personal persuasion. No one need become a Freemason, and as it is a perfectly voluntary act on the part of the initiate, we do not see that it can fairly be alleged against Freemasonry, that in any way it imposes a test, or sets up a bond of union. That Freemasonry constitutes a bond of union by its organization, its teaching, and its normal active life, is a very different thing, but such "bond of union" is not set up against "baptism," nor is it meant to be a rallying point against any religious body whatever. In fact, the objection of the "Penny Post" is Mr. Kerr's objection over again, that Freemasonry "forms a spurious bond of union, differing from that of the Church." It is odd, as has been before observed, to find the high church "Penny Post," and good presbyterian Mr. Kerr reformed, though he be, rowing in the same boat, but such is in itself an amusing commentary on the open opposition, and the latent hostility towards Freemasonry. As has been said, the Church, (whatever you like to call the Church, for the "Penny Post" would call one, Mr. Kerr the other) has not, quâ the Church, anything to do with Freemasonry, neither has Freemasonry quâ Freemasonry anything to do with the Church. Freemasonry is altogether external to the church, and a most mistaken policy it is which ever brings any religious body, much less the Church of England, so tolerant per se, into collision with a reverent, loyal, peaceful, friendly, cultured Order like ours. For Freemasonry is in no way antagonistic to, or a rival of the Church, even what the writer in the "Penny Post" considers the Church, and it never in any way seeks to usurp its undoubted functions, or affects to lay down either dogmata of faith, or limits of individual thought. While friendly to all religious bodies, it is hostile to none, but owing to its own broad basis, it sometimes seems to impinge on this or that ardent denominational view, though as we believe, altogether erroneously on the part of our assailants and objectors. As regards Christians losing caste by combining with heathens, we do not know what the writer means, as he clearly, as Mr. Gladstone would say, is attaching an undue force to some words, and an uncritical meaning to others. There is no caste in Christianity, and how, because we Freemasons, if we act together for works of common humanitarian necessity, and seek to do good, we lose caste, is beyond one's comprehension altogether. What the writer means to say, we fancy, is this, that if Christians and heathens combine for any purpose it becomes "infra dig" for Christians to do so. But is this true? is it really so? We do not see it, and we do not believe it, and not seeing it, and not believing it, especially in a country like India, for instance, we beg to say, that this possible combination constitutes in our humble opinion, a great element of the truth and work of Freemasonry, to say nothing of its success. Has the writer duly studied the parable of the Good Samaritan? That as we understand it, teaches a kindlier lore. But the truth is, all such objections are really based on the teaching of an ultramontane school of thought and action, and are alien from thorough English spirit and tendencies. We leave them here to day, as perfectly unfounded and innocuous to us, and we should not have noticed them at all, but for the great respectability of the source from which they emanate. The "Penny Post" is a capital little periodical, doing a deal of good in its own way, but it should not write upon Freemasonry.

THE RELIGIOUS TEACHING OF FREEMASONRY.

There seems to be a good deal of misconception existing as regards the religious teaching of Freemasonry. Some brethren seem to look on our wonted formularies, our exoteric symbolism and esoteric lore as a skilfully designed adaptation to a special form of deistical teaching and avowal. Nothing can be more erroneous, no view can be more thoroughly unreal. Freemasonry nowhere affects to claim the character of a religious "Didaskalos," Freemasonry nowhere assumes the status of a "Religio." It favours no theories, it asserts no dogmata, it leans to no party, it declines all conflicts of thought and of opinion. Some have called it deistical; it is not so. Some have declared it to be pantheistic; it is nothing of the kind. Some contend abroad that it is too religious, others declare openly that it is opposed to all religion. Some have even boldly asserted that Freemasonry is antagonistic to the Christian Church because it will not identify itself distinctly, with any religious denomination, though it is friendly to all, and because it ignores all theological discussions. Every one of these statements is equally mistaken and mischievous. For Freemasonry knows nothing "per se" of such controversies or such contentions, it prefers to ignore them altogether, to pass by them, believing that nothing has so much hindered the advance of true religion in the world, as many of the disputes of religionists themselves, and that nothing is so hurtful or so unworthy, so hostile to the best interests of society and of humanity, nay, religion, as that

"odium theologicum" which is ever seeing the mote in its brother's eye, but forgetting the beam in its own! The theory of some German writers that the Masonic revival in 1717 in this country was a sort of expression of deistical feeling and tendency is utterly un-historical and unfounded, and can only be laughed at by English Freemasons. For in the last century undoubtedly much of the teaching of our lodges and of our "Aporreta" was distinctly Christian. Though there was a universal teaching always no doubt, contemporaneous and synchronical, yet every honest student of Masonic archaeology must confess that the general bearing of the formal English Masonic ritualism of the last century was more or less actually Christian, alike in verbiage and in tone. Gradually, however, the utterances of English Freemasonry became more universal, and since 1813 such a colouring of all our formal enunciations and ceremonial language has all but universally prevailed. There is nothing, indeed, to prevent a Chaplain using a Christian prayer, if he so desires, and the brethren are willing, but the practical good sense of most of our excellent reverend brethren has long since overcome the apparent but meaningless so-called theological difficulty. Indeed, in Scotland, and in Ireland, Christian prayers are still in use. But such a state of things is very different from the accusation that Freemasonry skilfully adapts itself to various religions, Christian and non-Christian. It does nothing of the kind, for if it did so it would lay itself open to the charge, under the guise of unlimited toleration, of indifference and negativism. On the contrary, Freemasonry asserts with no uncertain voice, always consistently and calmly, the great belief in the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of man. It seems to say, "I am not a Church laying down dogmata of faith, or articles of peace or catechisms of doctrinal truth, but I am a religious and benevolent sodality based on the broad principles of humanitarian sympathy and toleration, but requiring that all who join my association, avoiding all other questions, shall be believers in God Most High, no atheists, and no libertines!" This is the first declaration of Freemasonry, which receives all who believe and worship the Great Creator and Father of mankind, though such a declaration goes too far for some, and not far enough for others, and, therefore, is by some foolishly termed anti-Christian, which it is not, and never can be. All that any one can fairly say, is that it is Theistic, and Freemasonry is avowedly so, though it does not interfere ever with the creed or conscience of any one. But Freemasonry does not stop here. It next points out to us, the revealed Word of God, and demands for its reverence, our belief, and our obedience! And not only this, but it also affirms, that this life is not all for man, that this world is but the passage to another and a better, and that after this perishable frame has been committed to its mother land, earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, and has long since crumbled away, it is yet to rise again one day, from the grave and gate of death, immortal and imperishable, perfected and perpetual, victorious over the King of Terrors, and no more exposed to weakness, to decay, to death. Such is the unceasing teaching of Freemasonry, founded too on the Word of God, which is to all Freemasons the unerring standard of right and wrong, and by its divine principles, as well as by its holy hopes, Freemasons are to regulate their actions, and elevate their lives. Freemasonry commends to its alumni in addition, the practice of every moral and every social virtue, and inculcates powerfully alike toleration and charity, active benevolence, and genuine interest not only for our brethren in the world, but for all men. Who then can say that Freemasonry is not religious? That it admits non-Christians is true, and in the way most binding on their consciences, but in every Anglo-Saxon lodge, the Bible still is one of the three great lights of Masonry, and there it remains open, for all students, and endures, an unerring evidence of the religious and reverential character of Freemasonry. Don't let us, then, confound things essentially distinct. Freemasonry is a religious as well as a reasonable body, it is theistic as well as tolerant, it respects the consciences of all men, it never lets go and never will let go its owning and invocation at every meeting of its wide-spread lodges, of the Great Architect of the Universe, of the Great Benefactor, Preserver, and Ruler of the human race, God Eternal and Most High!

THE LATE BRO. W. FARNFIELD.

The Craft will be very sorry to hear of the demise of our worthy and lamented Bro. W. Farnfield, so long known in the Grand Secretary's office, and as Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. His kindness and urbanity, familiar face and many good qualities, will long preserve his pleasant memory fresh and green amongst the brethren of our Order.

BRO. HARTY'S PICTURE OF THE INSTALLATION.

We published in our last number a long list of subscribers to this spirited undertaking, which appears to be securing a large amount of merited support from the Craft. We understand that the engraving is proceeding most satisfactorily, and promises to be a great success. There is still room it appears for about 150 portraits of brethren, and Bro. Hartly will be obliged to all intending sitters to call at once at the Photographic Studio, 213, Regent-street, where Bro. E. M. Haigh will take their photograph. We understand that H.R.H. Prince Leopold, P.G.M. for Oxfordshire, has expressed his high approval of the proposed picture, and has become one of its patrons. We call attention in another column to a most interesting letter from our worthy P.G. Chaplain, Bro. R. P. Bent, with reference to the engraving. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, also honoured Bro. Haigh with sittings in his clothing as Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire, on Saturday last. The paragraph in the "Daily News" of the 28th is incorrect, H.R.H. Prince Leopold was not present at the installation, it was his brother H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. H.R.H. Prince Leopold did not sit to Bro. Hartly for the installation picture, and the brethren mentioned were not in attendance on H.R.H. the Prince.

THE WILSON M.S. CONSTITUTIONS.

The following account of the Wilson M.S. by the owner is most interesting.

"You asked me for any 'indicia,' respecting MS. Phillips 6351, now being copied.

I have asked an antiquary friend, and he says it is decidedly not temp. Hen. 8th, but that, as it is very carefully written on vellum, not a court hand, or one used by the officers of the law court. It is, no doubt, an old copy of one then existing. He thinks the M.S. we have, is early in the 17th century, and he tells us it is written in the law hand of the period, that is the "engrossing" hand of the period. The copy will be ready for you the end of next week.

You will see then our several blanks, evidence I think of its having been copied from an older MS., which no doubt in the places left blank was illegible.

In Sir Thomas Phillips's catalogue it is called "Book of Constitutions (of Freemasonry), for Mr. Richard Ban (our) the 'our' being in italics, as if it was doubtful, perhaps could not be read, 'royal oct. fol. S. 19.'

That is all I can tell you about it."

The writer of this letter is the Rev. J. E. A. Fenwick, Tairlestane House, Cheltenham, in whose possession all the MS. collection of his father-in-law remains under trust. It is but proper to observe, that though Mr. Fenwick is full of kindness, a payment for the "privilegium" of seeing the MS. has to be required, and Mr. Fenwick has kindly made an exception in my case, and allowed me to have not only a complete copy of his MS., but to publish it in the "Masonic Magazine."

I hope to give, under "Masonic Notes and Queries," the heading and close of the MS. next week, and to publish it in extenso in the April number of the Magazine. I have always kept it in mind, and hunted for it everywhere, and a short time back it occurred to me to ascertain through Bro. S. B. Ellis if there was any foundation for the statement in Preston. Finding that there was, Bro. E. B. Ellis having applied to Bro. Nixon, who knew Mr. Rimington Wilson, now at Broomhead, and that the Wilson MSS. had been bought by Sir Thomas Phillips, I then applied to J. O. Halliwell, Esq., the editor of the "Masonic Poem," now J. O. Phillips, Esq., who told me that all Sir T. Phillips's MSS. were in the possession of my friend Mr. Fenwick.

Hence the happy result of a Masonic search after this long wanted MS. I hope that we may yet find others, such as the original of Dowland's MS., which, Stephen Jones says, was a long roll of parchment.

I have now the transcript MS. in my possession.

BRO. HARTY'S PICTURE OF THE INSTALLATION.
[The following letter has been addressed to Bro. Hartly for publication.]

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

In sending you the address of a new subscriber to your picture of the installation (another Swedish brother of high standing, who is Secretary of the Craft Lodge in this city, and an office-bearer in the higher degrees) I must congratulate you on the interest taken in the picture by the Freemasons of Sweden. This interest is clearly shown by the orders given for copies of it by the King, and some of those who, under the Grand Mastership of His Majesty, hold the highest Masonic offices in this country. I hope that no delay will occur in the issue of the picture, that the anxiety with which its arrival here is expected may not suffer any disappointment.

It cannot, of course, be wondered at that the Swedish brethren were deeply interested in the installation itself, and that they will, therefore, welcome your delineation of that most successful ceremony. Their interest arises from the fact that the Prince of Wales was not only initiated in Stockholm by the late King, but was also rapidly advanced there to the higher degrees, so that after his visit to Sweden he returned to England fully qualified for the high position he now so worthily fills; and from the further fact that at the installation of H.R.H. the Grand Lodge of Sweden was represented by five of its most distinguished members, the portraits of all of whom will (I believe) be found in your picture. Pardon me if I mention one more point of interest to the Swedes in this matter. The Senior Grand Chaplain was at the time residing among them, and had to go over to England for the express purpose of officiating on the occasion; and when they see his portrait, also in your picture, they will recognise it as that of one who is now a Swedish as well as an English Mason. Perhaps I should explain that after being very cordially received by the brethren as a visitor on my first coming to Gotheburg—I have been more than once saluted as a Grand Officer of England—I was invited to become a joining member of the St. Andrew's Lodge, or the Lodge of Scotch Masters, which is their 6th Degree. Application was then made to the King for his sanction to my taking the 7th and 8th Degrees without loss of time, and by a dispensation from His Majesty I received the 8th Degree a fortnight after receiving the 7th, whereas it is in most cases a matter of years rather than weeks. I consider this to have been intended more as a compliment to the Grand Lodge of England than to myself personally. The 8th Degree corresponds to the English "Knight Templar." I am now a Priest, or Chaplain of that Order, and as such I had the privilege on Saturday last of assisting at an imposing ceremony of no less than nineteen admissions, in the presence of a large and influential body of Knights. Freemasonry, in all its branches, is indeed a flourishing and most popular institution in this country. I could expatiate largely on its admirable working, &c., but I must not forget that I began to write about your picture in particular, and not about the whole subject in general. I will, therefore, only beg you to make what use you please of this letter, and remain,

Yours very truly and fraternally,

R. P. BENT, P.G.C.

Gothenburg, Feb. 21st, 1876.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE IN NEW ZEALAND.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Knowing how ready you are at all times to give publicity to the progress of the Craft, I hasten to lay before you an account of the consecration (and installation of officers) of the Canterbury Kilwinning Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, being the second lodge under the Scotch constitution established in the Province of Canterbury.

The brethren living in Lyttelton having after due deliberation determined to apply to the R.W. the P.G. Lodge of New Zealand, S.C., for a dispensation, sent in their application, which, after receiving proper consideration and investigation, was granted. Bro. F. W. Thiel, Esq., of St. Andrew's Lodge, Dunedin, S.C., No. 432 (Bro. Thiel is also P.D.D.G.M. of E.C. in Canterbury), was deputed by the Provincial Grand Master to consecrate the lodge and install the officers thereof.

Bro. Thiel, being a most earnest and zealous Mason, went into the matter with all his heart, and being most ably assisted by his subordinate officers—a list of whose names I send you—the result was a grand success.

The lodge was opened at 5.20 p.m. in due form, and after the consecration of lodge and the installing of the R. W.M., Bro. Alex. Taylor, and his officers, five candidates were introduced (Messrs. Angus, Allwright, James Grubb, John Grubb, and Robt. Findlay), and were duly initiated into Freemasonry, Bro. Thiel and his officers also performing the ceremony.

Five gentlemen were then proposed as candidates, and the lodge was closed in accordance with ancient custom. The brethren adjourned to Bro. Buruip's (the lodge room being too small to properly accommodate the brethren).

He having provided a most magnificent banquet, about fifty brethren sat down, and, after discussing the goop things provided and duly honouring the usual toasts, separated at 11.30 p.m. highly pleased with the proceedings of the day, and wishing every prosperity to the Canterbury Kilwinning.

I must mention that Bro. Wm. Donald, Esq., the R.W. the District Grand Master of Canterbury, E.C., was present during the whole of the proceedings, and showed by his truly Masonic and jovial manner that we are all brethren, no matter under what constitution we work. May he (the R.W. the D.G.M. of Canterbury, E.C.) live long to be an ornament to the Craft and a pattern to all Free and Accepted Masons.

I remain, yours fraternally,

I. P. P.,
Hon. Sec. of Canterbury Kilwinning.

AN AMERICAN INSTALLATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I occasionally see a "back number" of your journal from the R.W.M. of a lodge in your city, and lately observed in the issue of 27th March, 1875, an article entitled "Our Lodge Meetings." With reference to the interesting and instructive suggestions therein, I hasten to send by this post the programme of an entertainment given by Montgomery Lodge, No. 69, on the 23rd December last, and call your particular attention to the invitation at foot "Our guests are all invited to the centennial in 1925." At the installation ceremonies ladies were present, and listened with much delight to a very humorous description of the mysteries of our Craft by the R.W.M.

With you, I believe that the presence of the fair sex would not only add to the pleasure of Masonic social gathering, but strengthen the lodges in every way.

I am, yours truly and fraternally,

Mary's Chapel, No. 1.

New York, Jan. 31st, 1876.

1. Voluntary, Organ; 2. Opening ode, "America:"

Glad hearts to Thee we bring,
With joy Thy name we sing.

Father above—
Creation praises Thee,
Thy bounty's full and free,
In all around we see
Emblems of love.

Unite our souls in love,
Smile on us from above,
Till life is o'er;
Then gather us to Thee,
Thy kingdom, Lord, to see.
In Thine own fold to be,
For evermore.

When our last labour's o'er,
And scenes of life no more
Charm our frail sight,
Then in God's holy care
May each protection share,
Bliss find unending there,
In perfect light.

Dessoye, as Marshal; 5, Presentation of the Master Elect; 6, Presentation of the Senior Warden Elect; 7, Presentation of the Junior Warden Elect; Master behold your brethren! Brethren, behold your Master! "Grand honours;" Procession.

Behold! in the East our new Master appear,
Come, brothers, we'll greet him with hearts all sincere.
We'll serve him with freedom, with fervour and zeal,
And aid him his duties and trust to fulfil.

In the West see the Warden with gavel in hand,
The Master to aid and obey his command,
We'll aid him with freedom, with fervour and zeal,
And help him his duties and trust to fulfil.

In the South see the Warden by plumb stand upright,
Who watches the sun and takes note of his flight.
We'll aid him with freedom, with fervour and zeal,
And help him his duties and trust to fulfil.

Be Thou, O God, exalted high,
And as Thy glory fills the sky,
So let it be on earth displayed
'Till Thou art here as there obeyed.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A few evenings since, in a London lodge, old and respectable, the third toast was given in due form, "The Pro Grand Master and Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," coupling with them the names of Bros. Pickwick, P.G.S.D. Diddlesex; Nickleby, P. Prov. G.P. Oxbridgehire; and O. Twist, P.G.J.D. Camfordshire, who each responded for the honour done to their lordships and themselves (the Provincial Grands, and Past Provincial Grand) by the proposal of the toast, and the cordial manner in which it had been received. Was this O.K.?

Yours fraternally,

"I WANT TO KNOW, YOU KNOW."

ELECTION OF PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I thank you for insertion in your last number of my letter to you under this heading.

I know full well that the Prov. G.M. has the election, what I want to know is how he is guided in his selection of officers.

I am, dear Sir and brother, yours very fraternally,

A LOVER OF JUSTICE.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Freemason" of February 19th, under the heading of answers to correspondence, I find "J.M.S.D. in our next."

That, no doubt, alluded to the questions I asked. As nothing appeared in last Saturdays, "Freemason," I venture to repeat the questions.

If other business be done than that written in the summons, can the same be legally confirmed?

Can a brother who is in arrears be appointed and serve as Warden?

J.M.S.D.

1. No business can be properly entered upon, except such as is contained among the agenda, relief excepted.

2. It depends on the bye-laws of the lodge.—Ed.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

For the sake of throwing light on a matter which has arisen, and is disputed in open lodge, will you, or any of your correspondents who may be taken as reliable authority, be kind enough to reply to the following question through the columns of the "Freemason," viz.: "Does St. John's Masonry embrace, teach, and enjoin nothing more than a high standard of morality?" A reply in Saturday's issue will very much oblige.

Yours fraternally,

ENQUIRER.

[Such a question cannot be answered offhand. Some of our able correspondents may perhaps reply to it.—Ed.]

AMERICAN AND GERMAN GRAND MASTERS.

I shall be glad to receive from American brethren a list of the Grand Masters to insert in the Cyclopædia.

If my good brother, J. G. Findel, would favour me with a list of German Grand Masters, I shall be happy also to insert them.

A. F. A. W.

THE WILSON MS.

I am very pleased to hear of the find of Wilson's MS., and hope it is the herald of subsequent discoveries of still more importance. Bros. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford and S. B. Ellis are to be heartily congratulated on so happy a result from their researches, and now we shall all, as eager Masonic students, be anxious to either inspect the MS. or peruse a certified transcript.

Bro. Woodford tells us that the present owner dates the MS. of the 17th century, and that it is written on vellum (as a roll, we presume.) The first notice we meet with in reference to the MS. is in the Manifesto issued by the "Right Worshipful Lodge of Antiquity, 1778," which was agreed to in open lodge, 16th day of December of that year, and signed by J. Sealy, Secretary, accordingly (Reprinted in our "Masonic Sketches and Reprints," and in our "History of Freemasonry at York," Kingston Masonic Annual, pages 102 to 108.)

The reference is in a note at the side of the text, and is as follows:

"MS. in the hands of Mr. Wilson, of Broomhead, near Sheffield, Yorkshire, written in the reign of King Henry VIII."

It was judged at that period to be of the sixteenth century. However, the matter can now be soon approximately decided, and we await with interest the particulars so kindly promised by Bro. Woodford, who in this case, as is so many others, is ready to place the information obtained at the service of his brethren.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The quarterly communication of Grand Lodge of English Freemasons was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. The attendance of brethren was very large, notwithstanding there was very little business to be done. There was, however, comparatively a small attendance of Past Grand Officers, and the dais looked bare. For once Grand Lodge was not opened punctually at seven o'clock, which, considering the usual strict punctuality of the Grand Master presiding, and the rest of the Grand Officers, surprised a good many brethren. About a quarter-past seven the procession made its appearance at the doors of the Temple, and though several brethren had expected the presence of Prince Leopold, and that he would preside on this occasion, it was soon seen that the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, would take the chair. Grand Lodge was opened at twenty minutes past seven, when it was thus formed:—Lord Skelmersdale, as Grand Master; the Marquis of Hamilton, S.G.W.; Bros. F. Pattison, J.G.W.; the Rev. R. J. Simpson and the Rev. J. R. Wigram, G. Chaplains; S. Tomkins, G.T.; A. J. McIntyre, G.C.; G.T.; John Hervey, G.S.; M. J. Guest and William Speed, S.G.D.'s; Robert Grey and Frederick Parker Morrell, J.G.D.'s; Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter, G.D.C.; Samuel George Homfray, Asst. G.D.C.; John B. Monckton, President Board of General Purposes; Dr. W. R. Woodman, G. Swd. B.; Wilhelm Kuhe, G. Organist; John Wright, G.P.; E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; and C. B. Payne, G. Tyler.

Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., acted as D.G.M., and Bro. R. J. Bagshaw as Past G. Master.

Among the other brethren present were the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, P.G.M. Staffordshire; Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; Col. Brownrigg, P.G.M. Surrey; Col. Lyne, P.G.M.; the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Col.

Adair, Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Prov. G.M. Herts.; Bro. Clabon, Bro. S. Rawson, P.D.G.M. China; Col. Creaton, P.G.D.; Bros. Benj. Head, P.G.D.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; J. Glaisher, P.G.D.; Peter de Lande Long; W. Fenn, P.G.S.D.; Brackstone Baker, P.G.D.; S. L. Tomkins, P.G.D.; C. A. Merton, P.G.D.; Dr. Erasmus Wilson, G.S.; John Symonds, P.G.D.; Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D.; James Mason, P.G.S.B.; R. J. Spiers, P.G.S.B.; N. Bradford, P.G.D.; Joseph C. Parkinson, P.G.D.; Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B.; Capt. Platt, P.G.J.W.; Bros. W. Ough, J. Smith, C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Wilhelm Ganz, P.G. Org.; H. Massey, ("Freemason"); and H. G. Buss, G. Treas. Middlesex.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, Grand Secretary read the regulations for the government of Grand Lodge during the time of public business; after which the minutes of last Quarterly Communication of the 1st of December, 1875, were read by Grand Secretary and put and confirmed.

The election of a Most Worshipful Grand Master being the next business in order.

Bro. J. M. Case, P.M. No. 1, rose, and said that at the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge he had the honour of nominating his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the ensuing year. He had now the distinguished privilege of proposing as a substantive resolution the election of His Royal Highness to that office, the highest the Craft could bestow and one to which His Royal Highness had given so much grace and dignity. He (Bro. Case) did not think otherwise than that the brethren would affirm this with one voice, and he would conclude by saying with reference to His Royal Highness's late magnificent procession in the East that it was a most appropriate and significant occasion for improving the Craft. He was confident that all the brethren would join with him in wishing His Royal Highness a safe and speedy return to his native country, and that he might long live to rule over the Craft, wherever dispersed over the face of land and water. (Hear, hear.)

Dr. Rhys Williams, in seconding the election of His Royal Highness, said that it was with a feeling of diffidence that he rose to second the proposition just made, because though on the one hand he could not but feel it a distinguished honour, on the other hand he could not be unmindful that there were other brethren present who could bring greater ability to the task than himself. However, nothing he could say could add to the enthusiasm with which this proposition would be received, and nothing he might leave unsaid would mar it. Every one knew the ability of His Royal Highness and the kindness of heart which had distinguished his rule over Freemasons during the past year, and they all hoped that he would be long spared to occupy his proud position in the Craft.

The motion having been put was carried unanimously, amidst great applause, and Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter, proclaimed His Royal Highness duly elected as Most Worshipful Grand Master.

Bro. John Gibson, Deputy Master, No. 259, proposed the re-election of Bro. Samuel Tomkins as Grand Treasurer. He had served the office for so many years, and with so much credit to himself, and satisfaction to Grand Lodge, that he (Bro. Gibson) trusted he would be re-elected unanimously.

Bro. Lees having seconded the motion, it was put and unanimously carried.

Bro. Samuel Tomkins thanked the brethren for the honour again conferred upon him. He had been already twenty-four years their Steward, and he viewed the brotherhood every year with increasing satisfaction, for every year had seen an increase in the prosperity of Masonry. He trusted that in the next 24 or 25 years those who came after him in the office would see a progression in Freemasonry in the same ratio as he himself had seen it. (Cheers.)

The following grants, recommended in the report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, were moved by Bro. J. M. Clabon, seconded by Bro. Joshua Nunn, and carried:—

A brother of the Cecil Lodge, No. 449, Hitchin	£75 0 0
The widow of a brother of the Lodge of Temperance, No. 169, Deptford	50 0 0
A brother of the Alfred Lodge, No. 340, Oxford	50 0 0
A brother of the Enoch Lodge, No. 11, London	75 0 0
And a brother of the London Lodge, No. 108, London	75 0 0

The following was the report of the Board of General Purposes, next taken:—

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes beg to submit a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 11th day of February, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £4375 17s. 4d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for petty cash £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON,
President.

Bro. John B. Monckton, in moving that it be received and entered on the minutes, said the members of the Grand Lodge would see it was only of a financial character; but he trusted the brethren would not think that the labours of the Board had been only formal, and that no work had been done by the Board. There had been a great deal, but, happily, no case had occurred which it was necessary to report to Grand Lodge. (Cheers.)

Bro. P. de L. Long having seconded the motion, it was carried unanimously.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF MONMOUTHSHIRE.

On Friday, 25th Feb., this chapter, in the unavoidable absence of P.G. Superintendent Col. Lyne, through illness, was opened at Newport by Comp. S. G. Homfray, Standard Bearer of Grand Chapter, P.P.G.H., as Z.; L. A. Homfray, P.G.Z., as H.; H. Helier, P.Z. 471, as J.; when the following officers and companions were present:—J. Middleton, P.G. Soj.; Dr. Browne, P.G.A.S.; H. Gratte, P.G. A.S.; W. Pickford, P.G. Treas.; C. H. Olliver, P.G.D.C.; W. Williams, P.G. Sword Bearer; and several other companions.

Comp. S. Geo. Homfray expressed to the companions the extreme regret of the P.G. Superintendent at his inability to attend in consequence of his having been confined to the house for some weeks. He then proceeded to the appointment of officers, when Comp. J. Middleton, being the oldest P.Z. of the province, was duly installed into the chair of P.G.Z., Comp. S. G. Homfray informing the companions that it afforded him much pleasure to confer this office on one who had rendered such valuable service to the province; it was the highest honour in the power of the P.G. Superintendent to confer on any companion, and which each might aspire to in rotation. The following other appointments were made:—C. Rowe, P.G. Scribe E.; H. J. Gratte, P.G. Scribe N.; J. Lewis, P.G. Soj.; Dr. Cheese, P.G.A.S.; R. J. Parnell, W. Pickford, P.G. Treas.; Capt. Perkins, D.C.; C. Bailey, A.G.L.; R. Bond, P.G. Reg.; Capt. Haldane, Sword Bearer; W. H. W. Homfray, Standard Bearer; H. J. Groves, Org.; J. Fletcher, Janitor.

A committee was then nominated to draw up a code of bye-laws, to be presented at next chapter.

Comp. S. G. Homfray congratulated the province on the rapid strides R.A. Masonry had made in the province, which a short time back had but one chapter, and they now had four, all working well, and another granted at the last S.G.C. to be consecrated at Pontypool.

The chapter was then closed in ancient form, and a meeting of the Silurian Chapter was held, when Comps. R. J. Parnell, as M.E.Z.; C. Rowe, as H.; B. Lawrence, as J., were duly installed by Comp. H. J. Gratte in his usual efficient manner.

Comp. Parnell then invested his officers, and the chapter was closed in due form.

The companions afterwards dined together at the Westgate Hotel, where an excellent banquet was provided by Comp. H. S. Hallen, which was attended by Comp. F. Binckes, Secretary Boys' School, who also was present in the chapter. His presence in the province was hailed with much delight, and a hearty welcome accorded to him.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTERS FOR THE COUNTY PALATINE OF LANCASTER.

By command of the Very Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, a special Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of the County Palatine of Lancaster was held on Tuesday, the 22nd ult., at the Masonic Hall, Cooper-street, Manchester. The business set down on the circular was to pass "a vote of sympathy and condolence with Mrs. Callender and her family in their sad bereavement by the death of Bro. W. Romaine Callender, Provincial Grand Mark Master of this province, and D.G. M.M. of England; and to take the opinion of the Provincial Grand Lodge as to a recommendation to be made to the M.W. Grand Mark Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, of some worthy brother to fill the office vacant by the decease of the R.W.P.G.M."

The respect felt for the memory of the late P.G.M.M., Bro. W. R. Callender, and the interest experienced in the appointment of his successor, were evinced by the attendance of a very large number of brethren. At considerable inconvenience (having left London that morning and returning by the afternoon train, so as to enable him to be present at the installation of Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold as P.G.M. of Oxford on the following day) Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, V.W.D.P.G.M.M., attended the special meeting, and there were also present Bros. T. Entwistle, P. Prov. G.M.M.; C. F. Matier, Prov. G.W.; Le Gendre N. Starkie, Prov. G.W.; G. P. Brockbank, Prov. P.G.W.; W. O. Walker, Prov. S.G.W.; J. Kellett Smith, Prov. J.G.W.; J. R. Goepel, Past G.S.O.; W. H. Hopkins, Prov. G.M.M.O.; C. R. Hyde, L.L.D.; Prov. G.C.; John Dunning, Prov. G.A.C.; John Duffield, Prov. G. Treas.; J. B. Champion, Prov. G. Reg.; John Chadwick, Prov. G. Sec.; J. Crompton Lees, Prov. G.S.D.; W. J. Sly, Prov. G.J.D.; Amos Stott, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies; John Bell, Prov. G. Sword Bearer; H. Burrows, P.G.S.; and Joseph Wood, Prov. G. Standard Bearer. The other Mark Masters present were Bros. Silas Andrew, Geo. A. O'Neil, Jas. Shaw, Thos. Peak, Henry Heap, H. L. Hollingworth, J. Halliwell, G. Miller, D. Stansfield, Henry Maiden, George Galloway, A. Milne, Thomas Morris, Wm. Barlow, James Newton, J. F. Twedale, R. Whitaker, R. Butterworth, Thomas Bowers, Tom B. Ashworth, John Ashworth, Wm. Beswicke, John Ed. Lees, Jas. Horrocks, Henry J. Stephenson, Joseph Burton, James Kershaw, Wm. Ogden, J. W. Kenyon, Thomas Newton, John Greaves, James Sly, Wm. Roberts, James Holroyd, I. W. Petty, R. D. M'D. Smith, Thomas Clarke, R. Newhouse, John Bell, Thomas Bowers, and J. L. Hine.

Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, in proposing the first motion, spoke very highly of the ability of the late Bro. Callender as a Mason, and of his Christian qualities; and said no man in England sympathised more with their deceased brother's family than he (the noble lord) did. The motion he had to propose was, "That this Provincial Grand Lodge desires to record upon their minutes their sense of the very great loss they have sustained by the deeply lamented death of their Provincial Grand Mark Master, the Right Worshipful Bro. W. Romaine Callender, and also to express their earnest and heartfelt sympathy with Mrs. Callender and family in their sad bereavement."

Bro. Thos. Entwistle cordially approved of the sentiments expressed by his lordship, and seconded the motion.

Bro. Le. Gendre N. Starkie, supporting the motion, said that during his career as Provincial Grand Master no one had a more intimate knowledge of the late Bro. Callender than he (Bro. Starkie) had. His true Masonic knowledge and courtesy endeared him to all the brethren, who were now mourning the great and irreparable loss they had sustained.

The motion was agreed to unanimously, and on the proposition of Bro. Starkie, seconded by Bro. Matier, it was decided that a copy of the resolution, engrossed on vellum, and signed by the D.P.G.M.M., be forwarded by the Provincial Grand Secretary to Mrs. Callender.

On the motion of Bro. Dr. Hyde, P.G. Chaplain, a vote of thanks was proposed to Bro. Lord Skelmersdale for presiding, and this was carried by acclamation.

His lordship thanked the brethren for their cordial vote of thanks, and apologised for leaving at that stage, as he had again to start for London almost immediately, in order that he might be present at Bro. Prince Leopold's installation on the following day.

Bro. Le G. N. Starkie next proposed the following motion:—"We, the Mark Master Masons in this Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, while most deeply regretting the loss we have sustained by the lamented death of our Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Bro. W. Romaine Callender, do most unanimously and respectfully recommend to the favourable consideration of the Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master Mason our brother the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Prov. G.M.M.M., to fill the office vacant by the death of our late P.G.M.M.M., having full assurance that such recommendation will tend to promote the best interests of Mark Masonry."

Bro. W. O. Walker seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Bro. Thomas Coxon, Prov. S.G.W., moved, and Bro. J. R. Goepel, Pro G.S.O., seconded, that a copy of the above resolution be signed by the Secretary and forwarded to the Grand Secretary for presentation to the M.W.G.M.M.M.

The motion was agreed to, and the lodge adjourned.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

A RAILWAY ACCIDENT to any particular person is a (theoretically) remote contingency; but as it may happen, as a matter of fact, the very next journey undertaken, and as the sum at which it will be seen the risk (in a pecuniary sense) may be extinguished FOR LIFE is almost absurdly small, it is not too much to say that the insurance is an OBVIOUS DUTY in the case of most travellers. £1000 if killed, with liberal allowances if injured, for a single payment of £3, covering the whole life. REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 22).—This lodge met at Guildhall Tavern on Thursday, 24th ult., at four o'clock, Bro. Alfred Partridge, W.M., in the chair. The lodge was opened in the First, Second, and Third Degrees, and Bro. Capt. Matthew Webb was raised to the Sublime Degree by the W.M. in a very impressive manner. The W.M. having been installed in January, this was the first opportunity the brethren had of testing the calibre of their new Master, and they were highly pleased at the manner in which the ceremony was performed. The lodge having been closed down to the First Degree, a donation of twenty pounds was voted from the Benevolent Fund of the lodge to a brother in distress. (late P.M., Neptune, 22), and a committee was appointed to revise the bye-laws of the lodge and of the Benevolent Fund. Bro. Wilcox, P.M., Treas., announced that he and Bro. Harcourt, P.M. Amity, had supported the same case at the recent meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence, and had obtained a grant of forty pounds. Bro. Gray, P.M., then reported to the lodge the result of the recent subscriptions, and gave a short history. He said that about the time of the audit meeting he somehow learned that Bro. Secretary Hughes was approaching his silver wedding, and it struck him that it would be a good opportunity for those older members of the lodge, who knew and appreciated Bro. Hughes and esteemed his kindly qualities, and were aware how ready he was to assist a brother in catching up the ritual, or what not, to present him and his wife with some token of their feeling. At the audit meeting, therefore, he (Bro. Gray) spoke to Bros. Farns, I.P.M., and Wilcox, Treas., who cordially co-operated with him; and having sent out a circular, had obtained forty-three subscriptions, enabling them to present an illuminated vellum, and a silver teapot and cream ewer, to Mrs. and Bro. Edward Hughes. The presentation took place at Bro. Farns's office on Friday, 4th February, in order that Bro. Hughes might have it on the actual day, 5th, in order. As there were only present on the occasion himself and Bros. Farns and Wilcox, and the subscribers would naturally like to see to what purpose their money had been put, Bro. Hughes had kindly consented to bring them all down to the lodge, that the brethren might view them; and having read the vellum and the inscription on the teapot, Bro. Gray concluded by congratulating Bro. Hughes, and wishing him and his wife long life and happiness. The present was very much admired by the members. Bro. Hughes (who suffered from severe hoarseness), in a brief speech thanked the W.M. and subscribers, on behalf of Mrs. Hughes and himself, for his highly flattering presentation. He had been kept in utter ignorance of the matter till about Tuesday, 1st February, when he was asked if it would be convenient for him to attend on Friday at Bros. Farns's office to receive a little present for Saturday from some of the Neptune members; and he must say he was quite taken aback when he discovered the extent which the little present had assumed. He assured them that it was greatly admired by his family, and the feeling which prompted the presentation was duly appreciated. For himself he should prize it, firstly, for its intrinsic value; secondly, as a spontaneous proof of the fraternal esteem and regard in which he was proud to feel so many of the brethren held him, and among those names on the list were many he was indeed happy to number among his personal private friends; and thirdly for that it would become a heirloom in the family, and when it should please the Great Architect to call him from this sublunary scene it would pass to one of his sons, who would cherish the reminiscence of feeling exhibited toward his father. Bro. Hughes again, on behalf of Mrs. Hughes and himself, thanked the brethren, and resumed his seat amid some applause. Fifty-six brethren sat down to the subsequent banquet, among whom were Bros. Fairfax, P.G.P., and Anderson, P.G.P. Warwickshire, and sixteen other visitors.

EGYPTIAN LODGE (No. 27).—The regular March meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 2nd inst. Bro. John Grem, W.M., presided, and among other brethren who were present were Bros. Hales, S.W.; Walker, J.W.; H. G. Buss, P.M., Treas.; J. B. Poole, P.M., Sec.; Pattenden, S.D.; Richards, J.D.; T. Maidwell, I.G. Past Masters: Bros. W. H. Libbis, C. B. Payne, J. Lambie, C. Atkins, Sheppard,

D. H. Jacobs, and John Coutts; and visitors: Bros. P. C. Cowser, 23; J. W. Webster, 807; T. H. Pennell, 1227; J. Lyon, 161; R. Roberts, 742 and 209; L. H. Norwich, J.W. 158 (I.C.); C. R. Wiltshire, 50 (New York); and H. Massey ("Freemason"). Bros. E. Bryer, Howell, and Pattison were raised, and Mr. Frederick C. Chick was initiated, after which the brethren partook of banquet. There was an excellent mofester brethren, both in lodge and at the banquet table, and a very pleasant evening was spent. The customary toasts succeeded the banquet, and a good flow of musical entertainment was provided in the intervals. The W.M. acquitted himself very ably in the discharge of his duties for the first time since his installation, and his officers efficiently supported him. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Lambie, who said that all the brethren must have been delighted with the way in which he officiated. He had performed his duties, they must all say, most admirably, and it was a great pleasure to them to have him in the chair. The W.M., in reply, said that while thanking the brethren very much for their response to the proposer of this toast, he also was much obliged to them for electing him to the high and honourable position which he then occupied. There was a certain unworthiness he felt for the position, for he had done nothing for the benefit of the lodge except Masonic working; he had never introduced a member, and only a visitor now and then. The reason he had not brought in initiates was that all his friends were already Masons. But as far as his power to do anything for the lodge went he would use it to the utmost, and he was at all times pleased to do anything he could for it. The W.M. proposed "The Initiative," who made a short but effective reply, and trusted he would follow in the steps of the other brother of the same name who had preceded him. The W.M. proposed "The P.M.'s," for whom Bro. Lambie replied. As the junior P.M. he liked the position of P.M. very well, and no doubt he would like it better as time went on. He thanked the brethren for their kindness in honouring this toast, and begged to assure them the P.M.'s would all do the best they could for the members of the Egyptian Lodge in particular and for Freemasonry generally. (Hear, hear.) The toast of "The Officers of the Lodge" followed, and was responded to by Bros. Walker, Pattenden, Richards, and Maidwell, and the brethren then drank the Tyler's toast and separated. In the list published by the "Freemason" three weeks ago of the subscriptions at the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution the list carried in by Bro. Green, W.M. of the Egyptian Lodge, No. 27, was stated to amount to £78. This was an error, the total amount taken in by this brother having been £91.

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188).—The March meeting of the Lodge of Joppa was held on Monday evening, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, and was very numerous, attended, no less than 117 brethren being present, among whom were 19 visitors. Bro. Alfred S. Dutton, W.M., presided. The business of the day consisted of the initiation of Messrs. Julius Rohman, Edward Stranskey, and E. J. A. Davey; passing Bros. West and Smith; and raising Bros. Emanuel, Creamer, and Petchell. The officers present were Bros. L. Lazarus, S.W.; Miller, J.W.; I. Auerham, Treas.; E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; Sec.; A. Auerham, S.D.; M. Speer, I.D.; H. Hymans, I.G.; H. P. Isaac and Baker, Stewards; H. Berkowitz, Chap.; P. Van Noorden, Org.; and P.M.'s L. Alexander, J. Phillips, M. Alexander, Obed Roberts, Israel Abrahams, and H. M. Levy. The visitors were Bros. C. Veal, P.G.S.D. Surrey, 889; A. Wallace, 140; Sonnenberg, 918; S. M. Harris, 406; S. Godfrey, 205; Constable; W. W. Morgan, 1385; J. H. Ross, P.M. 185; G. Fask, 185; Lee, P.M. 1524; Gastrell, 1076; H. E. Francis; Chas. Thompson, 55; S. Levy, 1076; Belfrage, 179; G. South, 19; Rouseby, 1313; C. J. Knight; Cherrill, W.M. 534; and H. Massey ("Freemason"). Bro. Walters undertook the Stewardship of this lodge for the Boys' School, and the lodge voted ten guineas to the list. An elegant banquet followed the working of the lodge, and the toasts were proposed. The W.M., after the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" had been proposed and drunk, and the National Anthem sung by the professional brethren and ladies, proposed "The Prince of Wales," to whom he wished a speedy and safe return to this country, an event which all Masons were now anxiously looking forward to. "The Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," which was the next toast, elicited a reply from Bro. E. P. Albert, Secretary of the lodge, which was honoured at the Prince of Wales's installation by that brother being appointed Assistant Grand Pursuivant for the year. The toast having been most cordially received, Bro. Albert replied and said, that the way in which the last Grand Lodge was presided over by Lord Skelmersdale, assisted by the other Grand Officers must have convinced the brethren that they were well served. The W.M. then gave "The Joppa Benevolent Fund," and said it must be pleasing to the brethren to know not only that the fund was in a prosperous state, but that there had been no calls on it lately. He then announced subscriptions to the fund made that evening to the amount of five guineas. He included in the toast the President, Vice-President and Committee of Management of the Fund. Bro. L. Alexander, P.M., responded, and in doing so observed that what the W.M. had said about the prosperity of the fund he was sure that every one would echo. So far as the President, Vice-President, and Committee were concerned he was sure from the very cordial manner in which the toast had been received that the brethren were satisfied that those officers did their duty to the best of their ability. With respect to the Benevolent Fund there was very little for him to say, because they had heard him and his predecessors so often on this topic that he could tell them nothing new; but for the sake of the initiates and some of the visitors he might explain that the fund was established some 25 or 26 years ago for the benefit of such brethren as might fall into decay. From his own certain knowledge he might say that in numerous cases it had afforded considerable relief, and in no one instance had an applicant gone away dissatisfied. He was happy to say that for some time no application had been made, and he hoped that many years might pass over their heads before any application would be made. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and included the Masonic Press in the toast. Bro. Lee responded for "The Visitors," and congratulated the brethren on having selected Bro. Walters to represent the lodge at the Boys' Festival, and voted ten guineas to his list. He then advised the brethren if they wished to become life governors of the different charities of the Order that there was an easy method open to them by becoming members of the Local Masonic Charitable Associations which were established now in most districts of the metropolis. Bro. H. Massey responded for "The Freemason." The initiates having responded for the toast drunk in their honour, Bro. L. Alexander, P.M., proposed "The W.M.," whom he complimented on his working, and on having made the brethren comfortable both in lodge and at the banquet table. The W.M., in reply, said he was overwhelmed with the brethren's kindness. He was delighted at being selected as their W.M., and he hoped that during his year of office he would have fortitude and strength to adhere to the Book of Constitutions, and carry out the duties of the W.M. according as that book taught. The W.M. proposed "The P.M.'s," to which toast Bro. Israel Abrahams replied. Bros. H. M. Levy, Obed Roberts, and L. Alexander also responded. Bros. Lazarus and Miller replied for "The Senior Officers," and the other toasts having been honoured, the brethren separated, after spending a delightful evening, which was enlivened by some charming singing by Madame Augusta Roche, Miss Doré, Miss Josephine Reeves (the two latter pupils of Bro. Van Noorden), and Bro. Frank Elmore, under the direction of Bro. Van Noorden, Organist.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, 21st ult., at the White Swan Tavern, Deptford. Present: Bros. S. D. Lewin, W.M.; H. J. Tuson, W.M. elect, S.W.; J. J. Pakes, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.P., Midx. P.M., Sec.; J. B. Langley, J.D.; R. Harman, D.C.; J. G. Vohman, W. Steward; H. J. Fisher, Org.; J. Bavin, P.M. 147, Tyler. Past Masters: Bros. G. Andrews and F. Bro. S. O. Lewin, W.M., then initiated Mr. G. Eve, Bro. G. Andrews, I.P.M., initiating Messrs. G. A. Leighton and W. Simmons. The following resolution was passed unanimously:—"That in consequence of the sudden death of Bro. J. Hawker, P.M., which occurred on Friday, 18th ult., at the age of 51, no banquet shall be held at the installation meeting." The work of the lodge was very well done, that by Bro. Andrews, I.P.M., especially meriting commendation.

The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 24th ult., at the White Swan Tavern, Deptford. Present: Bros. S. O. Lewin, W.M.; H. J. Tuson, W.M. elect, S.W.; J. J. Pakes, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.P. Midx., P.M. 871, Sec.; W. Myatt, P.M., S.D.; J. B. Langley, W.M. 1423, J.D.; J. T. Lunin, I.G.; R. Harman, D.C.; J. G. Vohman, W.S.; H. J. Fisher, Org.; J. Bavin, P.M. 147, Tyler; F. Walters, W. Andrews, W.M.; G. Andrews, and J. Truelove, Past Masters. The visitors were Bro. H. J. Green, W.M. 1538; E. Debar, W.M. 169; J. T. Tibbals, P.M. 169; J. Patte, P.M. 147; J. Lightfoot, P.M. 147; J. J. West, P.M. 548; H. Keeble, P.M. 1275, and others. The minutes of last meeting were duly read and confirmed. Bro. F. Walters then presented Bro. H. J. Tuson to Bro. G. Andrews for installation, who installed him (Bro. Tuson) W.M. The W.M. then appointed the following brethren to the various offices for the ensuing year: Bros. S. O. Lewin, I.P.M.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treas. (re-invested for the 9th time); F. Walters (father of the lodge re-invested for the 16th time), Sec.; J. J. Pakes, S.W.; J. B. Langley, J.W.; H. J. Fisher, (re-invested for the 3rd time) Org.; G. T. Lunin, S.D.; R. Harman, J.D.; J. G. Vohman, I.G.; G. Andrews, D.C.; W. Myatt, W.S.; and J. Bavin, P.M. 147, Tyler. On the motion of Bro. F. Walters it was unanimously resolved that a vote of thanks be accorded to Bro. G. Andrews for the admirable and painstaking manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. A Past Master's jewel of the value of eight guineas (the most valuable ever given in this lodge, the money being raised by means of voluntary subscriptions from some of the members) was presented to Bro. S. O. Lewin. It was also resolved that the sum of ten pounds be paid from the funds of the lodge to the Male Annuity Fund. That a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of Bro. J. Hawker, P.M., deceased, and that in memorial the name of Bro. J. Hawker be retained as S.W. for the time being.

MAZAGON.—Lodge Concord (No. 757).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Mazagon, on Tuesday, 4th January, 1876. Present: Bros. W. C. Rowe, W.M.; B. Robinson, I.P.M.; F. Burdett, as S.W.; W. Fearn, as J.W.; F. Burdett, Treas.; O. Tomlinson, Sec.; J. Spiers, S.D.; W. G. Davie, J.D.; J. Luke, D.C.; J. E. Tyers, Org.; J. Seager, Tyler. Members: Bros. W. E. Craddock, S. Needs, T. W. Brownnutt, H. Watson, J. A. Da Gama, and others. Visitors: Bros. C. Parker, 1100, E.C.; R. Delany, 746, E.C., and others. The summons convening the meeting was read. Bros. S. Needs, J. A. Da Gama, and T. W. Brownnutt were raised to the degree of Master Masons. The W.M. then gave a lecture on the Third Degree Tracing Board in his usual masterly style, after which he also explained the uses of the working tools of a M.M.

to the newly-raised brethren. The W.M., W. C. Rowe then proposed, and W. Bro. B. Robinson, P.M., seconded that the usual annual ball take place as early as convenient, in February the date to be decided at the next regular meeting, and the surplus funds, after paying expenses, to be handed over to the Masonic Charity Funds, the Secretary to issue a circular to the members in order to ascertain the number that would support the same, the fee to be fifteen rupees to admit one gentleman and two ladies, and single tickets to admit one gentleman only ten rupees each.

The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 15th Jan., the proceedings of which up to the adjournment to the banquet were given in our last week's number. On the removal of the cloth Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson, W.M., proposed "The Health of the Queen and the Craft," which was heartily responded to. The band played the "National Anthem." The W.M. then proposed "The Health of our Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," which was drunk to with the usual Masonic enthusiasm. The band played "God bless the Prince of Wales." Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson then asked the brethren to join him in drinking to the next toast, which was that of "The Pro Grand Master of England, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Most Worshipful Grand Masters of Scotland and Ireland." Hearty response. The band played "Britannia, the Pride of the Ocean." The W.M. then rose and said: W. Sirs and brethren, the next toast I ask you to join me in is that of our D.G. Master, the Hon. James Gibbs, his Deputy, and his officers, who he was pleased to say have favoured the lodge with their coming this evening, and he assured the D.G.M. it gave the brethren very great pleasure to have him and his officers amongst us on an occasion like the present, the announcement of which elicited the applause of all present. The band played the air of the "Fine Old English Gentleman." The D.G.M., the Hon. James Gibbs, on rising to return thanks was greatly applauded. He said that it gave him great pleasure in being able to be present with his D.G. Officers to pay his official visit on such a night as the present one, more especially so because he found the brethren of the lodge worked so harmoniously and happily together, as he expected they would do, and it also gave him the opportunity of witnessing the able way in which the retiring Master had carried out the installation ceremony; and said he always endeavoured to pay each lodge in his district an official visit once a year, and hoped that the next time he came to Concord he should find the lodge in the same prosperous condition as it was in now. The W.M. then said: Brethren, there is another toast I must now ask you to join me in, and that is "The Health of the M.W.G.M. of Scottish Freemasonry in India, M.W. Bro. Moreland." I need hardly say that we all regret his inability to attend here to-night, also that of his deputy, and as our D.G.M. has informed you he (Rt. Wor. Bro. Balfour) had to attend with the Grand Lodge of Scotland at one of the installations under their own banner. This was received with enthusiasm, the band playing "The Blue Bells of Scotland." The D.G. Master then said: Brethren, I now ask you to join me in a toast that I know you will all respond to very heartily. It is that of your "W.M., Bro. G. R. Henderson." You all know him so well that I need not repeat to you his many good qualities, you have had experience of his excellent working in former years, or you would not have elected him to the post he now holds this evening; but I must say, that I like to see the Wardens elected to the post which I think it is the duty of every Mason to aspire to, but as there are cases where the Wardens do not care to be elected to the Mastership of a lodge, as is the case here in Concord to-night, great care ought to be taken in the selection of brethren for Wardens, that are able and willing to relieve a Master of his duties after he has served his year of office, as a Master of the lodge of which he was a member, as he (the D.G.M.) advocated promotion, and was pleased to see brethren rising to that high position in the Craft, and other degrees with which he was connected in Masonry. Band played, "Come let us be happy together." W. Bro. Henderson then rose, amid loud applause, and said: Right W. Sir, W. Sirs, and brethren, I thank you Right W. Sir for the very kind way you have put the toast of my health before the brethren, and for the hearty way in which they have responded to the same. I assure you all brethren, I shall endeavour to keep up the high standing this lodge has held in this district, and I may say wherever her name is mentioned, and I will still try to merit that good name which the R.W.D.G.M. has just given me. With reference to the advice he has given you, as regards the Wardens aspiring to the high position of Master, I must say that I quite agree with him, brethren, that Wardens ought to work themselves up so as to enable a Master, after he has done a year of hard work to retire on his laurels, and give way to younger brothers to take the place of the veterans, and I should have been pleased had one of the Past Wardens of the lodge been standing here in my place to-night, but as none of them would be persuaded to take the post of course, it fell to the lot of one of the Past Masters, and as the I.P.M., Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, had been appointed to the Mastership of his mother lodge, Truth, No. 944, E.C., of course he could not hold the Mastership of the two lodges for the year, and as he had no option but to be elected, he would do the best he could for the lodge which he had the honour to rule over, and all he asked was the support of the brethren, and the hearty co-operation of his officers, for with the assistance of the Past Masters he had made a very careful selection, and hoped that the choice he had made would be beneficial to the lodge. Thanking them again for the kind way they had received the toast of his health, he resumed his seat, and the band struck up "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow." The W.M. then said: The next toast I wish to bring before your notice is that of the "P.M.'s," and in so doing I shall couple with it the name of your I.P.M., Wor. Bro. W. C. Rowe, who has also been the Installing Master this evening. You have all, I am sure, been much pleased with the admirable way he has carried out that work this evening; not only has he performed his work well to-night, but throughout the whole year of his office, and at our next meeting I hope to be able to give him a more substantial proof of our good wishes. Band played "Cheer, Boys, Cheer." Wor. Bros. Rowe and Robinson, the two Past Masters present, then rose, amid the applause of the brethren. Wor. Bro. Rowe said, on behalf of the P.M.'s he begged to thank the W.M. and brethren for the kind way they had received the toast of their health, and that they (the P.M.'s) were ever ready to do what they could for the good of the lodge, and always willing to render any assistance that lay in their power, and as regarded himself, he could assure the brethren he had always felt a pleasure in carrying out the work that had been entrusted to him during the year, and would still try to merit the high eulogies that had been passed on him that evening, and the only thing he coveted in recognition of his past services to the lodge was the good wishes of the brethren, and that he could see by the way they had responded to the propositions of their Worshipful Master he had, and he hoped Lodge Concord would still continue to flourish. Band played "Happy are we to-night, Boys." W.M. then said: Brethren, I now ask you to join me in a toast which is always well received in this lodge, it is that of "The Visitors," and in doing so I shall couple with it the name of Wor. Bro. Barrow and Wor. Bro. McKenzie. I need hardly say how pleased all the members of this lodge are to receive visitors, both at their working upstairs and at their festive board, especially on the present occasion, and he could assure them of a hearty welcome whenever it was their pleasure to favour the lodge with a visit. I have coupled the names of Wor. Bro. Barrow and Wor. Bro. McKenzie with this toast because I am sure they are very much esteemed by you all, and because they have always come forward to assist us at any time we may have required help. The band played, "Tis our duty to help one another." Wor. Bros. Barrow and McKenzie then rose, amid the applause of the brethren. Wor. Bro. Barrow said that he must thank the W.M. and brethren for their very kind response to the toast which the W.M. had just put before them, and for the cordial way they had received the same, and he could assure them one and all appreciated the kindness they always receive whenever they attend a meeting of Lodge Concord, and was sure, as their I.P.M., Wor. Bro. Rowe, had told them up in the lodge, "the principle illustrated by the name of Lodge Concord" had been carried out to the letter, and was also sure in so saying he reciprocated the feelings of all the visitors present. Wor. Bro. McKenzie then said he quite concurred with all Wor. Bro. Barrow had said, and that he always felt great pleasure in attending the meetings of Concord, as the working of the lodge was second to none, and whenever any visitor might come he could always find some instructive work going on, and he was sure this would not be his last visit if spared, and thanked all for the kind way they had received the visitors on this and many other occasions. Band played "Life let us cherish." The W.M. then said: Brethren, I now ask you to join me in drinking to the health of those that have entered into new duties to-night, also to those who have done such good service to the lodge during the past year—I mean the newly-appointed officers, and those officers that have so faithfully served the lodge in the offices they were entrusted with by your I.P.M., Wor. Bro. Rowe, during the past year. I did not think, brethren, it was requisite for me to make two separate toasts of the present and past officers, because so many of the past officers are the present ones for the ensuing year. My advice to you who have entered on your duties to-night is to attend to your special parts, and be punctual in your attendance, as I may tell you that it is impossible for a Master to carry out his work in that efficient way unless he has the assistance of his officers. Bro. O. Tomlinson, S.W., rose and said: Wor. Sir, Wor. Sir, and brethren, on behalf of myself and brother officers newly appointed to-night I beg to return sincere thanks for the honours conferred on us this evening, and also for the kind manner in which you have drunk to our health and future success. I beg especially to thank you for myself, for I must submit I have been especially honoured in being appointed to the office I now hold, and I assure you all, brethren, I shall use my best endeavours to merit your approbation, and for my brother officers I must say I feel sure they will all do their best in assisting to maintain the high standard of working that this good old lodge is noted for. Bro. J. Spiers, J.W., also said he would endeavour to merit the office the W.M. had appointed him to, and assist in keeping up the name of the lodge, and thanked them all for the kind way they had received the toast of their (the present officers') health. The band played "Auld Lang Syne." The rest of the evening was spent in singing many good songs, amongst which was Bro. F. Burdett's noted song, "Noah's Ark," which is always received with great applause, and at 11.20 p.m. the W.M. closed, after giving the usual last toast.

ROTHERHAM.—The Phoenix Lodge (No. 904).—The brethren of this prosperous lodge held their anniversary meeting at the Ship Hotel, Rotherham, on the evening of Thursday, the 24th of February. Bro. John Fawcett, W.M., opened the lodge, when the minutes of an emergency, as well as of the last regular lodge, were read and confirmed; after which Bro. Oxley, P.M., and P.P.G.R. West Yorks, very ably installed the W.M. elect, Bro. Clement Hamil Perrot (who is a Past Master of his lodge). The customary homage having been paid, Bro. Perrot appointed as his officers:—Bros. John Fawcett, I.P.M.; Benjamin Saville, S.W.; Henry J. Bingham, J.W.; Thomas W. Roome, Secretary; J. W. Wrag, S.D.; Charles Harvey, J.D.; and Wilfrid Badger, I.G. Letters of apology were read from Bros. Thomas William Tew, Deputy P.G.M. West Yorks; Henry Smith, Prov. Grand Secretary; Rev. A. W. Hamilton, W.M. 139, Prov. Grand Chaplain; and William Short, P.M. 139, Past Prov. G.D. Apologies were also received from Bros. Henry Seeborn and John Francis Moss, Past Masters of Lodge 296, &c. Bro. Walter Charles Smith, P.M., proposed Bro. James G. Neddham, P.M., as Almoner, and he was elected. Hearty good wishes were presented by officers representing Lodges 108, 139, 241, 296, and 1239. The brethren afterwards dined together, under the presidency of Bro. Perrot, who proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were accompanied by Masonic honours. Bro. Fawcett gave the toast of "The Health of the Worshipful Master," which was eloquently responded to by Bro. Perrot, who proposed "The Visiting Brethren," in reply to which Bro. Ecroyd, W.M. 296, thanked the Worshipful Master and his officers for the kind reception the visiting brethren had received, and for the sumptuous banquet they had partaken of. The toast of "The Officers of the Phoenix Lodge" was responded to by Bro. Wilfrid Badger, I.G., in a neat Masonic speech, which shows that, although young in years and but newly fledged as a Master Mason, he may be expected to fill the various offices of his lodge with credit to himself and satisfaction to the brethren. His appointment, together with the other appointments made that evening, augurs well for the future prosperity of the Phoenix Lodge. The Worshipful Master supplemented his address to his officers by calling attention to the historical and artistic record of the Installation of the Prince of Wales, which is now being engraved, and by recommending those brethren of his lodge who were present on that most memorable occasion to send their cartes at once to Bro. Edward James Hart, No. 213, Regent-street, London, so that their portraits may be included in the engraving. The Worshipful Master further called attention to a circular he had just received from Bro. Captain Lathbury, the Secretary of the London Masonic Club, and suggested that those of the brethren who desire to join should send in their applications prior to the 1st of March, when the next ballot will be taken. In reference to this club, Bro. Marsh (solicitor), an old and much respected member of the Rotherham Lodge, asked that further information should be given as to the liability of members joining this club before he could advise his brethren to become subscribers. Bro. Henry Ecroyd (of Sheffield) replied that the application forms issued by the Secretary distinctly stated that the club, being proprietary, "members incurred no liability whatever beyond their subscriptions." Bro. Marsh was, however, of opinion that proprietary clubs are, as a rule, unsafe adventures; and he still desires more certain information regarding the constitution of this club before he will give it his support. As the scruples of Bro. Marsh are doubtless shared by others, it would be well if the worthy Secretary would kindly satisfy these scruples (as doubtless he can), and thus insure the hearty co-operation of country Freemasons in the successful management of this much needed club. During the evening songs were given by Bros. Ridal, Mason, Badger, and others, the accompaniments being played by Bro. Harvey, J.D. Amongst the visiting brethren we noticed Bros. John Cobham, P.M. of the Merchants' Lodge, No. 241, Liverpool; Thomas Jefferson, S.W. of the London Lodge, No. 108, London; William Jervis, S.W., and John Arthur Binney, of the Britannia Lodge, No. 139, Sheffield; Henry Ecroyd, W.M., and John Ridal, S.W., of the Royal Brunswick, No. 296, Sheffield; William White, W.M., and Samuel Bramhall Ellis, S.W., of the Wentworth Lodge, No. 1239, Sheffield.

INSTRUCTION.
PERCY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 45).—The resuscitation of this lodge took place at Bro. Fysh's, Southgate-road, on Saturday last. A very large number of brethren attended for the purpose of assisting at the rehearsal of the consecration and installation ceremonies by Bro. J. Terry. The ceremonies were rendered in that faultless manner for which Bro. Terry has long been famous, and elicited the warmest marks of approbation from the assembled brethren. Bro. Whaley, 813, conducted the musical parts. Bro. Heath, P.M. and Sec. 198, having been installed, appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Cooper, S.W.; Main, J.W.; Halford, Treas.; Killick, Sec.; Percy, S.D.; Stock, J.D.; and Saul, I.G., which important office he had filled the whole evening with his well-known zeal and ability. Sixty new members were elected. A vote of thanks unanimously accorded to Bro. Terry was duly acknowledged. Bro. Cooper was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and the lodge closed. Nearly forty of the members sat down to supper, at which Bro. Heath presided. After the usual loyal toasts, that of "The W.M." was proposed by Bro. Terry. The W.M., in response, said that he felt the greatest gratification at being present and satisfaction at the prospects of the lodge, which he said was one of the oldest, and had in past times afforded instruction to many who had made a name in Masonry. "The Percy Lodge of Instruction," coupled with the name of Bro. Percy, the newly-appointed Preceptor, was duly acknowledged, and that of "The Officers" by the Treasurer and Secretary. The name of Bro. Terry was received with acclamations of pleasure, who said that it was a particular pleasure to him to assist at the resuscitation of the lodge, for in it he had received some of his first instruction in Masonry, and that for several years he had been a constant attendant, also that it was in this lodge he had first worked the Fifteen Sections; and amongst the members he numbered some of his dearest personal friends, and that he would attend as often as possible to aid and instruct the officers in their duties, and hoped that the mother lodge would be proud of their newly-resuscitated offspring, and would aid and encourage them in the future more than they had done in the past. Bros. Hook, Read, Milord, and several other brethren added to the harmony of the evening by singing some excellent songs.

GLASGOW.—Chapter Cathedral (No. 67).—The annual festival of this chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, 22, Struthers-street, on Tuesday, the 22nd ult., Comp. J. Duthie, M.E.Z., presiding; Comp. Wood, Treas., as Croupier. A most ample repast, excellently purveyed by Comp. J. Malcolm, 26, Struthers-st., was put upon the table at about 8 p.m., and most heartily enjoyed by all present. The first toast was "The Queen and the Craft," "Grand Chapters," and "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," which was most heartily responded to, after which Comp. Wood in a most telling speech, though brief, replied to the last named toast. Then came the toast of the evening, that of "The Cathedral Royal Arch Chapter," by the Chairman. Comp. Duthie said it was very cheering, and gave him very much pleasure, to propose this toast, as the chapter was in as good a position as he could wish; and having so many noble companions present on this occasion, if there was one meeting happier than another it was the one of their annual festival. Every companion present, I think, will agree with me that we have had a bountiful supply of good things laid before us, and if we fail to enjoy ourselves I think we have only ourselves to blame, and while I am engaged in proposing this toast I trust that every companion present will charge, and prepare to do justice to it, as I wish Royal Arch chapters to succeed everywhere, and continue to succeed, as well, if not better, for the future as it has done for the past in the Cathedral—that her house may continue to be the best imitation of a Masonic Temple, as the Temple of Zerubbabel was a copy of that of Solomon, and the Temple of Herod a copy of Zerubbabel, except it was larger in size, of nobler material, and higher arc, wrought by the hands of Masons of Athens, and Antioch, and was divided, as in the days of Solomon, into a holy place, and a holy of holies, by a veil or curtain of the finest work, so may this Cathedral Royal Arch Chapter try and excel in the noble work, having at all times within her veils the three lesser and the three greater lights of Masonry, that the companions may at all times see to work well, and that many Gentiles and Jews from all nations will come and rally round our standard. This toast met with a very able reply from Comp. Campbell. The toasts of "Sister Chapters," "The Ladies" and "The Masonic Press," severally followed, and were replied to—that of "The Sister Chapters," by Comp. J. Miller, M.E.Z., Chapter 50, Glasgow; that of "The Ladies" by Comp. Campbell, and "The Masonic Press" by Comp. Bickerton ("Freemason"). The harmonium was most ably presided over by Comp. Miller.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle and Rose (No. 73).—This lodge celebrated its 122nd anniversary by a supper and assembly at Bro. Wallace's Assembly Rooms, on Wednesday evening, 23rd ult. There was a large attendance of members and their friends. R.W.M. Bro. G. McDonald presided, Bros. J. F. Hanbidge and J. Ballantine acting as Croupiers. The very excellent menu of Bro. J. Carmichael gave great satisfaction. After the toasts of "The Queen" and "Prince of Wales and rest of the Royal Family" had been duly honoured, the Chairman gave "The Three Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland." Bro. G. W. Wheeler, in replying, called attention to the large sums disbursed in charity by the Grand Lodge of England, and the three benevolent institutions, namely, those for old men and women and the Girls' and Boys' Schools, amounting together to upwards of £30,000 last year. The Croupier gave "The P.G.L." and Bro. J. Kinaird replied. Bro. G. Innis proposed the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to the Thistle and Rose, No. 73," highly eulogising its Master and other office-bearers, most of whom he had known for many years. The Chairman, in his reply, stated that in the century and a quarter they had been now in existence they had had seasons of adversity as well as of prosperity, but he was proud to say they never stood in a better position than now. This was the fifth time he had filled the chair at their festivals, and he was glad to think they still acted up to their name, blending the rose with the thistle by appointing a fair proportion of their officers from Englishmen. They found that the union of the two conduced to true prosperity. An assembly followed.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Star (No. 219).—On Friday, the 25th ult., about 90, including their wives and sweethearts and friends, met in the hall, Trongate, to celebrate the 77th anniversary of the lodge. The meeting was opened with prayer by the worthy Chaplain of the lodge, after which the company sat down to a most excellent menu, the chair being occupied by Bro. J. Morgan, R.W.M., supported by Bro. J. Martin, D.M.; A. Bain, P.M. 103; Wilson, 27; J. Wood, R.W.M. 441; Singleton, R.W.M. 178; J. Wilson, P.M. 219; and W. H. Bickerton ("Freemason"), 972, E.C., 34, 87, 27, 219, and 360, S.C. Croupiers, Bros. Horn and Mearns. After the cloth had been removed, the Chairman arose, amid applause, and said: Ladies, Croupiers, and brethren, it gives me great pleasure to occupy the chair at all times, but more especially on this particular occasion in having so many ladies present with us. We have at all times beauty adorning our lodges, but on this occasion we have beauty in nature, beauty in presence, and beauty of sex. I am glad to congratulate you on your appearance, and ourselves, brethren, in being honoured by their fair presence on this occasion, and, I trust, on many others. To you, ladies, much of Freemasonry must ever remain a secret, and our business meetings cannot admit of your presence. Therefore, on occasions such as these we are happy to be adorned with your bright and cheering presence, and I hope each and all of you may enjoy yourselves on this our annual festival. Freemasonry, with its principles, has been handed down to us from time immemorial, and nothing is more pure and unselfish than that which springs from it in our sister country, England. About two years ago it was thought that a great blow of a destructive character was dealt against our Order by the resignation of their G.M., the Marquis of Ripon, on his joining the Church of Rome. It is true that his resignation was most keenly felt, but the principles of our noble Order were based upon too pure and bright a character to lose one step of our stronghold. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales came to the rescue, was elected, and installed as Grand Master, and since that time Freemasonry has flourished more than ever and shall flourish onward. Their R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold have joined our Order, and on reading the "Freemason" I am delighted to see that Prince Leopold has been elected Master of the Apollo Lodge, Oxford, and Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire. Surely this augurs well for the Order, surely must show the neutral world that there is something in Freemasonry more than a name if its principles are acted up to. Masonry knows no distinction; we have kings, princes, and noblemen of every rank adorning our ranks, and the king in our eyes is no more than the humblest subject. We all meet on a level. Freemasonry is founded on the purest of principles, that of faith, hope, and charity, though there are many join our ranks, I am sorry to say, who do not act up to the principles, but be assured ladies that a true Mason will make a good husband and a loving father, and you must forbear a little when we absent ourselves from our ain fire side and your bright presence. Rest assured that while in our lodges we are endeavouring to do some noble act in accordance with the landmarks of our noble Order. I was sorry to say that we, as Freemasons in Scotland, have not much to speak of in the way of benevolence; we have nothing to show for Freemasonry, not an institution of any kind; all that we can boast of is two or three pounds from our lodges, and four or five pounds from our Provincial Benevolent Fund, in all not exceeding £12. What is that to the decayed Freemason, or to the widow left with a family of five or six young children unprovided for? Think of the widows and orphans deprived of their bread winners, having been reduced from comparative comfort to misery and want. What can ten pounds do for a case of this kind? This relief that we boast of may do for immediate assistance, but nothing more—it is not equal to the demand. Look what they are doing for the widows, orphans, and decayed Freemasons in other countries. I read in the "Freemason" last Saturday of the anniversary of the Benevolent Institution for Widows and Aged Freemasons in England; what a glorious result, the sums collected on this occasion being over £9000, and lists yet to come in. This, I say, is doing and carrying out what we profess. I regret to say that we, as Scotch Masons, are not doing our duty, and that Freemasonry with us is but a name; let us put our shoulders to the wheel and show that we are doing our duty. The toast list was then proceeded with from the chair: "The Queen and Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," coupled with their respective Grand Masters, which was most enthusiastically responded to, "The P.G.L. of Glasgow," by the Croupier, Bro. Horn, coupled with the name of Bro. Singleton, R.W.M. Lodge Scotia, No. 178. Bro. Singleton, in reply, said he had much pleasure in responding to this toast, as the P.G.L. of Glasgow was a credit to the province to which it belonged; the office-bearers were doing their duty well; they had a benevolent fund with funds to the extent of £400; and were in the position to do a good deal in the way of charity, and with such a worthy brother as W.M. Neilson, their present Grand Master, they were sure to do well. "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," by Bro. J. Wilson, I.P.M., responded to by Bro. Wood, R.W.M. Lodge 441. Then came the toast of the evening, that of "Lodge Star, No. 219," by Bro. Bain, P.M. Union and Crown, No. 103, coupled with the name of their respected Master, Bro. Morgan. This toast met with continuous cheering, and was heartily drunk. Bro. Bain said it gave him much pleasure to propose this toast, for very few lodges in this province were in a more healthy condition than Lodge Star was at the present. They had seen their ups and downs, but he was glad to say were now prospering, and under the guidance of their present R.W.M. and office-bearers they were bound to succeed, for very few could perform the ceremonies of the Order more correctly than Bro. Morgan; in fact, it was a pleasure for any one to be present when he was working, which accounted for the very large attendance they had on the nights of their meetings. Bro. Morgan thanked Bro. Bain for the very kind manner he had proposed the toast of Lodge Star, which he had the honour to preside over. He had always done his duty to the best of his ability since he had been connected with the lodge, and should endeavour to do so, and if he gave satisfaction that is all he wished for. He could say, as Bro. Bain said, the lodge had had its ups and downs, but now was in a prosperous condition, for the hall they now sat in was their own, and they had now formed a benevolent fund in connection with the lodge, and with the present office-bearers he had to support him success was certain. The toasts of "The Sister Lodges," "The Ladies," "The Press," Strangers and the Chair" were severally given and suitably replied to—"Sister Lodges" by Bro. Wilson, Lodge 27; "The Ladies," Bro. Duthie; "The Press" by Bro. Bickerton ("Freemason"); and "The Chair" by Bro. Morgan. During the evening, between the toasts, the company was much delighted with some most excellent songs, enlivened by the harmonium. A most excellent quadrille band having been engaged, dancing commenced with unflagging spirit until about 5 a.m., which brought to a close one of the most happy meetings of this lodge.

Graham, J.W.; W. Findlay, S.M.; W. Keiller, S.D.; Reid, J.D.; Jamieson, I.G.; and Minnoch, Tyler. Bro. Lamb said he was sorry that Bro. J. Peacock, 85; R. Barr, J.W. 87; J. M. Duncan, 116; D. Mather, 116; P. McWilliam, 202; A. Rae, 262; J. Hamilton, 399; G. Kilgour, 419; and W. Ferguson, P.M. ("Freemason"), Messrs. G. J. Adams and G. Thompson was initiated by Bro. Leckie, W.M.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCA-SHIRE.

By command of Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Provincial Grand Master, a special Grand Lodge was held in Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, Manchester, on Thursday, 2nd inst., for the purpose of considering and adopting a vote of sympathy and condolence with Mrs. Callender and her family on their sad bereavement by the death of the lamented Bro. W. Romaine Callender, Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

A numerous attendance of the brethren from all parts of the province testified to the feeling of respect with which the late Bro. Callender was universally regarded. The lodge was suitably draped in black, and the brethren also conformed to the regulation as to mourning recently issued to the province.

The R.W. Provincial Grand Master (Col. Le G. N. Starkie) occupied the chair, and amongst others present were Bros. J. L. Hine, P. Prov. G.W., as Dep. Prov. G. Master; C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, P. Prov. G.W., as Prov. S.G. Warden; Charles H. Coates, Prov. J.G. Warden; Robt. Hopwood Hutchinson, P. Prov. G.W.; Geo. Mellor, P. Prov. G.W.; James A. Birch, P. Prov. G.W.; John Barker, P. Prov. G. Treas.; R. Mc D. Smith, P. Prov. G. Treas.; Thos. Chorlton, Prov. G. Reg.; Wm. Harrison, P. Prov. G. Reg.; Chas. Heywood, P. Prov. G. Reg.; John Tunnah, Prov. G. Sec.; Peter Royle, M.D., Prov. S.G. Deacon; Geo. Wood, Prov. J.G. Deacon; Jno. Chadwick, P. Prov. G. Deacon; Wm. Almond, Prov. G. Sup. of Works; Thos. Entwisle, P. Prov. G. Sup. of Wks.; W. H. Hopkins, Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.; Robt. Whittaker, P. Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.; Hy. Maiden, P. Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; Wm. Barlow, P. Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; Jas. Holroyd, P. Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; Thos. Law, P. Prov. G. Org.; John Taylor, Prov. G. Purst.; Albert Wolstenholm, Asst. Prov. G. Purst.; C. F. Matier, Past G. W. Greece, and representatives from 65 of the 82 lodges in the province.

After the Provincial Grand Lodge had been opened in due form, the R.W. Prov. Grand Master referred in earnest and impressive terms to the loss which the province and the whole of the Craft had sustained by the death of the late Bro. Callender, and intimated that a form of address of sympathy and condolence, with Mrs. Callender and her family had been drawn up, of which he approved and which the Prov. Grand Secretary would read to the brethren.

The Prov. Grand Secretary read the proposed address as follows:—

"To Mrs. Romaine Callender,—We, the Freemasons of the Eastern Division of the County Palatine of Lancaster, in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, are affectionately moved to express our sympathy and condolence with you and your family, under the grievous bereavement you have sustained by the lamented death of your late husband, and our beloved friend and associate, William Romaine Callender, Esquire, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of our Order in the said division. We feel that in expressing our sympathy with you and your family on this melancholy occasion, we must forbear to enter the sanctuary of our late brother's private virtues, where as a husband and father the exercise of those qualities so deeply endeared him, or to dilate upon the distinguished career he pursued, and the honourable character he maintained in his native city and county, as a magistrate as well as in other positions of eminence and distinction, and as a representative of his native city in the legislative assembly of this nation. But as a brother Freemason we can speak of him as one of the brightest ornaments of the Order, and as excelling in those gifts and attainments which so eminently qualify him to inculcate the virtuous precept, and to exemplify the beneficent principles of the Order. Considering that the present is not an appropriate opportunity for lengthened observations which might not be congenial to the minds of those with whom we seek to sympathise, we will only assure you that we fervently pray that you may be sustained in your bereavement by divine aid, and your grief alleviated by heavenly consolation, Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, 2nd March, 1876."

Bro. J. L. Hine, P. Prov. G. Warden, proposed that the address as now read be adopted, and that it be signed by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master on behalf of this province, and be forwarded by the Provincial Grand Secretary to Mrs. Callender.

Bro. James A. Bird, P. Prov. G. Warden, in seconding the motion, referred to a touching manner to the late Bro. Callender's many public and private virtues, and to the closing moments of a life sacrificed to the welfare of his fellow creatures.

The motion was submitted to the meeting and carried unanimously.

The Provincial G. Lodge was then closed in due form.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The committee of this institution was held on Wednesday, in the library, Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. S. Rawson, Raynham W. Stewart, Griffiths Smith, W. Hale, Hyde Pullen, R. Wentworth Little, C. A. Cotterburn, William Stephens, A. H. Tattershall, Charles Lacey, Dr. Hogg, John Constable, W. Hilton, J. Newton, John Bellerby, C. F. Hogard, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, John Dennison (Architect of the Institution); H. Massey ("Freemason"); James Terry (Secretary); and William Lane (Collector).

Bro. Terry reported the result of the last festival of the institution. To this festival there were 214 Stewards, and the amount announced was £9174 10s. 6d., with eight lists to come in. Of these six had been sent in, and the total amount subscribed to the present time was £9274 18s. 6d. Bro. Terry also reported that he had communicated to Lord Skelmersdale, who then presided, the vote of thanks accorded to him by the committee at last meeting for presiding on the occasion of the festival. He had not however, yet received an acknowledgment.

Bro. Terry also reported the death of Bro. W. Farnfield, late Secretary of the Institution.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart then rose and said: I rise with very deep regret to propose that we should communicate our feelings to the widow and family of Bro. Farnfield. I knew Bro. Farnfield many years ago, in fact, Bro. Farnfield was the first brother that introduced to my notice our noble Masonic Institutions. The first Stewardship I ever stood with connected with Bro. Farnfield. I had the greatest respect and regard for Bro. Farnfield, and I do not believe that there is a brother round this table who knew him who has not the same feeling. However, he is gone from us, but at a ripe old age. He has done good suit and service in his time, and I believe he and Bro. Barrett were the founders of the Aged Institution, which is, however, the youngest of the three Masonic Institutions. He did suit and service while God spared him with health and strength; and I am very glad to know that we had the means at our disposal of doing our duty to him by making the last of his years happy and comfortable. I therefore rise with very deep regret on hearing of his death to move "That this committee, having been informed of the decease of Bro. William Farnfield, late Secretary of this Institution, desires to convey to his widow and family its heartfelt sympathy and warmest condolence in the bereavement they have sustained. Profoundly sensible of the long and valuable services rendered by him to Freemasonry generally, and notably to this institution, the committee bears vividly in recollection the interest manifested by him during the many years he was so intimately associated with it, and is anxious to place on record its high sense and appreciation of the manner in which he discharged the duties of his position, and in so doing to pay a fitting and merited tribute of admiration and regard for the memory of one whose loss it so deeply deplores." Brethren, I ask you to pass that vote, and in asking you again I would still refer to the very noble services, the great kindness, and good feeling our Bro. Farnfield has always shown to us when he filled a higher position than our Secretary in Grand Secretary's office. I am sure there were none of us who ever applied to Bro. Farnfield there for information who did not receive it. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. W. Hale, P.M. St. Clement Danes, seconded the motion.

The Chairman said: I will not put the motion in the usual formal way, because I am quite sure it will be unanimously carried. Therefore, I hope you will allow me to have recorded that it is unanimous without putting it to the vote.

This was agreed to, and the motion was declared to be unanimous.

Bro. Terry reported three deaths among the annuitants, after receiving respectively £27, £49, and £4 10s.

The Warden's report for the last month recorded among other things a visit paid by the inmates of the Asylum to the Crystal Palace, with which they were much delighted. One inmate of the building desired to give up his apartments to go to live with his friends.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart then said that on the occasion of the festival of 1875 he moved that the Stewards of that festival should be invited to pay a visit to the institution at Croydon. It was accepted, and a great many went, and he was quite certain that it did a great deal of good to the institution, because many of the brethren had never seen and never heard of it before. The committee were deeply indebted to the exertions of Bro. Terry and to the brethren who assisted at that inspection of a building which really was a credit to the Craft. He therefore moved that the Stewards for 1876 be invited down to the institution at Croydon, and that the expenses be paid, the same as was done on the Stewards' visits to the Boys' and Girls' schools. They would be doing that which was serving the interests of the institution, and also which caused great pleasure to the inmates or those who had taken up their cause.

Bro. S. Rawson seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

An addition was made to the wages of the gardener, who devotes all his time to the grounds of the institution, and Bro. Terry reported that all the repairs to the institution had been completed. This was confirmed by Bro. Dennison, the Architect, and a cheque for the amount was signed on the spot. Permission was granted to one lady to have half her late husband's annuity, and permission was granted to one annuitant to reside in the asylum. Some small matters were afterwards disposed of, and the committee adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of subscribers to this institution met on Saturday last, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. William Ruebeck in the chair. The other members present were Bros. Benj. H. A., John Symonds, H. Browne, J. C. Daubert, Raynham W. Stewart, Henry W. Hunt, Jesse Turner, J. M. Stedwell, Hyde Pullen, C. Rosenthal, J. G. Chancellor, F. Adlard, H. Massey ("Freemason"), and F. Binckes (Secretary).

An addition of £10 and £5 a year to the salaries of the fourth and fifth masters of the school, recommended by the House Committee, was confirmed; and the purchase of Kent House for £2000 was approved of, and remitted to the Quarterly Court in April next for final authorisation. This was moved by Bro. Jesse Turner and seconded by Bro. John Symonds; and it was the general feeling of the committee that the purchase was a most valuable one in the interests of the institution.

In the course of the reading of the minutes of the House Committee for information, the General Committee were informed of the receipt of a letter from Mr. Du Plat Taylor, secretary to the East and West India Dock Company, stating the company's willingness to take properly qualified boys from this institution into the offices of the company as junior clerks. The minutes also recorded directions given to the Secretary to write to Mr. Du Plat Taylor, thanking him and accepting the offer.

The gift of 14 volumes by Bro. Benj. H. A. to the library of the school, the third presentation of the same kind by that brother, was also recorded, as well as the thanks of the committee for the gift.

The total number of boys to be admitted at next election was fixed at 16, and a conversation ensued on the special topic of purchase cases, Bros. Browne and Symonds leading. Bro. Browne was not in favour of admission by purchase, but thought if the building was extended the admission of purchase boys might be extended also.

The committee then adjourned.

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

The annual assembly of the General Grand Conclave of Knights of the Masonic and Military Order of the Red Cross of Constantine and Appendant Orders was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Wednesday evening last, after the assembling of the Premier Conclave, at which some formal business was performed. At the General Grand Conclave Sir F. M. Williams, Grand Sovereign, presided; Col. Burdett, Grand Viceroy Eusebius and Lord Skelmersdale, Past Grand Viceroy, also attending. The other Sir Knight present were John Boyd, G.H.P.; J. Percy Leith, P.G.V.; Rev. J. M. Vaughan, H. C. Levander, G.H.C.; Angelo Lewis, G.C.; Thos. W. White, G.H.; Thos. Cubitt; H. A. Dabois, G.A.T.; J. T. Moss; Fred. Kelly, G. Swd. B.; Wm. Ruebeck; E. H. Thielay, G. Stand. B.; Henry Parker, G. Org.; C. F. Hogard; J. G. Marsh, P.G.S.G. and P.G.A.; A. A. Pendlebury, Jas. Lewis Thomas, Bernard Sharp, P.S. Conclave, 7, Guernsey; John Gilbert, Sentinel; George Harrison, Deputy Sentinel; John B. Mercer, J. Clark, Gen. Moren, Whitney Wilkinson, Chas. Knott, M.L. Gen. Hants; Chas. Groom, 35; Col. Peters, W. T. Howe, Joshua Nunn, W. H. Scott, P.S. 101; H. Ramsden, John Mason, John M. Levick, S. Rosenthal, Hyde Pullen, H. H. Shirley, W. H. Hubbard, P.G. Treas.; Frank Green, Samuel Love Green, Frederick Binckes, Herbert Dicketts, Thomas Kingston, Charles Hammerton, George Kenning, Rev. P. M. Holden, C. W. Gray, Alfred Williams, F. D. Rasboytrick, Edward Veare, H. Amor, E. C. Mather, Henry Venn, J. F. Attergill, H. W. Lane, H. M. Carter, E. Letchworth, W. E. Jameson, Alf Moore, Thomas Brooke, 17; W. Winn, H. Massey ("Freemason"); and Dr. Woodman. The Province of Bristol sent up a strong contingent, there being from this province alone the Deputy Intendant General of the Province of Bristol, Sir Knt. G. F. Tuckey; the Past Sovereign of the William D'Irwin Conclave, 17, Sir Knts. W. Hodges; the Sovereign of No. 17, J. T. Hallam; the Viceroy of No. 17, Sir Knt. W. Munro; Sir Knts. Lane, Amor, Williams, Ware, Brooke, and W. A. Scott, Past Sovereign of No. 101, Bristol.

After the formal opening of the conclave Sir Knight R. Wentworth Little, Grand Treasurer, read the report for the year, which showed the Order to be in a condition of steady progress; several new conclaves having been opened and new members coming into them in considerable numbers.

At the conclusion of the reading of this report it was put to the meeting and unanimously adopted.

Lord Skelmersdale then rose to move that a vote of condolence with the family of the late Sir Knt. W. Romaine Callender on their recent bereavement be passed. He was sure that those who knew the late Sir Knight well, and many present knew him even better than he (Lord Skelmersdale) himself, would bear him out in saying that a truer Mason, or a brother more devoted to the different Orders to which he belonged, never lived. No man more acted up to the Orders to which he belonged; he was a great supporter of all charities, and he had left behind him a reputation which would prove a bright example to all who followed him.

Col. Burdett, in seconding the motion, said he could add nothing to what the noble lord had said. The late Sir Knight was an excellent Mason; he was a great supporter of all charitable institutions; and he was happy to say his efforts were thoroughly appreciated by all who knew him, and by none more than Masons, and in Lancashire, where he was so well known.

Sir F. M. Williams most thoroughly endorsed all that had been said by the Sir Knights who had preceded him with respect to the late lamented Sir Knt. W. Romaine Callender.

The motion was then put and carried unanimously.

On the motion of Sir Knt. John Mason, seconded by Sir Knt. H. A. Dabois, the sum of thirty guineas was unanimously voted from the Grand Almoner's Fund to be placed on the list of Sir Knt. H. C. Levander, as Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The election of Senators then took place, and resulted as follows:—Sir Knts. John Mason, with 46 votes, E. H. Thielay, 43; T. B. Yeoman, 43; W. T. Howe, 40; Kelly, 40; C. F. Hogard, 37; Macartney, 37; Rev. P. M. Holden, 36; A. A. Pendlebury, 36; and Herbert Dicketts, 34.

The conclave was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which had been admirably provided by the City Terminus Hotel authorities under Bro. C. F. Lord, and for the excellent arrangements of which the Sir Knights were indebted to Sir Knt. George Kenning. Col. Burdett presided, having Lord Skelmersdale on his right, and Sir Knt. Percy Leith on his left. Most of the Sir Knights named above attended, and after the banquet had been disposed of, Col. Burdett proposed the toasts. After that of "The Queen" had been duly honoured,

Col. Burdett again rose, and said the next toast would be received with the greatest pleasure and enthusiasm. It was the toast of a member of the Order whom they had long delighted to see amongst them, and he hoped it would be still many years that he might be among them and reign over them. The Prince of Wales, to whom he alluded, was now in a distant land, but we were able by means of the wires to know how he was going on; and it gave us great pleasure to read of his progress and exploits. He hoped his Royal Highness would soon be back with us again. (Hear, hear.) The Princess of Wales was deservedly popular and very much liked by the people of this country. The longer she was among us the better she would be loved and liked. The rest of the Royal Family were also very popular. We had in a short time had introduced into Masonry Prince Leopold, who formed another link which united the Order with the Royal Family. In the last generation the Royal Family were members of the Order, as almost every male member of that family belonged to it. Now, many members of the reigning family were joining, and he hoped before many years were over all of them would be members of the Craft. (Hear, hear.)

Col. Burdett then proposed "The Grand Sovereign, Sir F. M. Williams," who had not been able to stop at the banquet on account of a severe domestic affliction. He also coupled with this toast the name of the Earl of Bective, whom the Sir Knights had not had an opportunity of seeing lately.

Lord Skelmersdale proposed the next toast. It was one, he said, which he was sure they would all receive with the greatest enthusiasm, "The Health of the Most Eminent the Grand Viceroy, Col. Francis Burdett." (Cheers.) He felt sure when he said it that this toast would be well received, for it had been his lot now to meet Col. Francis Burdett several times in the metropolitan district, and it had given him the greatest pleasure to witness the increasing enthusiasm with which his name was as time went on received. He did not wish to flatter Col. Burdett, but it gave him the greatest pleasure to find him presiding over the Sir Knights that evening. Col. Burdett was, he believed, the Grand Sovereign elect of Scotland, and he was glad there was a representative of Scotland present to welcome him into the bosom of that conclave. He proposed Col. Burdett's health, and wished him long life and health.

Col. Burdett said he sincerely thanked the Sir Knights for the very kind manner in which they had responded to this toast, but he must say he wished he could return thanks in as few words, comprising such a large subject, as Lord Skelmersdale had used. He feared he must fail in doing so as he would wish. It was true that he and Lord Skelmersdale had had the pleasure of meeting together frequently, and he trusted they might long have that pleasure in future. He felt very much gratified indeed to see around him so many Sir Knights whom he had been in the habit of meeting for years—he might say for some considerable number of years. Lord Skelmersdale had kindly alluded to his (Col. Burdett's) election for the Grand Conclave of Scotland, as their first Sovereign, and he assured the Sir Knights, proud as he must feel of having obtained that position, he felt not only proud now, but it gave him great pleasure to be at the head of a Grand Conclave in Scotland, where he might say he was partially naturalised, having a son-in-law and daughter-in-law there. To him it must be a matter of great pleasure to be at the head of the Red Cross Order in Scotland, as it did to be at the head of the Order in England. (Hear.) It was a great honour, and he highly appreciated it. (Applause.)

Col. Burdett, in proposing "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale," said that all the Sir Knights were pleased to have his lordship present as a guest that evening. His lordship was well known, not only by the whole of his Province of Lancashire, but by the whole of the Freemasons of London and England. His lordship was not only present that evening among the Sir Knights for the first time, but he was constantly among them, whenever he had an opportunity of going out and performing his duties, which he did so ably and so well. They had seen him lately in different phases. On Wednesday previous he presided in Grand Lodge of England; a few days before he was at Oxford, installing Prince Leopold; and he had recently been in Lancashire, as well as other places, acting in Masonry. He had always performed his duties with satisfaction to Freemasons, had been most thoroughly welcomed by all wherever he has gone, and was beloved in all circles. If his lordship were not present he would be able to say more of him. His lordship was always available whenever his services were required.

Lord Skelmersdale, in reply, said that he thanked the brethren very heartily for the most kind way in which they had received his name, and Colonel Burdett for the extremely flattering terms in which he had proposed the toast. He assured the brethren that it never gave him greater pleasure than when he had to perform his duties in his Masonic life. If he was ever found wanting it was not from not having the inclination or not wishing to do his duty, but because he had duties elsewhere, and those were falling upon him pretty thickly now. He would, however, endeavour to perform his Masonic duties in a way entirely satisfactory to the brethren. He hoped he would always be worthy of the brethren's confidence.

Col. Burdett then proposed "Earl Ferrers, Senior Grand General, and the rest of the Grand Council." All the Sir Knights were aware that the Grand Council was the moving and head part of this Order, who did the administrative work, and he must say they did it most satisfactorily. With this toast he begged to couple the name of Sir Knt. Percy Leith, who did his work so well that it was the admiration of the whole of the Order.

Sir Knt. Percy Leith replied: It was a great compliment to him as well as to the other officers to have such complimentary remarks as had just been used by Col. Burdett. The officers and past officers of the Grand Conclave were always ready to do their duty, and on their behalf he would say, if any work should be required of them after their year of office had expired they would always be ready to do it. He had devoted a great portion of his time and attention to the Order of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, and he was happy to say he had done signal service, as far as he was concerned, and he had been well supported by his friends. He felt deeply indebted to those who had come forward in the council to assist, and he would always do the Order the greatest good he could. On behalf of the officers of the Grand Council he returned his most hearty and sincere thanks for the kind way in which his health had been drunk, and he sincerely trusted on future occasions the Grand Officers would be ready to support and assist at any ceremony where their services might be required.

Col. Burdett afterwards proposed "The Intendants General," and said, that all the Sir Knights were very much indebted to them for the success of the Orders. They were in fact, Generals in their districts, and had different conclaves under their command. They carried out their duties in a most efficient manner. One of them was present that evening, one who had been recently inducted in the office of Intendant General. He was the youngest, but though the youngest he was not the least, and he hoped he would not be the last. He had entered most enthusiastically upon his duties, and in Cambridgeshire he had introduced a large amount of vigour into the province. He alluded to Sir Knight Amphlett, who, though a young Mason, was very well known among Masons. They were all glad to see him, and he hoped they would have many opportunities of seeing him and hearing the good reports he had to make of those conclaves under his control. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Knight Amphlett responded. He was struck from the first moment he entered the Red Cross Degree by the beauty of its ritual, especially as given in the Premier Conclave. He was a very young man to be so honoured by having such a high office as that of Intendant General conferred upon him; but he hoped he would be as energetic in promoting the interests of the Red Cross in the province over which he was called to rule as others had shown who had been appointed before him. He looked upon himself as a very insignificant individual, but he hoped to make great efforts on behalf of the Order. He hoped to start a conclave at Oxford, which would be an offshoot from Cambridge, and he also hoped that there would soon be more conclaves in Cambridgeshire itself. He would feel it incumbent on him to start one or two more. He thanked Col. Burdett and the Sir Knights very much, and he would assure them that if they paid a visit to Cambridge, to see how the work was done there, he could promise them a hearty welcome. (Cheers.)

Sir Knt. Little proposed "The Grand Senate." This body was constituted on a democratic and an aristocratic basis, it being in the hands of the general body of Sir Knights to place members on the Grand Council. They performed very great service, and under Sir Knt. J. C. Parkinson, who was the senior officer, had done excellent work. Unfortunately, he was not then present; but they must not forget that they had among them Sir Knight Baird Mercer, from Scotland. The English Order was always glad to find that the Scottish knights stood upon their own ground, although the English Grand Conclave was very sorry to lose them. English Grand Conclave, however, would not be weakened by the fact of there being a separate Grand Conclave for Scotland, and the Grand Conclave of England would do all they could to promote the interests of the Grand Conclave of Scotland.

Sir Knt. W. Roebuck was the first to reply. All the members of the Senate had done their duty during the last twelve months to the best of their ability, and he was pleased to know the Senate was elected from the general body of Sir Knights, and in rotation they formed the council and so worked up to the governing body. He believed it was the right way, and the way all Orders should be supported. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Knight J. Baird Mercer also replied. He felt the honour that had been conferred upon the Scottish Sir Knights, more especially on the rather peculiar event that the Sovereign then sitting in the chair was the Sovereign elect of Scotland. This event was one which would not only tend to strengthen the bonds between the two countries, but to keep them together and to give them greater power. He was pleased to find that Sir Knt. Col. Burdett had relations with Scotland; and he hoped they would continue, so that the relations between the two bodies might have an additional bond of union. When Col. Burdett should go down to Scotland, and the members of the Grand Council accompanied him, they would find that they would receive a cordial welcome, and one that would satisfy them. He could assure the Sir Knights that the hearts of the Scottish Knights were warm to them, and that the allegiance which they had avowed to the Grand Council of England would continue as intact as it was at the present moment. In Scotland the Order had taken a ground that the Sir Knights had not expected at first. It began in a very small and humble way, but now it was beginning to start in the north, south, east, and west. Before long he hoped they would all be satisfied with the progress which the Order had made. Four years ago it was started in Edinburgh, and there were now six conclaves there. Shortly he expected they would ask for additional constitutional powers. (Cheers.)

Col. Burdett next proposed "The Sovereigns and Past Sovereigns" who were present, selecting Sir Knts. Yeoman, Hamerton, Pullen and Dubois, all of whom were thorough good working Masons and performed their duties whenever called upon.

Sir Knts. T. B. Yeoman, Charles Hamerton, Hyde Pullen, and H. A. Dubois respectively replied.

Sir Knt. Little proposed "The Stewards," of whom there were 45.

Sir Knts. J. W. Cubitt, Col. Peters, and W. T. Howe responded.

Col. Burdett then proposed "The Masonic Press," and complimented it on the great accuracy with which Masonic proceedings were reported. He referred particularly to the "Freemason," whose pages he had read for many years, and he had always found great accuracy displayed in its records of meetings, besides very great ability in the improvement of speeches which were delivered. It was very creditable to the Order to have such an organ, and the enterprise of the proprietor deserved every encouragement which could be given. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Knight H. Massey replied, and said that seeing that the "Freemason" was the only real Masonic organ, and he had been its reporter from the beginning, he took Col. Burdett's remarks as a compliment personal to himself. He might however say that though he felt very much flattered by the compliment, he did not look for it, as he simply performed his duty without fear, favour, or affection for any one.

Dr. Woodman proposed "Sir Knight Little," to whom he thought the great success of the evening was due.

Sir Knt. Little in reply, said that Lord Skelmersdale had informed him that he would be willing to take the Grand Viceroyship next year. Both his lordship and Sir F. M. Williams would attend next meeting of the conclave. Sir Knt. Percy Leith had been appointed to the post of inspector of foreign and colonial correspondences the duties of which, he knew he would thoroughly discharge. Sir Kt. Knott had been appointed for Hampshire, and Capt. Bartlett for Dorsetshire. This must be satisfactory to all the Knights, and he hoped that if he were spared many years we should witness a very great prosperity in the Order. He had been Grand Treasurer, and if next year the confidence of the Sir Knights should again place that important office on his shoulders he would again discharge it with the same faithfulness as hitherto.

Sir Knight Binckes proposed "Dr. Woodman," who replied.

Sir Knt. Levander replied for "The Charities," and thanked Grand Conclave for having given 30 guineas to his list as Steward for the Girls' School. He impressed upon the Sir Knights the fact that he was Steward on the occasion of the next festival, and solicited their support, as he wanted to take up a large amount on his list. (Cheers.)

Some other toasts followed and the Sir Knights separated, after having spent a charming and most successful evening.

A beautiful selection of music was performed by Bro. Seymour Smith, Bro. Stedman, Miss Annie Sinclair, and Lucie Hann.

The election of Grand Senators resulted in favour of the undermentioned Sir Knights:—

The City of London Bonus Tea should certainly become an article of universal consumption, when it is known that it is entirely selected by an eminent firm of some forty years' standing, who for the greater part of that time have been practical tea tasters, which enables them to guarantee the purity and excellence of the article they supply. The firm referred to is that of Messrs. Murray and Dean, of 41, Ludgate-hill, who, in addition to supplying teas of the choicest growths at the lowest prices, have also successfully introduced a system by which every purchaser receives a bonus cheque representing the discount for cash, which cheques on amounting to one shilling or upwards are paid to the persons presenting them. This novel principle has none of the risks inseparable from lotteries; for there is no chance or uncertainty whatever, as every package of the City of London Bonus Tea contains a cheque in proportion to the sum expended. The largely increased sale of their teas has led the firm to adopt this system, on the principle of small profits and quick returns due to the spirit of the age, and is one which may be followed with advantage. Alderman Sidney, who was Lord Mayor some years ago, and whose eminent public services in saving the City funds to the extent of several thousands were duly acknowledged by the Corporation, may be remembered as formerly the head of this firm, which since his retirement has maintained its high reputation, and his remaining partners well deserve the support and co-operation of the public in more widely diffusing the benefits of the system they have so happily instituted.

It is very necessary that these few should be sent in at once, to enable the artist to proceed towards completion.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAR. 11, 1876.

HER MAJESTY'S VISIT TO WHITE-CHAPEL.

We have gladly to chronicle another visit of the Queen to the City, and to the London Hospital. Such visits of personal interest and sympathy will always be greatly appreciated by the loyal subjects of this great country, and are episodes on which the philanthropist and Freemason will ever look with approval and gratification. The Queen's reception by all classes was most enthusiastic, and the arrangements for the occasion seem to have been very well conceived and admirably carried out. The greatest good humour prevailed, no accidents are reported, and the loyalty of the citizens and of all classes were very warmly exhibited. We give from the "Times" a touching little incident which occurred at the hospital, as it will deeply affect and please all our readers. "Her Majesty now went through an accident ward (the Gloucester Ward), as had been arranged, and showed her lively interest in the unfortunate men who were lying there by many inquiries addressed to the President and to Mr. Rowsell, the Deputy Chairman, concerning the patients. Afterwards, she paid an unarranged visit to the Buxton Ward for little children, in the Alexandra Wing. A little girl of four, Kate Ambler, who was brought into the hospital on January 14th, with a burnt side and thigh, had previously said to Mr. Rowsell, 'If I could only see the Queen I should get well.' This remark was repeated to Her Majesty, who determined to gratify the child's innocent wish. 'My darling,' said the Queen to this little girl, 'I hope you will be a little better now.'"

THE JOURNEY OF OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was at Allahabad on March 7th, having come from Bareilly. He was received by the Viceroy, the Commander-in-Chief, the Lieut. Governor of the N.W. Provinces, the Judges, and other high officials. He received an address from the municipality. He held a chapter of the Star of India, and invested Major General Probyn and others. He was to proceed to Indore on the night of the 7th. He is perfectly well.

IS PIO NONO A FREEMASON?

We had thought that the question was settled in the negative, and that it was now pretty clear, whatever his connection with the secret societies in his Liberal days might have been, that he was not a Freemason. For thus far all the evidence adduced appears to us to be unreliable altogether, all the facts; indubitable fiction. The only importance attached to the fact itself is as a fact of history, beyond that it has no special importance, nor perhaps interest even, whether for Freemasons or profanes. But the "Il Precursore di Palermo" of January 31st, 1876, not only boldly states "au contraire," that everybody knows that the Pope is a Freemason, but publishes a certificate as a "traduzione originale" an "original translation" of a document which is "approved by the representative of Germany," and which seems at first sight to settle the question. For it certainly does appear to "constater" the fact, that on the 15th of August, 1831, at Palermo, in the Lodge "Eterna Catena," "Eternal Chain," Giovanni Mastai Ferretti, native of the Pontifical States, was initiated a Freemason. Indeed, the certificate professes to be a lodge certificate, and is signed by Giovanni Ferretti Mastai himself, (sic), by Matteo Chiava, the W. Master, by Paoli Duplessi, the Secretary, is countersigned by "Sisto Calano," Grand Master of the "R. Loggia di Napoli," and this remarkable document is "visé," so to say, by Gaglielmo de Willelsborh, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Bavaria. This document possesses to be found in the archives of the Lodge "Fidelta Germanica," Oriente di Noremburg, (Nuremberg), a daughter lodge of the Grand Mother Lodge, the Three Globes of Berlin. This certificate, the "Precursore" says, is in the archives numbered 13,715, is certified and authenticated in the usual manner, written in Italian, and sealed with the seal of the Grand Lodge "Luci Perpetua" of Naples, and owned by the Masonic Lodge "Eterna Catena" in Palermo. But the "Freimaurer" of Vienna for February, 1876, a new illustrated Masonic paper, to which we elsewhere allude, gives us an entirely different version of the whole affair. According to that paper the "Neue Freie Presse" of a few days previously had published a document, by which it seemed that in 1833 the Pope had been made a Freemason in the Lodge "Eterna Catena" at Palermo. This document seems to have originated with the "Gazetta di Napoli," January 16th, 1876, which declares that in the archives of the Lodge "Luci Perpetua," at Naples, a certificate, numbered 13,715, is to be found, declaring that on the night of August, 15th, 1839, Giovanni Mastai Ferretti was received as a Freemason in the Lodge "Eterna Catena," Palermo. This certificate is signed as before by the newly-initiated brother the Pope himself, the W.M., and the Secretary, whose names have already been given. This certificate is countersigned by "Sisto Calano," as was before said, G.M. of the Grand Lodge of Naples, and has the visé of Prince Wm. von Wittelsbach, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Bavaria. Such are the facts of the case. In the first place, we should like to know whether this certificate is to be found at Naples or at Nuremberg, whether the date is 1833 or 1839, and what Guglielmo, M. Willelsborh, or William Von Wittelsbach has to do with it? The fact is one way or the other, and let us first ascertain that, and then will come the secondary question, who is the attesting G.M. of Bavaria, and what that attestation means? We must look at the matter as an historical fact without political prepossessions or sentimental considerations. Is the statement true or untrue? And if it is true, of what value is the document, quâ an historical document? These are questions many brethren in Germany can answer critically, honestly, and well, and we await their reply before expressing our own opinion on the subject. We will, however, say this, we ought to have no sensational literature in Freemasonry; every statement should be tested and proved, and based alone on archaeological accuracy and historical truth.

WHAT NEXT, INDEED?

Such, we fancy, will be the almost involuntary outburst of wonder and alarm on the part of many a good old brother up and down the land on reading the letter from New York in our last with reference to the installation meeting of the Montgomery Lodge, No. 69, on the 23rd December, 1875. For it seems "horribile dictu" that "at the installation ceremony ladies were admitted." Well, our American brethren are going ahead with a vengeance! What, we hear old Past Master Dobbin say, "admit women to an installation, it's scandalous! never heard of such a thing in my life before; it will ruin Freemasonry altogether," &c., &c., &c. Now while we do not, we confess, ourselves see our way to go as far as these bold brethren in the Montgomery Lodge, we yet do not think that any good old brother need be alarmed amongst ourselves. We quite confess we cannot comprehend how the ceremonies of installation were performed if all were gone through in the presence of ladies, but so it would seem from the programme subjoined to the letter in question. We presume, however, that our able brethren in New York found some means of squaring Masonic ritual with the presence of their fair sisters which does not appear in the programme. At the same time we say this, we feel bound to admit that the general feeling in Great Britain will be that it is going a little too far, even though in a right direction. We are quite sensible of the great advantages which would accrue to our Order by a more frequent admission of ladies to our greater gatherings. We see no reason whatever why ladies should not be invited to our great educational and benevolent festivals, to special soirees, to organized banquets, and to agreeable reunions. Much more might be made of the female element, no doubt, by us than is made, but there is such a thing as overdoing it. With all deference to our good brethren in New York, we cannot say that we approve of so great a variation from established customs, perhaps our insular prejudices and old world notions may have something to do with this hesitation on our part. But so it is, and it is better frankly to say so, because we fancy that our humble opinion will be the same as that of ninety-nine out of every hundred brethren in Great Britain. We wish the "fairy beings," the "dear creatures," as Bro. Simmons enthusiastically calls them (he is young and inexperienced, and in love, and may be excused), all enjoyment on all occasions, and especially desiderate their halcyon smiles and pleasant voices in our Masonic gatherings at fitting times and seasons. We know how much they add to the happiness of life, the "agremens" of society, how greatly their kind, and pure, and high thoughts elevate our often grovelling manhood, and therefore, within due limits none will welcome our well dressed and gentle, and sympathetic, and graceful sisters more heartily than ourselves. But we feel bound to say, that the movement, though good in itself, will be gravely impeded amongst us, if instead of gradually improving our habits in this respect, we hastily sweep away all barriers which Masonic prudence would suggest, or Masonic ritual would demand. We go a long way for the "rights" of our Masonic sisters, knowing well their worth, their truth, their virtues and their importance to us all; but we do not think it well to initiate even the best of movements, with a wrong both to Masonic feeling, and the ancient laws of our excellent Order. It is unwise, in our opinion, to rush from one extreme to the other, and we in Great Britain, shall prefer to make the pleasant presence of the ladies, the exception, if even a most agreeable exception, to the sterner law of Masonic ritualism, and the unchanged requirements of ceremonial secrecy!

DER FREIMAURER OF VIENNA.

We welcome a new illustrated Masonic paper, "Der Freimaurer of Vienna," as a very promising and creditable production of the Viennese Masonic Press. We wish it all success, and trust that it may have a large circle of readers, and of fraternal supporters. It has reached its second number, and appears to be carefully edited, and well got up. Bro. Carl Fischer—we presume a relation of the well-known and able Brother Robert Fischer—is the editor, and we beg to assure our latest and not least worthy confrere, that from us he will always receive all fraternal courtesy, interest, and sympathy.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

We have received the last bulletin of the Grand Orient de France, and though space does not permit us to call attention to it this week, we shall do so next, as we think that our worthy Bro. St. Jean, and the Conseil de L'Ordre deserve great credit for their loyal endeavours to uphold the Constitutions coute qui coute.

P.G. LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

We have received the printed report from the D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire, with reference to the Boys' School, but as we are clearly of opinion that the appointment of such a Committee was "ultra vires," and have grave doubts of the legality of the Committee's appointment which has made this report, we decline to take any further notice of it. The whole of these unfortunate proceedings have a personal and partizan hue, and are in our opinion subversive of every true principle of the Craft to which we profess to belong.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

At the Cambridge Local Examination, Christmas, 1875, three boys from this school passed with first-class honours—the only ones in this class of those examined at the London Main Centre. Of these one was distinguished for mathematics and one for English. In the second and third classes there was one; and nine satisfied the examiners. Total passed, 14, out of 48 candidates sent up for examination. In all London and suburbs there were two schools ahead of the Royal Masonic School.—Mill Hill School, Hendon, passed eight; and Christ's College, Finchley, four.—In all England, three, Mill Hill School, eight; Finchley, Christ's College, four; and Brighton Grammar School, four. Four schools were equal—University School, Hastings, three; Huddersfield College, three; Wolverhampton Grammar School, three; and Framlingham Middle Class School, three.

THE WILSON MS. CONSTITUTION.

I give to-day the commencement and the close of the Wilson MS. Constitution.

"PHILLIPS MSS. 6,351.

"The Book of Constitutions.

"These charges that we have now rehearsed unto you, and all other that belonge to Masons yee shall keepe, so helpe your God and your Hallidome."

I believe that the Wilson and Edinburgh Kilwinning are "replicas," so to say, from one common original, or the Edinburgh Kilwinning may be a transcript of the Wilson, MS. which, as Preston knew about so distinctly, may have had something to do originally with York.

Je viens vous prier au nom de la lodge française "les Philadelphes et la Concorde Reunis," dont je suis l'Orateur, de vouloir publier parmi les annonces des loges l'avis suivant.

"Aux Franc-maçons anglais et étrangers qui parlent ou entendent la langue française; Maçonnerie Progressiste et Scientifique—Loge française les Philadelphes et la Concorde Reunis, tenu tous les Mercredi soir, à 9 heures, 6, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, au Spread Eagle; Orateur le F. H. Valleron."

Je vous serais personnellement très obligé si vous voulez bien fixer cette annonce dans les renseignements Maçoniques.—Votre dévoué, H. VALLETON.

[We publish the above at the request of the writer, who is, we believe a correspondent of the "Monde Maçonique," which is edited by our esteemed Bro. Caubet, but as we do not feel sure that the Lodge "Philadelphes et la Concorde Reunis" is a regular lodge or lawfully warranted, we shall be glad of "renseignements Maçoniques" on that point. Some time back the Board of General Purposes issued a circular to lodges, with reference to the "Philadelphes," &c. We should be glad to know, therefore, what is the exact position of the "Philadelphes et la Concorde Reunis," before alluding publicly to the matter.—Ed.]

BYE-LAWS OR BY-LAWS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I send you a cutting from a Bath newspaper of the 12th of February bearing upon the spelling of the word "Bye-law," alluded to in "Frater's" letter in the "Freemason" of same day, an extract from which may be useful. His Spelling Bee idea had been anticipated at Bath.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM TOFF.

THE "SPELLING BEE."

To the Editor of the Bath Herald.

Sir,—The spelling of the word "bye-law" at the Assembly Rooms has not only caused a little excitement, but has also been productive of some correspondence on the subject.

The following extract from a letter from no less an authority than the Recorder of Bath will doubtless be interesting to all readers and spellers:—

"i, Elm court, Temple, London, E.C.,

"Feb. 4th, 1876.

"Dear Sir,—When in Bath yesterday, and in conversation with a friend relative to the late "Spelling Bee" meeting, I was informed that you failed in consequence of spelling "bye-law" as I have written it, instead of by-law (without the letter e), the referees deciding that the latter is the correct way of spelling the word. I should have called upon you on the subject had I time, and I now take the first opportunity of affording my testimony to the accuracy of your spelling. The word bye-law is essentially a legal word, and we certainly find it in a prominent position in Acts of Parliament, and always spelt as you have spelt it. Not a session of Parliament has passed for the last 50 years in which the word so spelt is not to be found in a dozen different Acts. In that popular Act of Parliament, the Municipal Corporations Act of 1825, the word so spelt is to be found at least a hundred times, and in the statutes of the last session you will find the word so spelt at least a thousand times. In truth, in our Acts of Parliament it is never spelt in any other way, and the spelling of by-law is not to be found in any Act of Parliament for the last 50 years. Now, although erroneous spelling (like bad grammar) is occasionally to be met with in Acts of Parliament, it is always recognised as bad spelling, and is only exceptional; but in the case of the word bye-law, this spelling is the adopted and recognised spelling of the highest authority in the land, and which never departs from it. This, in my mind, is really a legislative declaration that this is the proper way of spelling the word.

"Believe me, yours very truly,

THOS. WM. SAUNDERS.

The "Penny Cyclopædia" also states:—"The word is of Saxon origin, and derived from the word by, or bye, a town; hence, town laws." There is therefore evidently a good ground for the alternative spelling, and it is strange that the three dictionaries used as authorities should not have admitted both ways. In this case the referees could not do otherwise than rule against the competitor, although it was most evident that those assembled at the rooms and many who were not present considered that the word was correctly spelt bye-law.

Apologising for thus trespassing upon your valuable space, I remain, Sir,

THE COMPETITOR RULED OUT "BY-LAW."

MASONIC CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

So much has been said by our Masonic brethren in trade in the leading thoroughfares of London of the evil effects upon their business by the different Co-operative Supply Associations, that I am induced to ask through the "Freemason" the reason we have not started a "Masonic Co-operative Store." Surely it would be a source of pleasure and benefit to the Craft to know that we were doing business with the brethren only.

The Masonic Club I have not the slightest doubt will be a great success, and so would the "Masonic Co-operative Stores," if started—I feel certain the shares would soon be taken up, and if conducted anything like the "Civil Service Stores" would pay a fair interest on the outlay, and the balance to be carried to the accounts of the Masonic Charities.

The brethren only to supply and belong to the affair. We are numerous enough without the outside public. A small annual payment would clear all the working expenses, and the charities could have innumerable articles from the stores, much to their benefit.

I think we ought, in justice to ourselves take the matter up at once, and meet our competitors with their own weapons on their own ground.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours most sincerely,

A MASTER MASON.

[We confess we do not quite comprehend the logic of "A Master Mason."—Ed.]

THE PROPOSED SCOTTISH MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

Sir,

I hope you will not doom my letter to the editorial limbo of the waste paper basket, because it is indited by a Mason's wife, who, of course is not one of the "mystic tie." My excuse for thus addressing you, is in the hope that more ladies may come forward and support the call made upon their husbands in the second appeal for the above institution.

It is a call which ought to interest them most deeply, one which ought to elicit their best and noblest feelings. If some of my sister wives would just give up the idea of that "charming new hat" or joining the ink this season, and send a subscription to their husband's lodges instead, they would not only have the satisfaction that always follows a good action, but the blessings of the aged and the orphans.

I feel sure the women of Scotland will put their shoulder to the wheel, and then Mr. Harriott need not despair about being last in the field. My friend your bard of the Scottish Grand Lodge has written truly when he says

"The last whiles are first, there's an Eye upon

"Tho' we seldom look up, never tires looking 'doon,

"That tak's a' the feckless aye under its ken,

"The wee hungry birds, and the weak Sons o' Men."

I am sure if the Masons of Scotland will only let their good dames read Mr. Harriott's letter, there is not a woman's heart but will glow with kindly feeling and "To the weary wandering pair,

Find comfort aye to spare."

And although you may not think so good Mr. Editor, we women can really accomplish wonders when you win us over in the right way; i.e. by touching the nobler warmer feelings of our hearts. I am sir, yours truly,

BARBARINA.

MISSING MS. CONSTITUTIONS OF THE FREEMASONS.

Now that another MS. has been unearthed, several of my friends are anxious to know how many are yet undiscovered.

Those familiar with the "Old Charges of British Freemasons" will be aware that the following are chronicled amongst the missing MSS. The Wilson MS., thanks to Bros. Woodford, Ellis, and Nixon, is now removed from that category:—

"York MS., No. 3, of A.D. 1630.

"Stone's MS." (Constitutions 1738, &c.)

"Dr. Plot's MS." (History of Staffordshire, 1686.)

"Dowland's MS." ("Gentleman's Magazine," 1815.)

"Dr. Rawlinson's MS." (Transcript, about 1730.)

"Wilson's MS." (lately discovered.)

"Krause's MS." (probably a compilation.)

Then there are printed transcripts of MSS. of which the originals have been traced, or believed to be so, viz.:

"Robert's MS., 1722 ("Harclean" MS., No. 1942, 17th century).

"Briscoe's MS., 1724 (uncertain).

"Cole's MS., 1726-9 (uncertain).

"Mrs. Dodd's MS., 1739 (variation slightly from Cole's).

There is also "Woodford's MS." (a transcript of "Cooke's MS.")

Bro. Woodford and myself have traced of late years several valuable MSS., including "York MS., No. 1," "Grand Lodge MS., No. 1," "Hope MS., No. 6," "Alnwick MS., No. 1," "Passworth's MS., No. 1," and "Wilson's MS., No. 1," not forgetting the valuable assistance of fellow Masonic students and friends.

I have also traced, with the valued aid of co-workers, a transcript of the "Chester MS., No. 1," which I now possess.

Bro. Jacob Norton has been the means of the valuable "Scarborough MS." being found, and Bro. Woodford of the "Gateshead MS." being published. There are still other MSS. to trace, including the "Wren MS., No. 1," "Hargrove's MS., No. 1," and "Dermott's MS., No. 1."

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

CONSECRATION OF THE ROYAL NAVAL COLLEGE LODGE, No. 1593, GREENWICH.

The magnificent pile of buildings on the river-front at Greenwich has recently undergone a fresh vicissitude. For many generations it was a favourite Royal palace, enlarged and beautified by successive sovereigns; for several more an asylum for our worn-out seamen; and three years ago the old pensioners were quartered out, and the palace converted into a great naval college, where about 250 officers are in regular residence, and studying their profession scientifically. The studies comprise mathematics, applied mechanics, physics, chemistry, fortification, nautical astronomy, navigation, naval architecture, marine engineering, steam, meteorology, maritime and international law, and modern languages—in fact, everything which can be of use to the accomplished naval officer. No other country in the world can boast of such a splendid professional university, and the consequence is that there are at present studying at the college officers from the Italian, Spanish, Prussian, Swedish, and Danish navies, who have been sent by their governments, and permitted by ours, to share in the advantages of its training.

On the 22nd of February the old palace was, very probably for the first time, the scene of a Masonic ceremonial. A number of the officers and staff of the college, being desirous of forming a lodge in connection with it, had forwarded the usual petition to the Grand Master; and in the absence of the Prince of Wales the Earl of Carnarvon had granted a warrant for a lodge, to be called the Royal Naval College Lodge, and held within the precincts of the college. The consecration took place in the east, or Queen Anne's, wing of the building. The lodge-room, under the superintendence of Bro. Captain Blakey, P.M., had been tastefully decorated with Masonic banners and naval flags, the Union Jack itself being appropriately used to cover the lodge board during the earlier part of the ceremony. The furniture of the new lodge not being ready, the St. George's Lodge, No. 140, kindly lent theirs for the occasion.

The Consecrating Officer was Bro. the Rev. Thomas Robinson, M.A., P.M. 88, 709, P.P.G.S.W. Kent, P.P.G.C. Cambs. The brethren having entered the lodge-room in procession, Bro. Robinson took the chair, and appointed the following officers pro tem:—Bros. Scard, W.M. 140, S.W.; White, W.M. 1174, J.W.; Dr. Crittenden, W.M. 548, I.G.; Captain Blakey, P.M. 184, 1174 (H.M.S. "Arrow"), D.C.; and Lieut. Symes, Organist. The lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the brethren of the new lodge were arranged in order, and the petition and warrant read by Captain Blakey. The brethren having signified their approval of the officers named, Bro. Robinson proceeded to consecrate the new lodge, and delivered an eloquent oration on the connection between Freemasonry and religion. The procession was then re-formed, the consecration elements being borne by Past Masters Trill, Warne, and Bumsted, the censor by Captain Blakey, and the salt by P. M. Bristow. The Union Jack having been withdrawn from the lodge board, the lodge was duly consecrated and dedicated, with the usual prayers and grand honours.

A Board of Installed Masters, eighteen in number, was then formed, and Bro. Robinson installed in the chair Bro. Robert Kiley Miller, M.A., F.R.A.S., Professor of Mathematics and Fellow of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, P.M. Isaac Newton University Lodge, 859, P.P.G.J.W. Cambs. The brethren having re-entered the lodge, the W.M. was saluted in due form, and invested as his Wardens the two brethren named in the warrant, Lieut. Willcox and Lieut. Pascoe. He also appointed and invested the following officers:—Bros. Lieut. Bourke, S.D.; Lieut. Knowles, J.D.; Lieut. Stapleton, I.G.; Paymaster Skinner, Sec.; and, for the evening, Captain Blakey, P.M. Dr. Pink was elected and invested as Treasurer. On the motion of the W.M. votes of thanks were then given to the Rev. Bro. Robinson for the beautiful and impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremonies of consecration and installation, and also to the Masters and Wardens of the St. George's Lodge for signing the petition and lending their lodge furniture. The following members of the college were then proposed for initiation:—Messrs. Pole and Glead, instructors in mathematics; Lieuts. Strange and Jones, Lieut. Schmemman (Russian Imperial Navy); Sub-Lieuts. Fraser and Elwes, Armstrong, surgeon; Attwood, engineer; and Hodges, hall porter, as serving brother. Bro. Robinson, the Consecrating Officer, was proposed as a joining member. Hearty good wishes for the new lodge were offered by a large number of visitors, and the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

After the banquet, which was held at the Trafalgar Hotel, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," remarking that the familiar old toast might soon have to be given in a different form, as a Royal Titles Bill had been brought before the House of Commons, although its secrets had not yet been divulged. The Queen was the daughter of a Mason, and the mother or mother-in-law of four, and was a warm and liberal patroness of the Order. In proposing "The Most Worshipful Grand Master," Bro. Miller eulogized the Prince of Wales's high and gracious qualities and Masonic zeal, and said that while Masonry in some countries was suspected, perhaps with truth, of being used as a cloak for revolutionary designs in religion and politics, English Masons could point with pride to the fact that the head of their Order was one who would be in time not only head of the State, but head of the Church. "The Past and Present Grand Officers" was coupled with the name of Bro. Binckes, P.G. Steward, the W.M. saying that Bro. Lord Balfour of Burleigh, P.G.S.W., would have been present had not the festival of the Prince of Wales's Lodge fallen upon the same evening. Bro. Binckes responded in his usual hearty manner, and, it need hardly be said, improved the occasion by advocating the claims of the Masonic charities in general and of "Our Boys" in particular. The W.M. then proposed in warm terms "The Consecrating Officer," who assumed the gavel, and returned the compliment. It had given him great pleasure to consecrate the lodge, especially as his son (Lieut. Robinson, H.M.S. "Excellent," W.M. 709,) was one of the founders, and as the W.M. was a member of his own university, and wore the purple of the same province as himself. "The Visitors" was responded to first by Bro. Scard, W.M. of the St. George's, and then by a number of other brethren, among them Bro. Maund, St. Peter's College, Cambridge, J.W. of the Isaac Newton, the W.M.'s mother lodge. The W.M. then said that as the lodge had not yet any Past Masters of its own he would take the liberty of substituting for the usual toast "The Health of Past Master Blakey," to whose zeal and energy both the foundation of the lodge and the success of its first meeting were in a great measure due. Captain Blakey responded, and Lieut. Willcox, S.W., returned thanks for "The Officers." The lodge not having as yet a Tyler, the closing toast was given by Lieut. Bourke, S.D.

CONSECRATION OF THE UPPER NORWOOD LODGE, No. 1586.

Freemasonry is indeed making rapid strides in its onward progress. The number of lodges under the English Constitution, as announced at Grand Lodge on Wednesday last, is on the verge of 1600, while the agenda paper contained the names of no less than eighteen for which warrants had been issued since the last Quarterly Communication, and the quarter's return for the Lodge of Benevolence amount to £890 7s. 11d., those for general purposes to £1573 4s. 0d. These sums are independent of the particular and special charities of the fraternity, which are fast bordering on a revenue of £30,000 per annum, divided almost equally between the three.

One of the last additions of the working list of this grand result is No. 1586, consecrated at Upper Norwood, on the 16th ult., at the White Hart Hotel, the locale, the external position and internal accommodation and appliances of which could not be surpassed in the whole province. Major General Brownrigg, the R.W.P.G.M. for Surrey, could not be present to take part in the ceremony, but his place was most ably filled by the W. Bro. H. E. Francis, P.M., Prov. J.G.D. Surrey, specially appointed Deputy for the consecration.

He was assisted in the ceremony by W. Bros. W. Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, and 1512, Prov. J.G.D. Middlesex, acting as Chaplain; James Kew, P.M. 107, acting as Installing Master; while W. Bro. James Coward, P.M., P.G. Org., presided at the organ, assisted in the musical department by Bros. G. E. J. Fox, 1339, and John Stedwell, 172.

Among the brethren present, in addition to those already named, were the founders of the lodge, Bros. W. J. Miller, P.M., W.M. designate; W. Hopekirk, P.M., S.W. designate; G. Cragg, J.W. designate; W. Drake, P.M., and John Hammond, P.M., the selected Secretary and Treasurer of the new lodge, respectively; E. Kidman, G. Paull, C. Pugsley, J. Crouch, Pringle, Bowyer Grist, and Ledger.

Among the visitors were noticed W. Bros. G. J. Kain, P.M. 284 and 766, P. Prov. G. Sec. Warwickshire; Edward Hopwood, P.M. 141, W.M. 1512; G. Benham, W.M. 1330; F. Sawyer, and others.

The brethren assembled at 5.30 p.m., formed in procession in the ante-room, and marched to the lodge-room n Masonic order, when the Consecrating Master took the chair and appointed his Wardens pro tem., Bros. E. Hopwood and Benham respectively.

The Consecrating Master then addressed the brethren on the nature of the meeting.

The Consecrating Master now called upon the Secretary to read the petition to the Grand Lodge, and the warrant or charter thereto granted by the M.W.G.M., or, in his absence, rather by the R.W. the Pro G.M. Thereupon the founders were duly constituted into a regular lodge, under the title of the Upper Norwood Lodge, No. 1586, on the register of the Grand Lodge of England, after which Bro. Francis gave a most eloquently written oration, which was listened to with breathless attention by the whole body of the assembled brethren. It urged upon the founders of the lodge the absolute necessity of exact working in their new lodge now that there were so many pressing upon our ranks; it inculcated a strict adherence to those ancient landmarks by which the Order had been enabled to survive the wreck of mighty empires and to resist the destroying hand of time; it impressed upon the brotherhood the great duty of carrying out the professions of the Order into real practice in the three great principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth—that the best exponent of these grand, these revered principles was a hearty support of the three great institutions which had become the pride and delight of the fraternity and the wonder of the world. It further called upon the brethren to practise out of the lodge those grand humanising principles which are taught within its walls, so that when a Mason is pointed out as such it may be synonymous with saying there is a good and great man, who devotes himself to the well-being of his fellow creatures and the glory of the Great Architect of the Universe.

The music, which throughout had, under the experienced skill of Bro. Coward, been beautifully appropriate, now culminated in the exquisite rendering of the anthem—"Behold how good and joyful a thing it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity." It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down unto the beard, even unto Aaron's beard, and went down to the skirts of his clothing. It is like the dew of Heaven which fell upon the hill of Sion; For there the Lord promised his blessing, and life for evermore.

The dedication prayer, a sanctus, "Glory be to Thee O Lord," and the Scripture reading from the Second Book of Chronicles, and another short anthem, followed:

"Glory be to God on high;
Peace on earth,
Goodwill towards men."

The completion of the consecrating ceremony was then proceeded with, the lodge fully constituted, and the Patriarchal Benediction, preceded by Haydn's beautiful anthem excellently sung.

"The spacious firmament on high," &c.

The ceremony of installation was next proceeded with. Bro. Miller, P.M., was presented for the benefit of installation. In so doing he dilated upon the Masonic qualities of the aspirant for the chair, and the very efficient manner in which he had already performed the duties of that important office in No. 766.

Bro. Kew at once proceeded with the introductory portions of the ceremony. The essentials of the ritual were then proceeded with, curtailed in such portions as became unnecessary in this particular case, Bro. Miller being already a Past Master. The occult mysteries concluded, the W.M. invested his immediate Past Master, Bro. Francis, and was duly saluted, and most heartily congratulated by the large number of Past Masters present.

The appointment of officers next ensued, a duty the W.M. delegated to the Consecrating Master, and which he performed in the same exemplary manner as the previous duties of the day. The following is the entire appointment:—Bros. W. Hopekirk, P.M., S.W.; George Cragg, J.W.; J. Hammond, P.M., Treas.; W. Drake, P.M., Sec.; E. Kidman, S.D.; G. Paull, J.D.; C. Pugsley, D.C.; J. Crouch, W.S.

The investiture of Bro. Pringle as I.G. was postponed, he having been called away on business. Mention must not be omitted of the very effective manner in which the three addresses were rendered by the Installing Master, and the high appreciation he manifested of those beautiful compositions.

The W.M. now rose and said: Brethren, we who have now been constituted the responsible members of this lodge should be wanting, not only in courtesy to those brethren who have added so much zest to the beautiful ceremonies of this day by the talent they have brought to bear, but we should even be regardless of our own best interests, were we to omit the expression of our heartfelt thanks for their kind assistance, and to omit at the same time to proffer to them the freedom of the lodge. A very hearty vote of thanks was then accorded to those brethren, and the following were separately elected honorary members of the Upper Norwood Lodge:—Bros. H. E. Francis, P.M., Prov. J.G.D. Surrey, for his able services as Consecrating Master; W. Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, and 1512, Prov. J.G.D. Middlesex, acting Chaplain on the occasion; James Coward, P.M., P.G. Organist of England, in whose hands the musical arrangements of the day were placed; James Kew, P.M. 179, for his services as Installing Master; and G. Fox, of 1331, and John Stedman, of 172, for their valuable assistance in the musical department.

The brethren severally acknowledged the compliment which had been passed upon them by the members of the new lodge, and each and all, while proffering their congratulations to the lodge, and their best wishes for its prosperity assured the W.M., and those that it was hoped would gradually rise to the same honourable position, that whatever they might be able individually to do to secure the success of the lodge should be freely done by them. Some who resided at a distance could not be expected to attend frequently, but whenever the summons became special and particular, if within the limits of the [C.T., their services should be commanded.

Upon the Master's rising some twenty propositions were made, much the greater portion being on behalf of candidates for initiation.

A very excellent banquet, provided by the brother host of the White Hart, followed, and the short time to 11 p.m. was spent in the usual loyal and Masonic manner, which the limits of our space only preclude the pleasure of complete details. The toasts were given by a veteran W.M., and were heartily responded to by the various brethren in their respective positions, "The Visitors" being very specially directed to the W. Bro. G. J. Kain, P.M. 284 and 766, P.P. G. Sec. Warwick, who not only made a most humorous response, but amused the brethren with some clever specimens of legerdemain. The pleasures of the evening were greatly enlivened by the very complete musical arrangements. In addition to the excellent selected songs, Bro. Coward illustrated how beautifully effective even the simplest combinations of musical sounds could become under the direction of a master of his art, in interchanging the notes of the common chord with the words hurrah, hurrah, hurrah!

CONSECRATION OF THE ABBEY CHAPTER (1225). BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

Wednesday, the 23rd February, was appointed as the day on which this chapter was to be consecrated. At 2.30 a large number of companions assembled in the chapter room at the Hartington Hotel. Amongst those present were E. Comps. H. S. Allpass, Prov. G.S.E. West Lancashire; Thomas Armstrong, Prov. G. Treas.; Reuben Pearson, Prov. G. Registrar; James McKeene, P.P.G.S.; Robert Wylie, P.P.G.D.C., M.E.Z. 292; Thomas Dodgson, P.P.G.D.C.; Roger Dodgson, M.E.Z. 995; John Case, P.P.J.; Richard W. Worrall, P.Z.; S. J. Wade, P.P.G.D.C. Durham; George Cornfield, H. 995; Richard A. Brooke, P.J. 274, M.E.Z. designate; Comps. Myles Haslam, J. designate; R. T. Taylor, E. J. Morgan, R. B. D. Bradshaw, J. Settle, Whiteside (Dalton), Warne (Ulverston), and others.

A R.A. Chapter having been opened by E. Comps. Allpass, Prov. G.S.E., as Z.; Armstrong, Prov. Treas., as H.; Reuben Pearson, Prov. G. Registrar, as J.; McKeene, P.P.G.S., as Director of Ceremonies, P.P.G.S.; P.P.G.D.C., as Scribe E.; and Thomas Dodgson, P.P.G.D.C., as Scribe N., the companions under the rank of J. were admitted, and the ancient and solemn ceremony of consecration was then very impressively performed.

The petitioning companions having signified their wish that Comps. R. A. Brooke, Robert Hooker, and Myles Haslam should be installed in their respective chairs of Z., H., and J. of the new chapter, E. Comp. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.D.C., as Installing Principal, then installed them accordingly, they being presented to the Installing Master by E. Comp. McKeene, P.P.G.S.

The companions afterwards elected Comps. R. T. Taylor, Scribe E.; E. J. Morgan, Scribe N.; Cornfield, Treas.; and Settle, P.S., who were thereupon duly invested by the M.E.Z. Comps. Hill was appointed Organist; Klyne and Stafford, A.S.; J. Stanley Ormandy, D.C.; and Purvey and James Bush, Stewards.

Several brethren were proposed for exaltation, and hearty good wishes were offered for the success and prosperity of the new chapter; and the chapter was then closed.

The companions afterwards sat down to a splendid repast provided by Bro. R. T. Taylor, and when the cloth had been removed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

The name of the new chapter has been selected in consequence of the proximity of the town of Barrow to the old Abbey of Furness, whose Abbot once exercised almost regal power over this part of Lancashire. Now in ruins, it is situated in one of England's most beautiful vales, and has long justly caused this corner of our isle to be widely renowned. There seems, therefore, to be something exceedingly graceful and appropriate in the selection of the name "Abbey."

We are glad to learn of the very flourishing condition of Masonry in Barrow.

After the business of the day was over a number of the visiting companions accompanied E. Comp. Cornfield over the works of the Barrow Hematite Steel Company, and expressed themselves greatly interested in all they saw there. As our readers are no doubt aware, these works are the largest of their kind in Great Britain, and they are the evidence of the great enterprise of those gentlemen who have linked their interests so closely with the town of Barrow. They were originally established by Comp. Henry Schneider, but have now been converted into a company under the presidency of His Grace the Duke of Devonshire.

VISIT OF HER MAJESTY TO THE LONDON HOSPITAL.

Although, at first sight, it might not be apparent that the visit of the Queen to the London Hospital should have anything to do with Masonry, nevertheless it deals, in very great measure, with a branch of the "profession," although not of "Craft Masonry," inasmuch as the object of Her Majesty's visit to the East End on Tuesday last was to open a new wing which had been presented to the hospital by the Worshipful the Grocers' Company, at a cost of over £25,000. Her Majesty, we feel sure, had never before met with a more truly hearty and loyal reception than when she passed through that densely populated district, Whitechapel. On arriving at the hospital the Queen was met by the officials, and conducted through the several wards, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge and a numerous suite, after which the Queen took her seat upon an elaborately decorated dais, under a very hand some canopy, situated at one end of a temporarily erected pavilion at the back of the hospital, where the ceremony of opening the new wing was conducted in the presence of upwards of 2000 visitors. The National Anthem having been sung, in which the solo was most impressively sung by Madame Patey, a prayer was afterwards offered up by the Bishop of London, upon which followed a hymn composed by the late Prince Consort, which was most effectively rendered by the following vocalists, under the direction of Bro. T. Lawler, of 84, New Bond Street, W.:—Madame Patey, Mdle. José Sherrington, Miss Annie Sinclair, Miss Marion Severn, Miss Adelaide Newton, Mr. Lewis Thomas, Mr. Beckett, Mr. E. Franks, and the following brethren:—Hodges, Montem Smith, Thornton, Lawler, sen., and C. S. Jeckyll (Organist), assisted by four choristers from the Chapel Royal; and last, though by no means least, an additional feature to the musical arrangements was the presence of Mr. Fred Godfrey with his band of the Coldstream Guards, which gave great effect in the choruses in the National Anthem and the chorales. The new wing being declared open, Her Majesty retired, whilst the vocalists sang another verse of the National Anthem. After which the Old Hundredth Hymn was sung (by desire, and specially arranged for the occasion), the last verse of which was very effective, being in unison, accompanied by Mr. Godfrey's band. Everything in connection with the ceremony appears to have passed off exceedingly well, thanks to Mr. Snelgrove, the secretary of the hospital, who deserves a word of praise for the untiring zeal displayed by him during the arrangements for this memorable occasion.

THE ROAYL TOUR IN INDIA.

The Prince's tour having now nearly come to an end, it gives us great pleasure to quote the following excerpt from the "Standard" of the 6th inst., since it speaks so frankly and justly of the well-won popularity of that genial gentleman our beloved Grand Master:—

"The gentlemen who drew out the programme of the Prince's tour acted very wisely in choosing Jeypore as its terminal point. I say terminal, because, although the Prince has yet another month to remain in India, his long round of visits and fêtes, of balls and ceremonies, has now come to a termination, and save a thirty-six hours' visit to Holkar, at Indore, he has now only to enjoy himself upon a three weeks' hunting expedition. No man ever earned his holiday more thoroughly. He has gone unflinchingly and cheerfully through an amount of work which would have at once knocked up and broken the temper of most men; he has never missed a single engagement, or shirked one item in his programme—has never looked aught but interested and pleased in all the round of public festivities or of private and even more monotonous ceremonies. For it must be remembered that the public ceremonies which we have had to chronicle—and many of them of minor importance, although of equal length and involving equal fatigue with the more interesting ceremonials, have necessarily been either mentioned in a few words, or have been altogether omitted—have been but a portion only of the Prince's work. In every town which he has visited there has been a levée, at which all the officers of the troops in garrison, all the resident civilians, have been presented. At each place there has been a private durbar, at which the lesser chiefs have been presented; while the more important chiefs have each paid private visits of state, and have been received with all the formalities of Atar and Pan which I described in my first letter from Bombay, and these visits have all been scrupulously returned. Thus the Prince's whole time has been occupied, and it is wonderful that while most of his staff look jaded and fagged, he himself looks as fresh, as pleasant, and as interested as ever. No wonder he has won the hearts of natives wherever he has gone; those who only see him as he passes in the streets are delighted with the affability and punctiliousness with which he returns every salute, while those who have had the honour of a personal interview are completely won with the charm of his manner. I have heard one or two Europeans object that he was too affable with the natives—and affability with natives is by no means a general failing in India—but some natives of importance to whom I spoke on the subject indignantly repudiated the suggestion of the possibility of such a thing. 'The Prince, as the future Emperor of India, as the source of all honour and rank, could not lower himself by unbending to the meanness of his subjects. His condescension to them might raise them up, might elevate them in their own opinion and in that of others, as a flower is raised by the warmth of the sun, but it could in no way affect his own position. A great monarch could be more or less loved by his people as he was more or less good and kind, but he must be respected and venerated as a great monarch whatever his conduct. The Prince has made himself loved over and above the respect and veneration all were prepared to pay him.' Such is, I am assured, the general verdict of native opinion wherever the Prince has gone, and a greater, and, if as an attentive looker on I may be permitted to say so, a better deserved success no man could have attained. The Prince's holiday involves a comparative holiday for us also, for he has expressed a natural desire that the privacy of his sporting expedition shall be strictly preserved, and that wish will, I need hardly say, be respected. Putting aside the unpleasantness of a gentleman intent upon shooting a tiger being watched by half a score of 'chiefs taking notes,' the difficulties of food and transport would also have proved insurmountable obstacles to our accompanying the Prince. So great, indeed, are these obstacles that a portion of the personal staff will necessarily remain behind. An exception, however, has been made in favour of the artists of the illustrated papers, and of the gentleman who acts as Reuter's agent."

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN NEWTON TOMKINS.

We regret to have to announce the death of Bro. John Newton Tomkins, P.G.D. For some years past his failing health had prevented his attendance at Grand Lodge, and even at his own lodge (Peace and Harmony), but his loss will be deeply regretted by many Masons who are old enough to remember what a brilliant ornament he was to the Craft. Enthusiastically devoted to the objects and work of the Order, he was a consummate master of the ritual, including all the lectures as well as the ceremonies, not only in Craft and Royal Arch Masonry, but also in the allied Orders of Knights Templar and the Ancient and Accepted Rite as far as the 31st Degree. He was initiated in the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, then No. 72, on October 22nd, 1846, joined the Royal Athelstan Lodge of Instruction in March, 1847, and the Lodge of Amity, No. 200, in May the same year; in 1848 he was elected a Grand Steward from No. 72, and joined the Grand Stewards' Lodge; he was then exalted in the R.A. Chapter of Fidelity, No. 3, and joined a Chapter of Instruction; a few months later he was made a Knight Templar in the Encampment of Faith and Fidelity, and in 1849 he joined the Lodge of Emulation, No. 318, and was at once made Junior Warden, after being made the 1st Grand Expert in Grand Conclave a short time previously. In 1850 he joined the Lodge of Emulation, and took the chair of W.M. in Lodge No. 318, serving the office of W.M. in Lodge No. 318 for two years, and in other lodges for three years afterwards, thus occupying the chair in four lodges for five consecutive years, probably an unprecedented case of one brother holding the chair in various lodges for so long a term without a break. He was W.M. of No. 318 during 1850 and 1851; W.M. of No. 200 in 1852; W.M. of No. 60, (formerly No. 72) in 1853; and W.M. of the Grand Stewards' Lodge in 1854. In 1851 he was elected to the Board of General Purposes at the top of the poll with 160 votes, and joined the 18° and 30° of the Ancient and Accepted Rite; in 1852 he was exalted to the 31°, in 1853 he was installed 1st Principal of R.A. Chapter, No. 3, and E.C. of the Encampment of Faith and Fidelity; in 1854 he was made Junior Grand Deacon in Grand Lodge, and Sword Bearer in Grand Chapter; and in 1855 Grand Treasurer to Grand Conclave, which last office he held for ten years. In addition to all these offices he was also Hon. Sec. to the Royal Athelstan Lodge of Instruction, and Treasurer to the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, to the Chapter of Fidelity, and to the Encampment of Faith and Fidelity for many years, greatly to the satisfaction of them all; services which were very kindly acknowledged by presentations of plate, and by most flattering expressions of their esteem and regard. The Lodge of Amity also testified their appreciation of his merits as their W.M. in a similar manner. Last of all, he was a Life Governor, and had served the Stewardships of all the charities. No one who was privileged to meet him at the many lodges of which he was a member will forget the happy hours he passed, for not only was Bro. John Newton Tomkins a great authority in Masonry, but he was the wittiest and most brilliant speaker of his day, and the most entertaining companion, while his amiable and generous disposition made him universally beloved; and rightly was he considered twenty years ago to be the most popular member of the Craft. Latterly he gradually retired from all the lodges and chapters to which he belonged, except the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, of which he continued a member to the day of his death; but though his lodges and chapter, know him no more, yet their older members and his many friends will always hold his memory in affectionate remembrance.

BRO. J. HAWKER.

Bro. J. Hawker, P.M. 871, died suddenly on Friday, 18th February, at the comparatively early age of 51. He was afflicted with heart disease, and was ill for only a very short time. He was initiated in the Royal Oak Lodge, 871, on October 2nd, 1862, and continued a full subscribing member till his death. He held the office of W.M. in 1868, doing all the work and installing his successor. He was a Life Governor of one of the charities, and took an active interest in his lodge, seldom missing a meeting. He was well and deservedly respected by all who knew him, and has left a widow and family to lament the heavy loss they have sustained.

SKATING RINKS.—It is forgotten, writes Bro. Hyde Clarke in the "Athenæum," that there was a rink in London above a generation ago. Bradwell, of Covent-garden, a very ingenious man, was the inventor of the ice, and he tried it at the theatre. His rink, to which Bro. Clarke gave the name of the Glaciarium, was near the Regent's Park. His first season's surface was hard and polished, and bore skating well; but the amateurs complained it would not take a figure like real ice, so next year Bradwell invented an ice which cut well with the skate. The affair was on too small a scale to pay in those days.

GAS superseded in day time, and daylight reflected in dark rooms. Health, comfort, and economy promoted, by adopting Chappuis' Patent Daylight Reflectors. Manufactory, 69, Fleet-street, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—It would be startling to many were it possible to state accurately the number of persons who have been restored to health, and relieved by these remedies, and if all the details connected with each individual case could be collected the enormous amount of pain and suffering which has been soothed and got rid of would be beyond belief. These remedies are so well known in the present day, east, west, south, and north, that it is strange any individual should remain in ignorance of their valuable qualities in correcting all blood impurities, whether hereditary or acquired, the ill effects of which they effectually modify and counteract, rendering the sickly and feeble physically strong.—ADVT.

THE CANCER HOSPITAL (founded 1851).

—The late ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, in a sermon preached by His Grace on behalf of this Hospital, said: "There is no disease more pitiable than that to which this Institution is specially devoted. From the first symptoms an attack one long course has commonly been prognosticated—of fearful looking-for of a lingering progress towards a death of anguish. Could the greatness of the suffering be laid before you—could you be shown its severity, so as to see it in its true proportions and natural colours—no one endowed with the feelings of humanity could resist the spectacle; they would think all they possessed a trifling sacrifice if, at such a price, they could mitigate such misery; and yet they know that these sufferings exist as surely as if they were spread before their eyes. This, therefore, is a case in which I may justly ask your liberal contributions, that the relief afforded by this Hospital may more nearly approach the amount of misery it endeavours to remove."

In consequence of the severe nature of this disease it has recently been found necessary to face the whole of the wards with glazed tiles, causing a heavy expenditure and a great drain upon the funds of the Hospital. Subscriptions are, therefore, earnestly solicited.

SUBSCRIPTIONS will be most thankfully received for this Hospital, WHICH IS FREE. Diet required to be most generous, and medicines of the most expensive kind.

At the conclusion of the banquet, after grace had been said, the W.M., who presided, proposed the toasts. After giving that of "The Queen and the Craft," he proposed that of "The M.W.G.M.," and in doing so said that the Prince of Wales was so highly beloved among Masons that it was quite unnecessary to say more than to ask the brethren to drink his health. No doubt one and all would be delighted to see him on his return home again. He was now on the sea, and he had accomplished the purpose for which he went to India to the highest satisfaction of our brethren in that country, as well as to all our other fellow subjects in the great Empire. The toast was coupled with that of "The Earl of Carnarvon." In giving the toast of "Lord Skelmersdale and the Grand Officers," the W.M. coupled the name of Bro. Rucker with it, of whom they were all very proud, and by whose appointment as G.S.D. they felt much honoured. Bro. J. A. Rucker responded. The health of the W.M. was proposed by Bro. Stedwell, P.M., who said the brethren knew the W.M. and his good qualities so well that even a very long speech would but enhance him in their estimation. He had the interests of the Grand Stewards' Lodge at heart at all times, and the immense amount of good he had always done, and was now doing independently of being the W.M. of the lodge entitled him (Bro. Stedwell) to ask the brethren to drink the W.M.'s health most cordially. The W.M., in reply, wished he deserved all Bro. Stedwell's praise. In one thing he had said the truth, that he had always had the welfare of the Grand Stewards' Lodge at heart. He hoped he always should. When he first joined the lodge, not so many years ago, the funds were small, and the first time he dined in it they sat down seven. The state of things was different now. He was proud of the lodge, and would do all in his power to keep it up. Although he did not believe as some did that they would regain the privileges they had lost, and if the number of red apron lodges was increased (which they could not look for) they might yet do a great deal of good in Masonry; they could set examples, and the Grand Stewards' Lodge, not No. 1, but the first lodge in the Craft. If the brethren would only follow him, and the P.M.'s, and those who desired to make it a great lodge they would succeed. (Hear Hear.) The toast of "The Visitors" followed, in which the W.M. gave those brethren a most hearty welcome. This was seconded by the rest of the brethren drinking the toast warmly in bumpers. Bros. Walsh, H. W. Vallance and Briggs replied, and the W.M. next gave "The P.M.'s," and in recounting the services the brethren had rendered named Bro. Briggs as being the brother who raised the lodge when it was small in number to the proud position in which it at present stood. He also included the names of Bros Stedwell, Norman, Binckes, Swainston and Waters. Bro. Stedwell replied, and assured the W.M. and the brethren that the P.M.'s would follow the course they had always pursued. The toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary," Bros. Rucker and Hockley, drew the brethren's attention to two noble representatives of the lodge, the W.M. saying that better officers there could not be, and the lodge heartily thanked them for the able manner in which they performed their duties. Bro. Hockley, who replied, thanked the brethren sincerely for their kind recognition of his and the Treasurer's services. "The Musical Brethren and Bro.

Monckton" followed, the thanks of the brethren being given to the musical brethren, and the W.M. adding that when Bro. Baxter had gone through the chair he should propose that he become Org. of the lodge. Bro. Monckton replied, and "The Officers of the Lodge" was proposed, those brethren having ever contributed to establish the prestige of this lodge, notably Bro. E. Saunders, P.G.S.D. Bro. Baxter, S.W., replied, and looked back with pride on those old times when Grand Stewards' Lodge had public nights, which had now been superseded by the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. Bro. F. Binckes replied for "The Charities," and thanked their lodge for having supported Bro. Bristow, who had kindly undertaken the Stewardship of the lodge for the Boys' School. The brethren afterwards separated.
